To bill by persons entitled to a certain aliquot portion of a certain ascertained sum in hands of trustee, co-cestui que trusts are not necessary parties. Smith v. Snow, 3 Mad. 10. Id.

Trustees having committed breach of trust by granting longer leases than they had power to do by deed; the fact of cestui que trusts receiving rent from the lessees in ignorance of the invalidity of their leases, did not operate as a new agreement. But cestui que trusts having neglected to look into their rights, account only directed from filing of bill without costs to plaintiff. Bowes v. East London Waterworks, 3 Mad. 373. ACQUIESCENCE; ACCOUNT; BREACH OF TRUST.

Reference of a solicitor's bill of costs to be taxed upon the application of one of two trustees and executors by whom he had been employed in the conduct of the cause, and in other matters relating to the executorship, the executor making the application not having acted, and his co-executor refusing to consent to the application, the bill having been long

VIII. TRUSTEE AND CESTUI QUE TRUST.

Trustee cannot file bill concerning trust without making cestui que trusts parties; if they are numerous since paid by the acting executor, but unknown to the parties beneficially interested, and no settlement of the executorship accounts having been made, notwithstanding repeated applications, until lately, and the cestui que trust (one of them a married woman) having executed a release to the executors: motion on behalf of the solicitor to discharge the order of reference refused, the cestui que trust having a right to use the name of his trustee for the purpose of taxation, and the release to the executors, not operating to prevent him from prosecuting against the solicitor, the remedy given by the statute. Hazard v. Lane, 3 Mer. 285. PR. TAXATION OF SOLICITOR'S BILL.

The distinction between attorney and trustee to sell as to contracts with client and cestui que trust is, that attorney retaining character may contract, subject to onus of making it thoroughly manifest that he has taken no advantage of his confidential situation. But in trustee it is not sufficient to show he has not taken advantage, the general rule being that he must divest himself of that character. Cane v. Id. Allen, 2 Dow. 299. SOLICITOR & CLIENT; FRAUD, FID. SIR.

Equity will never permit the trustee to evict his cestui que trust. Shine v. Gough, 1 Ball & B. 445.

No act of the trustee can vary the right of the cestui que trust, but his situation may vary; as when the cestui que trust is his heir, and the right to die depends upon which dies first. Selby v. Alston, 3 Ves. 341.

Bill by devisee in trust to sell for specific performance of an agreement to purchase; exception to the report in favour of the title that the persons entitled to the purchase-money subject to debts, legacies, and other charges, were not parties to the suit; the Ld. Ch. was of opinion they ought not to be parties to the conveyance, and if they were, their covenant ought to extend only to their own acts and those of the deviser, not to a general warranty without a special contract for it; but as the point must come properly upon objections to the conveyance, the exception was overruled upon the form. Hakeman v. Ds. Rutland, 3 Ves. 233. PL. PARTY; EXCEPTIONS TO MASTER'S REPORT.

Bill by one trustee of stock against the other to compel him to replace it or give security according to his engagement when the plaintiff joined in transferring the stock into his name, demurrer because the cestui que trusts were not parties, overruled with costs. Franco v. Franco, 3 Ves. 75. PL. PARTIES.

A cestui que trust claiming compensation for breach of trust against the representatives: the trustee, can only come in as a simple contract creditor. Kearnan v. Fitzsimon, 3 Ridgw. P.C. 1. ADMON. OF ASSETS.

A trustee cannot prove a debt alone; the cestui que trust must join in the proof. Exp. Dubois, 1 Cox, 310. BANKCY. PROOF IN.

Trustee not protected by acquiescence of the cestui que trust, not duly informed. Ryder v. Bickerton, 3 Swan. 81. ACQUIESCENCE.

Where the real estate is in the hands of trustees, and the trustees convey it over without notice of the trust, if a bill is brought by the cestui que trust, the trustees must be made defendants. Harrison v. Pryse, Barn. 324. PL. PARTY; VEND. & PURCH.

Bill of redemption against the trustee is not sufficient; the cestui que trust must be a party. Whistler v. Webb, Bun. 53. PL. PARTY.

Trustees postponing or accelerating the sale of estates devised to them, will make no alteration in favour of the heir to the prejudice of cestui que trust. Hawkins v. Chappel, 1 Atk. 623. HEIR.

A trustee has as much the benefit of the pleading of this court, as he that has the equitable interest; and cestui que trust is intitled to have the privilege maintained by the trustee. Earl Suffolk v. Green, 1 Atk. 450.

Lease of a coal mine to A reserving a rent; A, the lessee, declares himself a trustee for five persons, to each a fifth; the five partners enter upon work and take the profits of the mine, which afterwards becomes unprofitable, and the lessee insolvent; the cestui que trusts not liable, but for the time during which they took the profits. Clacering v. Westley, 3 P. W. 402. LESSOR & LESSEE; ACCT.

Where a trustee has an infant's money to lay out for his benefit, and employs it in his trade, the court will give an option for the benefit of the infant either to have interest or the profits of the trade. Anon., 2 Ves. 630. INFANT.

The widow of the cestui que trust of a copyhold estate, shall have her free bench as well as if her husband had the legal estate. Banks v. Sutton, 2 P. W. 712. overruled, id. 719. n. (g). DOWEN.

Though by death of cestui que trust the suit abates as to him, yet if there be a decree against him and his trustees to convey, &c. the trustees are obliged to convey the legal estate, for the death of either party makes no abatement only quoad himself. Finch v. Lord Winchelsea, 1 Eq. Ab. 2. PR. ABATEMENT.

One buys an estate in the name of a trustee, who gives a bond in 200l. penalty to assign the estate as the cestui que trust or his executor shall direct; cestui que trust dies, and his executor brings debt on the bond and recovers judgment, and has the money paid him, after which he brings a bill to have a conveyance of the estate; trustee to convey to the plaintiff, and to account for the profits, but in account is to be allowed the 200l. and interest which he paid. Moorecroft v. Dowling, 2 P. W. 314. BOND.

Cestui que trust in tail brings a bill against the trustees to the intent they should join in a recovery; this not proper; but it is proper to pray that the trustees may convey the premises to the cestui que trust in tail, who may then suffer a recovery, though if the trustees are also trustees for any annuities subsisting, they are not compellable to part with the legal estate out of them, to the cestui que trust in tail. Carteret v. Carteret, 2 P. W. 133. RECOVERY.

A cestui que trust must in all cases be a party, but the trustee need not, especially if cestui que trust undertakes for him. Kirk v. Clark, Prec. Chan. 275. PL. PARTY.

A devises lands to trustees until debts paid, and then to an infant and his heirs. Defendant enters and levies a fine, and five years pass. Infant when of age brought an ejectment, but was barred, because the trustees should have entered. Equity will relieve, and not suffer an infant to be barred by the laches of the trustees, nor to be barred of a trust estate during his infancy. The infant in this case shall recover the mesne profits. Allen v. Sayer, 2 Vern. 368. INFANT.

Common recovery suffered or fines levied by cestui que trust of an estate tail, has the same effect in equity as it would have at law, in case the legal estate was in him. Carpenter v. Carpenter, 1 Vern. 440. FINE & RECOVERY.

An heriot is not due upon the death of cestui que trust, but of him that has the legal estate. Trin. Coll. Camb. v. Browne, 1 Vern. 441. HERIOTS.

In a bill against executors who are only executors in trust, it is not necessary to make the cestui que trust or residuary legatees parties. Anon. 1 Vern. 261. PL. PARTIES.

A co-plaintiff, though but a trustee, cannot be examined as a witness for the other plaintiff. Phillips v. Dk. Bucks, 1 Vern. 230. PR. WITNESS, COMPETENCY OF; PARTY PLAINTIFF.

Relief for cestui que trust of lease against assignment or sale by trustee. Rooke v. Staples, Cary, 76.

IX. TO PRESERVE CONTINGENT REMAINDERS.

Under a settlement and recovery, lands were limited to the use of A for life, and after his decease to the use of B and his heirs, during the life of A to support contingent remainders; remainders to the use of C for life, to the same B and his heirs during the life of C to support contingent remainders; remainder to the first and other sons of C in tail male; remainder to the use of D for life, and if she should marry, and her husband should survive her, to her husband for his life, and after the determination of those estates to the said B and his heirs, (without saying during the life of D), to support and preserve contingent remainders; remainder to the first &c. sons of D in tail; remainder to the use of E for her life, and if she should marry, and her husband should survive her, to her husband for his life; and after the determination of those estates to the said B and his heirs, (without saying during the life of E), to support contingent remainders; remainder to the first and other sons of E in tail male: held, that under the limitation to B and his heirs, after the limitations of estates for life to D and E, the trustee took the fee, and that E took only an equitable estate. Colborne v. Tyndall, 2 Y. & J. 605. SETTL. C. OF.

It is not a sufficient ground for restricting an estate limited in a deed to a trustee and his heirs, to an estate for life, that the estate given to the trustee seems to be a larger than was essential to its purpose, or that the limitation has been unnecessarily repeated. Id. ib.

Trustee to preserve contingent remainders, joining in a recovery with the remainder-man in tail, having attained twenty-one: held, no breach of trust, and no objection to a specific performance. Briscoe v. Perkins, 1 V. & B. 485. FINE & RECOVERY; TRUST, BREACH OF.

Trustees to preserve contingent remainders, honorary trustees; not to be compelled to join in destroying them. Id. 492.

Trustees to preserve contingent remainders, joining in a recovery, held, with reference to the circumstances and occasion, no breach of trust. Mundy v. Walters, 16 Ves. 283. BREACH OF TRUST.

Generally trustees joining to destroy the contingent remainders, before the tenant in tail is of age, is a breach of trust. Id. ib.

Trustees to preserve, &c. are not to permit the tenant for life or years, by destruction of that estate, to bring forward a remainder to himself or another, for the purpose of cutting timber. Stansfield v. Habergam, 10 Ves. 278.

A dormant surrender of a copyhold (that is, a surrender to A, on condition to perform the will of the surrenderor,) will vest an estate in the dormant surrenderor, sufficient to support the contingent remainders of the surrenderor's will, without the interposition of trustees for the purpose. Gale v. Gale, 2 Cox, 136. COPYHOLD, SURRENDER OF.

The court will not compel a trustee for preserving contingent remainders, to join in a recovery, unless to continue the estate, or under very particular circumstances. Barnard v. Large, 1 Bro. C. C. 534.

A, tenant (of a settled estate) for ninety-nine years, if he should so long live, remainder to trustees to preserve, &c. remainder to his first and other sons, remainder over to A and B; his sons being indebted, assigned this settled estate in trust to their creditors, and agreed to suffer a recovery. The creditors filed a bill against A and B, and against the trustee to preserve, &c. to compel him to join in the recovery. Per cur. the court will effectuate the intention of a testator as far as possible, to preserve the limitations he has made where the uses are executory; and as there is no similar case in which the court has decreed the trustees to join, it ought not to be done here. Bill dismissed. Woodhouse v. Hoskins, 3 Atk. 22.

A devised lands in trusts for B for life, remainder in trust for his sons successively, remainder in trust for the future sons of C, remainder over, and the testator provided for the disposition of the rents and profits during the minorities of those who were to take in future. B died in testator's life-time, and it was decreed, the contingent limitations should enure as executory devises, and that the profits from the death of the testator till the birth of a son of B, should go to the heir; and afterwards, a son being born to B, upon the death of that son it was decreed, that the rents and profits should belong to the heir, until some person should become entitled under the limitations of the will. Hopkins v. Hopkins, 1 Atk. 581. 1 Ves. 268. Ca. temp. Talb. 44. A corrected copy of this case was stated by Lord Loughborough, in Habergham v. Vincent, 4 Bro. C. C. 390.

The resulting trust of a freehold, to support remainders of a trust, may connect with the limitation in tail, though not created together with it. S. C. 1 Atk. 595.

There may be a resulting trust under a trust to appoint contingent remainders for the heir at law, in the same manner as under an executory devise. S. C. 1 Atk. 597.

The court will not compel trustees to join in a sale which will not only destroy contingent remainders, but all the uses in a marriage settlement; for they are guilty of a breach of trust in joining to destroy contingent remainders, whether the settlement be voluntary for a valuable consideration, or by will. Symance v. Tattam, 1 Atk. 614.

Trustees for supporting contingent remainders joining to destroy them, guilty of a breach of trust; and no diversity, whether the settlement be voluntary, or for a valuable consideration, or by will only. Mansell v. Mansell, 2 P. W. 678. Ca. temp. Tal. 252.

On marriage, lands are settled to A for ninety-nine years, if he so long live, remainder to B and his heirs, during the life of A, to support contingent remainders, remainder to the first, &c. son of A. A has two sons, C and D. A, the father, having mortgaged the premises, he and his son C covenant to suffer a recovery, and to procure B, the trustee, to join. B, the trustee, by answer, submits to the court; the court will not compel the trustee to join, unless D, the second son of the marriage, will consent. Townsend v. Lawton, 2 P. W. 379. Sel. Ca. Ch. 71. MARRIAGE SETTLE.

In a marriage settlement, husband made tenant for ninety-nine years, if he so long lived, remainder to trustees during the life of the husband, &c. remainder to the first, &c. son by the marriage in tail male; remainder to the first, &c. son of any other wife; remainder over. A son is born, and of age, the wife dead, and there are no other sons by the second marriage: the trust for preserving contingent remainders descends to an infant; if for the benefit of the family, equity will decree the infant trustee to join in a recovery. Wilmington v. Foley, 1 P. W. 536. SETTL. C. OF; INFANT TRUSTEE.

Trustee to preserve contingent remainders in a voluntary settlement, decreed to join in a sale for payment of debts. Bassett v. Clapham, 1 P. W. 358.

Trustees in a will to support contingent remainders, joining with tenant for life in destroying them, are guilty of breach of trust, and purchaser, with notice of trust, is liable to make good the estate. Gorges v. Pye, 7 Bro. P. C. 221. S. C. Prec. Chan. 308. 1 P. W. 128. NOTICE; BREACH OF TRUST.

Trustees in a marriage settlement, for preserving contingent remainders, (there being no issue), are decreed to join in a sale, the settlement being only of an equity of redemption, and the wife consenting to the sale. Platt v. Sprig, 2 Vern. 303.

Whether a trustee for preserving contingent remainders shall be decreed to join in a sale, to pay debts, when there is no probability of issue. Davies v. Weld, 1 Vern. 181. SALE, JOINING IN.

Suits on contracts founded on usury to be dismissed. Beame's Ord. 10.

A revolted colony of Spain not recognized as an independent state by Great Britain, executed bonds at six per cent. interest as securities for a loan. P, acting in collusion with B, a holder of the bonds in England, by falsely representing that he had purchased some of them, induced the plaintiff to become a purchaser: Held on demurrer that the bonds were not usurious, as it did not appear by the bill that the contract for the loan was made or the amount of it to be paid in this country; that P and B would have been answerable to the plaintiff for losses sustained upon his purchase, but that as the original contract was made with a government not acknowledged by Great Britain, the court could not relieve him. Thompson v. Powles, 2 Sim. 195. VEND. & PURCH.; PUBLIC POLICY.

A testator directed that one of his residuary legatees should be answerable for all debts due to him from the father of the legatee. A debt, though usurious, must be deducted from the legatee's share. Stanton v. Knight, 1 Sim. 482. WILL, C. OF.

Deed by which A, B and C, partners in trade, in consideration of 4000*l.* paid to them by D, in augmentation of their capital, agree to admit him into partnership with them for a term: it was agreed that A should receive in lieu of profits a clear sum of 550*l.* per annum, and all the property of the concern was charged with the payment of this sum quarterly, and of the 4000*l.* at the determination of the partnership. A, B and C, were to pay rent, taxes, wages, and the other outgoings out of the trade which was to be carried on by them and in their names only, and D was not to be required to attend to it, D was at liberty to retire on giving twelve months' notice, and on his retiring or at the end of the term the 4000*l.* and the arrears (if any) of the 550*l.* per annum were to be paid to him by A, B, and C, by instalments, to be secured by their bonds, and they were to indemnify him from the debts of the partnership: Held that this deed was not usurious. Ferreday v. Horden, 1 Jac. 144. DEED, C. OF; PARTNERSHIP.

Bill to stay proceedings at law and discover usury charging an agreement to take, but not the taking usurious interest, and not offering to pay the amount and which he by bill admitted legally due, is demurrable. Whitmore v. Francis, 8 Price, 616. PL. BILL.

Mortgagor gives second mortgage for what is due for principal and interest on first mortgage, and also for interest upon interest due on the first mortgage; quære, if second mortgage void as founded on usury? Sackett v. Russell, 4 Mad. 58. MORTGAGE; INTEREST, COMPOUND.

Bill praying re-assignment of lease, and stating a clause in assignment of power of redemption on paying a sum larger than the legal interest, added to original sum given, and in default thereof a foreclosure is not demurrable on ground of usury. Metcalf v. Brown, 5 Price, 260. PL. BILL.

Fee-farm grants or lease of mortgaged premises from mortgagor to mortgagee at a fixed annual rent, is among that description of transaction at which courts of equity look with great jealousy. Hickes v. Cooke, 4 Dow, 24.

C being indebted to G in 1000*l.* agreed to transfer within a given time 100*l.* per annum, long annuities, at the then price, and in meantime pay G the dividends, and that debt of 1000*l.* should constitute part of the purchase-money. The stock was not purchased at the time, and there was a rise in the price of stocks. The agreement held not usurious or within the stock jobbing acts. Clark v. Giraud, 1 Mad. 511. STOCK JOBBER ACTS.

If usurious interest is not contracted for, the security is not invalidated by subsequently taking usurious interest. Exp. Jennings, 1 Mad. 331.

Charge by bill broker in the country of 10*s.* per cent. commission in respect of bill payable in London not usurious. Exp. Henson, 1 Mad. 114.

Bonds though they necessarily carry interest, given for instalments made up of principal and interest, being the consideration of a purchase or assignment of real and personal estate, are not usurious. Tarleton v. Backhouse, Coop. 231.

Debt affected with usury cannot be proved. Exp. Bangley, 1 Rose, 168. BANKCY. PROOF.

Contract for repayment of a debt with legal interest, or at the option of the creditor, to transfer so much stock as it would have produced on the day it was payable, void as usurious: the principal and interest being secured, with the chance of a rise of the stock: not therefore like a contract to replace stock absolutely which might fall. Barnard v. Young, 17 Ves. 44. CONTRACT.

A reasonable commission beyond legal interest for extra incidental charges, as upon agency in the remittance of bills, not usurious. Baynes v. Fry, 15 Ves. 120. COMMISSION, CHARGE OF; PRIN. & AGENT.

A lease for 999 years made by mortgagor to mortgagee, set aside; the policy of the law upon which the statutes of usury are founded, not permitting such a transaction between persons standing in the relation of the mortgagor and mortgagee. And this, semble, although the lease was made at a fair value. Webb v. Rorke, 2 Scho. & L. 661. MORTGOR. & MORTGEE; LEASE.

A, seized of the reversion in fee of premises, which were let to E for a term of years at 15l. 8s. yearly rent, agrees bona fide to sell to B the rent reserved by that lease for the residuum of the term, for a sum the principal and interest of which was to be reimbursed to B in that time, by the perception of the rent, supposing it punctually paid, and at the same time A being induced by the accommodation offered him by B in purchasing the rent, makes a lease for lives renewable for ever to B of the same premises, and at the same rent which E paid, but not to commence or be payable until the expiration of E's lease, at which time the premises would be worth 20l. or 22l. per annum. This not impeachable, as a lease coupled with a loan; for the first transaction being a fair purchase of the rent, and the second, though induced by the first, yet not distinguishable from a lease made upon payment of a fine. Lukey v. O'Donnell, 2 Scho. & L. 466. LEASE; LOAN.

Rent may be reduced beyond legal interest by way of fine, yet the transaction not impeachable if not attended by fraud. Id. 470. LEASE.

In order to constitute a loan, it is essential that the money, with interest, is at all events to be secured to the lender. Id. ib.

W lends to B 200l. on the bond of B and W, bearing interest at five per cent., and at the same time purchases from B the rent charges for lives of 50l. per annum for 300l. with a covenant that B should be at liberty to re-purchase the rent charge on giving three months notice, and paying 350l. and all arrears of interest; W and B execute their joint and several bonds to W in the penal sum of 700l. conditional for the payment of 350l. and for the regular payment of the rent charge: held, to be a security for the loan of 200l. and 300l. on the ground, that W was at all events secured by a bond for 700l.; but neither the right of repurchase nor the additional sum of 50l. to be paid thereupon, would have been sufficient to turn the transaction into a loan. Verner v. Winslanley, 2 Scho. & L. 393. ANNUITY, WHERE GOOD.

A contract between mortgagor and mortgagee for a lease to be granted by the former, in consideration of forbearance, is usurious. Gulbins v. Creed, 2 Scho. & L. 218. MORTGAGOR AND MORTGAGEE; LEASE.

A lease granted at the same time with a loan of money by lessee to lessor, set aside, although the proposal for connecting the loan with the lease moved from the lessor. But an under-lessee bona fide, and not concerned in the transaction of the loan, not disturbed. Molloy v. Irvine, 1 Scho. & L. 310. LESSOR & LESSEE; LEASE CONNECTED WITH LOAN.

Distinction between jurisdictions in equity and in bankruptcy in setting aside securities, affected by usury. In bankruptcy the party is not, as in the other case, left a creditor for what was actually advanced. Benfield v. Solomons, 9 Ves. 84.

A beneficial lease granted at the same time with a loan of money by lessee to lessor, held fraudulent and void, as affording to the lender a profit on the money lent beyond legal interest. Broune v. Odeu, 1 Scho. & L. 115. LESSOR AND LESSEE; LEASE CONNECTED WITH LOAN.

A beneficial lease obtained under the influence of loans of money, made, or expected to be made by the lessee to the lessor, is a fraudulent evasion of the statutes of usury, and an undue advantage taken of the lessor, and therefore void. Drew v. Power, 1 Scho. & L. 182. LESSOR & LESSEE; LEASE CONNECTED WITH LOAN.

Under an agreement to take off a discount above five per cent. for prompt payment, though according to the custom of the trade, the creditor cannot, upon failure, charge more than five per cent. Exp. Aynsworth, 4 Ves. 678. INTEREST.

A custom in Liverpool for the banker to strike a balance every quarter, and send the account to the merchant, and then to make that balance carry interest for the next quarter, is not usury. Cabot v. Walker 2 Anst. 495.

Where statute of limitations had run against recovery of penalty for usury, the usurer cannot protect himself from discovery, by demurrer founded on liability of subjecting himself to forfeiture. Talbot v. Smith, 1 Ridgw. L. & S. 360. DISCOVERY; DEMURRER; STAT. OF LIMITATION.

Agreement by A to purchase houses from B for 431l. 10s.; possession to be given, and 200l. paid immediately, the rest with interest at Michælmass; but if not then paid, A to pay, in lieu of interest upon the same, a clear rent of 42l. per annum, out of which was to be deducted interest for the 200l. paid, not usurious. Spurrier v. Mynors, 1 Ves. J. 527. 4 Bro. C. C. 28. Usury is taking more than the law allows upon a loan or for forbearance of a debt. Id. 531. To make a contract usurious, intention of forbearance for exorbitant interest must appear. Id. 533.

Demurrer to a cross-bill to have an usurious security delivered up, not offering to pay the sum really due, allowed. Mason v. Gardiner, 4 Bro. C. C. 436. PL. BILL; PL. DEMURRER.

If it be necessary to have the assistance of a court of equity to set aside an usurious contract, it must be on the terms of paying what is fairly due, with legal interest. Scott v. Nesbitt, 2 Cox, 163. S. C. 2 Bro. C. C. 641. MAXIM.

One agrees to lend 1000l. at 5l. per cent., and for that purpose sells 1000l. S. S. annuities, which being under par, did not produce 1000l.; he advances the money so produced, and takes mortgage for 1000l.: Held a shift within the statute of usury; and the difference between the price at which the stock was sold ordered to be repaid, on a bill brought after a decree for foreclosure, and the whole money allowed in the account taken under that decree. Moore v. Buttie, Amb. 371.

The court does not relieve against an usurious contract, so as to make the principal lost, as well as interest. Pitt v. Cholmondeley, 2 Ves. 567.

But assignees of a bankrupt are not compellable to pay what is really due on a transaction attended with usury: under the general jurisdiction in bankruptcy, it is otherwise where they apply to a court of equity by a bill to be relieved. Exp. Ship, 2 Ves. 489. BANKCY. PROOF.

Bottomry not within the statute of usury, because a real risk is run. El. Chesterfield v. Janssen, 2 Ves. 143. And see this case more generally as to Usury, S. C. 1 Atk. 350. BOTTOMRY BOND.

If there be a loan of money with more than legal interest, and a casualty goes to the interest only, it is usury; secus, if it goes to the principal and interest. S. C. 1 Atk. 350.

Bottomry bonds may be so constructed as to be an evasion of the statute against usury, as well as any other contract. Id. 341. BOTTOMRY.

If a bargain was really for an annuity, though bought at ever so low a price, it is no usury; if on the foot of borrowing and lending money, otherwise. Id. 340. ANNUITY.

Where there is a borrowing of money, a device to have more than the legal rate of interest, is within the statutes of usury. Id. ib.

S, a man, of intemperate habits, aged 30, in order to pay tradesmen's bills, and other debts, for 5000*l.* in hand, bound himself in the penalty of 20,000*l.* to pay 10,000*l.* upon the death of M, a lady, aged 78, if he survived her. M died, aged 84, and S survived her two years; at M's death a new bond was entered into, with the same penalty for the payment of 10,000*l.* and interest; and S executed a warrant of attorney to empower judgment to be recorded against him in K. B., which was done accordingly; 2000*l.* were paid by S in about five months from the death of M. Before his death, S devised the residue of his personal estate, after paying debts, &c. to his son, a minor. The plaintiffs, his guardians and executors in trust, brought a bill to be relieved against defendant's demands, as an unconscionable bargain and usurious contract. The court relieved plaintiffs against the penalty and judgment, by directing defendant to deliver up the second bond to be cancelled, and to acknowledge satisfaction on the judgment upon being paid by plaintiffs what should be due at law; but would not give him costs, as there was probabilis causa litigandi, and defendant's case far from favorable. Id. 301. FRAUD, CATCHING BARGAIN.

As to averments necessary to support a plea of usury. Wortley v. Pitt, 1 Ves. 164. PL. PLEA, AVERMENT.

A being, as a partner, entitled to a share of extensive iron-works, and of the lands and premises on which they were carried on, agreed for valuable consideration to assign to B his interest in the property and business. B interfered and acted as a partner, but afterwards he assigned his share, and gave notice to the other partners what he had withdrawn from the business, and when called on to complete his purchase, resisted the performance of the contract successfully, on the ground that a good title could not be shewn. Held, that B, as between him and his other partners, was to be treated as a partner, and was to contribute to the partnership losses, until the time when he gave notice of his withdrawal from the concern and assigned his share. That his liability ceased upon his assigning his share and giving notice to the other partners of his withdrawal from the concern. That the assignment of his share, though made to an insolvent person, was not for that reason the less effectual in putting an end to his liability. That the assignee not having been acknowledged a partner or permitted to act as such, did not by his acceptance of the assignment, incur any liability as between himself and the co-partners. *Jefferies v. ### III. THE CONSEQUENCES OF DELAY, & INTEREST ON PURCHASE MONEY; & INVESTMENT.

By an agreement entered into with executors for the purchase of a leasehold public house, and the good will and licences connected with it, the household furniture, stock in trade, and other effects upon the premises, were to be taken by the purchaser at a valuation, and possession was to be delivered up to him on the 29th Sept. 1821. The valuation was made, but on the 29th of Sept. the purchaser, alleging that there was a defect in the title to the leasehold, refused to perform his contract: the executors filed a bill for specific performance, but in the mean time remained in possession of the house and carried on the business. Held, that though the executors were entitled to a decree for specific performance, and though the purchaser had done wrong in refusing to perform the contract, he could not be made answerable for the trade which had been carried on in the premises since Sept. 1821. That he could not be compelled to take that portion of the stock in trade, on the premises at the time of the decree, which was not there at the date of the agreement; but had been substituted for such parts of the old stock as had been consumed in the usual course of the business: that the purchaser ought to be charged with rent and taxes, and other outgoings paid by the executors since Sept. 1821, and with interest on the same so paid by them. That the purchaser was not entitled to any occupation, rent, or other allowance, for the use of the house and furniture by the executors, during the period that elapsed after the 29th of Sept. 1821. Dakin v. Cope, 2 Russ. 170. SPEC. PERF.; ACCOUNT; INTERMEDIATE PROFITS.

By conditions of sale, the purchase money was to carry interest, a deposit of 20l. per cent. was to be paid, and the auction duty was to be borne equally by the purchaser and the vendor; the purchaser paid only the amount of the deposit, and out of it the auctioneer paid the whole of the auction duty: held, that the portion of the deposit applied in discharge of the purchaser's moiety of the auction duty was to be considered as an unpaid part of the purchase money, and that the vendor was entitled to interest on it. Townshend v. Townshend, 2 Russ. 303. INTEREST ON PURCHASE MONEY.

Purchaser paying purchase money into his banker's, where it remained four years with notice to vendor; held, not liable for interest on difference between his average balance in banker's hands during a few days, when less than the purchase money was therein, and during the three preceding years. Winter v. Blades, 2 S. & S. 393. INTEREST.

Specific performance of agreement to grant lease, refused, plaintiff having delayed to file his bill for more than two years since notice from defendant that he would not perform contract on account of plaintiff's non-fulfilment of his part thereof. Heapy v. Hill, 2 S. & S. 29. SPEC. PERF.; LACHES.

Where payments have been made by vendor at different times on account of purchase, all exceeding the interest due at the times of such payments, and the decree in suit by vendor for specific performance, directs accounts to be taken of what is due to plaintiff for principal and interest in respect of purchase, rests are always made therein. Griffith v. Heaton, 1 S. & S. 271. ACCOUNT; RESTS.

Where conditions of sale provide, that interest shall be paid from a certain day if purchase not then completed, purchaser cannot relieve himself therefrom, though vendor caused delay; otherwise, if no stipulation. Esdaile v. Stephenson, 1 S. & S. 122. INTEREST; LACHES.

Where no stipulation as to interest and purchaser completes his part, he pays four per cent. interest and takes rents and profits; but where rents and profits do not value at four per cent, he pays no interest, and vendor takes rents and profits. Id. ib. INTEREST; LACHES; RENTS & PROFITS.

Where vendor has improperly delayed performance of contract and refused to give possession, he is not entitled to benefit of general rule as to interest on purchase money. Paton v. Rogers, 6 Mad. 257. LACHES; INTEREST.

The time of valuation, is of the essence of the contract; but the defendant cannot take advantage of it, if he has improperly occasioned the delay. Morse v. Merest, 6 Mad. 26. TIME; CONTRACT; LACHES.

Purchaser charged with five per cent. interest on the purchase money unpaid. Burnell v. Brown, 1 Jac. & W. 168. INTEREST.

Completion of contract being delayed for three years by difficulties in title, vendor is accountable for deterioration of the land during that period. Poster v. Deacon, 3 Mad. 394. LACHES.

On a bill by a purchaser for specific performance on a contract for the sale of an estate, a vendor, who, during fifteen years, had retained possession of the whole estate, and of one-third of the purchase money, was, under the circumstances, charged with interest of one-third of the rents and profits. Barton v. Todd, 1 Swan. 255. INTEREST.

Vendor being in possession for upwards of fifty years, and purchaser having done acts inconsistent with notion of his being the owner, specific performance of agreement to sell, refused, as amounting to waiver. El. Rose v. Sterling, 4 Dow, 442. SPEC. PERF.; WAIVER.

Deterioration arising from the agreement between intended purchaser and tenant of vendor being misunderstood by tenant, purchaser held liable to the loss. Harford v. Purrier, 1 Mad. 532.

When purchase money is agreed to be paid, and a conveyance made at a given time, and disputes arise as to title, and the purchaser proposes to vendor to lay out the purchase money in exchequer bills till wanted, but vendor returns no answer, and money is so laid out, the purchaser is at the risk, and the vendor is entitled to the money with four per cent. interest. (See 13 Ves. 563, n. 27. 2nd edit.) When the purchase is completed, the purchaser is entitled to the rents and profits till possession given, and vendor to purchase money with interest; and if by neglect of vendor no rents, &c. have been received, he will be liable for what he might have received, while purchaser was out of possession. Ackland v. Cuming, 2 Mad. 28.

Party having contracted with person since deceased, for purchase of advowson, but had taken no steps during life of vendor to enforce contract, and for a considerable time after his death (objecting to title on ground of outstanding judgments and a creditor's bill pending): held, not entitled as against devisee to present, if a vacancy occur in meantime, though he insists on having contract completed; and if, in consequence of his insisting on such right, bill to ascertain it become necessary, a decree in favour of plaintiff will carry costs as far as his claim came in question, although it be part of decree, that, subject to next presentation, he be permitted to complete his contract. Wyvill v. Bp. Exeter, 1 Price, 292. PRESENTATION TO BENEFICE; PR. COSTS.

Time is of the essence of the contract; waived by a protracted treaty. Wood v. Bernal, 19 Ves. 220. TIME; WAIVER.

Vendor and purchaser having proceeded in treaty beyond the time limited for completion of contract, and the vendor having brought an action and withdrawn, his record, on finding he could not support it, not having got in a judgment amounting to half the purchase money, and the purchaser having brought an action for his deposit, and obtained a verdict; an injunction to restrain his proceeding was refused. Id. ib. INJUNC. TO STAY PROCEEDINGS AT LAW.

Purchaser not to pay interest on the deposit, even where he has rendered a suit necessary by refusing to perform the contract on the ground of an objection to the title which could not be supported. Bridges v. Robinson, 3 Mer. 694. INTEREST ON P. MONEY.

Vendor, resisting an application by the purchaser for payment into court of the deposit, in the hands of the vendor's agent, charged with a loss by the agent's failure. Fendon v. Browne, 14 Ves. 144. INVESTMENT.

Specific performance prayed both by original and cross bill, after considerable delay upon the title; the rents to be received and interest paid, from the time stipulated. Id. ib.

Effect of a deposit by vendee with notice to vendor to stop or determine the rate of interest, not as a tender and appropriation, transferring the risk as to the principal: therefore, upon an investment in stock by the vendee, the title not being ready, and the vendor having notice; but returning no answer, the advantage by a rise, as the loss by a fall, is the vendee's. Roberts v. Mussey, 13 Ves. 561. INVESTMENT.

To excuse a purchaser from paying interest during the delay in clearing difficulties as to the title, it is not sufficient that the money was appropriated and unproductive; but the vendor must have notice thereof. Pocell v. Martur, 8 Ves. 146. INTEREST.

A vendor cannot come at any distance of time for a performance; but a bill filed fourteen months after the correspondence upon the objection to the title ceased, by the defendants returning no answer to the last letter calling for a distinct answer, and threatening a bill, and the auctioneer not having been called on to return the deposit, it was referred to the master. Marq. Hertford v. Bower, 5 Ves. 719. SPEC. PERF.; LENGTH OF TIME.

Specific performance refused on account of the laches of the plaintiff, the vendor. Guest v. Homfray, 5 Ves. 818. SPEC. PERF.; LACHES.

Contract for sale of houses, which, from defects in title, could not be completed on the day fixed: the treaty was proceeded in on proposal to waive objections on certain terms: the houses being burnt before conveyance, the purchaser is bound, if he accepted title, and circumstances of vendor suffering insurance to expire on the day on which the contract ought originally to have been completed without notice, makes no difference: a reference, was, therefore, directed to master to inquire whether the proposal was accepted or acquiesced in on behalf of the purchaser. Paine v. Meller, 6 Ves. 347. CONTRACT; INTERMEDIATE LOSS.

A purchaser of a future interest, after a term, shall not pay interest, or an increased price for a part of the term clapsing before the purchase is completed, unless the delay be his fault. Crowsock v. Smith, 3 Anst. 877. INTEREST.

Injunction granted to stay action against the auctioneer for the deposit, although the estate sold, was represented as freehold with leasehold adjoining, and turned out to be almost all leasehold, and although there had been great delay in making out the plaintiff's title: Fordyce v. Ford, 4 Bro. C. C. 494. INJUNCTION TO STAY PROCEEDINGS AT LAW; MISREPRESENTATION.

If the purchaser demand his deposit at the day for completing the contract, and the vendor has not delivered his abstract before that time, and also neglects to deliver it until after an action brought for the deposit, it is evidence of an abandonment of the contract by the vendor, who shall not be entitled afterwards to a specific performance. Lloyd v. Collett, 4 Bro. C. C. 469. LACHES; ABANDONMENT OF CONTRACT.

Motion for an injunction to restrain an action against the auctioneer for the deposit, refused where there had been great delay on the part of the vendor, Id. INJUNC. TO STAY PROCEEDINGS AT LAW.

Purchaser is entitled to interest on his deposit, and to costs at law and in equity, until the vendor has made his title good; but vendor is entitled to subsequent costs and may enforce the contract, if his title be good when the report is made. The rents belong to the vendor till his title is made good, and afterwards the purchaser must take to the rents and pay interest on his purchase money till the principal is discharged. Pincke v. Curteis, 4 Bro. C. C. 329, S. P. 333, in note. INTERMEDIATE PROFITS.

Upon sale of a reversion, part of the terms was that the money be paid by a certain time; not being so by default of the vendee, vendor discharged from his contract. Newman v. Rogers, 4 Bro. C. C. 391. SPEC. PERF.; REVERSIONARY INTEREST.

A manor was sold under the decree of the court, as part of the real estate of the testator, and an order was made on the 13th March, that the purchaser should, on or before the 17th May, pay his purchase money into court, and be let into possession of the profits from Lady-day, several deaths and admissions had taken place prior to Lady-day, but the fines due thereon had not been paid or assessed until after that time, no court having been holden; these fines belong to the vendors and not to purchaser. Garrick v. El. Camden, 2 Cox, 231. INTERMEDIATE PROFITS.

Money paid in as earnest at a sale of an estate, and ordered to be laid out in the funds, is part-payment of the purchase-money, and the vendor must abide by the rise or fall of the funds. Poole v. Rhudde, 3 Bro. C. C. 49. INVESTMENT OF PURCHASE MONEY.

Interest against a purchaser for delaying payment; court will not make purchaser appoint a clerk in court which is only necessary where the party is to appear. Child v. Id. Abingdon, 1 Ves. J. 94. INTEREST.

The advantage a purchaser receives from the extinction of lives, has never been considered in equity as a reason for his paying interest on his purchase-money. It is not a general rule that a purchaser of estates, under a private agreement, or a decree for a sale, shall from the time of possession, pay interest. The court, in awarding interest, never regards the purchase, but the time of executing the conveyances; and even then the purchaser shall pay interest only from the time the possession is delivered. Where lives drop in after a man is reported the best bidder, the court will direct the purchaser to make some compensation in respect to the estates being bettered. Blount v. Blount, 3 Atk. 636. 638. INTEREST.

If a purchaser by private contract, does not pay the purchase-money at a time fixed, he will be chargeable with interest, as he must bear any loss; so likewise will he be entitled to any profits that may arise from the estate. Dary v. Barber, 2 Atk. 490. Vide White v. Nutt, 1 P. W. 61. INTEREST.

Where a purchaser has an interest by the dropping in of lives, the court will direct an inquiry what interest should be paid by him on that account. S. C. Id.

A reversion expectant on an estate for life, is decreed to be sold; B is confirmed the best purchaser, and the order made absolute 1st January, 1724; in January 1726; B is ordered to bring his money into the bank; the life drops; if the life had dropped the next day after the report of B's being the best purchaser made absolute, the purchase must have stood, and as for that time the life was wearing, so from that time the purchaser ought to pay interest. Erp. Manning, 2 P. W. 410. SALES JUDICIAL.

A contracts for the purchase of an estate, and is let into possession; the estate being greatly incumbered, A pays off some of the incumbrances; great delay is used on part of vendor in clearing other incumbrances and making a good title. Held not sufficient to discharge purchaser from contract. Smith v. Dolman, 6 Bro. P. C. 291. LACHES.

On casualties happening between the articles for a purchase and the sealing of the conveyance, who shall bear the loss. White v. Nutt, 1 P. W. 61.

IV. OF THE TITLE.

Old judgments existing against a former owner of leaseholds, who parted with the property in 1770, and to enforce which no steps appeared to have been taken, are no objection to the title. Cannell v. Blacketer, 2 Sim. 242. JUDGMENT: LENGTH OF TIME.

Contract for the sale of the borough, lordship, and manor of H, with rights, royalties, members, and appurtenances, and all the messuages, lands, tenements, and other hereditaments, and their rights, members, and appurtenances to the said borough, lordship, and manor belonging, as set forth and described in a particular referred to in the contract, the vendors derived their title under a conveyance in 1809, by the general description of the borough, lordship, and manor of H, with all and singular the rights, members, and appurtenances thereunto belonging or appertaining, with a reference to preceding deeds, containing the same description through which the title was traced in the same general manner to 1744; the purchaser objected that the identity of the several lands mentioned in the particular as forming part of the manor was not made out, and it appeared that some of them had been purchased since 1744, and therefore could not pass under the ancient and general description; the vendors thereupon produced abstracts of the title to such lands, and showed by steward's books, that the lands, ever since they had been purchased, had been annexed to, and treated as part of the manor, and contended that they passed under the general words "appertaining or belonging" in the conveyance of 1809; to obviate the difficulty they also obtained a confirmation of that conveyance with a declaration that the lands in question were intended to be passed by it under the general words. Exceptions to the master's report of a good title were over-ruled, principally, as it should seem, on the grounds of the deed of confirmation; the court declaring, that if it were of opinion that a good title could be made, it would hesitate to decree a specific performance, unless that deed were delivered to the purchaser. Townsend v. Champenown, 1 Y. & J. 538.

It seems to be no objection to a title, that a person, who sixty years back was the survivor of three trustees appointed by will for sale of an estate, did not execute a conveyance purporting to be made by him and the parties beneficially interested, possession having gone under that conveyance, and the estate in equity being converted into personally. Id. ib.

Where a deed, dated sixty years back, contains a recital of the creation of a mortgage term, and a subsequent assignment of it in trust to attend the inheritance, and the term is not subsequently noticed in the title, it will be presumed to have been surrendered; and it is no objection to the title that the vendor cannot produce the deed creating the term, nor the assignment of it. Id. ib.

When an estate is sold free from incumbrances, and upon production of the abstract of title it appears that the estate is subject to a mortgage or other charge or incumbrance, the incumbrance does not afford an objection to the title, but is matter of conveyance only; and such is the rule even if the amount of the incumbrance be greater than the purchase money. Id. 449.

The court will not exercise its summary jurisdiction to compel a vendor's solicitor to perform an undertaking given by him at the sale, to do certain acts for clearing the title to the estate. Part v. Bushell, 2 Sim. 38. SOLICITOR; JURISDICTION.

A conveyance to a purchaser in 1793, from persons residing in Bermuda, of lands then in their possession, and to which, subject to an outstanding but satisfied mortgage term, they claimed title, under an entail created in 1732, through a descent recited in the deeds; a subsequent assignment of the mortgage term from the mortgagee to the purchaser and an uninterrupted enjoyment under his conveyance will not enable him to make a good title, if unsupported by extrinsic evidence of the pedigree recited in the deeds, or of possession prior to 1793, conformable to that pedigree. Fort v. Clarke, 1 Russ. 601.

Specific performance decreed, though vendor's title was founded on destruction of contingent remainders. Hasker v. Sutton, 2 S. & S. 513. SPEC. PERF.

It being necessary, in order to make a title perfect, that a recovery should be suffered for the purpose of barring an old estate tail vested in a person who was not a trustee for the vendor, the deed making the tenant to the precipe, and the warrant for suffering the recovery were executed before the filing of the bill for specific performance; but the recovery was not completed a few days afterwards: held, that a good title was not shown before the commencement of the suit. Lewin v. Guest, 1 Russ. 325.

A person who purchases two lots, is not justified in refusing to perform his contract for the purchase of the second lot, because a good title is not shown to the first lot. Id. ib.

If vendor retains title-deeds, and covenants for further assurance only, the purchaser may, under that covenant, compel him to enter into a covenant for production of deeds. Fain v. Ayers, 2 S. & S. 533.

Where the title of an estate was derived from a person who entered as heir, under the impression that his ancestor's will was void, a purchaser has a right to production of the will, or evidence of its contents. Stevens v. Guppy, 2 S. & S. 439.

Specific performance of agreement to buy fee-simple of lands, and right, &c. refused where part of subject of contract proves only leasehold. and the right is qualified; object being to work commercial speculation, which could only be done by enjoyment of unqualified right, and twelve years had elapsed since agreement entered into. Wright v. Howard, 1 S. & S. 190. SPEC. PERF.; TIME.

Purchaser not bound to complete purchase without title deeds, unless he has legal covenant to produce them. Burley v. Daine, id. 449. TITLE DEEDS.

Where devise of real estate, subject to debts and legacies, had contracted to sell estate in order to raise money to pay debts, and afterwards a bill was filed against her by legatees for administration of testator's estates, and purchaser consented to go before master, upon reference as to title in that suit: held, he was not thereby bound to take equitable title, but might insist on having same title as though bill for specific performance had been filed against him; and that as two commissions of bankrupt had issued against devisee before contract was entered into, though neither was proceeded in, he was not bound to accept title. Cann v. Cann, 1 S. & S. 284. VEND. & PURCH.

A testator devised his copyhold estate to his wife for life, with remainder to his two sons, as tenants in common, in fee; the eldest son and customary heir was, by an arrangement between himself, his mother and brother, admitted to the copyhold in fee, and executed by deed a declaration of trust to the uses of his father's will. The brothers became bankrupts, and their assignees sold their reversion to the plaintiff: held, that the plaintiff, though as against the assignees, a purchaser of a legal reversion, was not as against the tenant for life, entitled to compel such a surrender as would give him the legal reversion. White v. Stock, 6 Mad. 227.

When a necessary party to a title is neither in law or equity under the controul of the vendor, the master ought to report against the title, unless there is produced to him a legal or equitable obligation on the part of the stranger to join in the conveyance. Fs-dale v. Stephenson, 6 Mad. 366.

If vendor can make a good title at hearing, on further directions it is sufficient for specific performance, vendor paying costs. Paton v. Rogers, id. 256. SPEC. PERF.

An attendant term having become vested in the wife of the owner of the inheritance as administratrix of the trustee, and her husband becoming bankrupt, his assignees agree to sell the estate, and file a bill for specific performance of the agreement, pending which suit the husband dies: held, that the widow was not entitled to dower; that she was to assign the term of the purchaser, and that he was bound to accept the title. Mole v. Smith, 1 Jac. 590. DOWER; TERM ATTENDANT; ASSIG. OF TERM.

The father, vendor, claimed the estate by purchase from his son; the purchaser is entitled to evidence of the fairness of the transaction. Boswell v. Mendham, 6 Mad. 373.

The court was of opinion, that limitations in a marriage settlement to the brothers of the settlor and their issue were voluntary; but thought, under the circumstances, that a purchaser could not be compelled to take the title depending on the validity of those limitations, and dismissed a bill by the creditors of the vendor after his death for specific performance, there having been subsequent dealings with the estate, which might have confirmed the settlement, the agreement for purchase being suspicious, and it being doubtful whether the creditors could file such a bill. Johnson v. Legard, 1 Turn. & R. 281. SETTLEMENT, VOLUNTARY; CONSIDERATION; COLLATERALS.

On a suit for specific performance by vendor against purchaser of leasehold property under an agreement, general as to title, the master cannot report a good title in vendor, unless he sets forth a good title in his lessor; bill therefore dismissed, but without costs. Purvis v. Rauer, 9 Price, 488. LANDL. & TENANT; SPEC. PERF.

The rule of compelling a purchaser to take the estate where a title is not made till after the contract, not to be extended. Lechmere v. Brasier, 2 Jac. & W. 289.

Title depending on recovery suffered by tenant in tail, the reversion of which had vested in the crown by attainer of reversioner, held not such a title as purchaser is bound to accept. Blosse v. Clannorris, 3 Bligh, 62.

No objection to sale in court under a will, that infants interested in will cannot join in conveyance. Powell v. Powell, 6 Mad. 53. INFANT; PR. SALES, JUDICIAL; DEEDS; PARTIES TO CONVEYANCE.

Where presumption in favour of title is so strong, that a judge would feel himself bound to give a clear direction to a jury, the purchaser would be concluded thereby, but if the presumption would be left for a jury to determine, he would not be bound to take it. Emery v. Crocock, 6 Mad. 57.

Where, in title deed there is a recital of prior deeds which are lost, and presumption is in favour of the title, purchaser cannot object to title, on the ground of the absence of those deeds. Prosser v. Watts, 6 Mad. 59.

Purchaser is not bound to take a doubtful title. Price v. Strange, 6 Mad. 159.

Purchaser cannot be compelled to take title, founded on matter of fact not admitting of satisfactory proof, or which cannot be well proved. Smith v. Death, 5 Mad. 371.

Whether the purchaser can be compelled to take an assignment of a term as a protection against dower; Qu.? An attendant term having become vested in the wife of the owner of the inheritance, as the representative of the trustee, whether an assignment of it to a purchaser to prevent dower, can be compelled; Qu.? Mole v. Smith, 1 Jac. & W. 665. DOWER.

On a sale, in lots, of premises, the particulars of which state them to be held under one lease, receiving rent, and that the purchaser of one lot is to be exclusively subject to the rent, the other purchasers cannot object to the title, on the ground of a clause of re-entry on non-payment, contained in the lease. Walter v. Maunde, 1 Jac. & W. 181.

Landlord contracting to sell part of the demised estate, with an apportionment of a specific amount, part of the rent reserved for the whole estate, can make a good title to it without the consent of the tenant. Id. ib. LAND. & TENANT.

Devise of copyhold estates, the legal estate being out-standing, "to my son R, to be entailed upon his male heirs, and failing such, to pass to his next brother, and so on from brother to brother, allowing 2500*l.* to be raised upon the estates, for female children each;" whether a trust executed or executory; and if the latter, whether an estate tail in R; qu.? The point too doubtful to compel a purchaser to take the title. Jerrisse v. Northumberland, 1 Jac. & W. 559. WILL, C. OF; TRUST EXECUTORY.

In compelling a purchaser to take a title, the court formerly acted upon its own opinion; but now it will not compel him to take it if the point is doubtful. Id. 569.

A purchaser was held entitled to an investigation of the vendor's title, notwithstanding possession taken; acts of ownership incident to possession, and preparation of a conveyance. Burroughs v. Oakley, 3 Swan. 159.

Where condition of sale was for sale of interest, "under such title as vendor lately held the same, an abstract of which may be seen at," &c. Held, that purchaser could not object to title. Freene v. Wright, 4 Mad. 364. SPEC. PERF.

If exceptions taken to report of good title are overruled, other objections to title cannot be made; but if allowed, and new abstract be delivered, other objections may be brought in. Brooke v. —, 4 Mad. 212. PR. EXCEPTIONS TO MASTER'S REPORT.

Case sent to law, whether purchaser of lot 2, would, by a conveyance of vendor alone, without the concurrence of the lessee, acquire the same rights and remainders against lessee, in respect of the apportioned rent of 40*l.* therein to be reserved to him, as he would acquire in case no rent were mentioned in such conveyance from vendor, by a jury, for that part of the reversion comprised in lot 2. Bliss v. Collins, 4 Mad. 229. ISSUE AT LAW.

Purchaser under decree of two-sevenths of estate in one lot, is not obliged to take one-seventh, to which only title can be made. Roffey v. Smalleross, 4 Mad. 227. PR. SALES, JUDICIAL.

Where copyhold is sold under commission, good title is made by bargain and sale from commissioners to the purchaser direct. Exp. Holland, 4 Mad. 483. BANKCY.; SALE OF COPYHOLD.

Where the validity of a deed depends upon the bona fides of the transaction, to be collected from extrinsic circumstances, a court of equity will not compel a purchaser to accept a title under the deed, because neither the purchaser nor the court has adequate means of ascertaining those circumstances. Hartley v. Smith, Buck. 368.

On the sale of an estate as title free, the question whether title free, is not a question of title. Binks v. I. d. Rokeby, 2 Swan. 224.

Vendor having lost title deeds, agrees to give real security for title: held personal security not sufficient, and that he must purchase real estates for that purpose. Walker v. Barnes, 3 Mad. 247. SECURITY; SPEC. PERF.

Motion may be made on bill for specific performance for reference as to title and whether title was shewn prior to filing bill. Anon. 3 Mad. 495. PR. REFERENCE AS TO TITLE.

On a bill by vendor for specific performance of an agreement to take a lease for twenty-one years, at rack-rent, the master having reported in favour of the title shewn by the abstract, and an objection being taken to the report, the question was, whether, where the agreement is silent, the vendor of a leasehold interest is not bound to produce the title of his lessor; and the exception was allowed. Eddes v. Hooker, 2 Mer. 424. LANDLORD & TEN.

Objection on the ground of non-production of lessor's title, overruled in the case of a bishop's lease. Id. 430. LANDLORD & TEN.

Where a man contracts to purchase on the faith of the vendor's having a good title, he has a right to have the title sifted to the bottom, before he can be called upon either to accept an indemnity or compensation for a defect, or to abandon the contract. Knatchbull v. Cruikshank, 3 Mer. 137.

Equity does not compel a purchaser to take such a title as a willing purchaser might be satisfied with; but the court will inquire whether a title can be had, and if the title is defective as to part, there is no principle of equity more artificial than that which calls on the court to decide, whether the purchaser shall be bound to take with any, and what compensation. Id. 140.

Specific performance decreed with costs, in a case where the defendant, objecting to title, had been served with notice of a prior decision in a different cause, in favour of the same title, against a similar objection. Biscoe v. Wilks, 3 Mer. 456. SPEC. PERF.; COSTS.

The court of chancery does not warrant the title of an estate, which is purchased under its direction. Toulmin v. Steere, 3 Mer. 223. PR. SALES, JUDICIAL.

The right of a good title does not grow out of the agreement between the parties, but is given by law; but a purchaser may waive his right, by going on with the agreement after he has full notice that he is not to expect a good title. This is in such case matter of notice, and not of contract. If the vendor of a leasehold interest means to sell, without producing his lessor's title, he ought to declare it. Ogilvie v. Foljambe, 3 Mer. 53.

Mortgage debt and premises were assigned by mortgage to trustees, with power to sue and give acquittances, and all the same powers as mortgagee had. Mortgage estate was sold under a decree, and purchase money paid into court. Held, on exceptions to title, because scheduled creditors were not parties to the bill, but only the trustees, that the trustees could make a good conveyance, and that the exceptions ought not to have been made to title, but to the conveyance. Bucks v. Rokeby, 2 Mad. 227. CONVEYANCE.

Title reported good by deputy remembrancer in creditor's suit, purchaser not compellable to accept it, if only a prima facie title. Eyton v. Dicken, 4 Price. 303. PR. SALES, JUDICIAL.

A contracts with B to purchase an estate, and after accepting the title, agrees to sell to C, who refuses to complete his purchase, on the ground of his having discovered another will made thirty years ago, not set forth in the abstract, but supposed to affect the title. Upon a bill for specific performance by the original vendor against A, who, by his answer, (which was sent in, and the cause set down for hearing before this discovery was made), admitted the title; quære, if he may be allowed to set up the will as an objection to the title, by a supplemental answer! By consent of both parties, a reference was directed to the master, to enquire whether a good title could be made, regard being had to the will only. Const v. Barr, 2 Mer. 57.

Vendor not making good title, when bill filed, pays costs up to time title reported good. Hartford v. Parrier, 1 Mad. 532. COSTS.

It is no objection to a title that two fee-farm rents, created by letters patent by James I. are not shewn to have been extinguished, if being proved that no claim had been made by the crown of the rents, from the year 1706, and no proof of any previous claim. Simpson v. Guttridge, 1 Mad. 609. CROWN; LENGTH OF TIME.

Where adult female, before marriage, agrees to accept, in lieu of dower, a rent-charge, she is bound to see that the grantor has title to lands charged therewith, and therefore a purchaser of other lands belonging to grantor, which might otherwise have been liable, in case of failure of such security, is not entitled to see, from title deeds, that grantor has title to such charged lands. Id. ib. TITLE DEEDS, INSPECT. OF; DOWER.

Exceptions to master's report in favour of title of vendor of bishop's lease, on ground of non-production of bishop's title, overruled. Fane v. Spencer, 2 Mad. 438. PR. MASTER'S REPORT OF TITLE, EXCEPTIONS TO.

On the report against vendor's title, his bill for specific performance dismissed with costs on motion. Hallers v. Papan, 19 Ves. 351. SPEC. PERF.; PR. DISMISSAL OF BILL.

Where title deeds cannot be delivered, assignees must, like any other vendor, give attested copies of them at the expense of the estate; but their covenant for the production of the deeds should be confined to the time of their continuance as assignees. Exp. Stuart, 2 Rose, 215. BANKCY. ASSEES. DUTIES OF; TITLE DEEDS.

A bankrupt's estate is sold by auction; the purchaser, after having paid a deposit, gives notice that he means to abandon the purchase, on a supposed defect in the title. The commission is afterwards superseded, on the ground that there was no good petitioning creditor's debt, and another commission issues, and the same assignees are chosen. Held, that as the assignees, at the time when they received notice from the purchaser, had not a good title to the estate, they could not enforce the contract, nor consequently retain the deposit. Bartlett v. Tustin, 1 Marsh. 583.

The reversion of an estate having been put up to sale, by auction, describing it as leased with a covenant on the part of the tenant to repair, and the purchaser objecting to the title, because no counterpart of the lease was in the possession of the vendors, it being stated to be in the hands of a party under a partition of the estate, made some time before; the court thought that such counterpart ought to be deposited for the benefit of all parties, before it could compel the purchaser to take. Shore v. Collett, Coop. 234.

Specific performance of agreement to purchase refused, no good title being made to small part of estate, which was essential to enjoyment, and on the ground of defendant having been let into possession and turned out again by plaintiff. Knatchbull v. Grueber, 1 Mad. 153. Affid. 3 Mer. 124. SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE.

The defendant having sold and conveyed land to the plaintiff, suggesting that he had a title, and it afterwards appearing that he was not entitled to part, the same being an encroachment from a common, though no eviction had happened or was threatened: a bill lies to set aside the conveyance, and for a return of the purchase money and all expenses. Edwards v. McLeay, Coop. 308. MISREPRESENTATION; BILL TO SET ASIDE CONVEYANCE.

Defect of title to a considerable part of the estate, though a good objection by the purchaser to a specific performance, not by the vendor. Western v. Russell, 3 V. & B. 187.

Purchaser not to be compelled to take an indemnity against a judgment, accounting to half of the purchase money. Wood v. Bernal, 19 Ves. 221.

Purchaser is not to be compelled to take a doubtful title, depending on the decision of certain legal questions. Sloper v. Fish, 2 V. & B. 145.

Implied covenant by vendor of a freehold estate for the title, though an assignee under a commission of bankruptcy selling by a general description, not restrained to his actual interest. Deverell v. Lord Bolton, 18 Ves. 512. COVEN. IMPLIED.

Purchaser not compelled to take a doubtful title, viz. by executing a power of sale, introduced under a direction by a decree, establishing a will, to the master to approve a proper settlement: the will not authorizing the insertion of such a power; nor could it be sustained under a power by a former settlement; which, if not extinct by the failure of the limitations, and the union of the estate for life with the reversion, could not be duly applied to purposes clearly foreign to its original object; and though purchasers are not put to exercise a very nice and critical judgment with regard to the purposes for which powers are created, it could never be intended to refer to a perfectly new set of limitations, in a new settlement, at a long subsequent period, under a disposition by the will of the owner of the fee, to be exercised, not for any purpose in the least degree connected with the settlement, but avowedly as an expedient to supply the want of a valid power in that settlement, and enable those whom he had made only tenants for life, to dispose of the estate. Whate v. Hall, 17 Ves. 80.

Contract for sale of an existing and a reversionary lease not specifically performed without a production of the titles of the lessors. The objection not waived by a premature conditional approbation of the title, by the purchaser's counsel, but the expense incurred in making out the title before this objection was taken, repaid. Deverell v. Lord Bolton, 18 Ves. 505. SPEC. PERF.; WAIVER.

Approbation of counsel not a waiver of all reasonable objections to the title. Id. 514. WAIVER.

Vendor not making a good title ordered to pay costs, though he was only a trustee to sell. Edwards v. Harvey, Coop. 40. COSTS.

Outstanding term to attend the entailment, the trusts being performed, may be an objection to the conveyance not to the title. Berkeley v. Daugh, 16 Ves. 380. OUTSTANDING TERM.

Purchaser not compelled to take a doubtful title; no objection to a purchaser that the defect of title appeared on the abstract delivered before he filed his bill. Stapleton v. Scott, 16 Ves. 272.

Objection to title by purchaser, under a trust to sell as bound to see to the application of the money in satisfaction of scheduled creditors and others, coming in within a limited time after the date of the deed or disabilities removed; overruled upon the tenor of the deed implying that the receipt of the trustees should be a discharge. Balfour v. Welland, 16 Ves. 151.

An act of bankruptcy a sufficient objection to title, without shewing a debt upon which a commission could issue. Lowes v. Lush, 14 Ves. 547. VEND., &c.; BANKCY., ACT OF.

Particular describing a lease as subject to notice to quit, not inconsistent with a covenant that the tenant shall hold over for a certain time, "after the end of the term;" that being upon the context distinguished from the "other sooner determination;" and time generally not being of the essence of the contract. Hall v. Smith, 14 Ves. 426. PARTICULARS OF SALE.

Assignees in bankruptcy bound, as other persons, to make a good title, unless guarded by express stipulation. Their bill for a specific performance, therefore, the report being against the title, was dismissed. McDonald v. Hanson, 12 Ves. 277. Bcy. ASSIGNEES.

Re-conveyance of the legal estate presumed under obscure circumstances after a great lapse of time, though the possession originally not adverse, but under a trust: upon that presumption a specific performance decreed against a purchaser. Hillary v. Waller, 12 Ves. 239. LENGTH OF TIME; PRESUMPTION OF RECOGNIZANCE.

Whether without express stipulation a person under a contract with a lessee for years to purchase the term, can insist upon a production of the lessor's title, and whether the lessee can compel such production, querre? The lessee's bill for a specific performance dismissed; his interest described as forty years, the residue of a term free from incumbrances, being a few years only of an old term, and a reversionary term from another lessor, and old incumbrances not shewn to be discharged. White v. Foljumbie, 11 Ves. 337. PROD. OF TITLE; SPEC. PERF.

Assignees of a bankrupt contracting to sell, bound, as other persons, to make a good title, but in special cases, as if they had contracted supposing they had a good title, the parties would be left to law. Id. 343. BANKCY. ASSIGNEES.

Objection by a purchaser upon illegitimacy upon the circumstance that the register of marriage could not be found, an inaccurate statement in a deed, and some particularity of description of a child in a will. Upon the time of the marriage, previous to the marriage act, and other circumstances, the lord chancellor's opinion was against the objection; but it was overruled upon a general release, which though only reciting generally that objections were taken, was held sufficient as binding the party to inquire into the nature of the objections. Lord Braybrooke v. Inskip, 8 Ves. 417.

Mere suspicion upon opinions in the abstract, &c. will not support an objection by a purchaser. McQueen v. Farquhar, 11 Ves. 467. VEND. & PURCH.

Bill for specific performance of a contract for sale of an estate, upon various objections to the title, dismissed in the first instance without a reference. Omerod v. Hardman, 5 Ves. 723.

A purchaser not compelled to take a doubtful title, nor will a case be directed without his consent. The court also hesitated upon giving sanction to a title founded on the destruction of contingent remainders by tenant for life, there being no trustees to support them. Rouke v. Kidd, 5 Ves. 647.

Upon a late decision of the court of exchequer, that a presumption from non-payment of tithes, cannot bar even a lay impropiator; the Id. Ch., though holding the contrary opinion, would not compel a purchaser to take such a title, and dismissed the bill against him for a specific performance. Rose v. Calland, 5 Ves. 186.

Purchaser decreed to take a title under an obscure will, amounting to a power to sell, the legal estate not being given, descends to the heir till execution of the power, and then passes to the vendee. Warneford v. Thompson, 3 Ves. 513.

Testator devised all his manor, messuages, lands, tenements, tithes and hereditaments, and all his real estate whatsoever, "except what is hereinafter mentioned and devised," to the use of all his children successively, in strict settlement, and gave two of them annuities, which he charged upon a rectory held by him under a lease for lives, which he directed to be renewed if those two children or either should be living at his death, and that their lives or that of the survivor should be inserted in the new lease, and the fine to be paid out of his personal estate: he gave part of his personal estate specifically, and directed the residue to be laid out in land, to be settled to the same uses as his real estate; but afterwards, by a testamentary paper unattested, he disposed of his personal estate otherwise: the heir contracted to sell the lease of the rectory, and upon a case directed to the court of K. B. on his bill for specific performance, the certificate was, that the lease did not pass by the will, but devolved on the heir as special occupant; but the Ld. Chancellor considered that if too doubtful to be forced on a purchaser; an act of parliament was therefore obtained. Sheffield v. Ld. Mulgrave, 2 Ves. 525. WILL, C. OF.

By the terms of an auction the title deeds were to be produced by a certain day; they were not then ready; but the purchaser received them afterwards without objection; he cannot afterwards, on disliking the title, object to the delay. Smith v. Burnam, 2 Anst. 527. LACHES.

In a suit for payment of creditors, the real estates of testator were ordered to be sold; A being reported the purchaser of one of the estates for 14,480*l.*, entered into possession and accepted the title, and proper conveyances were executed; on application by the creditors to have the purchase money paid out, the purchaser stated, that the tenants of the estate had been served with a writ of right at the suit of a person who claimed the whole estate under an adverse title; but the court thought, that the purchaser having accepted the title, &c. could not prevent the money being paid out of court, and ordered it accordingly. Thomas v. Powell, 2 Cox, 394. PR. PAYMENT OUT OF COURT.

Purchaser is not to be compelled to take an equitable estate. Abel v. Heathcote, 2 Ves. J. 100. 4 Bro. C. C. 278.

A devised the residue of his property to his wife, in trust to divide it among their children in such manner as they should deserve: one of the seven children sold her share, and covenanted to make it up a full seventh: this is good, and on a specific performance she can make a good conveyance without the mother joining. Musprat v. Gordon, 1 Anst. 34. WILL, C. OF.

In an abstract of a vendor's title, a will which formed part of it, was represented as having been proved in the spiritual court, which afterwards appeared not to have been done. The purchaser filed his bill, praying that the defendants might either be decreed to prove the will, or that it might be deposited in the hands of the master for safety. It appeared that two other persons were interested under the will, and they were added as parties, and they not objecting, the will was directed to be deposited with the master; the vendors having by their misrepresentations occasioned the suit, were ordered to pay all the costs. Harrison v. Coppard, 2 Cox, 318. WILL, PROOF OF; PR. PRODUCTION DEEDS INTO COURT.

Court will not decree a specific performance of a purchase where there is a doubtful title. Cooper v. Denne, 4 Bro. C. C. 80. S. C. 1 Ves. J. 565. SPEC. PERF.

Where a master's report is against the title, a vendor's bill may now be dismissed with costs upon motion. Bennet Coll. v. Carey, 3 Bro. C. C. 390. PR. COSTS; PR. DISMISSAL OF BILL.

Determined, on a rehearing, to be sufficient, if a party can make a good title on a bill for specific performance at any time before the final decree. Id. ib. SPEC. PERF.

If defence to bill for specific performance of agreement for a purchase depends merely on want of title in vendor, defendant ought to rest on his answer, and not file cross bill to have it delivered up or to prevent an action, for plaintiff cannot succeed at law. Hilton v. Barrow, 1 Ves. J. 284. SPEC. PERF.; CROSS BILL.

Mortgage of a lease which recited the surrender of a former lease, which was in consideration of the surrender of a former lease in which plaintiff's title appeared: held to have notice of the title. Coppin v. Fennyhough, 2 Bro. C. C. 291. NOTICE.

It is no objection on the part of a purchaser of land sold by a master, that more land is sold than is necessary for the purpose of testator's will. Lutyech v. Winford, 2 Bro. C. C. 248. SALES JUDICIAL.

Qu. How far the court will go in compelling a party to complete a purchase where no title can be made to some part of the property? Poole v. Shergold, 1 Cox, 273. S. C. 2 Bro. C. C. 118. SPEC. PERF.

It is no objection to the title to an estate, that an extent had issued from the crown against the owner, which remained in the hands of the sheriff unexecuted; it appearing that the lords of the treasury had, in fact, compromised the debt, though a writ of amoveas manus had not actually issued. Id. 160. EXTENT.

Land was settled on A for life, remainder to his wife for life, remainder to their children, with a power of revocation and appointment to new uses by the husband and wife jointly: proviso, that if A should become bankrupt, &c. then the limitation to him for life should cease, and the lands should go to trustees during his life, for the benefit of his wife and children. A agreed for the sale of this estate, and proposed to make title to the purchaser by executing this power of revocation. The conveyancer on the part of the purchaser, required an indemnity against A's having committed any secret acts of bankruptcy, for that the power of revocation would be extinguished by the forfeiture of the life interest of A. On a bill filed by A, to compel the performance of this contract, the court thought there was no ground for the objection, and that the mistake in opinion of the conveyancer could not save the defendant from costs. Maling v. Hill, 1 Cox, 186.

Purchaser of copyhold not obliged to accept of surrender by letter of attorney; a custom that it must be in person is not contrary to law. Mitchel v. Neale, 2 Ves. 679.

Purchaser of an equitable title to a rent charge claiming against some purchasers of the land for a valuable consideration without notice, must try his title at law in the name of his vendors. Whitfield v. Fausset, 1 Ves. 387. ISSUE AT LAW.

During the existence of a ca. sa. on which the debtor is in custody, no other execution ought to issue; but if it does, and the sheriff takes a leasehold estate under a fi. fa. he is justified, and sale by him is good subject to enquiry as to fairness, though the court will set it aside on motion, and without an audita querela, but where defendant dies under execution, plaintiff (by stat. 21 Jac. 1.) may have a new execution. Jeanes v. Wilkins, 1 Ves. 195. DEBTON & CRED.

It was said in this case to be a rule among conveyancers, that where an estate had been long in a family, the vendor's covenant must go as far back as the first purchaser of the estate; but where the vendor claims immediately under the person who first bought the estate, there he need not covenant any further back than from that person: because whoever buys the estate has the benefit of the covenants in the deed to the vendor's purchaser. Id. Hardwicke said, he never heard of such a rule; yet where conveyances are to be made by a decree of the court, they should be settled by such rule as learned conveyancers would direct. There are many cases where a person covenants no further than his own acts, as where an estate is decreed to be sold for payment of debts, and no surplus remains, the court will not require the heir to covenant beyond his own acts: so as to a devisee. But where, after such sale, the surplus is considerable, the heir or devisee in many cases has been directed to covenant that neither he (the heir) nor his immediate ancestor, nor the devisee, nor his devisor has done any act to incumber. Lloyd v. Griffith, 3 Atk. 267.

If a purchaser for a valuable consideration has not the legal estate properly conveyed to him, though the consideration cannot create a use by way of covenant to stand seised, yet the vendor will be considered a trustee for the purchaser. Pollefen v. Moor, id. 273. TRUST.

A purchaser objected to a title for want of a deed which had been inrolled but could not be found. A copy of it taken in 1632, attested by five witnesses, was produced in court: Held, that this copy would have been sufficient even without an attestation. See serius, if the original deed has been in a private hand. Harvey v. Phillips, 2 Atk. 541. TITLE DEBTS.

Lands are devised to A and B, and to the heirs of the survivor in trust to sell: though the inheritance be in abeyance, yet the trustees by a fine may make good title by estoppel. Ticks v. Edwards, 3 P. W. 372. ADVANCE.

One articles to buy lands, and the title is under a will, not proved in equity against the heir, yet in some cases equity will compel the purchaser to accept the title. Cotton v. Wilson, 3 P. W. 190.

Where a person articles to sell an estate, and brings a bill for an execution of the agreement, though at the time of the agreement he cannot make a title to the purchaser, it is sufficient if he is able to do so when the decree or report is made. Langford v. Pitt, 2 P. W. 632. VEND. & PURCH.

A articles with B for the purchase of an estate of 180*l.* per annum, for which he was to give thirty-five years' purchase upon granting and conveying to him, and pay 50*l.* in part; but discovering that 30*l.* per annum of the lands were copyhold, refused to go on. On bill by B, equity will not decree a specific execution of this agreement, being inequitable, but will order the 50*l.* to be paid back. Hick v. Phillips, Proc. Chan. 575. SPEC. PERF.

A agrees in writing with C for the purchase of an estate, if a good title could be made. B (a stranger) afterwards files a bill claiming part of the lands; C buys in his claim. C is entitled to a specific execution of the agreement. Master v. Cook, Colles' P. C. 433. Id.

In articles there was to be a covenant in the conveyance, that certain lands were free from incumbrances. Id. Ch. said, this is not a covenant that the lands are free, and if any incumbrance is discovered between the execution of the articles and sealing the conveyance, whereof the party had no notice, that incumbrance shall be discharged before the sealing of the conveyance, as the concealment of it would be a fraud; though against all incumbrances discovered afterwards, there is only the party's own covenant to protect a purchaser. Vane v. I. d. Bernard, Gilb. Eq. Rep. 6. COVENANT, C. OF.

A devise obtains a decree to hold and enjoy against the heir, who, it was supposed, had suppressed the will. Pending this suit, a third person gets an assignment of a mortgage made by the testator, and then purchases the equity of redemption of the heir, with notice of the will: the court would not admit the purchaser to dispute the justice of the decree, nor to try at law whether the will was not cancelled by the testator. Finch v. Newham, 2 Vern. 216. DEVISEE; HEIR AT LAW.

V. WHERE PURCHASER MAY OR MUST TAKE WITH COMPENSATION OR INDEMNITY.

One of the terms of an agreement was, that the contract should be void if the purchaser's counsel should be of opinion that a marketable title could not be made by a certain time. The counsel being of that opinion, a bill by the purchaser for a specific performance with a compensation was dismissed with costs; and an application afterwards made by the plaintiff that his deposit might be set off against the defendant's costs, and the surplus (if any) paid to him, was refused with costs. Williams v. Edwards, 2 Sim. 78. SPEC. PERF.; PR. COSTS.

A conveys lands to trustees, on trust to sell, if the unsatisfied debts of a partnership in which he had been concerned, should at a given time exceed 40,000*l.* the trustees sell and convey to the purchaser by a deed, which recites that the debts of the partnership exceeded the specified amount, and that A had died intestate as to his real estates, and the heir at law of A joins in that deed and enters into a covenant for the title of the trustees, a covenant against all acts done by heir or his father, and a covenant for further assurance; it afterwards appears to be uncertain whether A had not devised his real estate, and the purchaser files a bill to have protection against, or remedy of, the alleged defect in his title, which this discovery created. Held, that the purchaser is not entitled to have an account taken of the debts of the partnership, in order to establish the fact of their having at the specified time exceeded the specified amount; that he is not entitled to have the books and documents connected with the accounts of the partnership delivered to him or deposited for safe custody; and that he is not entitled to a covenant either from the heir or from any other person for the production of those books and papers. Hallett v. Middleton, 1 Russ. 243. COVENANT FOR INDEMNITY; DELIVERY UP OF DEEDS; ACCOUNT; PARTNERSHIP DISCOVERY.

Quit rents being incidents of tenure, are subjects of compensation. Estelle v. Stephenson, 1 S. & S. 122. QUIT RENTS.

Lessee subject to covenant cannot compel specific performance of agreement to purchase the premises, though he offers to indemnify purchaser against performance of covenants. Fildes v. Hooker, 3 Mad. 193. SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE.

The purchaser of an estate, sold as tithe-free, cannot be compelled to take it subject to tithe on terms of compensation; but an estate of a hundred and forty acres being sold under a decree, the particulars stating about thirty-two acres to be tithe free, and no evidence of exemption having been produced on the reference of the title, the master was directed to certify the proper amount of compensation. A purchaser under a decree for sale having accepted, and

(on a report of an objection to the title for which compensation was ordered,) retained possession, must pay interest on the purchase money from the time at which he took, or at which a title was shewn, under which he might have safely taken possession, and is entitled to an allowance for prior, not for subsequent deterioration of the estate. Binks v. Ld. Rokeby, 2 Swan. 222.

Estate being sold by auction in lots, under conditions, one of which expressed that they were subject to the perpetual payment of 120*l.* a year to the curate of N, but that the same and the perpetual annual payment of 20*l.* to the hospital of C, were in future to be charged upon, and paid by the purchaser of lot 1 only: the purchasers of the other lots are entitled, not to an absolute exoneration, but to an indemnity from the purchaser of lot 1. Nature of the indemnity which they may require. Casman-jur v. Strobe, 2 Swan. 347. See further, 1 Jac. 630. CONDITIONS OF SALE.

If a person possessed of a term contracts to sell the fee, he cannot compel the purchaser to take, but the purchaser can compel him to convey the term, and this court will arrange the equities between the parties. Wood v. Griffith, 1 Swan. 54. See also Mortlock v. Buller, 10 Ves. 316. SPEC. PERF.

Compensation for the dry rot in house and premises decreed, upon representation of the vendor to the purchaser as to the state of repairs; he relying upon such representations, and stating to the plaintiff that he did not employ a surveyor for that reason. Grant v. Hunt, Coop. 173. MISREPRESENTATION.

Specific performance of an agreement for sale of estate decreed, notwithstanding a variance from the description, with compensation, for the deficiency in value; though a minute examination might have discovered the defects, as in the state of the house, &c.; but not for a variance from the description, as lying within a ring fence; the premises consisting of leasehold farm, and three years having expired, pending the suit, interest was given to the vendor, and a rent set up in it respect of his possession. Dyer v. Hargrave, 10 Ves. 505. SPEC. PERF.; INTEREST.

Purchaser not bound to take with compensation in a case of great intentional misrepresentation, although so provided by the conditions of sale in case of "any error or mis-statement" in the particulars. Stewart v. Alliston, 1 Mer. 26.

Though generally so, it is not universally true that a purchaser may take what he can get, with compensation for what he cannot have. Whether that is ever done without express undertaking on his part to do what court shall order; Qu.! Paton v. Rogers, 1 V. & B. 351.

Distinction between a purchase and a lease for lives; as time is not essential in a purchase, any delay may be compensated, either by receipt of the rents and profits, or in case a title cannot be made out, by interest on the deposit; but in a lease depending on lives, where time is most essential, delay does not admit of any compensation. Ormond v. Anderson, 2 Ball & B. 370. TIME.

General rule of specific performance that the purchaser shall have what the vendor can give, with an abatement out of the purchase money for so much as the quantity falls short of the representation, enforced against trustees for infants upon the mere mistake of their agent without fraud, &c.; but the relief adapted to the justice of the case, viz. the purchase being of wood upon a gross valuation, without regard to the quantity of land, an abatement for a deficiency of quantity from erroneously inserting the hedges and fences, not included in the purchase, was directed with reference to land. Hill v. Buckley, 17 Ves. 394. SPEC. PERF.; TRUSTEES.

Reservation of salt works, mines, &c. in 1704, with a right of entry though no instance of any claim, and the title had been transferred in 1761, without such reservation upon the usual covenants, held an objection, giving a right to compensation, the purchaser not insisting upon it further. Seaman v. Fawcett, 16 Ves. 390.

Specific performance decreed upon the bill of the purchaser with compensation for a defect of a title, if to be ascertained, by reduction of the purchase money; if not, or the plaintiff would so take it with an indemnity, the defendant, the vendor, proposing an option to take it as it was, or relinquish the contract: the defect consisting in the representation by the particular of a church lease for twenty-one years, the lease being actually for lives, and the covenant limited and contingent. Mulligan v. Cooke, 16 Ves. 1.

Under a bill to have a contract delivered up on the ground of defective title of defendant, the vendor, and for compensation for the injury to the plaintiff by the failure of the contract, decree was made for delivering up the contract, without prejudice to an action instead of an inquiry before the master. Gurillim v. Stone, 14 Ves. 128. DELIVERY UP OF DEEDS.

Warranty on sale against obvious defects is not binding. Dyke v. Hargrave, 10 Ves. 507. WARRANTY.

The objection by a purchaser applying only to a small part of the estate, a specific performance decreed with compensation. McQueen v. Farquhar, 11 Ves. 467.

Purchaser will not be compelled to take under contract for freehold, a long leasehold, though for a very long term, upon principle of compensation. Drewe v. Corp. 9 Ves. 368.

A contract having been made for sale of an estate, it afterwards appeared that there were some outgoings from the estate which were not disclosed at the time of the contract, yet these being matters which are in compensation, the contract shall be carried into execution, with an allowance only to the purchaser for those particulars which diminish the value; the agreement not being completed within the time specified, the purchaser shall be allowed interest for such time as the purchase money shall appear to have been kept dead for the special purpose of completing the contract. Howland v. Norris, 1 Cox, 59. SPEC. PERF.; INTEREST.

VI. ALLOWANCE TO PURCHASERS AS AN ABATEMENT OF PRICE.

The amount of deterioration of an estate pending a suit for specific performance, having been ascertained by an issue, the purchaser was allowed it out of his purchase money which he had paid into court, under an order, with interest from the time when he paid in his money. Ferguson v. Tadmam, 1 Sim. 530. INTEREST.

A piece of land, imperfectly watered, was described in the particular as uncommonly rich water meadow. Held, that this was not such a misrepresentation as would avoid the sale. Scott v. Hanson, 1 Sim. 13. SPEC. PERF.; FRAUD; MISREPRESENTATION.

Devise to A, charged with a legacy to B; A sells the estate, without having discharged the legacy. On a bill filed by B against A for payment of the legacy, decree against the purchasers, with decree over against A, in case, upon enquiry, it should turn out that no deduction had been made from the purchase money, in respect of the legacy. Newman v. Kent, 1 Mer. 240. LEGACY CHARGED ON LAND.

If a purchaser compromises debts charged on purchased premises, (the vendor being bound to relieve the incumbrances), he ought not to charge the vendor more than he actually pays, as that is the amount of damage he sustains by breach of covenant. Cane v. Ld. Allen, 2 Dow, 296. PAYING OFF INCUMBRANCE; ACCOUNT.

Purchaser is not entitled to abatement for deficiency in quantity, the particulars of sale describing lot as containing "more or less." Winch v. Winchester, 1 V. & B. 375.

Purchaser not permitted to apply part of his purchase money in discharge of a mortgage on the estate, though some of the parties consented, others being infants, and that there was such an incumbrance not appearing on the report. Qu., could it be done, if all were competent, and consented? — v. Stretton, 1 Ves. J. 266. PAYING OFF INCUMBRANCES.

VII. DELIVERY OF POSSESSION, AND THE EFFECT THEREOF.

A purchaser of a share in a co-partnership business does not waive objections to the title by taking possession of the property, and acting as a partner, when the contract stipulates that a good title shall be made by a specified future day, and it appears to have been the intention of the parties that the purchaser should immediately, and before the day, have the possession. Sterens v. Guppy, 3 Russ. 171. WAIVER.

The vendor of a share in a co-partnership business filed a bill against the purchaser, who had taken possession, charging that he had grossly mismanaged the property, and destroyed its value, and praying that he might be declared to have accepted the title, and might be decreed to perform the contract specifically. The court was of opinion, that the title had not been accepted, and as a good title was not shewn, a specific performance could not be decreed; held, that upon a record so framed, no accounts or enquiries could be directed as to defendant's possession and management of property, with a view to ascertain whether any or what sum ought to be paid, or compensation made by him to the plaintiff. Id. ib. PARTNERSHIP; ACCOUNT.

On a bill by a vendor for specific performance, where the purchaser had, in 1814, entered into possession under the agreement, and, pending the suit, continued in possession until 1823, the plaintiff, in consequence of a defect in the title, failing in his attempt to compel the performance of the contract, the court refused to decree, under the prayer for general relief, an account of rents and profits against the purchaser, though he had stated, by his answer, that he was willing to pay a fair rent. Williams v. Shaw, 3 Russ. 178. ACCOUNT OF RENTS & PROFITS.

If a purchaser, after the delivery of the abstract, on the face of which part of the estate appears to be subject to a right of sporting, not mentioned in the particulars of sale, enters into possession, he waives the objection. Burnell v. Brown, 1 Jac. & W. 163. WAIVER.

On motion by vendor against purchaser in possession for reference to set occupation rent, title not being completed, order was accordingly made, and that interest at 5l. per cent. on deposit should, under circumstances, be deducted from rent. Smith v. Jackson, 1 Mad. 618.

Specific performance decreed against purchaser, without reference as to title, upon ground of possession, a correspondence, and no objection to title till two years after delivery of abstract. Marg. Anspach v. Noel, 1 Mad. 310. SPEC. PERF.

Though, generally, a purchaser cannot be called upon for purchase money until title made, yet where he is let into possession upon mutual confidence of speedy title, and the difficulty is a mutual surprise, he cannot, without express contract, retain possession, withholding purchase money. Gibson v. Clarke, 1 V. & B. 500.

Specific performance decreed against purchaser, without reference as to title, upon possession, and no objection made to abstract. Fleetwood v. Green, 15 Ves. 594. REFERENCE AS TO TITLE; SPEC. PERF.

Purchaser under a decree of the court is not entitled, upon an affidavit that he has had his money lying ready for some time, to be let into possession of estate, and receipt of rents for all such time so passed. Barker v. Harper, Coop. 32. SALES JUDICIAL.

A purchaser taking possession without a conveyance, was compelled to pay interest, though the money was to be paid at a particular day, on the execution of the conveyance. Fludyer v. Cocker, 12 Ves. 25. INTEREST.

Possession taken generally amounts to a waiver, even of objections to a title. Id. 27. WAIVER.

The rule that a purchaser shall have possession as from the quarter day preceding the sale, does not apply to a colliery, which is an article of trade, the profits accruing daily. The proper period is the month or week in which the purchase takes place, according to the usual course of taking the account. Wren v. Kirtou, 8 Ves. 502. MINES.

Possession of a house, by delivery of the keys. Guest v. Humfray, 5 Ves. 818.

VIII. THE CONVEYANCE, AND THE COSTS THEREOF.

A testator devised his copyhold estate to his wife for life, with remainder to his two sons as tenants in common in fee; the eldest son and customary heir was by an arrangement between himself, his mother and brother, admitted to the copyhold in fee, and executed by deed a declaration of trust to the uses of his father's will. The brothers became bankrupts, and their assignees sold their reversion to the plaintiff: Held that the plaintiff, though as against the assignees or purchaser of a legal reversion, was not, as against the tenant for life, entitled to compel such a surrender as would give him the legal reversion. White v. Stock, 6 Mad. 327. TITLE.

Upon sale of copyhold in court, vendor coming for aid, is compelled to surrender in person, if conveniently to be done. Noel v. Weston, 6 Mad. 50. PR. SALES JUDICIAL; COPYHOLD SURRENDER.

Where copyhold is sold under commission, good title is made by bargain and sale from commissioners direct to purchaser. Exp. Holland, 4 Mad. 483. BANKRY. SALE OF COPYHOLD.

Where, pending a demurrer to bill, the vendor is ordered to place proper conveyance into hands of court, purchaser is ordered to place purchase money there also; the purchaser will not be permitted to take out conveyance, though he consents to vendor taking out the money. Cutler v. Broughton, 3 Mad. 95.

Words construed so as to have some meaning taken rather than rejected: therefore vendor proposing a price clear of all expences, construed, that the purchaser should bear the expence of making out the title, the law imposing on him the expence of the conveyance. Stratford v. Bosworth, 2 Ves. & B. 341. CONTRACT, C. OF.

Construction of a contract, that a reference of the expences was confined to the expence of the conveyance; but the evidence of the attorney was admitted for the defendant to prove the intention of both parties according to verbal instructions, that the plaintiff, the purchaser, should also pay the expences of making out the defendant's title. Ramsbottom v. Gouden, 1 V. & B. 165. DEEDS, C. OF; PR. EVID.

Purchaser of small lots entitled to attested copies of the title deeds, accompanying the principal purchase at the expence of the vendor, no stipulation having been made upon the subject. Boughton v. Jewell, 15 Ves. 176.

Purchaser who cannot have the original title deeds, the estate being sold in number of lots, is entitled to attested copies at expence of vendor. Dare v. Tucker, 6 Ves. 460.

Expence of conveyance falls on the purchaser if no particular stipulation. Dk. Bolton v. Williams, 2 Ves. J. 155. 4 Bro. C. C. 297.

Assignees in bankruptcy must surrender copyhold to purchaser. Drury v. Man, 1 Atk. 95. See 6 G. 4. c. 16. s. 64. 68. 69. COPYHOLD, SURRENDER OF; BANKRY. CONVEYANCE TO PURCHASER.

Conveyances made under a decree, are to be settled by the like rule as men of judgment among conveyancers would direct. Lloyd v. Griffith, 3 Atk. 267. SALE JUDICIAL.

IX. PURCHASER'S COVENANTS.

Under a contract for assignment of a term whether from the original lessee or a mesne assignee, the purchaser must covenant for indemnity against payment of rent and performance of the covenants, though he cannot have a covenant for title from the assignor as being an executor, and also by express stipulation. Staines v. Morris, 1 V. & B. 8.

Though upon the purchase of an equity of redemption the incumbrance is not, as between the representatives of the purchaser, his personal debt, even by his covenant to pay, which is considered as only for indemnity of the vendor; it is, if, beyond that, he enters into a new contract with the mortgagee, as for different times and modes of payment, &c. El. Orford v. Ly. Rodney, 14 Ves. 417. INCUMBRANCES.

X. DISCHARGE OF THE CONTRACT AND REFUNDING PURCHASE MONEY.

An estate having been sold, some part of which, material to the enjoyment of the rest, was subject to a defect of title known to the vendors, but not disclosed by the abstract, and unknown to the purchaser, the contract was rescinded, and the vendors were ordered to repay the purchase money, with all costs and expences incident to the purchase and conveyance. Edwards v. M'Leay, 2 Swan. 287. FRAUDULENT CONCEALMENT; CONTRACT.

Where vendor in ignorance and mistake agrees to sell that in which he has no interest at the time of sale, equity will rescind the contract and will order bond given for purchase money to be cancelled and interest paid on it to be refunded without costs on either side. Hitchcock v. Giddings, 4 Price, 135. MISTAKE; BUYING OF TITLES.

Injunction to stay proceedings in an action brought by a purchaser to recover the amount of his deposit refused; the description in the printed particular of sale being calculated grossly to deceive as to the real nature and value of the estate sold. Stewart v. Alliston, 1 Mer. 26. INJUNC. AGAINST PROC. AT LAW; FRAUD.

The defendant having sold and conveyed land to the plaintiff, suggesting that he had a title, and it afterwards appearing that he was not entitled to part, the same being an encroachment from a common, though no eviction had happened or was threatened, a bill lies to set aside the conveyance, and for a return of the purchase money, and all expences. Edwards v. M'Leay, Coop. 308. MISREPRESENTATION; TITLE; BILL TO SET ASIDE CONVEYANCE.

Purchaser entering into possession, knowing of objections to abstract but continuing to negotiate, cannot break off contract, and injunction will lie against his proceeding at law to recover back purchase-money; but otherwise if he had declared off, on delivery of abstract. Wards v. Jeffery, 4 Price, 294. SPEC. PERF.

Court will not make absolute order nisi for dissolving injunction (granted to restrain purchaser from proceeding at law to recover part of purchase-money paid by him in advance, the vendor not being able to make title, and there being outstanding incumbrances,) without the masters report as to sufficiency of title, although objections are fully stated in defendant's answer. Church v. Legent, 1 Price, 301. PR. MASTER'S REPORT ON TITLE; PR. DISSOLUTION OF INJUNC.

Purchaser discharged on motion upon affidavit of imprisonment for debt and insolvency. Hodder v. Ruffen, 1 V. & B. 544. INSOLVENCY.

Purchaser under a particular, giving a false description, not bound at law or in equity, or by any act of his agent without a fresh authority. Deverell v. J. d. Bolton, 18 Ves. 509. SPEC. PERF.; PARTICULARS OF SALE.

Purchaser cannot insist on being discharged upon a report of defective title, if capable of being made good within a reasonable time; as to which, the vendor will be put under terms. Coffin v. Cooper, 14 Ves. 205.

Purchaser not entitled to a conveyance of part though answering the general description in the advertisement of sale, as it was not in the contemplation of either party at the time of the purchase or conveyance, purchase being referred to a more particular description which did not include that part, and the surrender having been made according to that, and from his own instructions. If one party thought he had purchased bonâ fide part of an estate which the other thought he had not sold, it is a ground to set aside the contract. If both understood the whole was to be conveyed, it must; otherwise if neither understood so. Cutlerley v. Williams, 1 Ves. J. 210.

Small variation in general description of land not material. Id. 212.

Vendor contracting to sell estate in which he has no title, purchaser not bound though real owner offers a title. Tendering v. London, 2 Eq. Ab. 680. SPEC. PERF.

It is against natural justice that any one should pay for a bargain which he cannot have: as if I article to buy a house, and the house is burnt down before the day of payment, I am not bound to pay the money. Stent v. Bailis, 2 P. W. 220.

Bill for specific performance of articles for the purchase of an estate, dismissed with costs; because the title was not laid before the vendee's counsel within the time limited. Lewis v. Ld. Lechmers, 10 Mod. 503. SPEC. PERF.; TIME ESSENTIAL TO CONTRACT.

One transfers stock by virtue of a forged letter of attorney, the transfer to be void, and the right owner not hurt; and the dividends received under this forged letter of attorney, together with the stock, to be taken back from the assignee, and restored to the right owner. Hildyard v. S. S. Company, 2 P. W. 76. FRAUD.

A, articles with B, for the purchase of an estate of 180l. per annum, for which he was to give thirty-five years' purchase upon granting or conveying to him, and pay 50l. in part; but on discovery that 300l. per annum of the lands were copyhold, refused to go on. On a bill by B, equity will not decree a specific execution of this agreement, being inequitable, but will order the 50*l.* to be paid back. Hick v. Phillips, Prec. Chan. 575. SPEC. PERF.; TITLE.

Purchaser before a master submitting to forfeit his deposit, not bound to proceed in the purchase. Savile v. Savile, 1 P. W. 745; but see note (s), id. 747. SALES JUDICIAL; SPEC. PERF.

A agrees with B, lord of the manor, to purchase a copyhold for two lives, such as A shall name. A pays 200*l.* part of the purchase-money, and was to pay the rest in three months; a court is held; three months pass; B died suddenly, and the manor came to one who was not bound by the contract. The executor of B to refund 200*l.* Anbry v. Keen, 1 Vern. 472. AGREEMENT BECOMING IMPOSSIBLE.

If, on parol agreement for a lease, any consideration had been paid, equity would restore the consideration, though it did not execute the agreement in specie. Deane v. Izard, 1 Vern. 159.

There is a difference between money laid out in necessary repairs and lasting improvements, and money laid out for fancy and humour; the former shall be allowed, though not the latter. Id. ib.

A sold to B, and covenanted against himself and all claiming under him; B secured the purchase-money, and was evicted by a title paramount A's title; B was relieved from the payment of the purchase-money. Anon. 2 Ch. Ca. 19.

When eviction entitles a purchaser to relief. Maynard v. Moseley, 3 Swan. 651. EVICTION.

Different consequence of eviction before and after payment of purchase-money. Id. 655.

XI. BONA FIDE PURCHASER, HOW FAVOURED OR BOUND.

In a suit for specific performance by vendor, a writ of ne exeat regno ought not to issue against the purchaser, unless the court deems it quite clear that there must be a decree for the specific performance of the contract. Morris v. McNeil, 2 Russ. 604. PR. WRIT NE EXEAT REGNO.

Premises held under a demise, containing a proviso, that lessees shall not assign without the license of landlord in writing, are sold under a decree to a purchaser, who pays his purchase-money into court, and is let into possession; the landlord having refused to concur in the assignment, the representatives of the lessee filed a bill against him, alleging that his conduct with respect to the sale had been such as to deprive him in equity of any right to act on the legal construction of the covenant and proviso against assignment, and praying that he might be decreed to give his licence in writing for the transfer of the interest. The purchasers are necessary parties to such a bill. Maule v. Dr. Beaufort, 1 Russ. 349. PL. PARTIES.

Trustee of term to pay debts, purchased the inheritance from tenant for life, and had it conveyed to him by fine and feoffment. Remainder-man is not entitled to account of rents, except from his entry to avoid the fine, and if he neglects to claim for five years, he is barred. Reynolds v. Jones, 2 S. & S. 206. TRUSTEE; TENANT FOR LIFE AND REMAINDER-MAN; ACCOUNT.

Purchaser of pension granted by Geo. 3., and which necessarily ceased on king's death, not entitled to pension which was granted by Geo. 4. merely in continuance of the former one. Cly v. St. John, 2 S. & S. 32. PENSION; DEMISE LE ROY.

Where a receiver is appointed in a suit for specific performance, if the purchaser is compelled to take the title, the receiver is to be considered as his receiver.

Boehm v. Wood, 1 Turn. & R. 345. RECEIVER; SPEC. PERF.

Husband is not compelled to make allowance to wife before he enjoys her equitable interest for life, unless he neglects to provide for her; but if before that latter event, husband assigns it for valuable consideration, purchaser is not obliged to provide for wife. Elliott v. Cordell, 5 Mad. 156. HUSB. & WIFE.

Receiver appointed on the motion of the vendor, pending a reference of title. Boehm v. Wood, 2 Jac. & W. 236. RECEIVER; REF. AS TO TITLE.

The purchaser of a copyhold estate, devised subject to payment of debts, in trust for sale, and sold, during the infancy of the heir, under the usual decree, is not entitled to have a portion of the purchase-money retained in court, as a provision for defraying the expense of the fine, which would become payable on the death of the heir before a conveyance. Morris v. Charlson, 3 Swan. 558. INFANT TRUSTEE; FINE.

Where A, the heir of lessee, having a right to perpetual renewal, had entered into an agreement with B respecting the independent lease of lands, held under renewable lease by ancestors of B, which independent lease B had obtained from landlord by fraud and circumvention: Held, that heir of A, and purchasers for valuable consideration claiming under him, were entitled in equity to benefit of agreement between B and A, and that heir of landlord was entitled to benefit of agreement, so far as B took an interest. Butler v. Mulvihill, 1 Bligh, 137. AGREEMENT; FRAUD.

A purchaser of property collaterally charged to secure a bond debt, for which he mortgages the purchased estate, and pays the remainder of the purchase money, is not entitled to insist on having the property reconveyed to him free of incumbrance before he pays the sum so secured by mortgage; and if he file a bill to have the estate reconveyed to him, and a declaration of court as to the persons entitled to receive the money, where there are two sets of claimants, he will be considered as merely a mortgagor filing bill to redeem, and must pay all costs, although he has paid the money into court. Drew v. Harman, 5 Pri. 319. MORTGAGE; PR. COSTS.

Limitation in marriage settlement to settlor's brother, is not a valuable consideration as against subsequent purchasers. Johnson v. Legard, 3 Mad. 283. LIMITATION; CONSIDERATION; COLLATERAL RELATIONS.

But limitation in favour of issue of second marriage, was held good. Clayton v. El. Wilton, cited id. 302.

A court of equity will not assist a vendor in defeating a prior voluntary settlement made by himself. Smith v. Garland, 2 Mer. 123. VOLUNTARY SETTLEMENT.

Purchaser objecting to title on the ground of a voluntary settlement made by the vendor; a bill for specific performance by the vendor was dismissed, and an exception to the master's report, approving the title, allowed. Id. ib.

Purchase for valuable consideration (the adequacy of price being disputed), by nephew from uncle, who (unknown to nephew), was insolvent and died soon after the purchase: held not impeachable by creditors of uncle. Copis v. Middleton, 2 Mad. 410. FRAUD ON CREDITOR.

Court will not interfere to assist a purchaser for valuable consideration of estate seized under an extent, against the vendor, for which he has paid the principal part of purchase-money, and offers to pay the remainder to the crown, or to give up the estate on satisfaction made to himself. Rex v. Hollier, 2 Pri. 394. EXTENT.

Voluntary settlement of personal property, in trust for such one or more of his children as the settlor shall appoint. Appointment to one child, exclusively, upon a secret understanding that that child shall re-assign a part of the fund to, or in favour of a stranger. This appointment is a fraud upon the settlement: and void, not only to the extent of the sum assigned back, but in toto. Bill, by purchaser for valuable consideration, without notice, under this appointment, dismissed as against the person entitled under the settlement, in default of appointment; such person having also the legal estate in the fund, which was the subject of the appointment. Daubeny v. Cockburn, 1 Mer. 626. POWER, ILLUSORY EXECUTION OF.

Payment of a valuable consideration by person, not having the legal estate, and not being an object of the power, cannot set up an invalid appointment in favour of such purchaser. Id. 638. POWER, ILLUSORY APPOINTMENT.

Secus, where the power is unlimited as to its objects, and the appointment is only impeachable on the ground of its being voluntary. Id. ib.

If a purchaser of the legal estate in lands, subject to an equitable rent-charge, refuse to pay the rent-charge, a receiver will be appointed. Pritchard v. Fleetwood, 1 Mer. 54. PR. RECEIVER; RENT-CHARGE.

Purchaser, pendente lite, &c. in debt, &c. a real action, bound by judgment. Metcalfe v. Cartwright, 2 V. & B. 205. JUDGMENT; ASSIGNMENT PENDENTE LITE.

Purchaser of estate, charged with debts pendente lite, by creditors, is bound by decree. Id. 207. DECREE; ASSIGNMENT PENDENTE LITE.

Receiver appointed after answer of purchaser, under circumstances. Hall v. Jenkinson, 2 V. & B. 125. PR. RECEIVER.

Covenant upon marriage, that the heirs, executors, &c. of the husband shall, within six months after his death, pay to the wife, if she should survive him, the fortune he received, with the addition of 50% per cent.; and in case he should receive any other part of her fortune, to which she was entitled in reversion under a will, to pay that in the same manner, and with the same profit. The husband becoming bankrupt, the wife has no claim upon that reversionary fund, against a purchaser under the commission. Baker v. Serra, 14 Ves. 313. MARRIAGE SETTLE; HUSB. & WIFE.

A purchaser, under a decree, shall not be affected by error in the decree, e. g. in its not having given a day to an infant defendant to shew cause, or in decreeing a sale of lands to satisfy judgment debts, without an account of the personal estate. Bennett v. Hamill, 2 Scho. & L. 566. SALLS, JUDICIAL; DECREE, ERROR IN.

A purchaser has a right to presume that the court has taken the steps necessary to investigate the rights of the parties, and that on that investigation it has properly decreed a sale; but he ought to see that all proper parties to be bound are before the court, and that he does not take a title which can be impeached alunde. Id. ib.

Purchaser cannot protect himself against claim of dower, by a term attendant upon the inheritance, unless he has procured an assignment. Maudrell v. Maudrell, 7 Ves. 567. See this case further, 10 Ves. 246. DOWER.

Husband, having power of appointment paramount to right of dower, in default thereof, to himself for life, remainder to his right heirs, if the power could have effect, yet a purchaser, taking by a conveyance, adapted to pass the interest in the estate as a limitation in fee, was held to take in that way, not by way of appointment, and therefore subject to dower. Id. ib. DOWER; POWER, EXEC. OF.

Relief against forfeiture of the deposit upon putting the other party in the same situation, as if the contract had been performed at the time agreed. Moss v. Matthews, 3 Ves. 279. FORFEITURE OF DEPOSIT.

Defendant stating by answer, a purchase for valuable consideration without notice, shall not be compelled to answer further. Jerrard v. Saunders, 2 Ves. J. 454. PL. ANSWER; VALUABLE CONSIDERATION.

This court will not take the least step against a purchaser for valuable consideration without notice, not even to perpetuate testimony against him. Id. 458. VALUABLE CONSIDERATION; PERPETUATING TESTIMONY.

Injunction against purchaser, on behalf of creditor, to restrain payment to heir. Green v. Lowes, 3 Bro. C. C. 217. INJUNCTION.

The court will not apply the maxim  caveat emptor, to cover a false and positive representation, essentially material to the subject. Lanndes v. Lane, 2 Cox, 363. FRAUD; MISREPRESENTATION.

A, by settlement after marriage, not being indebted, conveys to trustees to family uses, reserving a power to sell, but covenanting that the purchase money should be paid to the trustees, to be laid out to the same uses; he sells to B, who has notice of the covenant, but pays his money to A, who dies insolvent: B's representatives shall not be obliged to repay the money, the settlement being voluntarily and fraudulent as against a purchaser. Freely v. Temple, 2 Bro. C. C. 148. VOLUNTARY SETTLE.

Purchase for a valuable consideration bond fide paid: held a good defence, though the consideration was much less than the real value. Bullock v. Sadler, Amb. 764. INADEQUACY OF CONSIDERATION; PL. PLEA OF PURCHASE.

Where marriage articles limited a joint estate to the intended husband and wife, and after the death of the survivor, to the use of the heirs of the body of the husband, begotten on the wife, and the settlement after marriage pursued the words of the articles, husband and wife levy a fine, and first mortgage, and then agree to sell, the articles not being produced, the court would not decree them to be carried into execution by strict settlement against the purchaser, who had notice of them. Cordwell v. Mackrill, Amb. 515. S. C. 2 Eden. 344. MARRIAGE ARTICLES.

The court is cautious in following money into land, but will do it if proved that the money was laid out in land, the doubt is on the proof; always done when admitted on the answer of person laying it out. Lane v. Dighton, Amb. 413. TRUST.

A purchaser for valuable consideration, without notice, by taking an assignment of a term attendant, may protect himself from mesne incumbrances. Willoughby v. Willoughby, Amb. 282. INCUMBRANCES; TERM, ATTENDANT.

A bond fide purchaser without notice, if the term is in a trustee, may use it to protect or recover the possession; so if the term is in himself. Id. 283.

The term will protect against all intermediate incumbrances. Id. ib. TERM, ATTENDANT.

Title of purchaser for valuable consideration is a good ground of defence, but not for relief. Patterson v. Slaughter, Amb. 293. PL. PLEA; PL. RELIEF.

Purchasers for valuable consideration, not bound by private act of parliament. Ponfret v. Ld. Windsor, 2 Ves. 480. PRIVATE ACT OF PARLIAMENT.

Wife not entitled to dower against a purchaser of the inheritance who has got an assignment of a term, originally made previous to her right of dower. Scanlon v. Lyford, Amb. 6. S. C. nom. Hill v. Adams, 2 Atk. 200. DOWER.

S devised all his real and personal estate to G, his heirs, &c. charged with his debts; plaintiffs were bond creditors, and received their interest of G, as executor, regularly for sixteen years, but never asked for the principal, and G during this interval made several sales of the testator's estate: Held that the purchaser shall not be disturbed after a quiet possession of so many years. Elliot v. Merryman, 2 Atk. 41. BARN. 78. LENGTH OF TIME.

Where purchaser has given a full value for estate; mistake of some party to conveyance of their claim thereto under a marriage settlement shall not turn to the prejudice of the purchaser without notice. Malden v. Menill, 2 Atk. 8. FRAUD, IGNORANCE OF RIGHTS.

If one who confesses a judgment aliens part of his land, and the rest descends, the heir shall not have contribution against the purchaser. Hurrey v. Woodhouse, Sel. Ch. Ca. 3. W. KOL. 3. HEIR AT LAW; CONTRIBUTION.

After twenty years' possession, a purchaser shall not be put to prove the payment of his bond for the purchase money. Anon. Mos. 37. LENGTH OF TIME.

One possessed of a term devises to A, makes B his executor, and leaves some debts; if the executor sells the term, the purchaser shall hold it against the devisee; secus, if sold at an under-value, or if the purchaser knew there was no debts, or that the debts were, or could be paid without breaking in upon the specific legacy. Ewer v. Corbet, 2 P. W. 148. EXECUTOR; FRAUD.

A trader seised of land in fee gives judgment to B, and then sells the lands to C, &c.; afterwards becomes a bankrupt; though the judgment creditor cannot come in for more than his proportion with the bankrupt's creditors, whether he may not extend the lands in C, the purchaser's hands, C having purchased before the bankruptcy; and this not prejudicing the creditors. So if A, the trader, gives judgment to B, and articles for a valuable consideration to sell to C, and then becomes a bankrupt, it seems the judgment shall bind the lands in the hands of C, who article to buy them; but whatever money the purchaser was to pay the bankrupt, the same shall be liable to the bankruptcy. Orlebar v. Fletcher, 1 P. W. 738. JUDGMENT, BANKCY.

One having a bond, receives the money due upon it, and afterwards assigns it, for a valuable consideration as unsatisfied, to another who has no notice of the payment, yet the purchaser can have no avail of this bond. Turton v. Bosson, 1 P. W. 497. S. C. 2. Vern. 764. Free. Chan. 522. 10 Md. 455. 1 Stra. 240. BOND; FRAUD.

A purchases of a man who had committed an act of bankruptcy, but without notice thereof, afterwards a commission is taken out, and there being a term standing out in trustees, the assignee brings a bill against them, and the purchaser to have the term assigned to him. Bill dismissed. Wilkes v. Bodington, 2 Vern. 599. TERM ATTENDANT; BANKCY. ASSIGNMENT.

A purchaser without notice shall not be hurt in equity, not only where he has got a prior legal title, but where he has a better right to call for the legal estate than another, who has got an incumbrance prior to his title. Id. ib.

A makes a lease for three years; and in consideration of the lessee's laying out 100*l.* in improvements, covenants at the end of the term to grant a new lease at the same rent. Purchaser of the inheritance decreed to make good the covenant. Richardson v. Sydenham, 2 Vern. 447. *COVENANT, WHO BOUND BY; LESSOR AND LESSEE.

Tenant for life of a copyhold sold his estate, and surrendered it that the lord might admit A the purchaser; the copyholder in reversion entered and recovered at law; A was relieved in equity. Anon. 2 Freem. 118. COPYHOLD, SURRENDER OF.

Lord of manor (his tenants refusing to renew) makes a lease of the premises to his daughter for ninety-nine years, and afterwards sells the manor to

J S, who has notice of the lease, but has security that the daughter, when at age should surrender; daughter decreed to have the benefit of the lease. Jennings v. Selleck, 1 Vern. 467. ADVANCEMENT; PARENT AND CHILD.

Devisee shall not examine witnesses in perpetuum rei memoriam, to prove a will against a purchaser without notice, till the will has been established by a verdict at law. Beckinall v. Arnold, 1 Vern. 354. PR. BILL TO PERPETUATE; DEVISEE.

Court will not entertain bill by dowress to set aside an outstanding term as against a purchaser, though he had notice. Bodmin v. Vendebendy, 1 Vern. 356. 179. OUTSTANDING TERMS; DOWER.

Copyholder in fee takes an enfranchisement of his copyhold in the name of a trustee, and devises the lands to his younger son, who sells to A; the heir at law of the copyhold recovers in ejectment, and A brings his bill and is decreed to hold and enjoy against the heir. Dancer v. Erett, 1 Vern. 392. S. P. Parker v. Turner, id. ib. COPYHOLD.

A man who purchases without notice of a prior incumbrance, or prior right, shall not have his title impeached in equity, nor shall he be compelled to discover any writings which may weaken his title, neither shall any advantage be taken from him which may defend him at law. Harding v. Hardres, Rep. temp. Finch 9. Hayman v. Gomeidon, id. 34. Snelling v. Squib, 2 Ch. Ca. 47. Wilker v. Bodington, 2 Vern. 599. Stephens v. Gaule, id. 701. He must plead himself a purchaser without. Bodmin v. Vendebendy, 1 Vern. 179. But he need not set forth the consideration he paid. Moore v. Mayhew, 1 Ch. Ca. 34. 2 Freem. 175. NOTICE; PL. PLEA OF PURCH.

XII. LIEN, CONCERNING.

Application by vendor, who had not conveyed, for a sale of the premises in discharge of his lien for the unpaid purchase-money, and to prove for any deficiency granted. Exp. Gyde, 1 G. & J. 323. BANKCY. PROOF IN.

Where purchase money for estate was, in pursuance of agreement for purchase, secured by bond of purchaser, payable at death of vendor with interest; but conveyance expressed that it had been paid, and it had vendor's receipt indorsed upon it: held, that vendor had no lien upon the estate for the amount of the bond, and estate is in purchaser immediately. Winter v. Tal. Anson, 1 S. & S. 434.

Remainder-man having sold property to a purchaser, by whom money is advanced to pay off a heavy and pressing incumbrance, the remainder-man representing himself as having a right to sell with the concurrence of the tenant for life for that purpose; whereupon a draft of conveyance is prepared, to which the tenants for life and remainder-men are made parties, and the purchaser takes possession, gives the purchaser such an equitable title to the purchase, as having cleared the estate from a charge to which the tenant for life was liable, as to establish a lien on the property which equity will protect, by enjoining the tenant for life from proceeding by ejectment to obtain possession, until the cause shall be finally determined on the hearing, whatever case may be made by the answer on merits stated on part of defendant in equity. Ludlow v. Grayall, 11 Price, 58.

Covenant between vendor and purchaser, that purchase money should be repaid within two years after resale, discharges the vendor's lien. Exp. Parkes, 1 G. & J. 228.

Case in which vendor of estate loses his lien, by a contract between all parties for a second sale, the first vendor being unable to complete his contract.

Cood v. Pollard, 9 Price, 544. And same case confirmed, 10 Price, 109. LIEN.

A trustee for the sale of a brewhouse and plant, (the cestuique trusts being infants) contracts to sell them, and lets the purchaser into possession: held, that the purchaser was in possession within the stat. of 21 Jac. 1. c. 19, and therefore the plant, upon his becoming bankrupt, passed to his assignees, without being subject to the lien for the purchase money. Exp. Dale, Buck, 365.

Vendor has a lien on estate sold for purchase money, though he has received bills from purchaser in payment of same, and though purchaser becomes bankrupt. Exp. Peake, 1 Mad. 346.

Vendor held not to have waived his lien on the estate sold, by taking the promissory note of the vendee, and receiving its amount by discount. Exp. Learing, 2 Rose, 79. WAIVER.

Rule in equity in the case of an implied lien is, that the vendor's lien is not gone by accepting a bond or note from the purchaser, nor will a receipt for the purchase money discharge the lien till the money be paid; this rule is strengthened when applied to the case for an express charge. Saunders v. Leslie, 2 Ball & B. 614. LIEN, RELEASE OF.

A vendor accepting a mortgage on another estate, is not conclusive evidence against the extinction of his lien on the estate sold. Id. 515.

Vendor's lien on the estate for the purchase money, not discharged by taking bills of exchange; which are to be considered, not as a security, but as a mode of payment. Grant v. Mills, 2 V. & B. 306. BILL OF EXCHANGE; WAIVER.

Judgment against the purchaser of a leasehold house and furniture for damages and costs, does not destroy lien of the vendor upon the house and furniture; and therefore proof under a commission of bankruptcy against the purchaser for the deficiency allowed. Exp. Ld. Seaforth, 19 Ves. 235. 1 Rose, 306. BANKRUPT. PROOF IN.

Vendor's lien for purchase money unpaid, against the vendee; volunteers and purchasers with notice, or having equitable interest only, claiming under him, unless clearly relinquished, of which another security taken and relied on, may be evidence according to the circumstances, the nature of the security, &c.; the proof being upon the purchaser. and failing in part, upon the circumstances, another security being relied on, may prevail as to the residue. Muckreth v. Symmons, 15 Ves. 329.

Lien of vendee, having paid prematurely, is analogous to that of vendor. Id. 345.

Purchase money unpaid, is prima facie a lien on the lands sold; and if a security is taken for that money, it lies on the vendee to shew that the vendor agreed to rest on that security, and to discharge the lands. A note passed by a vendee to a trustee for part of the purchase money, out of the amount of which incumbrances then not ascertained were to be satisfied, and the balance only paid to the vendor, is not such a security as will discharge the lien on the lands. Hughes v. Kearney, 1 Scho. & L. 132.

Vendor's equitable lien upon estate for purchase money is lost by taking special security by way of pledge of stock. Naim v. Prowse, 6 Ves. 752.

Whether the vendor of an estate who takes bond of the vendee for the purchase money, has a lien on the lands for the purchase money remaining unpaid? Blackburne v. Gregson, 1 Cox. 90. S. C. 1 Bro. C. C. 420.

Although the vendor of an estate has fraudulently concealed an incumbrance, yet the purchaser has no lien on the purchase money after it has been paid over. Cator v. Bollingbrooke, 1 Bro. C. C. 301. FRAUD. CONCEALMENT.

Purchaser, without notice, of a rent charge transfers stock in payment; the party entitled for life, grants an annuity out of the dividend, secured by a letter of attorney to receive the dividends, to a person who had no notice of the transaction; the purchaser of the estate is evicted by grantee of the rent charge; he has no lien on the stock. Id. ib.

If the vendor parts with his estate, and takes a security for the consideration money, there is no reason for a court of equity to assist him against the creditors of the purchaser. Fawell v. Hellis, Amb. 726.

A purchases lands of B, and mortgages back those lands for part of the purchase money, and gives a note to B, for 200l. the other part thereof; A devises those lands to be sold for payment of his debts; this 200l. note, though for part of the purchase money, shall not be preferred to other debts, nor be a charge on the land in equity. Bond v. Kent, 2 Vern. 281. PRIORITY OF SECURITY.

A sells land to B, who afterwards becomes a bankrupt, part of the purchase money not being paid. A shall not be bound to come in as a creditor under the statute; but the land shall stand charged with the money unpaid, though no agreement for that purpose. Cipman v. Turner, 1 Vern. 267, 268. BANKRUPT. PRIORITY.

I S. bought an estate of A, who gave him a bond to suffer a recovery within three years, or to return him his money upon a re-conveyance. A tendered a recovery, but before it was suffered, a third person made a title to the land, whereupon I S. brought his bill for the purchase money, but the court could not relieve him, for having consented to take the bond, he must resort to A's covenant against incumbrances. Meynard's case, 2 Freem. 42.

XIII. OF NOTICE, AND ITS EFFECT.

The possession of a client's deeds by his solicitor is so usual, and so much in the ordinary course of transactions, that where a purchaser purchases an estate, and is informed that the deeds are in the hands of the solicitor of the owner of the estate, there is nothing in that circumstance which renders it necessary for him to inquire under what circumstances the solicitor holds the deeds. And therefore, where a solicitor acquires, by contract, a different interest beyond what his character of solicitor confers, (such as an equitable mortgage), it is incumbent on him immediately to give clear and distinct notice of such interest to all persons in the visible ownership of the estate; and such a case is not within the principle of the cases in which a purchaser of land has been held bound to inquire of the tenant in possession the nature of his interest. Boson v. Williams, 3 Y. & J. 150.

Plea of valuable consideration without notice, is no protection against adverse claim, of which purchaser might have had notice by using due diligence. Jackson v. Rowe, 2 S. & S. 472. PLEA.

Injunction granted ex parte to restrain the negotiation of a bill of exchange by a holder who had given valuable consideration for it, but who had notice that it had been improperly accepted by a partner of the plaintiffs in the partnership name. Hood v. Aston, 1 Russ. 412. PR. INJUNC.; BILL OF EXCHANGE.

A testatrix having directed that a lease should be sold, and the money divided among five persons, the administrator alleging that he had become entitled to it by an arrangement with the legatees, assigned it over for valuable consideration: held that, at his death, it remained assets unadministered, and that the purchaser must be directed to convey it to the administratrix de bonis suis, though the persons beneficially interested were not at all parties to the suit. Cubylge v. Boatwright, 1 Russ. 649. FRAUD.

Party declaring, that unless contract was performed by such a day, he should consider it as a refusal by the other party to perform it, and would act accordingly, does not amount to a notice of abandonment of the contract. Reynolds v. Nelson, 6 Mad. 26. NOTICE OF ABANDONMENT OF CONTRACT.

A agrees, verbally, to sell an estate to B: he afterwards agrees, in writing, to sell it to C, and then conveys it to B in pursuance of the first contract, B having notice of the second. Semble, C cannot call on B for a conveyance. Dawson v. Ellis, 1 Jac. & W. 524. PRIORITY OF CONTRACT.

A person contracting to purchase leasehold property, is held to contract with notice of the clauses of the lease. Walter v. Maunde, 1 Jac. & W. 181.

A person agreeing to purchase the right and interest of another, under a contract for a lease, with full notice of the nature of it, cannot object to the payment of the consideration, either on the ground that such contract is not binding on the other party to it, or for want of title. Baxter v. Conolly, 1 Jac. & W. 576.

If purchaser is informed of incumbrances on estate, but is misinformed as to the nature of them, it is sufficient notice to set him on the enquiry as to incumbrances, and he is bound. Taylor v. Baker, 5 Price, 306. INCUMBRANCE.

Purchaser having employed the vendor's agent, who had notice of an incumbrance, charged with notice, notwithstanding the purchase was made under the sanction of the court, and an infant was interested in it. Toulmin v. Steere, 3 Mer. 210. PRIN. & AGENT; SALE JUDICIAL.

Purchaser of an equity of redemption cannot set up a prior mortgage of his own, or which he has got in against subsequent incumbrances, of which he had notice. Id. ib. PRIORITY OF SECURITY.

The possession of a tenant is notice to a purchaser of the whole actual interest he may have in the estate; therefore, of a right to the timber on the estate, although such right accrued by a title posterior to that on which his possession was grounded. Allen v. Anthony, 1 Mer. 282. NOTICE.

A trust fund of 15,000*l.*, created under marriage settlement, by which certain lands were limited to husband for life, remainder to first and other sons in tail, with powers to husband of leasing for forty-one years, or three lives, at best rent, was directed, by deed, to be conveyed, &c. to same uses, &c.; and in mean time, trustees, with consent of husband, were empowered to lend money on certain security. Husband purchased leasehold for 891*l.*, to which he took the assignment to himself alone, and obtained purchase money out of trust fund to amount of 11,696*l.*, taking security for 1400*l.* less than 11,696*l.* Husband granted lease at great under-value for his own term to attorney who managed purchase, which purchase proved very beneficial: Held, that first son of marriage was entitled to follow that part of trust fund which had been misapplied, and to have benefit of purchase, and to have lands sold, discharged of lease to attorney, whose equity against him (the son) as personal representative of father, was barred by notice of settlement and breach of trust. Phayre v. Perce, 3 Dow, 116. S. C. 1 Bli. N. S. 594. TRUST, BREACH OF.

A purchaser aware of tenant's possession of part of the estate, has constructive, though not actual, notice of the whole of the tenant's interest in the estate. Powell v. Dillon, 2 Ball & B. 416.

Constructive notice to a purchaser of a tenant's title, precludes the plea of purchase for valuable consideration without notice. Id. 421.

Notice to a purchaser of a lease necessarily implies notice of all the covenants in it, and being specifically informed that the estate was in lease, he is bound to know all the contents of the leases, and cannot take upon himself a partial knowledge. Eyre v. Dolphin, 2 Ball & B. 301.

Where the evidence of notice in the purchaser is very loose, and there only exists a suspicion of it, equity will not act upon it. Id. 301.

Grants in reversion obtained by an agent and trustee from his employers and cestui que trusts for fraud and misrepresentation, afterwards assigned for valuable consideration to a purchaser having notice of the facts and nature of the title, set aside. A conveyance taken after the grants, the fiduciary relations still existing, and the grantor ignorant of his rights, is a continuation of the fraud, and not a confirmation. Dunbar v. Tredennick, id. 304. FRAUD, FID. STR.

A purchaser with notice is bound to the same manner as his vendor. Although a purchaser with notice be not a party to the original fraud, yet he is considered as an accessory after the fact. Id. 319.

Qu. Whether purchaser for valuable consideration under a decree fraudulently obtained, though ignorant of fraud, can protect himself when fraud appears on face of proceedings? Gore v. Stackpole, 1 Dow, 30. FRAUD.

Specific performance decreed against a purchaser at a public auction, where the representation in the particulars of sale (complained of as calculated to mislead) was so vague and indefinite, that it ought to have put the purchaser on making previous inquiry. Trouer v. Newcome, 3 Mer. 704.

Equity will not relieve against a contract entered into by a child with a parent for an appointment from him; and a purchaser from the parent with notice of the fraud will be affected with it. Palmer v. Wheeler, 2 Ball & B. 18. POWER; PARENT AND CHILD.

Purchaser of a lease though not considered a purchaser for valuable consideration without notice, to the extent of not being bound to know from whom the lessor derived his title, is not to take notice of all the circumstances under which it is derived. Therefore, understood to have notice, that the lessors were trustees for a charity, not that the lease was bad, that depending on circumstances dehors. Att. Gen. v. Backhouse, 17 Ves. 293.

Objection by purchaser of allotments under an inclosing act, that the award of the commissioners was not made, overruled; the act containing a clause enabling a sale, and declaring the conveyance valid before the award; and supposing the possibility of the commissioners vaying the allotments, the purchaser having full notice of all the circumstances. Kingsley v. Young, 17 Ves. 468. AFFL. 18 Ves. 207. INCLOSURE ACT.

Purchaser bound by notice of a judgment though not docketed. Davis v. El. Strathmore, 16 Ves. 419.

Purchaser within the registry act bound by notice of a deed not registered. Id. ib.

The possession of a tenant is notice to a purchaser of the actual interest he may have either as tenant or farther, as in this instance, by an agreement to purchase the premises. Daniels v. Davison, 16 Ves. 249.

Notice to a purchaser, that there is a lease, is notice of its contents. Wall v. Smith, 14 Ves. 426.

Effect of an indefinite representation by a vendor; as that a leasehold estate was nearly equal to freehold, being renewable upon a small fine; putting the purchaser upon inquiry; though, connected with certain circumstances, such representation may be fraudulent, and form a ground for rescinding the contract. Fenton v. Browne, 14 Ves. 144.

Notice to a purchaser of possession by a tenant, is notice of his interest. Hiern v. Mill, 13 Ves. 120.

Notice to a purchaser in one transaction will not affect him in an independent subsequent one; but notice of a deed is notice of the whole of its contents so far as they affect the transaction in which notice of the deed is acquired. Hamilton v. Royse, 2 Scho. & L. 315.

Bill by tenant in tail in possession under marriage settlement for discovery and delivery of title deeds; plea, mortgage by tenant for life alleging himself to be seised in fee and in possession of premises and deeds as apparent owner, allowed. Wallwyn v. Lee, 9 Ves. 24. PL. PLEA.

Averments necessary to plea of purchase for valuable consideration, without notice that vendor or mortgagor was owner, or pretended owner, and that he was in possession, not that purchaser was. Id. 32. PL. PLEA, AVERMENTS.

The recital in a deed of a fact which may or may not (according to circumstances) in equity amount to a fraud, will not of necessity affect a purchaser for value, denying notice of the fraud. Kenney v. Browne, 3 Ridgw. P. C. 512. FRAUD.

Purchaser with notice is bound in all respects as the vendor; therefore, where tenant for life granted leases for lives under a power, and bound himself, upon the dropping of a life, to grant a new lease with the same provision for renewal on the death of any person to be named in any future lease, and afterwards joined in a sale, though the power is exceeded; yet if a life drops in the life of the lessor, the purchaser having notice, must specifically perform, by granting a new lease with the same provisions: general notice to a purchaser that there are leases, is notice of all their contents. Brydges v. Ds. Chaudes, 2 Ves. J. 437.

Purchaser being told part of the estate was in possession of a tenant, was bound by the lease. Taylor v. Stibbert, id. 440.

Vendee says he has bought, vendor is silent: held, conclusive notice to a third person present. Weymouth v. Boyer, 1 Ves. J. 425.

Equity will not relieve the assignees of a bankrupt against a purchaser of the bankrupt's lands without notice of the act of bankruptcy. Chandos v. Brownlow, 2 Ridgw. P. C. 425. BANKRUPT ASSIGNMENT.

Mortgagee of a lease which recited the surrender of a former lease, which was in consideration of the surrender of a former lease in which plaintiff's title appeared: held to have notice of the title. Coppin v. Fernyough, 2 Bro. C. C. 291. TITLE.

Fraudulent conveyance set aside as against a purchaser with notice notwithstanding a great length of time which had elapsed since the original transaction. Alden v. Gregory, 2 Eden, 280. LENGTH OF TIME. FRAUDULENT CONVEYANCE.

Where, in the office copy of a will, a whole line of the original had been omitted, but the sense was left in such a manner as to give reason to suppose that the original contained a limitation in tail of real estate; held, that this was sufficient to put a purchaser upon enquiry. Surman v. Barlow, 2 Eden, 165.

Covenant in a marriage settlement that the husband shall, within one year, execute, he being then under age, does not shew such an interest in him, as to put a purchaser upon inquiry. Proof of constructive notice by one witness, not sufficient against a positive denial of notice by the answer. Howarth v. Deane, 1 Eden, 351.

Where a purchaser cannot make out his title, but through a deed which leads to a fact, he will be affected with notice of that fact. Mertins v. Jolliffe, Amb. 311.

One affected with notice conveys to another without notice; the assignee having legal estate shall not be affected with the notice to assignor, and so vice versa. Id. 313.

Though a man is bound to take notice of every thing necessary to his title, he need not look into what is not necessary. Id. ib.

If trustees to preserve contingent remainders join in sale to one without notice, the purchaser will be safe; contra if he have notice. Willoughby v. Willoughby, Amb. 284.

Notice of ancient articles by which the estate is agreed to be settled on the husband for life, remainder subject to a charge by way of jointure for the wife to the heirs male of husband by his wife, shall not affect the title of a purchaser claiming under the husband by reason of the modern method of carrying such articles into execution. Senhouse v. Earle, Amb. 285. S. C. 2 Ves. 450.

One seised of an estate subject to several equitable incumbrances, sells it to a purchaser and conveys the legal estate to him free from incumbrances, except some of the equitable incumbrances which were later in date to the others, the purchaser having no notice of the other incumbrances only, and they were preferred to the other creditors. Ingram v. Pelham, Amb. 153. TRUST.

Party having notice through his agent of sufficient to make him inquire as to the title, cannot protect himself by procuring the legal estate. Maddox v. Maddox, 1 Ves. 61.

Notice to an agent as well as personal notice will affect the party, and the deposition of the agent will be allowed to be read. Id. ib.

If a man will purchase with notice of another's right, giving a consideration will not avail him. Mead v. Ld. Orrery, 3 Atk. 238.

The augmentation of vicarage by yearly payments of corn and money out of rectory is a charge on rectory inappropriate into whose hands soever it shall come. Where vicar brings bill for arrears of certain annual payments issuing out of impropriate rectory, he shall recover against the impropiator, though a considerable time has elapsed between the commencement of arrears and impropiator's possession. But purchaser with notice of such claim pending such suit shall only account for arrears after his possession. Cook v. Smeed, 2 Bro. P. C. 184. ACCOUNT; ARREARS.

On a plea of purchase for valuable consideration without notice of plaintiff's title, it is sufficient to aver that the person who conveyed was seised or pretended to be seised when he executed the purchase deeds; but where a fine and non-claim is the bar, averment of actual seisin is necessary. Story v. Ld. Windsor, 2 Atk. 630. S. C. 1 Ch. Ca. 34. PL. PLEA.

Petitioner denying notice at or before execution of the deeds is not sufficient, he must aver that he had none at or before the payment of the money. Id.

If a person purchase an estate which he sees has a defect upon the face of the deed, yet a fine will be a bar, for that defect is the very occasion of levying the fine. Secus, as to a purchase from a trustee to a mortgagee. Id.

A purchaser with notice himself from a person who bought without notice, may shelter himself under the first purchase. Louthier v. Carlton, 2 Atk. 242. S. C. Ca. temp. Talb. 186.

Where by a transaction foreign to the business in hand, a counsel or attorney employed to look over a title has notice, that shall not affect the purchaser. Id. PRIN. & AGENT.

Purchaser with notice of agreement to settle, held a trustee. Skirme v. Merrick, 2 Com. 700. AGREEMENT.

Where the real estate is in the hands of trustees, and the trustees convey it over without notice of the trust. If a bill is brought by the cestui que trust, the trustees must be made defendants. Harrison v. Frye, Barn. 324. PL. PARTY; TRUSTEE & CESTUI QUE TRUST.

Though a purchaser knew not of an incumbrance before he paid his money, yet if he knew it before the deed was executed, it affects him with notice. Wigg v. Wigg, 1 Atk. 384.

A purchaser for a valuable consideration, with notice of voluntary settlement from a person who bought without notice, shall shelter himself under the first purchaser, but he cannot defend himself in equity upon articles only. Brandlyn v. Ord, 1 Atk. 571. DEEDS, VOLUNTARY.

A devised an estate to B in tail, remainder to C in fee, bill by the heir in tail of B, for the deeds and possession; plea, a purchase without notice from C, for a valuable consideration, over-ruled; for where a man claims under a conveyance in which there is an estate tail prior to the estate he purchased, he is bound to see if that estate is spent. Kelsal v. Bennet, 1 Atk. 522.

Where a man purchases an estate, pays part, and gives bond to pay the residue of the money, notice of an equitable incumbrance before payment of the money, though after the bond, is sufficient. Tourville v. Naish, 3 P. W. 306.

A bankrupt, whose estate is in mortgage, conveys the equity of redemption to a third person after an act of bankruptcy, but before the commission and assignment; this shall not defeat the assignees: but where a bonâ fide purchaser for a valuable consideration, and without notice, has a contest with the assignees, this court will not take any advantage from him; therefore not compel a discovery. A commission issued is notice of the bankruptcy. Collet v. De Gols, Forbes, 65. BANKRY. ASSIGN. WHAT PASSES; BANKRY. NOTICE OF.

In a plea of a purchase, it is a sufficient denial of notice to say, that at the time of the purchase he had no notice, without saying, or at any time before. Jones v. Thomas, 3 P. W. 243. PL. PLEA.

To affect purchaser by notice to his counsel, it should be in the same transaction. Fitzgerald v. Fauconberge, Fitzgib. 207. PRIN. & AGENT.

A defendant in a plea of a purchase for valuable consideration, omits to deny notice; if the plaintiff replies to it, all the defendant has to do is to prove his purchase, and it is not material if the plaintiff proves notice, for it was the plaintiff's own fault that he did not set down the plea to be argued, in which case it would have been over-ruled. Harris v. Laidlaw, 3 P. W. 94. PR. PLA.

Mortgagee need not give notice of his mortgage to purchaser of estate. Osborne v. Lea, 9 Mod. 97. MORTGAGE.

Purchaser for valuable consideration without notice, shall not be impeached, especially where a settlement has been since made in his favour. Rochfort v. Nugent, 5 Bro. P. C. 351. SETTLE.

A defective surrender of copyhold land, for securing a sum of money, which was become void for want of being presented in due time, made good against a subsequent purchaser, with notice. Jennings v. Moore, 2 Vern. 609. COPYHOLD, DEFECTIVE SURRENDER.

A purchases a leasehold of an executor, having notice that a debt of the testator's was unpaid, and out of the purchase money has an allowance of a debt of 200*l.* due to him from the testator, and a debt of 500*l.* due to him from the executor, the remainder, being 150*l.*, was paid in money. This sale not good against an unsatisfied creditor. Crane v. Drake, 2 Vern. 616. DEBTOR & CRED.

A, having notice of incumbrance, purchases in name of B, and then agrees that B shall be the purchaser, who accordingly pays his money, without notice of incumbrance. Though B did not employ A, or know anything of purchase till after it was made, yet B, afterwards approving of it, made A his agent ab ini- tio, and is affected with notice. Blenkarn v. Jennings, 2 Bro. P. C. 278. PRIN. & AGENT.

Defective surrender of copyhold for securing a sum of money, which was become void by not being presented to in due time, made good against subsequent purchasers, with notice. Id. COPYHOLD, SURRENDER OF.

A voluntarily agrees to give certain houses to his niece and the heirs of her body, after the death of himself and his wife, in case they should have no issue; but no conveyance was executed by A, though he lived above twenty years afterwards. In the meantime, A becomes indebted by mortgage, judgment, &c. and by his will devises all his estate, both real and personal, to his wife. This agreement is not good against a purchaser for valuable consideration, although he had notice by being a subscribing witness to it. Parrell v. Pleydell, 1 Bro. P. C. 124. VOLUNTARY AGREEMENT.

One purchases, having notice of a settlement, whereby the vendor was but tenant for life, remainder to his first, &c. son in tail, and afterwards sells to one who had no notice. Tenant for life dies, leaving a son: decreed, the last purchaser shall hold the land, but the first shall account for the purchase money which he received, with interest from the death of the tenant for life. Ferrars v. Cherry, 2 Vern. 383.

The settlement was made after marriage, but in pursuance of articles before the marriage; but the articles are not taken notice of in the settlement; however, the purchaser having notice of the settlement, it was incumbent on him to inquire whether it was voluntary, or made in pursuance of an agreement before marriage. Id. ib.

A purchaser or mortgagee shall not protect himself by taking a conveyance from a trustee after notice of the trust, for by taking such conveyance, he becomes the trustee himself. Sanders v. Dehen, 2 Vern. 271. TRUST.

Court of equity cautions in impeaching a purchaser's title upon presumptive notice. Hitchcock v. Sedgwick, 2 Vern. 159. PRESUMPTIVE NOTICE.

An executor in trust for an infant residuary legatee, renews a lease, part of the testator's personal estate, in his own name, and having mortgaged it, assigns the equity of redemption to a trustee to sell, for payment of his own debts. The trustee sells to one who had notice of the infant's title. Purchase set aside. Whalley v. Whalley, 1 Vern. 484. TRUST.

A parol agreement for a purchase and possession delivered, decreed to be performed against a subsequent purchaser with notice, who had a conveyance and had paid his money. Butcher v. Butcher, 1 Vern. 363. AGREEMENT, PAROL.

A made a conveyance to B with power of revocation by will, and limited other uses. If A dispose to a purchaser by will, a subsequent purchaser is intended to have notice of the will, as well as of the power to revoke: and this is a notice in law: and so in all cases where a purchaser cannot make out a title but by a deed which leads to another fact, notice of which a purchaser shall be presumed cognizant; for it is crassa negligentia, that he sought not after it. Moor v. Bennet, 2 Ch. Ca. 246. NOTICE.

Purchaser or mortgagee coming in upon a valuable consideration without notice, and purchasing in a precedent incumbrance, it shall protect his estate against any mortgage subsequent to the first, though before the last mortgage; though he purchased in the incumbrance after he had notice of second mortgage. Marsh v. Lee, 2 Vent. 339.

Notice to bind a purchaser of lands given to charitable uses, must be certain, and a general notice is not sufficient; therefore where land is intended to be sold by act of parliament, and it is there declared that the land is chargeable with a charitable use, and afterwards the bill passes not, but is sold for money to one of the members who spoke upon the bill: Held, not sufficient notice within the statute. East Grinstead Case, Duke's Charit. Uses, 638. (Bridgman's edit.)

If A, having notice that lands were contracted to be sold to B, purchases those lands and takes a conveyance to his son and heirs, though the son had no notice of B's contract, yet the notice to his father shall affect him, Abney v. Kendal, 1 Ch. Ca. 38. So, if one who purchases for another, has notice of a dormant incumbrance, it shall affect the very purchaser. S. C.

XIV. APPLICATION OF PURCHASE MONEY.

Mortgagee or purchaser of land charged, from executor, is not generally bound to see to the disposition of the trust fund; but where in the transaction there is intrinsic evidence of breach of trust, and that the mortgagee or purchaser must have been aware of it, such land will still remain charged and liable. Watkins v. Cheek, 2 S. & S. 199

Where legacies were charged on the real estate of a trader, and his devisee and executor sold part of the real estates before the debts were paid: Held, that purchasers, notwithstanding the 47 Geo. 3. st. 2. c. 74. were liable to see to application of purchase money. Horn v. Horn, 2 S. & S. 448. STATUTES, CONSTRUCTION OF; TRADE.

Purchaser under decree bound to see directions of decree observed. Colclough v. Sterum, 3 Bl. 181. FR. DECREE.

Conveyance to a bona fide purchaser, under a decree against a feme covert for a sale of part of her separate estate, cannot, after an acquiescence of twenty-two years, be set aside, notwithstanding the purchase money may have been misapplied. An order, disposing of the real estate of a feme covert made on her consent, and acquiesced in during her life, will not be set aside on a doubtful case made many years afterwards by her representatives. Burke v. Crosbie, 1 Ball. & B. 489. FEME COVERT; LENGTH OF TIME.

Generally, a purchaser from an executor, not bound by his misapplication of the money, nor in many cases even of pledge, if free from fraud, or direct evidence on the face of the transaction of an intended misapplication. McLeod v. Drummond, 17 Ves. 154.

Objection to title by a purchaser, under a trust to sell, as bound to see to the application of the money in satisfaction of scheduled creditors and others, coming in within a limited time after the date of the deed or disabilities removed, overruled, upon the tenor of the deed implying that the receipt of the trustees should be a discharge. Balfour v. Welland, 16 Ves. 151. TITLE.

The doctrine as to binding a purchaser to see to the application of the money by trustees, has been extended further than any sound equitable principle will warrant. Id. 156.

A purchaser under a decree, not affected by irregularities and defects in the decree, by which the application of the money may not have been properly secured. Curtis v. Price, 12 Ves. 89. DECREE.

Whether the rule, that where there is a general charge of debts not scheduled, a purchaser is not to see to the application, holds where the purchase is not from the original trustees, but from others to whom they conveyed: quære? An objection upon the distinction was overruled upon circumstances. Braybroke v. Inskip, 8 Ves. 417.

Charge or direction by deed, for payment of debts generally, followed by specific dispositions; the purchaser is not bound to see to application of purchase money. Jenkins v. Hiles, 6 Ves. 654. note.

Where the purchase money is to be laid out again by the trustees generally, the purchaser need not look to the application. Doran v. Wiltshire, 3 Swan. 699.

Where the first trust is for payment of debts, the purchaser is not bound to look to the application of purchase money. Williamson v. Curtis, 3 Bro. C. C. 96.

A purchaser of leasehold premises from an executor, need not (in general) see to the application of the purchase money, nor need there be any recital in such an assignment of the purpose for which it is sold; but if, on the face of the assignment, it appears to have been made in satisfaction of the private debt of the executor, such a sale is fraudulent against the persons interested in the premises under the will, and a court of equity will relieve against it. But such a claim will be barred by a great length of time having run against the parties seeking relief. Bonney v. Ridgard, 1 Cox, 145. LENGTH OF TIME.

Where land is directed by will to be sold generally, and the money to form part of the personal estate, the purchaser is not bound to see to the application of the money. Smith v. Guyon, 1 Bro. C. C. 186.

Where an estate is charged with debts generally, in case of a sale before suit, the purchaser is not bound to see to the application of the purchase money; but if he buys after bill filed, he is. Walker v. Smallwood, Ambl. 677.

Devise of real estate to trustee to sell and pay debts and legacies generally; trustees sell and embezzle part of the money; the purchasers not liable to the debts. An estate charged with debts not liable in hands of purchaser, unless debts specified; no more than estate devised to be sold. Rogers v. Skillicorne, Ambl. 188. TRUST.

Where a term is devised away by will, a purchaser of and from the executor is not bound to see whether it was necessary to sell the term for payment of the debts. Langley v. El. Oxford, Ambl. 797.

Purchaser or mortgagee under a decree, for sale or mortgage, and payment of creditors, answerable for the application of the money, if not paid into court. So also, if the debts are specified in a schedule, &c. by the will. Lloyd v. Baldwin, 1 Ves. 173.

If lands are devised for payment of debts in a schedule, purchaser is bound to see to application of purchase money; but if trust be general to pay debts, though he has notice of them, he is not so bound. Abbott v. Gibbs, 1 Eq. Ab. 358.

Where lands are vested in trustees by act of parliament, to be mortgaged for a particular purpose, it is incumbent on the mortgagee to see the money applied accordingly. Catterel v. Hampson, 2 Vern. 6.

Where lands are to be sold for payment of particular debts, the purchaser must take care to see his purchase money rightly applied; but if more is sold than is sufficient to pay the debts, that shall not turn to the prejudice of the purchaser. Spalding v. Shalmer, 1 Vern. 301.

Where a deed of trust is for payment of debts in general, a purchaser is not affected with any misapplication of the money: otherwise, where it is for payment of debts particularly specified. Dunck v. Kent, 1 Vern. 260.

Where lands are appointed for payment of debts, though there results a trust to the heir, the purchaser is not concerned whether the personal estate was sufficient to pay the same, or whether too much was sold, or the creditors paid; for he having paid his money, shall hold against the heir and creditors, and they must seek their remedy against the trustee empowered to sell. Culpepper v. Aston, 2 Ch. Ca. 115.

Heir of purchaser in possession of the land, charged with payment of purchase money unpaid. Cary, 25.

VERDICT, AND JUDGMENT AT LAW.

A party against whom a verdict has been obtained at law, must pay money recovered into court, before he can entitle himself to an injunction to stay execution, though he has since obtained a rule requiring plaintiff to shew cause against a new trial. Austin v. Thomson, 11 Price, 1. Pr. PAYMENT INTO COURT; Pr. INJUNCTION.

After a verdict at law, a bill, with proper charges, may be sustained for the discovery of documents necessary to a fair decision. Field v. Beaumont, 1 Swan. 209. PL. DISCOVERY, BILL OF.

Whether after a verdict at law, in an action of trespass, the court will grant an injunction against future trespasses, in favour of parties, who refused at the trial to produce documents necessary to a fair decision; quære? Id. 210. INJUNCTION AGST. TRESPASS; Pr. PRODUCTION OF DEEDS, &c.

Bill by one claiming to be son and heir of a deceased tenant in tail, alleging that the father had suffered a recovery, and declared the uses to himself and a trustee in fee, and that plaintiff had brought a writ of right, but defendant had the title deeds, and intended to set up the legal estate in the trustee. Defendant pleaded judgment in the writ of right, and averred that the title in the trustee had not been given in evidence. Plea allowed. Sidney v. Perry, Mitf. Pl. 207.

Mistake in verdict relieved against. Graves v. Stritho, Dick. 469.

Plea of a foreign sentence in a commissary court of France (which is a court of a political nature), relating to some matters for which the bill was brought. Ordered to stand for an answer, with leave to except. Gage v. Bulkeley, 3 Atk. 215. Vide S. C. on hearing 2 Ves. 556. nom. Gage v. Stafford. A sentence of a foreign court may be a proper defence by way of plea, but the court pronouncing the sentence must at least have full jurisdiction to determine the rights of the parties. Mitf. Pl. 208. And see Bluet v. Pumpfield, 1 Ch. Ca. 237. where a bill to be relieved against actions for breaking an inhibition of the king of Denmark, was dismissed, on the ground that sentence had been given in the court there. So, where after a decision in a court of competent jurisdiction in Demerara, a bill was filed in chancery alleging fraud, but those allegations being denied, the court refused to interfere. White v. Hall, 12 Ves. 321. And in Barrow v. Jaminet, Mos. 1. Sel. Ca. Ch. 69. 1 Dick. 48, a sentence by a court of competent jurisdiction at Leghorn was considered as conclusive.

The cases in which equity will relieve against verdicts, are where plaintiff knew the fact of his own knowledge to be otherwise than what the jury found, and defendant was ignorant of it at the trial. Where a defendant submits to try it at law first, when he might by bill of discovery have come at the fact from plaintiff's answer on oath, before such trial was had, the court will not always relieve against a verdict. Allowing the damages to be excessive, defendant at law ought to have applied to the court where the cause was tried, and moved for a new trial on that account. Williams v. Lee, 3 Atk. 224.

To a bill to be relieved against bonds, defendant put in an answer, and also pleaded a nonsuit in an action of trover brought for the bonds. Plea allowed, but plaintiff permitted to proceed on the answer. Wilcar v. Sturt, 1 Vern. 77.

Bill to be relieved against a bond, and judgment thereon, suggesting that same was irregularly obtained. Defendant pleaded the judgment, and demurred, for that the validity of the judgment was examinable only in the court where it was pronounced. Plea and demurrer allowed. Huddleston v. Ashugg, Finch, 204.

To a bill to establish a modus, defendant pleaded a verdict and judgment in an action of debt under the statute, for not setting out tithes. Plea allowed. Bluck v. Elliot, Finch, 13. That a verdict and judgment in law may be pleaded in bar to a bill seeking relief, see Pitt v. Broadway, id. 70, where to a bill for discovery of title, and perpetuating testimony of witnesses, defendant pleaded two verdicts and judgment in ejectment, obtained by his father. So Hellam v. Grave, id. 265.

So in Cornell v. Ward, id. 239, defendant pleaded (amongst other things) a verdict and judgment, and affirmation thereof on a writ of error. So in Temple v. Bultinglass, id. 275; where to a bill to supply a defective execution of a power to make leases, defendant pleaded a special verdict and judgment, under which the leases made under the power were declared void.

Bill to be relieved against an action. Defendant pleaded a verdict and judgment. Plaintiff, on petition, got an order that the bill should be taken as filed before the trial, and the plea set aside, with leave for defendant to plead, answer, or demur de novo. Defendant pleaded the same matter again, and that he had no notice of the bill, nor was served with process until after the verdict, yet ordered to answer. Anon. 3 Ch. Rep. 25.

After verdict in an action, a bill was filed, suggesting matter in defendant's knowledge, which plaintiff could not prove at the trial. Plea of verdict allowed. Seael v. Freeston, 1 Ch. Ca. 65. And that a verdict may be pleaded to a bill to set the verdict aside, vide etiam Lee v. Bowles, 2 Ch. Ca. 95. Shuten v. Gilbard, id. 250. Armsted v. Parker, Finch, 171.

VESTED INTERESTS.

VEXATION.

Reference directed to ascertain if separate answers all to same effect, by defendant's having same interests, was vexatious. Fanshau v. Moore, 2 S. & S. 509. SEPARATE ANSWERS.

Plaintiff filing bill, and after answer amending bill, so as to make case quite reverse, ordered that he pay costs of original bill, and parts of answer set forth by reason of that bill, and costs of the motions as a vexatious proceeding. Mavour v. Fry, 2 S. & S. 113. AMENDMENT; COSTS.

Bill for specific performance of agreement to take lease, and action for rent of occupation, not allowed at same time. On motion, court will order rent to be paid. Carrick v. Young, 4 Mad. 437. Pr. STAYING PROCEEDINGS AT LAW.

Mortgagee on bill to redeem, insisted heir at law was living. Master twice reported him dead, and exceptions were twice taken thereto, and issue at law was directed, by which he was also found to be dead. Mortgagee not to pay costs of issue, as it was not vexatious, so long as court thought necessary to direct issue. Wilson v. Metcalf, 3 Mad. 45. MORTGAGEE & MORTGEE; COSTS; ISSUE AT LAW.

Proceedings stayed until costs of former suit by same party suing in forma pauperis, in cases only of great vexation. Wild v. Hobson, 2 V. & B. 112. STAYING PROCES; COSTS; PAUPER.

Jurisdiction by injunction upon a ground of vexation by repeated actions for breach of covenant. Waters v. Taylor, 2 V. & B. 302. JURISDIC; INJUNC.

Though a bankrupt would be restrained from repeated attempts to supersede the commission, amounting to vexation, he was not prevented from bringing a second action; but pending that action, and on inquiry directed relative to an estate, by the sale of which he proposed to pay his debts, the commission was ordered to proceed in the usual course. Ex parte Bryant, 1 V. & B. 506. S. C. 2 Rose, 1. BANKCY. SUPERSEDING COMMISSION.

A bill for the specific performance of an agreement after an action at law had failed, not vexatious; and so vice versa. M'Namara v. Arthur, 2 Ball & B. 353.

Where litigation is vexatious, full costs should be given; aliter where a fair question has been raised for the opinion of court. O'Donel v. Brown, 1 Ball & B. 264. PR. COSTS.

Bill of heir at law against devisee, where vexatious, dismissed with costs. Seal v. Brounton, 3 Bro. C. C. 214. HEIR AT LAW; COSTS.

Where the defendant disclaims, the party is not to reply; if he does, and serves the defendant with a subpoena to rejoin, the defendant may have costs against him for the vexation; otherwise where the disclaimer is to part and answer to another part of the bill. Williams v. Longfellow, 3 Atk. 582. PR. COSTS.

Plaintiff's father died intestate, the mother administered; forty years after the father's death, the son, who had accepted a legacy under the mother's will equal to two thirds of what his father left, brings a bill against the mother's executor to account for the father's personal estate, come to her hands. Bill dismissed with costs to deter others from such frivolous suits. Huet v. Fletcher, 1 Atk. 467.

After two trials at law by direction of the court of chancery, and both verdicts the same way; equity will grant a perpetual injunction, and decree upon the right found by the verdict. Leighton v. Leighton, 4 Bro. P. C. 378. PERPETUAL INJUNC.

After five several trials at bar, and the verdicts all the same way, the court of chancery will grant a perpetual injunction to restrain all further proceedings at law by the litigant parties, or any claiming under them, upon the same title. El. of Bath v. Sherwin, 4 Bro. P. C. 373. PERPETUAL INJUNC.

See AGREEMENT, XI. 4.—DEEDS, III.

The irregularity of a sequestration is waived, if the party against whom it is issued gives the sequestrators directions how to deal with his property. Const v. Burr, 2 Russ. 161. PR. SEQUESTRATION.

An answer, however evasive, will not be ordered to be taken off the file after the plaintiff has excepted to it. Glassington v. Thwaites, 2 Russ. 458. PR. ANSWER, EVASIVE; PR. TAKING PLEADINGS OFF FILE.

A party cannot refer for impertinence an affidavit filed in support of a motion, if, after that affidavit was filed, he has filed any affidavit in opposition to the motion. Keeling v. Hoskins, 2 Russ. 319. PR. REF. FOR IMPERTINENCE.

An order referring a defendant's examination for impertinence, cannot be obtained as of course, if the plaintiff has proceeded on examination. Johnstone v. Urs, 2 S. & S. 578. ORDER OF REFERENCE OF IMPERTINENCE OF EXAMINATION.

Treaty and negotiations for a variation of the terms of a contract will not amount to a waiver, unless the circumstances shew that it was the intention of the parties that there should be an absolute abandonment and dissolution of the contract. Robinson v. Page, 3 Russ. 114.

A purchaser of a share in a co-partnership business, does not waive objections to the title by taking possession of the property and acting as a partner, when the contract stipulates that a good title shall be made by a specified future day, and it appears to have been the intention of the parties, that the purchaser should immediately, and before the day, have the possession. Sterens v. Guppy, 3 Russ. 171. VEND. & PURCH.

Exceptions to answer, containing in substance, but not verbatim, the interrogatories not answered, overruled. But if defendant has submitted to answer, and his further answer is referred back, he is too late to object to exception. Hodgson v. Butterfield, 2 S. & S. 236. EXCEPTIONS TO ANSWER.

If person named defendant, but who has never been served with subpoena, or appeared to bill, appears by counsel, and consents to be bound by decree, the defect is cured. Capel v. Butler, 2 S. & S. 457. PL. PARTIES.

Where from construction of will, executor, who was residuary legatee, had power to release debtor of testator, and he waived the debt by writings, but did not formally release; executor of executor might, it seems, withhold annuity given in consideration of whole debt being paid. Hemming v. Gurrey, 2 S. & S. 311. WILL, C. O.

Where motion would have the effect of raising exceptions to answer, the court will not qualify their order by making it without prejudice to exceptions being taken. Phillips v. Stephenson, 11 Price, 733. PR. MOTION; EXCEPTIONS TO ANSWER.

Admission by the bankrupt of the receipt of the copy of a petition to stay his certificate, not a waiver of personal service. Exp. Furnival, 1 G. & J. 254. BANKCY., SERVICE OF PETITION TO STAY CERTIFICATE.

The principle of waiver applies to irregularity only, and not to erroneous acts. Levi v. Ward, 1 S. & S. 334.

If a bill and cross bill be filed, the plaintiff in the original bill has a right to the first answer, and may move to stay proceedings in the cross cause till the original bill is answered, though the plaintiff in the cross bill may be in a situation to enforce an answer first. The right of the plaintiff in the original bill to make the motion, was held not to have been waived, by his having taken out the common orders for time to answer the cross bill. Harris v. Harris, 1 Turn. & R. 165. PR. ORDER FOR TIME TO ANSWER; PR. CROSS BILL; PR. ANSWER.

Contempt, for want of answer, may after answer is filed, be discharged by waiver on the part of plaintiff. Hoskins v. Lloyd, 1 S. & S. 393. CONTEMPT; PR. ANSWER.

Filing affidavits in answer is a waiver of the objection to the affidavits in support of the petition, that they were filed before the petition was presented. Exp. Gilpin, 1 G. & J. 183. BANKCY. AFFIDAVITS IN SUPPORT OF PETITION.

Defendant being in contempt for want of answer, puts in one and obtains order for discharge, upon payment or tender of costs of contempt. Costs tendered but not accepted. Answer excepted to and referred, and after warrants to proceed before master, defendant submits to exceptions; plaintiff did not proceed immediately on former contempt, but waited for answer to exceptions: Held, defendant entitled to order for time to answer exceptions. Cor v. Champneys, 6 Mad. 262. CONTEMPT; PR. EXCEPTIONS; PR. TIME TO ANSWER EXCEPTIONS.

Injunction to restrain the breach of a covenant, that buildings shall be erected upon a general plan, refused; the covenantee having acquiesced in a partial deviation from the plan, and not having made immediately application to the court. Roper v. Williams, 1 Turn. & R. 118. INJUNC.; LACHES; COVENANT; BREACH OF.

A landlord who relaxes in favour of some of his tenants, a covenant entered into for the benefit of all, is not entitled to an injunction to restrain the other tenants from infringing that covenant. Id. ib.

Irregularity of subpoena to hear judgment waived, by appearing on a motion to advance the cause, and not then taking the objection. Carvick v. Young, 1 Jac. 524. PR. SUBPENA TO HEAR JUDGMENT.

If in an ecclesiastical court, a party is cited as resident within the jurisdiction, and appears and pleads without objection, he cannot afterwards put that fact in issue. And in such case an intervenor is not at liberty to raise an objection to the jurisdiction on that ground. Chichester v. Donegal, 6 Mad. 375. JURISDICTION OF ECCLESIASTICAL COURT; PL. PLEA TO JURISDICTION.

Court refused (with costs), to order interrogatories to be suppressed, however impertinent, if witnesses have answered them; they should demur; answering them waives the impertinence. Jefferies v. Whittuck, 9 Pri. 486. PR. IMPERTINENCE; PR. INTERROGATORIES TO WITNESS.

Exceptions not signed by counsel taken off the file, though the defendant had taken an office copy of them, and the plaintiff had obtained an order of reference. Yates v. Hardy, 1 Jac. 223. PR. EXCEPTIONS TO ANSWER; PR. SIGNATURE OF COUNSEL.

If in creditor's suit, plaintiff does not call for contribution, according to decree, before creditors are admitted to prove, he waives all claims to contribution. Shortley v. Selby, 5 Mad. 447. CRED. & DEBTOR; CONTRIBUTION.

If a purchaser after the delivery of the contract, on the face of which, part of the estate appears to be subject to a right of sporting, not mentioned in the particulars of sale, enters into possession, he waives that objection. Burnell v. Brown, 1 Jac. & W. 168. VENDOR & PURCH.

Objection to appointment of arbitrator waived by attending him. Harcourt v. Ramsbottom, 1 Jac. & W. 511. ARBITRATION.

Affidavits in support of petition, filed after petition day, cannot be read (a); but if party knowing of irregularity answers them, the objection is waived (b); but secus, if he did not know of it (c). The petition however is generally permitted to stand over till next petition day, that respondent might answer the affidavit, the petitioners paying costs of the day (a). (a) Exp. Peel, Buck, 394.—(b) Exp. Bury, id. 393.—(c) Exp. Smith, 395. BANKCY. PETITION, AFFIDAVITS IN SUPPORT, WHEN FILED.

Where bill prays relief against all defendants but one, against whom it only prays discovery, he cannot after answer obtain order for his costs; such order discharged. Att. Gen. v. Burch, 4 Mad. 178. PR. COSTS; PL. DISCOVERY.

Plaintiff moving as of course to amend bill after exceptions to answer, waives them; he must move specially for leave without prejudice. De la Torre v. Bernales, 4 Mad. 396. PR. EXCEPTIONS; PR. AMENDMENT.

Proof under a commission is equivalent to payment; therefore when solicitors had obtained an order to have their bill taxed, and to prove for the amount, it was held that they had relinquished their lien upon the papers in their hands belonging to the bankrupt. Exp. Hornby, Buck, 351. BANKCY. LIEN; BANKCY. PROOF IN.

A party against whom a commission of bankruptcy has been maliciously obtained, and to whom, after superseding the commission, the Ld. Chancellor had assigned the petitioning creditor's bond, having afterwards brought an action on the case against the petitioning creditor, and a rule of court having been made by consent, referring the matters in dispute, except the bond assigned, to the award of an arbitrator, and an award having been made with an exception of the bond, an action cannot be maintained on the bond. An action on the case is a waiver of a right of action on the bond, and to restrain that right; the agreement of the parties must be unequivocal. Holmes v. Wainwright, 2 Swan. 20. ACTION; BANKCY. ASSIGN. OF PET. CRED.'S BOND.

By the order directing a party to be examined as a witness on the trial of an issue, no objection is waived except that which arises from his being a party in the cause. Rogerson v. Whittington, 1 Swan. 39. PR. EXAMINATION OF PARTY TO CAUSE.

Objections for want of parties removed by acts of defendants. Blackburn v. Jepson, 3 Swan. 139. PL. PARTIES.

A testator having directed his trustees and executors, after sale of his estates, to stand possessed of the money arising from the sales upon trust, in the first place, to invest 400*l.* in trust for his wife for life in bar of dower, and after her death for W C; and upon farther trust, out of the residue of the money, to invest 400*l.* in trust for J R for life, and after his death for his children; and upon farther trust to pay other sums to persons named; and having bequeathed the residue of his estate to W C, and the only acting executor having made no investment on the trusts of the will, but having paid interest on the two sums of 400*l.* to the respective legatees, and applied the assets to his own use, and afterwards become bankrupt; it was held, that by that dealing the two legatees had waived whatever priority the will might have given to them, and the dividends payable on the whole sum proved under the commission against the executor in respect of the testator's estate were divided among the pecuniary legatees and the residuary legatee, in the proportion of the amount of their legacies, and of the residue, as it was computed at the death of the testator, with interest on each. Exp. Chadwin, 3 Swan. 380. BANKCY.; EXOR.; PRIORITY OF SECURITY.

*Presumption that objections to competence have been waived, where it is not clear that at the time of the examination the objection was unknown. Vaughan v. Worral, 2 Swan. 400. PR. EVID.; WITNESS, COMPETENCY OF.

Time may be made the essence of contract, but may be waived by conduct. Hudson v. Bartram, 3 Mad. 440. TIME; CONTRACT.

Subpoena served on defendant at house in London, but he resided in the country. Attachment issued, and he appeared: Held, appearance waived irregularly, and that it made it a town cause. Order obtained for six weeks' time to answer, was, therefore, discharged with costs as being irregular. Bound v. Wells, 3 Mad. 434. PR. APPEARANCE; PR. PROCESS, IRREGULARITY OF; PR. TOWN CAUSE; PR. TIME TO ANSWER.

Though a bankrupt applies to the court to have a petition to stay his certificate advanced, yet that is not a waiver of his right to be personally served before the petition day. Exp. Groomer, 1 Buck. 39. BANKCY. PETITION TO STAY CERTIFICATE, SERVICE OF.

Vendor being in possession for upwards of fifty years, and purchaser having done acts inconsistent with notion of his being the owner, specific performance of agreement to sell, refused as amounting to waiver. El. Rose v. Sterling, 4 Dow. 442. SPEC. PERF.; VEND. & PURCH.

No rule of convenience fixing any period within which a creditor of a banking-house not making his demand on the surviving partners, is held to have waived his equity against the estate of the deceased partner. Devaynes v. Noble, 1 Mer. 569.

When defendant is in custody for contempt in not putting in answer, and he puts one in which plaintiff accepts, plaintiff cannot, under process of contempt, recover costs; and, semble, he loses them. Const v. Elers, 1 Mad. 530. COSTS; CONTEMPT.

Waiver of irregularity by examining before the master without a previous state of facts. Willan v. Willan, 19 Ves. 590. S.C. Coop. 291. See 2 Dow. P. Rep. 274. PR. STATE OF FACTS; PR. EXAMINATION.

Petition for a re-hearing ordered to be taken off the file, on the ground of its making a different case from that on which the decree was pronounced. Qu. Whether, by consenting to an order consequential on a decree, the party so consenting, precludes himself from the right of appeal? Wood v. Griffith, 1 Mer. 35. PL. PETITION OF RE-HEARING.

In equity, objection to the competence of a witness, is not waived by cross-examination. Moorhouse v. De Passion, 19 Ves. 433. S.C. Coop. 300. WITNESS, COMPETENCY OF; PR. CROSS-EXAMINATION.

The right to process, under an undertaking for a serjeant at arms, &c. immediately on exceptions to the report of an insufficient answer disallowed, is waived by plaintiff's taking out a subpoena for a better answer, and excepting to the report entitling defendant to eight days after the exceptions are disposed of. Algar v. Regent's Canal Company, 19 Ves. 379. S.C. Coop. 221. PR. PROCESS; SERJEANT AT ARMS; PR. EXCEPTIONS TO REPORT; PR. ANSWER, INSUFFICIENCY OF.

Vendor held not to have waived his lien on the estate sold, by taking the promissory note of the vendee, and receiving its amount by discount. Exp. Joaring, 2 Rose, 79. LIEN; VENDOR & PURCH.

Specialty security not waived by a promissory note, taken for the balance of the account of interest. Curtis v. Rush, 2 V. & B. 416. SECURITY.

Plea of matter of record, with averments of matter in pais, must be filed upon oath, therefore plea of the statute 32 Hen. 8. c. 9. against selling pretended titles, with the necessary averments of want of possession, &c. not being on oath, ordered to be taken off the file, though set down by the plaintiff for argument; this irregularity not admitting waiver. Wall v. Stubbs, 2 V. & B. 354. CHAMPERTY.

By accepting answer, immediate right of costs under process of contempt are waived. Smith v. Blofield, 2 V. & B. 100. CONTEMPT; COSTS.

Where in a plea of purchase for valuable consideration the purchaser omitted to deny notice, and the plaintiff replied to it instead of setting it down for argument, if the defendant prove what he has pleaded, the bill as against him must be dismissed with costs. Fyfe v. Dolphin, 2 Ball & B. 302. PL. PLEA OF PURCHASE.

So of an answer to that effect, unless fraud proved. Id. 303.

Vendor's lien on the estate for the purchase money not discharged by taking bills of exchange which are to be considered, not as a security, but as a mode of payment. Grant v. Mills, 2 V. & B. 306. LIEN; BILL OF EXCHANGE; VENDOR AND PURCH.

After answer reported insufficient, plaintiff may proceed with old process if he has not accepted costs. Coulson v. Graham, 1 V. & B. 331. ANSWER, INSUFFICIENCY OF; PR. PROCESS; PR. COSTS.

Covenant not to assign without licence once dispensed with, the condition is gone, both in law and equity, but the principle questionable, and not to be extended, for instance, to a mere act where the licence is to be in writing. Macher v. Foundling Hosp., 1 V. & B. 191. LANDLORD & TEN.; COVENANT, BREACH OF.

Defendant in contempt putting in answer to which exceptions were allowed, plaintiff not accepting costs may go on with old process. But if in custody, old process is discharged pending reference, by a tender of costs. Boehm v. De Tastet, 1 V. & B. 324. PR. ANSWER, INSUFFICIENCY OF; PR. PROCESS; PR. COSTS.

Time, as of the essence of the contract, waived by a protracted treaty. Wood v. Bernal, 19 Ves. 220. VEND. & PURCH.: TIME.

Contract for sale of an existing and reversionary lease not specifically performed without a production of the title of the lessors. The objection not waived by a premature conditional approbation of the title by the purchaser's counsel; but the expence incurred in making out the title before this objection was taken, repaid. Deverell v. Id. Bolton, 18 Ves. 505. SPEC. PERF.; TITLE.

To permit a tenant to remain in possession and expend his money in building with the knowledge of the landlord after an eviction for non-payment of rent, is a waiver of the forfeiture under the ejectment statutes. Acceptance of rent with notice of forfeiture is a waiver thereof at law. Hume v. Kent, 1 Ball & B. 554, 561. LANDLORD & TEN.

Though a parol waiver of a written contract amounting to a complete abandonment, and clearly proved, would bar a specific performance, or even parol variations so acted upon that the original agreement could no longer be enforced without injury to one party; variations verbally agreed upon are not sufficient to prevent the execution of a written agreement, the situation of the parties in all other respects remaining the same. In this case the variations were all for the advantage of the defendant by gratuitous covenants of the plaintiff. Price v. Dyer, 17 Ves. 356. SPEC. PERF.

Where a party rests satisfied with an agreement and for some time treats it as fair, it is most material to ascertain the time he first impeaches it; for although he may be entitled to relief if applied for in due time, by his delay he may lose it. Murray v. O'Dea, 1 Ball & B. 118. FRAUDULENT AGREEMENT.

Though generally a party cannot be heard until he has declared his contempt, a step taken by the other party waives the contempt for all purposes except the right to costs in the cause, not to be obtained by process of contempt for the purpose of enabling the defendant to dismiss the bill for want of prosecution. Anon. 15 Ves. 174. PR. BILL, DISMISSAL OF; PR. CONTEMPT, WAIVER OF; PR. ANSWER.

Proviso in a lease for re-entry upon assignment by the lessee, his executors, administrators, or assignees without licence, ceases by assignment with licence, though to a particular individual. Brummell v. Macpherson, 14 Ves. 173. COVENANT AGAINST ASSIGNMENT.

Possession taken generally amounts to a waiver even of objections to title. Fludger v. Cocker, 12 Ves. 27. VEND. & PURCH.

To prevent decree pro confesso, defendant should have not only the answer on file, but also a receipt for costs. The answer being actually filed without payment or tender of costs, the defendant was remanded to give an opportunity of moving to take it off the file for irregularity, but plaintiff having taken an office copy of answer that course failed. Sidgier v. Tyle, 11 Ves. 202. PR. DECREE PRO CONFESSO; PR. COSTS; PR. ANSWER.

Where, by the terms of an auction, the sale is to be completed by a certain day; yet, if neither party takes any step to quicken the other, till it becomes impossible to execute the agreement by the day fixed, the time is waived, and equity will interfere to prevent the purchaser taking advantage of it at law. Jones v. Price, 3 Anst. 924. VEND. & PURCH.; TIME.

In a bill for the single value of tithes, it is not necessary expressly to waive the treble value. Wools v. Walley, 1 Anst. 100. TITHES; PL. BILL.

A mortgagee takes a bond from the assignee of the devisee, for the arrears of interest then due, and gives a receipt; the bond is unpaid; the interest is still secured by the mortgage. Hardwick v. Mynd, 1 Anst. 111. MORTGAGE & MORTGEE; BOND.

A conditional consent to proceed at law, waives an injunction. Grant v. Priddell, 1 Anst. 62. INJUNCTION.

A waiver of irregularity in process by appearance, does not relate back, so as to bring the defendant into contempt for not appearing in time. Robinson v. Nash, 1 Anst. 76. PR. APPEARANCE; PR. CONTEMPT.

Where there is an old endowment of a vicarage, but the modern usage varies from it, there is ground to presume, that the variance has arisen from the act of persons competent to make it. The endowment is not therefore conclusive evidence in favour of the vicar, but his right is properly triable at law. Carr v. Henton, 7 Bro. P. C. 100. TITHES.

It is no answer on exceptions, that the defendant is a mere witness, and ought not to have been made a party; for, having submitted to answer, he must answer fully. Cookson v. Ellison, 2 Bro. C. C. 252. PL. PARTY; WITNESS; EXCEPTIONS TO ANSWER.

Plaintiff having referred a plea for impertinence, afterwards set the plea down for argument; this is a waiver of the reference for impertinence, notwithstanding the defendant had attended the master upon it. Dixon v. Olmius, 1 Cox, 412. PR. PLEA; IMPERTINENCE.

An admission of assets, by the executor's answer, is waived by the plaintiff's going on to an account of assets, and procuring a receiver to be appointed. Wall v. Bushby, 1 Bro. C. C. 484. ADMISSION OF ASSETS.

Filing a cross bill prevents any objection to the jurisdiction. Burgess v. Wheate, 1 Eden. 190. JURISDICTION.

Agreement in writing may be revoked or waived by parol. Inge v. Lippingwell, Dick. 469.

Order to dismiss for want of prosecution, if plaintiff desires time, and promises to pay costs, though dismissal be irregular, yet objection is thereby waived. Hall v. Chapman, Dick. 349.

B purchases copyhold of lord for lives; lord makes lease of freehold of soil to A, reserving rent, and afterwards levies fine of manor to B, who accepts rent from A; qu. is B's copyhold gone? Compton v. Brent, 1 Dyer, 30. pl. 207. Id. Cary, 6.

No appearance or answer will give a jurisdiction to a limited court. Green v. Rutherford, 1 Ves. 471. Peun v. Baltimore, 1 Ves. 446. JURISDICTION.

Where the injunction was issued irregularly, held defendant had not waived objection to the irregularity by asking for time to answer. Travers v. Stafford, Ambler. 105. S. C. 2 Ves. 19. PR. INJUNCTION; PR. TIME TO ANSWER; WAIVER.

Where bond creditors acquiescing in sale of lands, charged by will of debtor with their debts, and for sixteen years receive interest regularly, they shall not disturb purchaser. Elliot v. Merriam, 2 Atk. 41. S. C. Barn. 78. SPECIALTY CREDS.; BOND CREDS.;

If the defendant puts in his answer, and then moves to dissolve the injunction, this waives an irregularity in obtaining it. Davile v. Peacock, Barn. 27. PR. INJUNCTION, IRREGULARITY IN OBTAINING.

An irregularity in process may be cured by the defendant's appearance. Floyde v. Nangle, 3 Atk. 569. PR. APPEARANCE.

But not if the appearance is entered just before the long vacation, for the purpose merely of avoiding an attachment. Anon. 3 Atk. 557. PR. APPEARANCE.

After a bond debt is turned into a judgment, the creditor cannot in the life time of the ancestor bring any action on the bond, nor against the heir, for it is entirely extinct; but he still obtains a great advantage, as the judgment binds the land, and gives him the preference to all other creditors. Stillman v. Ashdown, 2 Atk. 609. JUDGMENT, CRED.

A judgment creditor is not bound to wait till he is paid out of the rents, for the court will accelerate the payment by directing a sale. S. C.

Where on plea of former decree plaintiff sets down cause, he waives his right of reference to master as to such decree. Morgan v. Morgan, 1 Atk. 53. PR. PLEA OF FORMER DECREE, REFERENCE TO MASTER.

A written agreement can only be waived by written waiver, it seems; but strong proof of parol waiver would at least be required. Buckhouse v. Crosby, 2 Eq. Ab. 33.

One, by articles previous to his marriage, covenants, in consideration of 3500*l.* portion, and of his intended wife's conveying her lands to him and his heirs when she came of age, to settle certain lands of his own in jointure. Neither the wife nor her trustees executed the articles. After marriage, the husband settles his lands, mentioned in the articles, and recites the settlement to be in performance of the articles, and in consideration of the marriage, and for a provision for the wife, (to bar her of dower), and their issue; but never requires her to convey her lands to him. The wife is a party to, and executes this settlement. After the husband's death, she enters on the settled lands. This settlement is a waiver by the husband, of the proposed conveyance by the wife, and she shall hold as well her own estate, as also the lands settled. Lucy v. Moore, 4 Bro. P. C. 343. MARRIAGE ARTICLES; INFANT.

After the defendant has answered the bill, he cannot refer it for scandal. Abergaremy v. Abergaremy, 2 P. W. 311, sed quare. PR. REF. FOR SCANDAL.

The lord of a manor entered into an agreement with his copyhold tenants, for inclosing part of a common, and to effectuate this agreement, the tenants consented to the inclosure, and released their right of common in the ground to be inclosed; and the lord, on the other hand, released each particular tenant from all quit-rent and other services. The inclosure, by various accidents, was prevented from taking effect, and therefore, the tenants continued to enjoy their right of common, pay their quit-rents, and do suit and service at the lord's courts, as before: held, that this agreement was mutually waived. Lanesborough v. Ockshott, 1 Bro. P. C. 151. AGREEMENT.

Bringing debt upon a judgment, is no waiver of lien created by that judgment. Erby v. Erby, 1 Salk. 80. LIEN.

Prohibition lies not to an inferior court after the defendant has pleaded there, for by pleading the defendant submits to the jurisdiction. But at the suit of the king prohibition lies, though the defendant has pleaded; but if a prohibition has been granted, the court will grant a supersedeas if there is an affidavit that the cause arose within the jurisdiction. Anon.

Reversioner of leasehold renewed the lease in his own name, and covenanted to repair, with privity of tenant for life: held, he was to be considered as having entered into the covenant on behalf of the tenant for life, and that latter's estate was liable, for dilapi-dations occasioned by his neglect to repair. Marsh v. Wells, 2 S. & S. 87. TENANT FOR LIFE, & REMAN. MAN.

Analogy between bill of interpleader and to restrain waste. Martinius v. Holmuth, cited in Stevenson v. Anderson, 2 V. & B. 212. note (j), 2d edit. INTERPLEADER.

Residue bequeathed in trust to be laid out in real estates, to be settled to the same uses as estates devised to the trustees for life successively, without impeachment of waste, with various limitations, in strict settlement, all the estates for life being without impeachment of waste, and the ultimate remainder in fee; the trustees laid out part of the fund in an estate, with a considerable quantity of timber upon it, taking that to be a sound exercise of discretion, the first tenant for life cannot cut the whole. Purges v. Lamb, 16 Ves. 174. WILL, C. OF; TEN. FOR LIFE.

Equitable waste has not been extended beyond trees planted, or growing for ornament, as in avenues or vistas, to timber merely ornamental, viz. an extensive wood. Id. ib.

Cutting timber where necessary for the growth of underwood, not waste. Id. 179.

Land devised to be sold, the money to be laid out in other estates to be settled; the rents and profits, until sale, to go to the persons entitled to the estates to be purchased. Tenant for life, without impeachment of waste, cannot cut timber on the estate to be sold. Id. 180. LANDS DEVISED TO BE SOLD; INTERMEDIATE PROFITS, WHO ENTITLED; TEN. FOR LIFE.

Right of tenant for life, without impeachment of waste, to cut timber generally, in a husband-like manner, independent of the effect upon the beauty of the place, except equitable waste. Id. 185. TENANT FOR LIFE.

Whether timber is intended for ornament, &c. by deviser of tenant for life, is to be proved from his conduct concerning it. Lushington v. Boldere, 6 Mad. 149. TIMBER.

Ornamental timber, though decayed and injurious to other tree, is not to be cut, unless essential to objects of such deviser. Id. ib.

Injunction against cutting ornamental timber, upon the principle of equitable waste, extended to trees planted for the purpose of excluding object from view. Day v. Wheldale, 16 Ves. 375. INJUNC. AGST. WASTE.

Settlement on marriage of lands of the husband, to the use of husband for life, without impeachment of waste; remainder to trustees to preserve contingent remainders; remainder to the wife for life, for her jointure, and in bar of dower; remainder to the first and other sons of the marriage in tail male; remainder to the daughters in the same manner; remainder to the heirs of the body of the husband and wife. The husband being dead, without issue, as to the right of the widow to cut timber, and which would be a consequence to the property in it, when severed, as tenant in tail, after possibility of issue extinct, either in possession, by the effect of merger, if the estates can unite, or if not, in remainder, quære? A case directed. Williams v. Williams, 15 Ves. 419. TIMBER; SETTLEMENT, C. OF.

Tenant in tail, after possibility of issue extinct, being punishable for waste by the law, has, equally with tenant for life, without impeachment of waste by settlement, an interest and property in the timber. Id. 427. TEN. IN TAIL AFTER POSSIBILITY, &c.

Tenant in tail, after possibility of issue extinct, having been once tenant in tail in possession with the other donee, and therefore punishable for waste, may not only commit waste, but also convert to her own use the property wasted; therefore, not to be restrained in equity, except for malicious waste. Id. 430.

Lord of a manor is entitled to injunction and account in respect of waste by a copyholder. Richards v. Noble, 3 Mer. 673. COPYHOLD.

Heir who is entitled, by way of resulting trust, until the determination of an event upon which the future contingent estates were to arise, was restrained from cutting timber. Stansfield v. Habersham, 10 Ves. 273. INJUNC. AGST. WASTE; HEIR AT LAW.

Tenant restrained from cutting turf for sale, (his lease giving a right of estovers only), notwithstanding an uninterrupted practice for eighty years. Id. Courtown v. Ward, 1 Scho. & L. 8. LANDLORD & TEN.; ESTOVERS.

Power of tenant for life under general words "without impeachment for waste," not enlarged by implication from more extensive powers given to trustees for special purposes, after her death. Downshire v. Ty. Sandys, 6 Ves. 107. DRESS, C. OF; TEN. FOR LIFE.

In case of lands exchanged under enclosing acts tenants for life, impeachable for waste, cannot cut timber for enclosures by mortgage, under the powers in the act. Estovers from one estate not applicable to the exigencies of another. Lee v. Alston, 1 Bro. C. C. 194. S. C. 1 Ves. J. 78. 3 Bro. C. C. 37. TEN. FOR LIFE; INCLOSURE ACT.

The statute of lunatics does not introduce any new right in the crown; the words "waste and destruction" in it, are to be construed in the ordinary, not the technical, sense. Where timber makes part of the general rental of an estate, in case of lunacy, it would be a breach of duty not to manage it in the usual manner. Orenden v. Id. Compton, 2 Ves. J. 71. LUNACY.

Tenant for life, with liberty to cut timber at seasonable times, is not to cut trees planted for ornament or shelter to the mansion-house, or sapling trees not fit to be cut or felled for timber. Chamberlyne v. Drummer, 3 Bro. C. C. 549. TEN. FOR LIFE.

Order made to prevent removal of timber wrongfully cut. Anon. 1 Ves. J. 93. INJUNC.

Motion for a receiver, in a strong case of waste, granted before answer. Vann v. Barnett, 2 Bro. C. C. 158. RECEIVER.

Injunction against waste by mere trespass refused. Mogg v. Mogg, Dick. 670.

Injunction for waste refused; plaintiff's right doubtful. Field v. Jackson, id. 599.

Injunction to stay cutting down sapplings, wavers, and fruit trees. Kaye v. Banks, id. 431.

Injunction to stay waste only granted on interlocutory application. Kettle v. Corbin, id. 314.

Defendant denying he had committed waste since filing of bill, no inducement to refuse injunction. Att. Gen. v. Burrows, id. 128.

Injunction against tenant not impeachable, &c. for cutting down ornamental trees, &c. Packington v. Packington, id. 101.

Injunction against tenant in possession, not party, to stay waste. Att. Gen. v. Dk. Ancaster, id. 68.

B was tenant for life, with remainder to his first and other sons in tail, remainder to O for life, remainder to her first and other sons in tail, with other contingent remainders, with remainder to B in fee. O had a child who died almost immediately before any other contingent remainder-man came in esse: B cut down timber, his own remainder in fee being next existent estate of the inheritance; but afterwards O had another child; B shall not take advantage of his own wrong by taking the timber so cut, nor is the second child of O entitled until it shall be seen whether B shall have a child; but the produce shall be paid into court by B, with interest at 4 per cent., and accumulate for the benefit of such person as shall appear at the death of B to have title to it. Williams v. Bolton, 1 Cox, 72. TENANT FOR LIFE; ACCOUNT.

Devise of lands to be sold, and other lands to be purchased in another county; A to be tenant for life (sans waste) of the lands to be purchased, and the rents and profits of the lands to be sold to the same use: A cannot cut down timber on the lands to be sold, since he thereby would have the benefit of double waste. Plymouth v. Archer, 1 Bro. C. C. 159. WILL, C. OF; TENANT FOR LIFE; TIMBER.

T D provided by a codicil to his will that his wife, whom he had made tenant for life, might cut timber for her own use and benefit at seasonable times: quere, what timber the tenant for life shall be restrained from cutting. Chamberlayne v. Dummer, 1 Bro. C. C. 166. S. C. 2 Dick. 600. O'Brien v. O'Brien, Amb. 107, WILL, C. OF; TENANT FOR LIFE; TIMBER.

Copyhold tenant subject to waste unless by act of God, and tenant for years where burnt by fire, though no covenant to repair or rebuild. Hook v. Worth, 1 Ves. 462. LANDLORD AND TENANT.

Jointress having given leave to the next remainder for life, without impeachment, &c. to cut timber; the remainder-man in tail having acceded and encouraged his doing so, the latter was restrained by perpetual injunction from bringing action of waste against the jointress. Aston v. Aston, 1 Ves. 396. TENANT FOR LIFE; INJUNCTION AGAINST PROCEEDINGS AT LAW.

In a bill to stay waste, a plaintiff is not entitled to a discovery unless he waives the double penalty. Boteler v. Allington, 3 Atk. 457. PL. BILL; WAIVER OF PENALTIES.

A rector may cut down timber for the repairs of the parsonage house or chancel; but not for any common purpose. Struchy v. Francis, 2 Atk. 217. RECTOR.

He is entitled to botes for repairing barns and out-houses belonging to the parsonage. S. C. ib.

A devised all his lands, &c. to his wife, and if it should happen that she should have no son or daughter by him begotten upon her body, and for want of such issue, then the said premises to return to his brother B, if he should be then living, and to his heirs for ever, paying to his brother 150*l.* within a year after the wife's death: decreed, to be an estate tail in the wife, and not an estate for life only; that by "no son nor daughter" must be understood "no issue," and that she ought not to be restrained from committing waste. Wyld v. Lewis, 1 Atk. 432. WILL, C. OF, WHAT ESTATE; ESTATE TAIL.

A devise of the rents and profits of an estate to the husband for life, without impeachment of waste, shall not only be considered as annual profits, but will empower him to cut timber. Partridge v. Pawlet, id. 467. WILL, C. OF, WHAT INTEREST.

Tenant for life of coal mines may open new pits or shafts for the working the old vein of coals. Claverling v. Claverling, 2 P. W. 388. Sel. Ca. in Cha. 79. Mos. 219. TENANT FOR LIFE.

One seised of lands wherein there are coal mines not opened, settles the lands on A in tail, remainder to B for life; A opens the mines, works them, and dies without issue: B may continue working in all mines lawfully opened. Id. ib.

Where no custom is alleged of a tenant's power to cut down timber, it must be taken according to the common law, by which he has no power over it. Edwards v. Heather, Sel. Cha. Ca. 3. LANDLORD & TENANT; CUSTOM.

One seised in fee, conveys the lands and all trees and mines to trustees in fee to the use of A for life, remainder over; A cannot open the mines or cut down the trees. Whitfield v. Berit, 2 P. W. 242. TENANT FOR LIFE.

A, on marriage of his son, settles a messuage on himself for life sans waste, remainder to his son; the father, though his estate for life be sans waste, cannot pull down the house nor commit any voluntary waste therein; if he does, the court will grant an injunction to stay waste, and compel the father to put the messuage in as good repair as before the waste committed. Fane v. I. d. Barnard, 2 Vern. 738. S. C. Prec. Chan. 454. Gilb. Eq. Rep. 127. 1 Salk. 161. SETTLE; TENANT FOR LIFE.

The under-tenant of a jointress commits waste sparsim; but had improved the yearly value, and offers to take a lease at the improved rent, and to pay for the timber cut. Qu. Whether the court will relieve as to the waste? Lige v. Smith, 2 Vern. 263. LANDLORD AND TENANT.

One settles land upon his daughter in tail, and takes a bond from her not to commit waste; bond not binding in equity. Jervis v. Bruton, 2 Vern. 251. BOND; TENANT IN TAIL.

Husband, though parted from his wife, charged in equity with his wife's wasting of goods which were devoted to her for her life only. Paget v. Read, 1 Vern. 143. HUSB. & WIFE; DEVASTATION; TENANT FOR LIFE.

I. JURISDICTION AND GENERALLY.

Demurrer allowed to a bill, praying that a pretended will might be delivered up to be cancelled, and an injunction and a receiver till letters of administration should be granted, the pendency of a suit in the ecclesiastical court not being distinctly alleged, and the court of chancery not having jurisdiction to try the validity of the will. Jones v. Frost, 1 Jac. 466. JURISDIC.

How parties beneficially interested, where one executor and trustee has disclaimed, and the other is dead, are to obtain an appointment of new trustees for the purpose of executing the trusts of will. Wood v. Stone, 8 Price, 613.

Bill, by heir, suggesting a secret void trust for charity in residuary devise, but without evidence of a trust expressed, or of an engagement expressed or tacit, preventing it, dismissed with costs, unless the heir would take an issue to which he is entitled. Paine v. Hall, 18 Ves. 475. HEIR AT LAW; ISSUE AT LAW; FRAUD.

The course upon a bill by an heir impeaching a will, is to direct him to bring an ejectment, removing obstacles from terms, &c. Pemberton v. Pemberton, 13 Ves. 297. HEIR AT L.

A court of equity has no jurisdiction to declare what is or is not a man's last will. Id. ib. JURISDIC.

Will is never set aside without issue devisavit vel non. S. C. 11 Ves. 63. ISSUE, DEVISAVIT VEL NON.

Devisees filing a bill to establish a will, and to carry trusts into execution, have no right to call upon persons who claim paramount to the will, to litigate such claims with them. Devonshier v. Newnham, 2 Scho. & L. 199. INTERPLEADER; DEVISEES.

Devise of real estates the annual value of near 5000*l.* and other estates directed to be purchased with the residue of the personal estate amounting to above 600,000*l.* to trustees and their heirs, &c. upon trust during the lives of the testator's sons A, B. and C, and of his grandson D, and of such other sons as A now has or may have, and of such issue as D may have, and of such issue as any other sons of A may have, and of such sons as B and C may have, and of such issue as such sons may have, as shall be living at his decease, or born in due time afterwards; and during the life of the survivor, to receive the rents and profits, and from time to time to invest the same, and the produce of timber, &c. in other purchases of real estates, and after the death of the survivor of the said several persons, that the said estates shall be divided into three lots, and that one lot shall be conveyed to the eldest male lineal descendant then living of A, in tail male, remainder to the second, &c.; and of all and every other male lineal descendant or descendants then living, who shall be incapable of taking as heir in tail male of any of the persons to whom a prior estate is limited of A, successively in tail male, remainder in equal moieties to the eldest and every other male lineal descendant or descendants then living of B and C, as tenants in common, in tail male in the same manner with cross remainders, or if but one such male lineal descendant, to him in tail male, remainder to the trustees, &c. The other two lots were directed to be conveyed to the male descendants of B and C, respectively in the same manner, and with similar limitations to the male descendants of their brothers, and to the trustees in fee, and it was directed that the trustees should stand seised upon the failure of male lineal descendants of A, B, and C, as aforesaid, upon trust to sell, and pay the produce to his majesty, his heirs and successors, to the use of the sinking fund; the accumulation, till the purchases or sales can take place, to go to the same purpose, with a direction that all the persons becoming entitled, shall use the surname of the testator only. The trusts of the will were established. Thellusson v. Woodford, 4 Ves. 227, affd. 11 Ves. 112. PERPETUITY.

A will admitted in answer under which defendant claims, and where nothing turns on it, may be read from the bill, although the answer refers to the will for certainty. Owen v. Jones, 2 Anst. 505. PR. EVIDENCE.

Question of intention to be determined by the court, but not proper for the master. Pitt v. Ld. Camelford, 1 Ves. J. 83.

Paper writing proved as a testamentary schedule, and held to have effect from the date to pass what was in the hands of M. at the time of the date; not what was at the death of testator. The general rule as to testaments, is that the time of the testament, and not the testator's death is regarded. Downing v. Townsend, Amb. 280.

The court cannot set aside a will for fraud, for the due execution of it is triable only at law. Anon. 3 Atk. 17. Vide Bennet v. Vade, 2 Atk. 324. JURISDIC.

After probate of will, court of equity may enquire into fairness of residuary bequest of personal estate. Marriot v. Marriot, 1 Stra. 666. JURISDIC.

• Will of a resident in a receptacle for lunatics, established, upon the then state of his mind, compared with antecedent declarations. Distinctions, if not then competent. Boote v. Blundell, 19 Ves. 508.

Boy of age of fourteen is competent to make will of personal estate. Exp. Holgate, 11 Ves. 11.

Power of disposition by will is incident to trusts for separate uses of feme covert, and husband and trustee, having taken a transfer. J. h. v. Conetti, 9 Ves. 369. HUSB. & WIFE, SEPARATE ESTATE.

Will by a wife of her separate property and its produce, whether derived from her husband or a third person is good. Fettiplace v. Georges, 1 Ves. J. 46. FEME COVERT.

A woman being about to marry, enters into an agreement with the future husband (without seal or stamp) by which her property is settled upon the survivor for life, with power to the wife to dispose by will made after the marriage: she then immediately makes a will, by which, she bequeaths her property to the intended husband, absolutely, and afterwards (on the same day) she marries. The articles resting in agreement, give the husband an equitable estate for life, but the will is revoked, (not being protected by the power) by the subsequent marriage. Holson v. Lloyd, 2 Bro. C. C. 534. FEME COVERT; POWER.

Although a man have a mind of sufficient soundness and discretion to regulate his affairs in general, yet if such a dominion or influence be obtained over him as to prevent his exercising such discretion in the making his will, he cannot be considered as having such a disposing mind, as will give effect to his will. Quare, what evidence will be sufficient to establish such a case. Mountain v. Bennett, 1 Cox, 353.

Money to be laid out in land, an infant cannot dispose of it by will as money, but it will on the infant's death descend to his heir, who may take it either way. Carr v. Ellison, 2 Bro. C. C. 56. S. C. 2 Dick. 796. Quod vide. MONEY TO BE LAID OUT IN LAND; INFANT.

Papists are not prohibited from devising lands to protestant trustees, to be sold bona fide for payment of debts, &c. Cusack v. Gilbert, 5 Bro. P. C. 465. PAPIST.

Husband before marriage gives bond to enable his intended wife, to dispose by deed or will of her freehold estate; she devises during coverture. Heir at law is bound, and shall convey to the devisee. Rippon v. Dowding, Ambli. 565. HUSB. & WIFE.

Feme covert cannot at law make will of copyhold lands surrendered by her before marriage, to the use of her will, nor can she declare the uses of the surrender. George v. Jew, Ambli. 627. FEME COVERT; COPYHOLD.

Will by feme covert, good and proveable in the ecclesiastical court, if made with assent of her husband. Dk. of Marlborough v. Ld. Godolphin, 2 Ves. 70. HUSB. & WIFE.

Wife having specific effects to her separate use, disposes of her separate property by will. After her death her husband sells part of these effects and dies, his representative is accountable to the wife administratrix with the will annexed. Peacock v. Monk, 2 Ves. 190. HUSB. & WIFE; SEPARATE ESTATE.

A feme covert may make a will by virtue of a power. Ross v. Ewer, 3 Atk. 160.

Power in feme covert to dispose by writing, purporting to be a will, does not give it authority of one in ecclesiastical court, and husband must be examined to his consent before it can be proved. Henley v. Philips, 2 Atk. 48. FEME COVERT.

A city orphan cannot by will before twenty-one, dispose of his orphanage part, so as to prevent survivorship. Anon. Prec. Chan. 537. CUSTOM OF LONDON.

An infant male may make a will of his personal estate at fourteen, a female at twelve. Hyde v. Hyde, Prec. Chan. 316.

A female may make a will at twelve, a male at fifteen if proved to be a person of discretion. Bishop v. Stary, 2 Vern. 469. INFANT.

A feme covert who has pin money, or a separate maintenance settled on her, may by writing in nature of will dispose of what she saves out of it; and such disposition shall bind the husband. Herbert v. Herbert, Prec. Chan. 41. FEME COVERT.

A wife (whose husband is by act of parliament banished for his life,) may make a will, and in every thing act as a feme sole, and as if the husband was dead. Countess of Portland v. Prodders, 2 Vern. 104. FEME COVERT.

A tenant in tail of an equity of redemption may devise it for the payment of debts. Turner v. Grinn, 1 Vern. 41. TENANT IN TAIL OF EQUITY OF REDEMPTION.

III. WHAT MAY BE DISPOSED OF BY WILL.

See statutes 32 H. 8. c. 1. Chitt. Stat. 1117 and notes: 34 & 35 H. 8. c. 5, id. 1120 and notes; 29 Car. 2. c. 3. ss. 5, 6, 12, 19, 20, 21, 2, 3, 4, id. 1125 and notes; and 3 W. & M. c. 14. id. 1127 and notes, and see particularly Chitt. Stat. 1120, n. (d) as to devise of possibilities in real and personal things.

A possibility is devisable. Any equitable interest is devisable. Perry v. Phelps 1 Ves. J. 254. POSSIBILITIES, &c.

Testator cannot by any words devise lands, either under the statute or at common law, which he had not at the time of making the will. Id. ib.

An equitable lien is an equitable obligation to do according to conscience; and a devise of it good in equity. Perry v. Phelps, id. 255. POSSIBILITIES, &c.

Contingent and executory estates, and possibilities accompanied with an interest, are devisable. Moor v. Hawkins, 2 Eden, 341. CONTINGENT INTEREST.

Bequest of a contingent interest in personality void, where the preceding gift never vested, owing to a lapse. Miller v. Fauré, 1 Ves. 85. POSSIBILITIES, &c.

A devise a term for years to B for life, remainder, to C; C in the life of B devises his remainder; this is good and amounts to C's declaring by his will, that his executor shall stand possessed of the term in trust for the devisee. Wins v. Jekyl, 1 P. W. 572. REMAINDER EXPECTANT.

A child entitled to an orphanage share of his father's personal estate, dying under twenty-one and unmarried cannot devise it by his will, for by the custom it survives to the other children, but he may devise his share under the statute of distributions. Wilcocks v. Wilcocks, 2 Vern. 559. CUSTOM OF LONDON.

A right to set aside a release may be devised. Drew v. Merry, 1 Eq. Ab. 175.

IV. THE VALIDITY AND CONSTITUTION.

See also the four following subdivisions.

A testator bequeaths to A and B in trust for certain purposes which the will states to have been fully explained to them; on the same day a paper writing is signed by A and B, in which they declare that the bequest is upon trust for six persons, whose names are stated, and after their signature some lines are added in the hand-writing of the testator, by which a seventh person (an unborn child) is admitted to a share of the legacy; upon a bill filed by one of the six persons named in the body of the paper writing, the court recognized the paper writing as a valid declaration of trust, though it had not been proved as a testamentary paper. Smith v. Attersole, 1 Russ. 266.

A court of equity has no jurisdiction to determine on the validity of a will, either of real or personal estate. Jones v. Jones, 3 Mer. 161. JURISDICTION.

Unattested paper clearly referred to in a devise of real estate, considered part of the will if made previously; not if subsequent. Wilkinson v. Adam, 1 V. & B. 445.

Legacies by an unattested paper included under a charge of legacies on a real estate, by a will duly attested; but the produce of the sale of a real estate cannot be directly disposed of by an unattested paper. Id. 446.

Where a testatrix made her will, disposing of real and personal property, and signed and sealed it; and a clause of attestation in the common form was subjoined, but to which there was no subscription of witnesses; and where the will was found at her death, wrapped in an envelope, on which was written, "I signed and sealed my will to have it ready to be witnessed the first opportunity I could get proper persons." Held that the instrument appearing to be incomplete (something more having been intended) was not a good will as to the personal property. But parol evidence admitted as to the circumstances of the papers, and as to the testatrix's intention. Walker v. Walker, 1 Mer. 503. P. N. EVID.; PAROL.

If it appears upon a will of personal estate, that something more is intended to be done, and the party is not arrested, by sickness or death, the usual declaration at the beginning, that it is his will, is not sufficient. Coles v. Trecothick, 9 Ves. 249.

If testator by paper subsequent to will, says he has bequeathed that which he has not bequeathed, that paper may be proved as testamentary, and property will pass. Druce v. Denison, 6 Ves. 397.

All codicils are part of the will; therefore, a codicil merely for particular purpose as to change an executor, and confirming the will, in all other respects, does not revive a part of the will revoked by a former codicil. Crosbie v. Macdowel, 4 Ves. 610. CODICIL.

Two inconsistent wills; a codicil referring to the first by date, as the last will cancels the intermediate will, and evidence of mistake cannot be admitted. Id. 616.

Where a testator refers expressly to a paper already written, and describes it sufficiently, it is as if incorporated in the will. Habergham v. Vincent, 2 Ves. J. 228. 4 Bro. C. C. 353.

Instrument in any form, whether a deed poll, or indenture, if the obvious purpose is not to take place till after the death of the person making it, shall operate as a will. Id. ib.

Testator gives a residue to A for life, remainder to B for life, then to be divided among his (testator's) relations. This is a mere intestacy, and goes to the relations at the death of testator. Masters v. Hooper, 4 Bro. C. C. 207.

Testator may provide, that in case of a devolution to executors, they shall not alien, but it must be very special. Sheers v. Hind, 1 Ves. J. 295.

Wife having a power to dispose, by will signed and sealed by her, of 300*l.* in the hands of trustees, having made a will, agreeable to the power, afterwards makes a testamentary paper, by which she gives it to her husband, but so much as shall be remaining at his death, &c. to her brother and sisters. This paper is not sealed, found annexed to the will by a wafer, and is on a stamp. His Honour held the annexation by the wafer immaterial, and that the stamp was equivalent to a seal. 2ndly, that it vested absolutely in her husband, and it was decreed to be paid to him, the property not being sufficiently certain to raise a trust. Sprunge v. Barnard, 2 Bro. C. C. 585.

A paper writing signed by the executors and others, purporting to be an acknowledgement of what they understood to be the will of the testator, when he was unable to speak, although proved in the spiritual court as a testamentary paper, yet will not operate as a codicil in this court, and the bill claiming legacies under such an instrument, will be dismissed. Gawler v. Standerwick, 2 Cox, 16.

A will and codicil are to be taken together as one act. Reeves v. Newenham, 2 Ridgw. P. C. 43.

Proviso in a will, that in case the devisee should come into possession of the family estate, the trustees should stand seised of the devised estate to the use of the next person in remainder, valid. And the eldest son of the tenant in possession, is the next person in remainder. Nicolls v. Sheffield, 2 Bro. C. C. 215.

C, by his will, devised all his freehold and copyhold estates to his two daughters, A and M, and all other daughters that he might thereafter have, as tenants in common in fee; he had afterwards another daughter, L; he then gave directions for another will, by which he gave all his real estates to his two eldest daughters, and a sum of 15,000*l.* to his daughter L. The attorney took the minutes of this second will in writing, but before it was prepared, the testator died: these minutes were proved in the spiritual court as a testamentary paper. Held, 1st, this paper being proved in the spiritual court is sufficient to pass the copyhold estate; 2d, but is so totally void as to the freehold, that it will not put L to her election, and she therefore will take her share of the freeholds under the first will, as well as the 15,000*l.* under the second; 3rd, the testator gave the 15,000*l.* to his daughter L, to be paid to her at twenty-one or marriage, without interest for the same in the mean time, but if she died before twenty-one or marriage, then the 15,000*l.* was not to be raised, but was to sink into the residue of his personal estate. And he directed that, out of the interest of the 15,000*l.*, certain sums of money should be applied for the maintenance of L. The interest of this legacy beyond the maintenance is vested in L, and must be appropriated to accumulate for her benefit. Carey v. Askew, 2 Bro. C. C. 58. 1 Cox, 241. and see 8 Ves. 492. 498. 499. COPYHOLD; WILL, C. ov.

An unfinished testamentary paper is of no effect as a will, the party having lived eight days afterwards. Griffin v. Griffin, 4 Ves. 197 note.

A will disposing of real and personal property, with a clause of attestation, but no witnesses, established as to the real property. Habergham v. Browning, 4 Ves. 200.

Repugnant words in a will may be rejected or transposed. In this case, the court rejected a repugnancy by interlineation. Bequest of the use and enjoyment of every thing else at my house," means such things as are proper to go with the house as heir looms, viz., fixtures and ornaments, not watches, &c. &c. Estate for life in lands by implication, rebutted by the party having a bequest for life in a particular part of them, and by the testator desiring she should not be turned out. Boon v. Cornforth, 2 Ves. 277.

Will of personal estate examinable in ecclesiastical court; but this court will avoid, if possible, the sending it there after the will has been found forged by a jury, which bound the real estate, and will go as far as they can to decree the parties trustees. Barnesly v. Daniel, 1 Ves. 287.

M, by will, in 1734, before the mortmain act, devised particular lands and his personal estates, to be laid out in land to charitable uses. By codicil, in 1736, after the act, M declared, that if by the mortmain act his estates could not pass to those uses, he then devised them to B. By a second codicil, in 1737, testator reciting that he was advised his devise of the land to the charity was void, bequeathed his personal estate to the charity, and the real to B. Testator died in February, 1738. On a case stated to B. R. the judges certified that the estate were well devised to B by the second codicil, and that M. decreed the same to him accordingly. Att. Gen. v. Lloyd, 3 Atk. 551. 1 Ves. 39.

A codicil is, in its nature, a part of the will; an extension of the intention of the testator. Dk. St. Albans v. Beaucherk, 2 Atk. 639.

Testator devised to a charity his copyhold lands, which he had previously surrendered to his will. His will consisted of eleven sheets, two of which he signed in extremis, and then died. There were no witnesses, yet held a good appointment under 43 Eliz. Att. Gen. v. Sautell, 2 Atk. 497. COPYHOLDS, DEVISE OF.

If a man leave several papers behind him, executed at different times, as to personal property, they shall all be taken as one will, and so construed that all may answer the testator's intention. Stone v. Evans, 2 Atk. 87.

Trust estate in copyhold, unsurrendered, will pass by will unattested. Tufnell v. Page, 2 Atk. 37. S. C. Barn. 9. COPYHOLD; TRUST.

A will, written on nine sheets, was sealed by the testator, who signed the draft of a new will, and then tore off eight of the seals from the first will; yet the first will was held a good will to pass the real estate, the statute not requiring all the sheets to be sealed; and the second good to pass the personal estate as a casus omissus out of the statute. Hyde v. Hyde, 3 Ch. Rep. 155.

A, being tenant in tail of the trust of a copyhold estate, with remainder over, and trustees refusing to surrender the legal estate to him, he brought his bill for that purpose, and, pending that suit, went to the lord's court and offered to surrender, but was refused, not having the legal estate; and thereupon he made his will, and gave the estate to his wife and children. Decreed, the estate to go according to the will, the court conceiving the will sufficient to bar the entail of a trust. Outway v. Hudson, 2 Vern. 583. BARRING ENTAIL; COPYHOLD.

A, by will duly executed, devises a copyhold estate to his wife, and on the day of his death orders his nephew to obliterate some devises, but nothing as to the copyhold, and then caused a memorandum to be written that he approved of the will as obliterated, but does not republish it, and orders his nephew to carry it to one to write it fair, and, before it is done, he becomes delirious. Held to be a good will, and that the copyhold passed. Burkitt v. Burkitt, 2 Vern. 498.

the will proved as though no such executors had been therein. Parker v. Ash, 1 Vern. 256.

Wills in Latin or Dutch, must be so framed as to pass an estate according to the rule of our law. Bovey v. Smith, 1 Vern. 85. Ch. Ca. 124. S. C.

V. EXECUTION.

Lands held in the East Indies by tenure of the nature of fee-simple, do not pass by an unattested will, but decreed to the person who would be heir at law in England. Gardiner v. Fell, 1 Jac. & W. 22. EAST INDIES.

In proving execution of devise, actual signature by devisor in presence of three witnesses, is not required, if he declares it to be his will before those who did not see him sign, and separate attestations sufficient. Westbeech v. Kennedy, 1 V. & B. 362.

A declaration by the testator, in attestation part of his will, that lands should go to a certain person, not a sufficient devise of them under the statute of frauds, not being signed by the testator or by any person by his direction. Blemerhassett v. Day, 2 Ball. & B. 104. STAT. OF FRAUDS.

Execution of a devise under the statute of frauds, requiring signature by the devisor in the presence of three witnesses, and their attestation of his act by their subscription. Wright v. Wakeford, 17 Ves. 459.

Attestation of a devise, by a mark good within the statute of frauds. Id. ib.

Sealing not necessary to the execution of a devise under the statute of frauds, nor sufficient without signing. Id. ib.

"I, A B do make this my will," equivalent to signature, and if acknowledged before three witnesses, a good execution within the statute of frauds. Morison v. Turnour, 18 Ves. 183.

Appointment of guardians by an unattested will, made good by a codicil with three witnesses, on the same paper referring to the will as annexed, making some alterations as to legacies, and confirming it in all other respects as in the case of a devise of land. De Biche v. Id. Fingal, 16 Ves. 167. GUARDIAN; TESTAMENTARY.

Devise failing, being the effect of a paramount title, established as to other premises, against the express intention that they should go together. Southey v. Id. Somerville, 13 Ves. 486.

Real estate in Bermuda passes by a will not duly executed to pass real estate. Shedden v. Goodrich, 8 Ves. 481. STAT. OF FRAUDS.

Produce of real estates converted by will, held to pass only where the will is attested by three witnesses. Id. ib. CONVERSION OF PROPERTY.

Acknowledgement by devisor of his handwriting to one of the witnesses who did not see him execute, good. Addy v. Girt, 8 Ves. 505.

Will, not duly executed according to statute, has no operation even to raise an election against person taking personal estate. Eap. El. Ilchester, 7 Ves. 372. Shedden v. Goodrich, 8 Ves. 481. Gardiner v. Fell, 1 Jac. & W. 22. ELECTION.

Where real estate is charged with legacies generally by will duly attested, legacies may be revoked or charged by an unattested instrument. Buckeridge v. Ingram, 2 Ves. J. 665. WILL, REVOCATION OF.

Land devised by will not duly executed, the heir, having a legacy upon express condition not to disappoint the will, must elect. Whistler v. Webster, 2 Ves. J. 371. HEIR AT LAW; ELECTION.

A rent is a tenement; and therefore cannot pass by will without three witnesses, if out of freehold; the word "tenement" being in the statute of frauds.

Habergham v. Vincent, 2 Ves. J. 231. 4 Bro. C. C. 353. STAT. OF FRAUDS.

One of three witnesses to will not to be found, but on sufficient evidence, will declared well proved. Binfield v. Lambert, Dick. 337.

But in Bird v. Butler, will not declared well executed, but trusts to be performed and carried into execution. Id. ib. note, and see id. 349.

Will, subscribed by three witnesses, before whom testator declared it to be his will, but did not sign it; such declaration is equivalent to signing it before them, and such will is good within the fifth section of the statute of frauds, and is also a good will of revocation within the sixth. Ellis v. Smith, 1 Ves. J. 11. WILL, ATTESTATION OF; FRAUDS, STAT. OF.

Devise of all lands and tenements in or near F, by a will attested by two witnesses only, where the testator had freehold, will not pass leasehold; contra, if he had only had leasehold. Chapman v. Hart, 1 Ves. 271. WILL, C. OF, WHAT PASSES.

Testatrix executed her will in the presence of two witnesses; she afterwards said, in the presence of a third, "this is my will," but did not put her seal, nor say her name was of her hand-writing; Lord Hardwicke inclined this will was void, because not exactly conformable to the statute 29 Car. 2. Gryle v. Gryle, 2 Atk. 177. STAT. OF FRAUDS.

Sealing her will without signing in the presence of a third witness, would have been sufficient to make it a good will. Id.

Where a sum of money is given originally out of land, a will with that charge must be equally executed with the same solemnity, because it is considered as part of the land. Brudenell v. Boughton, 2 Atk. 272. WILL; LEGACIES CHARGED ON LAND.

The rule is the same as to revocations of a devise of lands, and a revocation of a sum of money charged on lands; they must be revoked in the same manner. Id. WILL, REVOCATION.

When a first will charges real estate with legacies, and a second gives general pecuniary ones, though not executed in form; yet, the latter legacies will be equally a charge upon the land. Id.

A trust is limited to A, his heirs and assigns, or to such as he or they may appoint; A devises these lands by a will attested but by two witnesses; the will void, and shall not operate as an appointment. Wagstaff v. Wagstaff, 2 P. W. 258. POWER, EXECUTION OF.

A, possessed of a term of five hundred years in B acre, afterwards purchases the fee simple in C's name, and devises B acre to J in fee; but the will is not attested by three witnesses: the term shall not pass, because attendant on and part of the inheritance. Whitchurch v. Whitchurch, 2 P. W. 236. Gilb. Eq. Rep. 168. 1 Stra. 619. S. C. 9 Mod. 124. TERM ATTENDANT.

Coppyhold surrendered to the use of a will, shall pass by a will attested by one or two witnesses only. Wagstaff v. Wagstaff, 2 P. W. 258. COPYHOLD.

Though where a copyhold is surrendered to the use of a will, there need not be three witnesses to such will, because the copyhold passes by surrender and not by the will; yet, a trust of equity of redemption of a copyhold cannot pass by a will, unless attested by three witnesses. Id. 261. COPYHOLD.

A former will of land is cancelled, the testator supposing a latter will by him made of the same land to the same effect, was good. If that proves not to be duly executed, equity will set up the former will. Onions v. Turner, 2 Vern. 743. S. C. Pro. Ch. 459. Gilb. Eq. Rep. 130. 1 P. W. 243.

In December, A made his will; and in January following, designing to make an alteration, he ordered a devise to be interlined. The will was read in this state to the testator, who approved it, and put his seal on the wax in the presence of the same three witnesses who attested his will at first, but he did not subscribe his name de novo: held, a good signing, for the testator's subscribing is only with a view that the witnesses may know the will again. Townsend v. Pearce, Vin. Ab. tit. Devise, (R. 4.) 142, pl. 3.

A child of a residuary legatee, is no witness to prove a will relating to the personal estate by the civil law: by which law only such will is determinable. Thraites v. Smith, 1 P. W. 10. PR. WITNESS, COMPETENCY OF.

VI. ATTESTATION.

See also PR. EVIDENCE, 27. (e).

Where power was to be executed by will, signed and published in the presence of, and attested by three witnesses: held, that a will concluding with this declaration, "this is my last will and testament," and expressed to be signed by the testatrix in the presence of the three attesting witnesses, was not a good appointment, because the publication was not attested. Stanhope v. Ker, 2 S. & S. 37. POWER, EXECUTION OF.

Proof of the handwriting of an attesting witness to a will, received under particular circumstances, in order to found a decree establishing the will. James v. Parnell, 1 Turn. & R. 417. EVIDENCE; PROOF OF HANDWRITING.

Implication is, that witnesses to a will saw the testator execute, if so situated, that they might have seen him; not where they were in an adjoining room, and could not. Morrison v. Arnold, 19 Ves. 671.

Will held well attested, though one of subscribing witnesses was executor in trust under will. Phipps v. Pitcher, 1 Mad. 144.

Devise and bequest of all the testator's real and personal estate in Grenada, to pay all such annuities, legacies, or bequest, as he should give or bequeath to be paid out of, or charged upon his real or personal estate in Grenada, by his will, or any codicil whether witnessed or not. A charge by an unattested codicil is void, this being not a charge by the will of legacies, but a reservation by a will executed according to the statute, of a power to charge by an unattested paper. As to the objection that the real estate was not charged as a subsidiary fund to the general personal estate, q.? Rose v. Cunningham, 12 Ves. 29. FRAUDS, STAT. OF.

Attestation of a devise by a mark, good, within the statute of frauds. Harrison v. Harrison, 8 Ves. 185.

Attestation of a devise by a mark, good, within the statute of frauds. Addy v. Gritt, id. 504. STAT. OF FRAUDS.

Legacies out of real estate given by unattested paper, cannot stand unless that paper is clearly referred to by will duly executed so as to be incorporated with it; the circumstance of its being inclosed in same cover with will, not sufficient. Smart v. Prujean, 6 Ves. 560.

A younger brother beyond sea having contracted to buy a real estate of his elder brother, makes his will, charging his estate with great legacies; but the will is attested only by two witnesses; afterwards the testator dies without issue, leaving his elder brother executor and heir; the heir may retain out of the assets the whole purchase money, though entitled again to the land as heir. Coppin v. Coppin, 2 P. W. 291. ALIEN, OF ASSETS.

Will attested by the witnesses, where the testatrix could see them through the windows of her carriage and of the attorney's office, well attested. Casson v. Dale, 1 Bro. C. C. 99.

J W surrendered to the use of his will to be published in the presence of three or more credible witnesses, he made his will, and devised the copyholds, but the will not being attested by any witness: held, the copyholds did not pass. Goodwin v. Kilsha, Ambl. 684. COPYHOLD, SURRENDER OF.

Will subscribed by three witnesses, before whom testator declared it to be his will, but did not sign it; such declaration is equivalent to signing before them, and such will is good within the 5th section of the statute of frauds, and is also a good will of revocation within the 6th. Ellis v. Smith, 1 Ves. J. 11. FRAUD, STAT. OF; WILL, EXECUTION OF.

Witness may attest separately; in that case, if testator acknowledged before each, or signs before one, and acknowledges before the rest, it is good; but otherwise if he signs it before each only, because three different executions, and no one good within the statute. Id. 16.

Testator acknowledging signature to will before witnesses, good, as to land. Grayson v. Wilkinson, Dick. 158.

Not necessary, under the statute of frauds, that a testator should sign in the presence of the witnesses; his acknowledgment of his hand-writing is sufficient, although done to the several witnesses at different times. Grayson v. Atkinson, 2 Ves. 154.

Attestation of marksmen good under the statute of frauds. Id. ib.

If testator, by will properly attested, charge real estate with legacies he shall after give by codicil; a legacy by codicil not attested, is good. Inchiquin v. French, Ambl. 41. S. C. Ridg. 230, and 1 Cox, 1.

Where the testator owns his land before the witnesses who subscribe the will in the testator's presence, the will is good, though all the witnesses did not see the testator sign the will. Stonehouse v. Evelyn, 3 P. W. 254.

A trust or equity of redemption of a copyhold cannot pass by a will, unless attested by three witnesses. Wagstaffe v. Wagstaffe, 2 P. W. 258. Appleyard v. Wood, Sel. Ch. Ca. 42. COPYHOLD; TRUST; EQUITY OF REDEMPTION.

A witness proving a will of land, swears that he subscribed it in the same room, and at the testator's request: held good, though not said in the testator's presence. Longford v. Eyre, 1 P. W. 740.

A witness to prove a will of land, ought to prove that the will was executed in his presence, and also in the presence of the two other witnesses, and that they subscribed in the presence of the testator. Id. ib.

One of the three witnesses to the will is a devisee of part of the land, whether not a good witness, if he aliens the land, without covenant or warranty. Baugh v. Holloway, 1 P. W. 557.

The witnesses to a will subscribe their names at a window in a passage, where they could see but part of the bed on which the testator lay, and he could not, as he lay there, see them attest his will; this will was set aside, as not being duly executed. Clark v. Ward, 4 Bro. P. C. 71.

A will of land written by the testator, and published in the presence of three several witnesses, at three several times, and attested by all at the said respective times in the presence of the testator, sufficient within the stat. of frauds; but whether the man's seeing the writing to be in the presence of the witnesses be sufficient, qu.? Cook v. Parsons, Prec. Chan. 184. S. C. 2 Vern. 429.

VII. PUBLICATION, RE-PUBLICATION, AND REVIVAL OF.

Testator by will, charges all his estates with payment of debts, and makes his son residuary devisee; afterwards purchases copyholds which are duly surrendered to the use of his will, and by codicil devises those copyholds to his son in fee: the codicil held a republication of the will, so as to subject those copyholds to the payment of debts. Rowley v. Fyton, 2 Mer. 128. WILL, C. OF; CHARON ON LANDS.

Testator by his will devises all his freehold and copyhold manors, &c. and real estate whatever, upon certain trusts; and gives to the same trustees a sum of 35,000*l.* to lay out in the purchase of lands, to be settled upon the same trusts. He afterwards contracts for the purchase of several estates; and, by a codicil, specifying some of the estates which he had so contracted to purchase, devises them to the same trustees, upon the trusts of his will; and directs that the purchase monies shall be taken as part of the 35,000*l.* confirming his will in all other respects. The codicil amounts to a republication of the will, so as to pass not only the estates therein specified, but all the estates contracted to be purchased between the dates of the will and codicil. Hulme v. Heggate, 1 Mer. 285. WILL, C. OF, WHAT PASSES; AFTER-PURCHASES.

Estate contracted for after general devise, will pass by republication, and must be paid out of personal estate. Broome v. Monck, 10 Ves. 605. CONTRACT; WILL, C. OF, WHAT PASSES.

Testator devised all his real estate to his sister for life, remainder to her children as she should appoint; for want of appointment, to all her children and their heirs, as tenants in common. His sister having two daughters, by a codicil, declared to be a codicil to his will, not then at hand, he gave one of them an annuity; and directing his annuities to be paid out of his 3 per cent. stock, he charged them on his real estate, in case of a deficiency, and directing the residue of his personal estate to be invested in freehold lands and hereditaments, he recommended to his sister to settle and convey, or join with her husband in settling and conveying all his estates and property which she might derive from him after his decease, to the use of her two daughters for life, in such parts, shares, and proportions as she should approve, with remainder to their respective issue and cross remainders, and the usual powers and clauses in strict settlement. The testator's sister died in his life, and her two daughters were his co-heiresses. Some real estates were purchased between the executions of the will and codicil; as to the real estate the will is not revoked, but is republished by the codicil; and the two nieces are entitled to all the real estates, and to those directed to be purchased, as tenants in common in fee. Meggison v. Moore, 2 Ves. J. 630. WILL, C. OF; WILL, REVOC. OF; CODICIL.

Since the statute of frauds, annexation of a codicil to a will, not admissible evidence of republication, because parol. Barnes v. Crowe, 1 Ves. J. 495. 3 Bro. C. C. 2. Vide cont. 3 Atk. 798. FRAUD, STAT. OF.

Renewal of a prebendal lease is an ademption of a bequest of it; but a codicil to the will, though to pass after-purchased property is a republication of the will, and the lease shall pass by republication. Coppin v. Fernyghough, 2 Bro. C. C. 291. LEGACY, ADEMPMENT OF; LEASE, RENEWAL OF.

Like as with statutes, the revoking a will which has revoked a former one, revives the first. Harwood v. Goodright, Loft. 576.

Codicil does not operate as a republication of a will, unless it is annexed to it or the contents, shew the intention. Att. Gen. v. Downing, Ambl. 573. CODICIL.

The execution of a second will is a revocation of the first, and cancelling the second afterwards, does not set up the first again. Exp. Hellier, 3 Atk. 798. Vide cont. 1 Ves. J. 495.

Every codicil properly attested, is a republication of the will. Gibson v. Rogers, Ambl. 97. S. C. 1 Ves. 485. 4 Ves. 288. Sed. qu. CODICIL.

Republication of will by codicil, does not require any precise form, nor need it be annexed to, or indorsed on the will. Potter v. Potter, 1 Ves. 442. Sed quæ? see ante.

By the addition of a codicil, every thing is set up in the will not altered by the codicil; and though the codicil has no date, yet if it appear by evidence to have been executed subsequent to an act which might amount to a revocation, it will operate as a republication. Carte v. Carte, Ridg. 210. Ambl. 28. 3 Atk. 174.

S. R. directed his executors to place out 1000*l.* at interest, and to apply the interest for the maintenance, &c. of his grandson, empowering them to pay part of the principal as an apprentice fee, and the residue to be transferred to him at twenty-one. Testator put his grandson apprentice, and paid 126*l.* with him; a year after testator made a codicil to his will, and gave him a legacy of 1000*l.* The question whether paying the apprentice fee was an adeption pro tanto: held, that as the 1000*l.* was not given for that purpose alone, the codicil was a confirmation of the legacy, and a republication of the will. Roome v. Roome, 3 Atk. 181. LEGACY, SATISFACTION.

To make a republication there must be animus republiandi, and therefore when testator was looking for a paper, and person assisting him, took up his will by mistake; testator said, that is my will, not meaning to republish; it was held not a republication. Abney v. Miller, 2 Atk. 599.

Where testator, after making his will, surrendered college lease, and took a new lease, held a revocation, and that a republication of the will would not alter the case, the very thing itself being entirely annihilated. S. C. Id.

A codicil, attested by three witnesses, and ratifying a will, amounts to a republication of that will, and both ought to be considered together as one will. Acherley v. Vernon, 3 Bro. P. C. 91. S. C. 1 Com. 381. CODICIL.

Making a codicil, and annexing it to the will, is no republication of the will. Hutton v. Simpson, 2 Vern. 722. Pre. Ch. 439. Gilb. Eq. Rep. 115, 120. Sed quære, vid. ante.

A codicil which concerns only personal legacies, will not amount to republication of the will, so as to pass lands purchased after the making of the will. Strode v. Russel, 2 Vern. 625. S. C. 3 Ch. Rep. 169. WILL, C. OF, WHAT PASSES AFTER-PURCHASES.

One devises a lease to his daughter, and afterwards renews the lease, and afterwards adds a codicil to his will; whether the renewal of the lease is a revocation, and whether the adding a codicil to his will is a republication, quære? Afford v. Earle, 2 Vern. 299. Nels. Ch. Rep. 162. S. C.

Testator saying his will was in a box in his study, amounted to a republication. Id. ib. Sed quære, 2 Atk. 549.

A held a church lease, of which nine months has remained unexpired; he made his will in sickness, and devised all his interest in such lands to B; A. recovering, renewed his lease, and republished his will; resolved, the renewed lease passed by the republication. Anon. 2 Freem. 116. Sed quære, see 2 Atk. 509. 1. By Cancellation.
2. By Marriage and Birth of Issue.
3. By Alteration or Alienation, by subsequent Act or Deed, Will, Codicil, or other Instrument.

1. By Cancellation.

Cancellation of a codicil effectual notwithstanding an interlineation to the same effect left standing in the will. Utterson v. Utterson, 3 V. & B. 122. S. C. Coop. 60.

Testator gives a moiety of the residue to such living in-hospital as his executor should appoint. He afterwards strikes out the executor's name, and dies without appointing any other executor. This is not a revocation of the legacy, but the court will appoint. White v. White, 1 Bro. C. C. 12. CHANCERY.

Where there are duplicates of a will and the testator cancels one of them only, and the other part is left entire, yet it is an effectual cancelling of the will. Onions v. Tyrer, 2 Vern. 742. S. C. Prec. Chan. 459. Gilb. Eq. Rep. 130. 1 P. W. 343.

2. By Marriage and Birth of Issue.

Marriage alone not a revocation of a will, as with the birth of a child it is. Exception where the will provides for children. Wilkinson v. Adam, 1 V. & B. 465.

Widower having son and devising away real estate; subsequent second marriage and birth of child; held no revocation of devise. Sheath v. Gork, 1 V. & B. 390. REAL ESTATE.

But where no heir a revocation may be implied. Id. 397. REAL ESTATE.

Marriage and birth of child is an implied revocation of a will of personal property. Id. 397. PERSONAL ESTATE.

Second marriage and birth of children, the wife and children provided for by settlement, and there being children by former marriage, does not revoke the will made prior. Exp. El. Hechester, 7 Ves. 348.

Whether a will was revoked by marriage and the birth of a child under particular circumstances; Quære? Faxter v. Dyer, 5 Ves. 603.

A subsequent marriage and the birth of a child revokes a will, quære, as to the propriety of admitting evidence against the presumption. Gibbons v. Gaunt, 4 Ves. 848. PR. EVID.

Mutual wills by two unmarried sisters under twenty-one, the marriage of one does not revoke the will of the other. Hinckley v. Simmons, 4 Ves. 160. MUTUAL WILLS.

Marriage with a legatee no revocation. Ewbank v. Helliwell, 2 Bro. C. C. 220. MARRIAGE; LEGATEE.

Marriage and the birth of a child held a revocation of a will of land. Sprague v. Stone, Ambl. 721.

One devises real estates to certain uses; afterwards by deed he conveys it to the same uses until he marries, and then to new uses; after the deed and before marriage, he, by codicil attested by three witnesses and directed to be annexed to his will, imposes a forfeiture upon persons disturbing his wife, and after the codicil marries: the settlement revokes the will, but the codicil sets it up again and the new uses springing on the marriage do not revoke the codicil. The subsequent marriage is no revocation of the will. Jackson v. Harlock, Ambl. 489. S. C. Eden, 263.

Marriage and birth of a child revoke a will of personal estate. Id. 494.

Marriage simply is not a revocation. Id. 495.

Subsequent marriage and having children, construed a revocation of a will. Cook v. Oakley, 1 P. W. 304.

3. By Alteration or Alienation, by subsequent Act or Deed, Will, Codicil, or other Instrument.

Testator by his will, gave an annuity payable out of his freehold, copyhold, and personal estate, and by a codicil not duly attested revoked the annuity: held that this was a subsisting charge upon the freeholds. Mortimer v. West, 2 Sim. 274. CHARGE ON LAND.

Testator devised his estates at S. and H. to trustees, in trust, if there should be only one son of D, who should attain twenty-one, for that son, and in case there should be two or more such sons, in trust for the second of them, and gave all the residue of his estates to trustees in trust to sell. He afterwards erased, and by codicil declared that he intended to erase the direction to sell only; he then gave all his estates to the son of D who should first attain twenty-one, and change his name to E. D, at death of testator, had a son who was still an infant, and afterwards had another son. Held the codicil revoked the devise of the S. and H. estates, and also the devise of the residues of his estates to the trustees, and that D's eldest son took under this codicil an immediate vested interest, both in the estates of which the testator was seized at the date of his will, and those he afterwards purchased, and consequently was entitled to the rents during his infancy. Duffield v. Elwes, 2 S. & S. 544. CODICIL, WILL; C. OF VESTED INTEREST.

By deed of 4th Nov. 1800, (being the settlement made on the marriage of A and B,) the testator and wife, B, in exercise of a general power of appointment vested in her by a previous deed of 11th of May 1799, appointed certain freehold houses to the use of trustees during the joint lives of herself and her husband, for her separate use, with the remainder, in the event of her dying in the life-time of her husband (which happened,) as she should appoint by will attested by three witnesses, with limitations over. Shortly after her marriage, B by will duly attested by three witnesses, devised the houses to her husband in fee: afterwards in 1811, she and her husband executed a deed attested by two witnesses, by which, after reciting the indenture of the 4th May 1799, but not mentioning the marriage settlement, B, in exercise of the power given her by the deed of 1799, and of all other powers, &c. appointed the messuages to the use of her husband for life, remainder to the use of herself for life, remainder to the use of the children of the marriage as she should appoint, and in default of appointment to all the children equally in tail, remainder to her husband in fee. Held that the deed of 1811, did not operate as a revocation of the previous will. Eilbeck v. Wood, 1 Russ. 564.

An envelope containing a will and codicil properly executed, and also a subsequent will. If of real estate) not so executed, and bearing an indorsement relative to the first will and codicil erased, and by fresh indorsement, specifying to contain the will of last date, as "the last will," &c.; held that first will and codicil were not revoked thereby. Gruntley v. Garthwaite, 2 Russ. 90.

After will, testator mortgaged estate in fee with proviso in case of repayment to reconvey to testator, or to such person, or for such estate, and to such lawful trusts, &c. as testator by deed, &c. should appoint, &c.: such conveyance operates as a revocation of the will pro tanto only. Brain v. Brain, 6 Mad. 221. MORTGAGE.

A bequest of money connected with a devise void by the statute of mortmain fails, though the devise is revoked by a subsequent conveyance or surrender. Semble. Att. Gen. v. Hinman, 2 Jac. & W. 270. MORTMAIN.

If A, being entitled to estate under a contract to purchase, devise it to B, and afterwards takes a conveyance of the estate to himself and C, though only in trust for himself, as to C and for the purpose of barring dower, it is a revocation of the devise; but secus, if he had taken a conveyance simply to himself alone. Ward v. Moore, 4 Mad. 368.

Partition after devise, is no revocation. S. C. id. 372.

A codicil not to be presumed a revocation, unless it distinctly appears. Griffiths v. Grieve, 1 Jac. & W. 31.

A covenant to surrender copyhold previously devised, is a revocation of the will in equity, if the surrender would have been a revocation at law. Fawser v. Jeffery, 2 Swan. 268. See this case, 16 Ves. 519. COPYHOLD, SURRENDER OF.

Though a conveyance for particular purpose will necessarily operate as a revocation no further than the particular purpose, yet if the conveyance goes beyond what the particular purpose requires, it will be a revocation. Id. 272, 3. CONVEYANCE.

So a conveyance of the whole estate though for a partial purpose. Id. ib. 274. CONVEYANCE.

Imperfect conveyance, may, as evidence of intent, operate as a revocation. Id. ib. See this case, 16 Ves. 519. CONVEYANCE.

A, the cestuique trust, devised to B, and then directed her trustees to make new conveyances to other trustees to her and her heirs, and died without new publication; held a revocation. Id. 276.

A, being in possession of mines and iron works, under leases of unequal duration, by will bequeathed 25,000*l.* to B "as a capital for him to become partner with my executors of one-fourth share in trade of all those works so long as the lease endures," with a devise to H and his wife of residue of his estates, real and personal. By codicil testator gave to W three-eighths of concern at iron-works: "the partnership will stand at my death W three-eighths, H three-eighths, B two-eighths." After R's death, W, H, & B carried on works for two years, selling iron manufactured not only from the produce of the mines, but from other sources. Held, that codicil revoked residuary clause in favour of H's wife as to the trade, and that concern was a partnership in trade. Crawshaw v. Maule, 1 Swan. 495. PARTNERSHIP; WILL, C. OR.

Testator gives 4000*l.* to trustees upon trust for his two daughters at twenty-one, and directed that the legacy duty due in respect thereof shall be paid by his executors out of the residue. By codicil reciting this bequest, and that he is desirous of increasing the same to 5000*l.* he revoked the gift of 4000*l.* and gives 5000*l.* upon the same trust, &c. By a second codicil reciting the former, and that he is desirous of further increasing to 6000*l.*, he revokes the gift of 5000*l.* and gives in lieu thereof 6000*l.* upon the same trusts. This is not a revocation but substitution in each instance, and the 6000*l.* is therefore exempt from the legacy duty. Cooper v. Day, 3 Mer. 154. WILL, C. OR; LEGACY DUTY; LEGACY SUBSTITUTION.

Testator bequeaths as follows: "As to all that my leasehold house in L, and all my household goods and furniture there and at S, and as to all my plate, linen, china, pictures, live and dead stock, and all the residue of my goods, chattels, and personal estate, &c. I give and bequeath the same to A." By a codicil, he revokes the bequest "of the residue" to A, and gives "the residue of his said personal estate" to B; the gift of the general residue only, and not of the articles enumerated, is revoked by this codicil. Clark v. Butler, 1 Mer. 304.

A will, devising estates for life without impeachment of waste, not revoked by codicil directing the trustees to let until tenant for life married, such leases under restrictions, one of which was that the lessees should not be unimpeachable of waste. Lushington v. Boldero, Coop. 216.

Devise of the equitable fee, under a contract to purchase, revoked by the conveyance of a trustee and his heirs to such uses as the deviser should appoint by deed, with two witnesses or will; with remainder to him for life; to the trustees for the life of the devisor, to bar dower, and to the devisor in fee. Rawlins v. Burgis, 2 V. & B. 382.

Distinction between intention and alteration of estate, as the ground of revocation of a will. Id. ib.

Revocation by feoffment to such uses as the devisor shall appoint, with remainder to himself in fee. Id. ib.

Distinction where partition was the sole object. Id. ib.

Revocation by contract to sell a devised estate. Id. ib.

Where a testator interlined his will to except the plaintiff, who was named a legatee under it with others, and also made a codicil expressly excluding him, but afterwards obliterated the codicil without doing the same with the interlineation of the will, the court admitted the plaintiff to an equal interest with the other parties taking under the will, considering the inference as certain that the testator so intended. Uterson v. Uterson, Coop. 60. S. C. 3 Ves. & B. 122. WILL, C. OF, WHO TAKE.

Revocation of a devise by a contract for sale, though rescinded after the devisor's death. Bennett v. El. Tankerville, 19 Ves. 171.

A binding and valid contract for the sale of lands devised, is in equity as much a revocation as a conveyance would be at law. Id. 178.

Devise of real estates to be sold, and the produce applied in the same manner as the residue of the personal estate. Codicil not executed so as to pass real estates, revoking the bequest of the residue, does not affect the will as to the real. Gallini v. Noble, 3 Mer. 691.

Mortgage in fee after a devise, is a revocation pro tanto only. Tucker v. Thurstan, 17 Ves. 134. MORTGAGE.

Devise of real estate not revoked by bankruptcy; distinction in that respect between bankruptcy and deviseisin. Charman v. Charman, 14 Ves. 580. BANKRUPTCY.

Settlement of personal estate upon a second marriage, upon trust to pay such persons, &c. as the settlor shall by deed or will appoint, and in default thereof to his issue. Construction upon the whole that it was to operate unless a subsequent instrument should be executed: a prior will therefore revoked. Leigh v. Norbury, 13 Ves. 340. SETTLEMENT.

Distinction as to the effect of a partition upon a devise; if the conveyance goes no further, the devise is not revoked, as it is if he takes the divided estate with a power of appointment. Mannudrell v. Mannudrell, 10 Ves. 256. PARTITION.

Revocation of a devise by an exchange, though the land, after the death of the devisor, was restored to his heir, under an arrangement in consequence of a defect discovered in the title of the other party to the exchange. Att. Gen. v. Vigor, 8 Ves. 256.

The ground upon which a partition does not revoke a devise. If the object is to do any thing beyond mere partition, it is a revocation. Id. 281. PARTITION.

Deviseisin and remitter by entry no revocation of will. Id. 282.

No instance of a revocation of a will at law being held not a revocation in equity, where the partial, particular, purpose was not for charges or incumbrances, or to pay debts. Harmond v. Oglunder, 8 Ves. 126.

Codicil reciting a specific and limited purpose, revokes the whole devise, declaring the trusts again, with the proposed alteration, and confirms the will in every particular not thereby altered or revoked; the omission of one trust, though probably against the intention, cannot be supplied. Holder v. Howell, 8 Ves. 97.

Testamentary appointment of guardian is not revoked by a subsequent testamentary appointment not executed according to the statute, and not directly importing revocation. Exp. El. Ilchester, 7 Ves. 348. GUARDIAN, TESTAMENTARY.

An act inconsistent with will, though, by some accident independent of will it fails of effect, is a revocation. Id. 370.

An express revocation, if only subservient to another purpose for which it is incompetent, shall not revoke. Id. 379.

Will may be revoked by an instrument not attested as would be required to give it effect; any disposition that would, by the instrument, have completely put an end to that will, shall have that effect; the instrument becomes ineffectual by accident or circumstances dehors the will. Id. 374.

Where the act is valid for the whole purpose, but by disability of person to take, or some matter dehors or subsequent to the will, it is ineffectual, it is a revocation. Id. 373.

Disposition so made by will as to have legal effect, and afterwards another, by which the former would be revoked; but the other substituted, and it is evident that testator did not intend revocation for any other purpose than to give it effect, if the second instrument cannot have effect of disposition, it shall not be a revocation. Cited Id. 372.

The effect of revocation in equity, produced by an agreement for partition, in such a manner as to deprive the testatrix in equity of any interest in the estate devised; and the devisee disappointed, has no right to compensation from heir. Knollys v. Alcock, 7 Ves. 558.

Mere partition, whether by compulsion or agreement, is not a revocation of a will; but the slightest addition as a power of appointment, prior to the limitation of the uses, is sufficient. Id. 564. PARTITION.

Devise of fee farm rents revoked in equity as well as at law, by subsequent conveyance to trustees, operating an alteration of estate beyond mere purpose of securing a mortgage; but on account of laches of plaintiffs, the heirs at law, court would not give relief, further than by retaining bill, with liberty to bring action, &c. to give an opportunity of taking opinion of court of law, whether there is a revocation at law, or whether court of law will presume a republication from long possession; leaving it open whether plaintiffs are entitled to any account, and for how far back. Harmond v. Oglunder, 6 Ves. 199. PR. RETAINING BILL: LACHES.

Wherever the whole legal estate is conveyed, whether for a partial or general purpose, with the single exception of the case of partition, a court of law has nothing to do with the purpose, but is to see whether the interest remains the same in the devisor as at the date of the will; if not, whether the purpose is partial or general, by way of charge or not, it is a revocation at law. Id. 218.

Devise is not revoked in equity by a mortgage in fee, or a conveyance in fee, for payment of debts; though after debts are paid, the devisor takes a conveyance to him and his heirs. Id. 221. but see the case on appeal, 8 Ves. 106. contra.

Construction of several testamentary papers, that some revoked others, probate having been granted of all. Beauchamp v. El. Hardwicke, 5 Ves. 280.

Testator by codicil revoked the legacy of 50*l.* bequeathed to his sister. The only legacy given to her was 100*l.* given by the will: as to the effect of the codicil, qu? Id. Carrington v. Payne, 5 Ves. 405.

Lease for years or life is a revocation of a will pro tanto only. Id. 654.

Testator makes a foffment after will to the use of himself in fee, or suffers a recovery; it is a revocation. Id. 664.

By a mortgage in fee of a devised estate, or a conveyance in fee for payment of debts, the will is revoked pro tanto only. El. Temple v. Ds. Chandos, 3 Ves. 685.

Articles to sell a devised estate are a revocation in equity, but not at law. Williams v. Owens, 2 Ves. J. 601. AGREEMENT TO SELL ESTATE.

A devised all his estates to widow for life, remainder to nephew, he paying 2000*l.* to appointee of widow, and made her executrix and residuary legatee. The estates were held under church leases, which testator renewed after will; quare, if a revocation? The widow by will, in "pursuance of power," appointed plaintiffs, and devised estates "so given by her said husband's will, and all her interest, &c. therein" to trustees for nephew, on his paying the said 2000*l.* "according to the true intent, &c." of husband's will, but not before or otherwise. Supposing the renewal of leases a revocation, the widow shall be presumed to have designedly given effect to real intent of husband. Penrice v. Gamons, 3 Anst. 821. RENEWAL OF LEASES; DEVISE, C. OF; POWER, EXECUTION OF.

Where real estate is charged with legacies generally, by will, duly attested, legacies may be revoked or charged by an unattested instrument. Buckeridge v. Ingram, 2 Ves. J. 665. WILL, EXECUTION OF.

By marriage articles, the husband covenanted to convey to the use of himself for life, remainder in trust to secure an annuity to his wife for life, in bar of dower; remainder to trustees for years to raise portions; remainder to the sons and daughters successively in tail; remainder to his own right heirs. Afterwards he devised, upon condition that he should have no issue; and after the will he, in pursuance of the articles, conveyed to trustees and their heirs to the uses and trusts of the articles: the will is not revoked. Williams v. Owens, 2 Ves. J. 594.

The rules as to revocation applied to legal estates, are, in equity, applied to equitable estates. Id. ib.

Mortgage in fee is a total revocation at law, but, in equity only pro tanto. Id. ib.

Recovery by tenant in tail, with reversion in fee, is a revocation at law: so in equity, if an equitable estate. Id. 698. RECOVERY.

Fine for the mere purpose of a partition, is no revocation, even at law. Id. 600. FINE & RECOVERY; PARTITION.

Testator devised all his real estate to his sister for life, remainder to her children as she should appoint; for want of appointment, to all her children and their heirs as tenants in common. His sister having two daughters, by a codicil, declared to be a codicil to his will, not then at hand, he gave one of them an annuity, and directing his annuities to be paid out of his three per cent. stock, he charged them on his real estate in case of a deficiency, and directing the residue of his personal estate to be invested in freehold lands and hereditaments, he recommended to his sister to settle and convey, or join with her husband in settling and conveying all his estates and property which she might derive from him after his decease to the use of her two daughters for life, in such parts, shares and proportions as she would approve, with remainder to their respective issue, and cross-remainders, and the usual powers and clauses in strict settlement. The testator's sister died in his life, and her two daughters were his co-heiresses. Some real estates were purchased between the executions of the will and codicil. As to the real estate, the will is not revoked, but is republished by the codicil, and the two nieces are entitled to all the real estates, and to those directed to be purchased, as tenants in common in fee. Meggison v. Moore, 2 Ves. J. 630. WILL, C. OF; CODICIL; WILL, REPUBLICATION OF.

Articles to settle estates of husband subject to certain uses and trusts on first and other sons in tail male; remainder to husband in fee. The husband confirming the articles, devised the same estates, in case he should die without issue male, or on failure of issue male in life of wife; and by a subsequent settlement in performance of articles conveyed to trustees (after certain uses and trusts) to the use of his first and other sons in tail male; remainder to himself in fee. The whole fee being conveyed, and some of the purposes being inconsistent with the will and the articles, the will is revoked as to the settled estate. Ds. Chandos v. Brydges, 7 Bro. P. C. 505. S. C. 2 Ves. J. 417. 430.

If lands devised are conveyed for a principal purpose, as a mortgage or payment of debts, it is a revocation pro tanto only. Brydges v. Chandos, 2 Ves. J. 417.

Partition is no revocation of a devise; otherwise if the object extends farther, even merely to a power of appointment. At. 429. PARTITION.

A deed obtained by fraud is not a revocation of a prior will. Hawes v. Wyatt, 3 Bro. C. C. 156. Vide S. C. on the hearing at the Rolls, 2 Cox, 263. FRAUD IN OBTAINING DEED.

In cases of contract for land before, but executed after making a will of land, the subsequent execution is not a revocation, the legal interest coming in esse afterwards, would not pass by the will at law, but in equity is bound by the prior devise of the equitable interest. Perry v. Phelps, 1 Ves. J. 255.

Stock was, in contemplation of a marriage, vested in trustees for the separate use of the wife for life, and with full power for her to dispose of it by will. She made her will during coverture. She survived the husband, and afterwards took a transfer of the stock into her own name. This does not operate as a revocation of the will, or an ademption of the bequest of the stock. Dingwell v. Askew. 1 Cox, 427. LEGACY, ADEMPMENT OF.

Feme covert, under a power, makes a will; afterwards becoming discover, she takes a conveyance from the trustees to her own use. This is a revocation of the will. Lawrence v. Wallis, 2 Bro. C. C. 319.

F, by will, orders his estate to be sold, and the produce to be divided. He afterwards sells the estate; this is a revocation of the will. Arnold v. Arnold, 1 Bro. C. C. 401. S. C. 2 Dick. 645.

Testator having bequeathed his personal estate to his wife, with a contingent disposition to any child she might be enceinte with, by an instrument executed in the East Indies; during his last illness, empowers A and B, to invest any gold dust, &c. which he had in bottomry, &c. as they should think most advantageous, and deliver the same over to his wife, or her assigns, she running all risk: held, that this instrument, though it had been proved in the ecclesiastical court, was merely an act inter vivos, and not a revocation of the will. Pigott v. Janson, 1 Eden, 469.

One partner by will gives one ninth of one twelfth of the profits reserved to him, to his partners. He afterwards, on the expiration of the partnership, renews it with the same partners, giving them a greater interest than they had under the former articles: held, they were entitled to one ninth of the testator's interest in the partnership at his death, and that the renewal of the articles was not an ademption nor revocation of the devise. Backwell v. Child, Amb. 260. WILL, C. OF; LEGACY, ADEMP. OF.

A fcoffment in fee, executed after a will, is a revocation, even if there was no livery. Spruon v. Handcastle, 3 Atk. 803.

Where a man has an equitable interest in fee in an estate, and devises it, and makes a subsequent conveyance of the legal estate to "the same uses," it is no revocation. Parsons v. Freeman, 3 Atk. 749.

If will be made, and afterwards another will without cancelling the former, and either will is proved to be confirmed after the other will, the whole estate comprised in the will so last confirmed, will go according to the limitations in that will. Phipps v. Anglessey, 7 Bro. P. C. 445.

If there are two inconsistent wills of the same date, neither of which can be proved to be last executed, they are both void by the common law for uncertainty, and will let in the heir at law, unless such wills are explained by some subsequent act of the testator, so as to reconcile such inconsistency. Id. ib.

If two wills appear, and the limitations in both are consistent, and they have both been confirmed by various codicils, the wills and codicils may be taken together as one testamentary disposition, and such construction made as that the limitations in both wills shall take place, to the disherison of the heir at law. Id. ib.

Where a common recovery is to a particular purpose, it shall operate as a revocation only to answer that purpose. Parsons v. Freeman, 3 Atk. 741. FINE & RECOVERY.

Grant by a husband to his wife in his lifetime will not revoke his will, giving every thing from her. Beard v. Brand, 3 Atk. 72.

B, after making his will, surrendered the college leases he had devised thereby, and accepted two new leases, for which he paid a larger fine: but the last lease was not sealed by the college till after the testator's death: held, that the first lease was a revocation; but the latter, which was not sealed, was not. Abney v. Miller, 2 Atk. 593. 2 Ves. 418.

If testator, after devising an estate for lives, surrender it and take a new lease, it is a revocation. S. C. Id. 527.

So where a fcoffment was made to the same uses with those of a preceding will, it was held a revocation, and the rule of revocation of wills is the same in equity as at law. Id.

Purchasing the reversion in fee, after a devise of the life estate, was a revocation pro tanto, and descends upon the heir. Culton v. Hancock, 2 Atk. 425. S. C. Ridgw. 301.

Testatrix gave her real and personal estate to plaintiffs for life; remainder to J A in tail; remainder to R A in fee, with a few pecuniary legacies, and charged her real estate with the payment, if her personal estate should not be sufficient, and by her will declared she gave all the rest and residue of her personal estate to L C's three daughters: held that the testatrix's charging real estate with the legacies if the personal is not sufficient, shews her intention in one event to revoke the devise of personal, and there being an alteration of her intention before she finishes her will, the construction is, she has altered her will throughout, and plaintiffs are not entitled to any part of the personal estate, but residue belongs to three daughters of L C. Ulrick v. Lichfield, 2 Atk. 372.

Where the same thing is given in a will to two different persons, Ld. Coke said, "the latter words shall revoke the former;" but in Plowden, in the case of Paramore v. Yardley it was held, they shall take as joint-tenants; but Ld. Hardwicke said he rather inclined to Ld. Coke's opinion. Id.

So where a man gives a horse to A in the first part of his will, and in the latter part, he gave the same horse to B, it was held a revocation, and Swinburne, pt. 7, c. 1, is mistaken in point of law, in saying they should take a joint-tenants. Id.

The rule is the same as to revocations of a devise of lands, and a revocation of a sum of money charged on lands; they must be revoked in the same manner. Brydenell v. Boughton, 2 Atk. 272. WILL, EXECUTION; LEGACIES CHARGED ON LAND.

There are virtual as well as express revocations, as by extinguishing or destroying the thing devised which are out of the statute and remain as they did before. Id.

Suppose a will is made according to form, and afterwards the lands sold and conveyed to others, though the form of revocation the statute prescribes is not pursued, yet it is a virtual revocation. Id.

A feoffment to the use of a testator and his heirs is a revocation. If a man charge his lands with a debt, and afterwards pays that debt, it is extinct, though there is no formal revocation. Lands charged with a portion by a will, and the same given by testator in his lifetime, is a virtual revocation, though no actual one. Id.

In all cases where a man gives a personal legacy charged on a real estate, and the will is revoked, the legacies are gone, for when the land is meant only as a collateral security, if the thing secured be taken away, the security itself cannot subsist. Id.

Testator devises to A all his dividends on his S. S. annuities, and afterwards by codicil gives to C an annuity for life, payable out of his S. S. annuities: held not to be a revocation in toto, but the devises may stand consistently together. Stone v. Evans, 2 Atk. 86.

A demise of lease for years to the same person, to whom the fee is devised, and which commences in the life of the devisor, is no revocation of the fee. Villiers v. Villiers, 2 Atk. 72.

A mortgage in fee after a devise of the estate, is in law a total revocation; in equity pro tanto only. Cusborne v. Scarfe, 1 Atk. 606. MORTGAGE.

Will sufficient to pass personal estate will not revoke a will prior of real estate, made according to statute of frauds. Limbery v. Muson, 2 Com. 451. REAL ESTATE.

Tenant in tail male, remainder to himself in fee, devises his lands to J. and then suffers a recovery to the use of himself in fee, and dies without issue male; this is a revocation of the will. Marwood v. Turner, 3 P. W. 163.

One seised of a lease for lives devises it, and afterwards renews; the renewal is a revocation of the will. Id. 166. LEASE, RENEWAL OF.

The same circumstances ought to be proved to have happened on part of testator to shew notice of revocation of will in equity as in law, unless they are prevented by party interested. Piggott v. Penrice, 1 Com. 250. EVID.; FRAUDS, ACTS PREVENTED BY.

One devises land, and afterwards articles for a valuable consideration to sell or settle the premises; this in equity is a revocation of the will. Cotter v. Leger, 2 P. W. 624. MOS. 277.

A and B were tenants in common of lands in fee: A devised his moiety in fee, after which A and B made partition by deed and fine, declaring the uses as to one moiety in severalty to B in fee: Held, that the will of B was not revoked by the deed and fine levied in pursuance thereof. Luther v. Kidby or Kirby, 8 Vin. Ab. 148. pl. 30. 3 P. W. 169. (n.) See Swift v. Roberts, 3 Burr. 1490.

A devise of lands to trustees, who are afterwards charged by a codicil, is not revoked by the codicil; but the new trustees shall stand seised upon the trusts of the will, although the word heirs is made use of in the codicil. Acherley v. Vernon, 3 Bro. P. C. 85. S. C. 9 Mod. 68. 1 P. W. 783. Com. 381. 2 Eq. Ab. 209. CODICIL.

One, by deed and fine, mortgages: this a revocation of a will only pro tanto. Rider v. Hager, 2 P. W. 334. MORTGAGE.

Lands devised to one in fee, and afterwards mortgaged to the same person, is a revocation in toto; but if mortgaged to a stranger, a revocation quoad the mortgage only. Harkness v. Bayley, Prec. Chan. 514.

A settled lands, with power of revocation by writing in the presence of three witnesses, and in her last illness, by letter, desired a deed of revocation to be prepared, but died before it was done, having by will given the lands to charitable uses. Held, a good appointment, though no revocation. Pigot v. Penrice, Gilb. Eq. Rep. 137.

A devised lands to his executor for payment of his scheduled debts, remainder over; afterwards, he mortgaged part of the lands, and paid most of the scheduled debts. This mortgage was held no revocation, but the decree was afterwards reversed, without prejudice to the heir at law. Baruch v. Carter, 8 Vin. Ab. 147, pl. 25. MORTGAGE.

One devises his land, by will, attested by three witnesses, and afterwards makes another will of his land, which revokes all former wills, but this will is not duly executed. The last will being no will, and void, will not amount to a revocation of the former. Onions v. Tyrer, 2 Vern. 742. S. C. Prec. Cha. 459. Gilb. Eq. Rep. 130. 1 P. W. 343.

A devises lands, in trust to permit his daughter S to receive the rents until her marriage, or death; and in case she marry with the consent of trustees, then to convey the premises to her and her heirs; but if she died before marriage, or married without such consent, then to convey to other persons. S afterwards marries, with the consent of her father, who settles part of the lands on her and her husband, and dies. This settlement is no revocation of the will as to the devise of the other lands to S. Clarke v. Berkeley, 2 Vern. 720.

J H, having settled his real estate in trust for himself for life, and afterwards to such uses as he might by deed or will appoint, and, in default of appointment, to sole use of the heirs of his body, by his will noticing the settlement, after giving several legacies, devised all the rest of his real and personal estate to J P (who was not his heir) and the heirs of his body, &c. By lease and release, subsequent to the will, J H conveyed the real estate to a trustee for himself for life, and afterwards for such uses as he should by deed or will appoint, with power to raise, &c., for debts, &c., and, for default of appointment, for J H, his heirs and assigns. J H died, without altering will, or making any other appointment. Held, that the latter conveyance was a revocation of will. Husband v. Husband, 7 Bro. P. C. 433.

Devise of lands to A, and afterwards the devisor devised the same lands to B, a pupist; both devises are void; for though the last is void as a will, yet it is good as a revocation. Roper v. Constable, 8 Vin. Ab. 141. note to pl. 2. 2 Eq. Ab. 771, pl. 8.

Lease and release of estate, subsequent to will, is a revocation thereof. Pollen v. Husband, 1 Eq. Ab. 412.

A devised lands, and afterwards mortgaged them for years, and then levied a fine sur connaissance de droit come ceo, &c. and not a fine sur concessit: this will be a revocation; but if there had been a fine sur concessit, it had revoked only pro tanto. Anon. 8 Vin. Ab. 136, pl. 10.

A devises lands to his son J for ninety-nine years, determinable upon three lives, and charges the same with an annuity of 10*l.* to his daughter M. The testator afterwards devised these lands to S for ninety-nine years, determinable on three other lives, reserving a yearly rent of 50*l.* Held, that the demise was a revocation of the devise, but not of the annuity, there being rent enough reserved to satisfy it. Parker v. Lamb, 3 Bro. P. C. 12. S. C. 2 Vern. 495.

A devises lands to trustees to pay his debts, and then to pay his wife 200*l.* per annum for her life. Testator lived several years, and his debts increased from 2500*l.* to 10,000*l.*, for 8000*l.* whereof his said trustees were bound. A, the testator, by deed and fine, conveys his lauds to his said trustees to sell, to pay debts, and the surplus to him and his heirs, and his wife joins in the fine and conveyance. Whether this is a revocation of the wife's 200*l.* per annum, or whether she shall have the 200*l.* a year out of the surplus of the money after the debts paid? Decreed for the wife. Vernon v. Jones, 2 Vern. 241. S. C. Pre. Ch. 32. 2 Freem. 117.

One devises a lease to his daughter, and afterwards renews the lease, and afterwards adds a codicil to his will. Whether the renewal of the lease is a revocation? and whether the adding a codicil to his will is a republication? Alford v. Earle, 2 Vern. 209. Nels. Ch. Rep. 162. S. C.

A devises lands, and then makes a mortgage thereof in fee. This is a revocation in law, but otherwise in equity. Hall v. Deuch, 1 Vern. 329. MORTGAGE.

A man devises land in fee, and then makes a lease for years of the same land. The lease, if not made to the devisee, is a revocation at law, pro tanto only. Perkins v. Walker, 1 Vern. 97.

IX. NUNCUPATIVE WILL.

See the stat. 29 Car. 2. c. 3. ss. 19, 20, 1, 2, 3. Chit. Stat. 1127. 4 Ann. c. 16. s. 14. id. 20, 1129.

Suits concerning nuncupative wills to be dismissed. Beame's Ord. 9.

One seised in fee of land limits a term to trustees for 100 years upon such trust as he by deed or will should appoint, and for want of such appointment to attend the inheritance, and afterwards by a nuncupative will gives all to J S, and being a bastard dies without issue; this will not pass the trust of the term. Thruston v. Att. Gen., 1 Vern. 340. WILL, C. OF, WHAT PASSES.

A died beyond the sea and made a nuncupative will; B took administration here and brought his bill for a discovery of the supposed intestate's personal estate; the defendant pleaded the will and that he was executor, and that A left no assets but what were beyond seas. Plea allowed. Jauncy v. Sealey, 1 Vern. 397. FOREIGN COURT; PERSONAL ESTATE; PL. PLEA; ADMON.

X. PROBATE AND PROOF OF.

See also EXORS. IV. 1.—PR. EVID. 25, 26.

By 55 G. 3. c. 184. s. 37. 100*l.* penalty attaches on meddling with testator's property without taking out probate within six months after his death. And see further as to probate, id. ss. 38 to 51. Chit. Stat. 956, 7, 8.

An executor filed a bill before probate; plea that he had not proved the will, allowed. Simons v. Milman, 2 Sim. 241. PL. PLEA; EXOR.

The probate act-book of the prerogative court containing an entry of a will being proved, and of probate being granted to the executors therein named, admitted as evidence of those persons being the executors without accounting for the non-production of the probate. Cox v. Allingham, 1 Jac. 514. EVID. EXORS.

Probate of a will not evidence that copyholds pass by it. Jervoise v. De. Northumberland, 1 Jac. & W. 570. EVID.; COPYHOLD.

Probate is not evidence of will of real estate. Gibson v. Whitehead, 4 Mad. 244. PR. EVID.; REAL ESTATE.

Probate of the will of a married woman which is now necessary, though formerly otherwise limited to her power, by the assent of her husband with respect to any beneficial interest: not, as to her right, as executrix of another person to make an executor, and continue the representation. Stevens v. Bugwell, 15 Ves. 139. FEME COVERT.

A paper proved as a will, reciting the marriage articles of the testator's daughter with A, confirming those articles, and directing that all the testator's property and effects shall be vested in A, preferable to any executor or administrator upon and after the testator's decease for all and every the purposes of his said agreement expressed or intended. The probate obtained by A as executor, held conclusive, and he was held not a trustee for the next of kin upon parol evidence of declarations, subsequent to the will. Walton v. Walton, 14 Ves. 318. EXOR. BENEf. INTERESTED; WILL, C. OF.

To get money out of the court, however small the amount, a prerogative probate is necessary. Thomas v. Davies, 12 Ves. 417. PR. PAYMENT OUT OF COURT; EXOR.

A codicil expressed to be in event of testator's death before he joins his wife, was executed after their separation in West Indies, upon an intended voyage to England. The voyage being prevented by accident, he joined her and they lived together there and in England, having returned together; and the testator having afterwards gone to Corsica, and thence to Lisbon, died there. The codicil held to be contingent, and did not take effect under circumstances. Probate is not conclusive not being refused except in plain case. Sinclair v. Arne, 6 Ves. 607. WILL, C. OF; PR. EVID.

B, a married woman, made a will merely executing a power given her by the marriage settlement, but she appointed C executrix generally. The ecclesiastical court granted probate of this will in the general form. B was the sole executrix of her late husband A. The general probate of the will of B will transmit to C the representation of A without an administration de bonis non. Burr v. Carter, 2 Cox, 429. EXOR.

In an abstract of a vendor's title, a will which formed part of it was represented as having been proved in the spiritual court; which afterwards appeared not to have been done. The purchaser filed his bill praying that the defendants might either be decreed to prove the will, or that it might be deposited in the hands of the master for safe custody. It appeared that two other persons were intended under the will, and they were added as parties, and they not objecting, the will was directed to be deposited with the master for safe custody. The vendors having by their misrepresentations occasioned the suit, were ordered to pay all the costs. Harrison v. Coppard, 2 Cox, 319. VENDOR & PURCH.; TITLE; PR. PRODUCTION DEEDS INTO COURT.

Prerogative probate necessary for the accountant-general to pay money out of court. Docker v. Horner, 3 Bro. C. C. 240. Vide S. C. 2 Dick. 746. PR. PAYMENT OUT OF COURT.

Probate of a will is conclusive evidence of the sanity of the testator to dispose of his personal estate, but it is by no means conclusive evidence of his capacity to dispose of his real estate. Hume v. Burton, 1 Ridgw. P. C. 277. EVID.

Heir at law, not sole plaintiff, bringing bill to establish will, court declared it well proved and established it. Penny v. Penny, Dick. 520.

Admission of will by feme covert, heiress at law, living separately from husband, sufficient to establish it. Codrington v. El. Shelburne, id. 475.

Will, though proved per testes, not declared well proved in absence of heir, but decreed to be established. Stokes v. Taylor, id. 349.

One of three witnesses to will, not to be found; but on sufficient evidence will declared well executed. Binfield v. Lambert, Dick. 337.

But in Bird v. Butler, will not declared well executed, but trusts to be performed and carried into execution. Id. ib. note. See id. 349.

Probate of testator's will, evidence of his death. French v. French, Dick. 268.

Where probate and will differ, application to amend must be made to spiritual court. Marsh v. Hunt, 2 Atk. 50.

Will not declared well proved in absence of heir, but real estate to be sold in pursuance of trust. Cator v. Butler, Dick. 438. Vide also French v. Baron, id. 138; and S. C. 2 Atk. 120. S. P.

Bill to establish will, and execution of trust by sale of estate. Heir at law not to be found, court cannot pronounce will proved, heir not being before court; but real estate to be sold. French v. Baron, Dick. 138.

Probate obtained by fraud, relieved against here, and the deed importing a consent thereto set aside here, not in ecclesiastical court; and the defendant decreed to consent to a revocation of the probate. Barnesley v. Porel, 1 Ves. 287. FRAUD; JURISDICTION.

There is no occasion to prove a will in the spiritual court, to entitle a legatee to remove his property out of the real estate. Tucker v. Phypys, 3 Atk. 361.

Where a feme covert has a power to dispose of her estate by will, the writing she leaves ought first to be propounded as a will in the spiritual court; and if no executor is appointed, they will grant administration to the husband, with the will annexed. Ross v. Ewer, 3 Atk. 160. HUSB. & WIFE.

On a bill to establish a will against an heir, though he made default, the court ordered the proofs to be read, and said, that otherwise, the will could not be well proved. Well v. Litcott, 3 Atk. 25. Vide French v. Baron, 2 Atk. 120. HEIR AT LAW.

An executor before probate may so far act as to get in and receive his testator's estate, or release debts, or even bring actions for them. Willis v. Kirk, 2 Atk. 285. EXOR. POWEN.

When will is to be established, the testator must be proved to be of sound and disposing mind. Wallis v. Hodgson, 2 Atk. 56.

If the validity of a will have been already determined, and it has been acted upon, equity will restrain proceedings in the prerogative court to controvert it. Sheffield v. Da. of Bucks, 1 Atk. 628. INJUNC.

Where parties are dissatisfied with a probate, chancery will suspend its determination, till after a trial upon the validity of it in the proper court; for equity cannot determine upon the validity of a probate adversely; but if it comes incidentally before the court, and that incident is admitted, the court may determine it, and hold the parties bound by their admission; for an admission by a party concerned in matters of fact, is stronger than if it had been determined by a jury, and facts are as properly concluded by admission as by a trial. There is no difference between parties admitting things proper to be determined by the court, in which the admission is made, and the admission of things cognizable in another court, for they are equally bound. Id. 630. ADMISSION OF FACTS.

Where an executor before probate files a bill, and afterwards proves the will, such subsequent probate makes the bill a good one. Humphreys v. Humphreys, 3 P. W. 351. EXOR.

Where there are two wills, the first devising the real estate to charitable uses, and the personal estate to particular legatee; and the second will bequeathing the personality to other legatees, and the real estate to such uses as testator should declare, and probate is granted of first will; such probate is conclusive against the claimants under the second will, until reversed by commission of review. Annesley v. Palmer, 9 Mod. 8.

Bill of revivor must show that plaintiff has proved testator's will. Humphreys v. Ingleton, Dick. 38.

Where original will is lost, and from exemplification thereof, under seal of prerogative court, there is reason to suspect its validity as to disposition of real estate; such exemplification cannot be admitted as evidence, but party must be left to his remedy at law. Arthur v. Arthur, 3 Bro. P. C. 568. PR. EVID.

Heir at law by his answer admitted the will, but died before the cause was brought to hearing, and left an infant heir; and by a bill of revivor, the infant was made a defendant and the suit revived; it was held, that the will must be proved per testes against such infant heir. Sleeman v. Sleeman, Dick. 787. INFANT.

A will is made in French, and the probate in English, and varies from the original probate, being in a different language, is not conclusive. L'Fit v. L' Batt, 1 P. W. 526.

So also the probate of a will cannot be read in case of a real estate, if the defendant admits merely that he believes there is in such a will; secus, if the admission is full. Muggins v. Pratt, Bun. 6. PR. EVIDENCE IN ONE COURT, READ IN ANOTHER.

XI. SUBSTITUTION.

See also LEGACY, VII.

On construction of two wills, second held to be in substitution of first. Hemming v. Currey, 2 S. & S. 311.

There being several codicils to a will, some of which have repetitions of others, the court declared them to be only substitution. Campbell v. El. Radnor, 1 Bro. C. C. 271.

Where a testamentary instrument incomplete as a will, appears on the face of it, to be intended as a substitution for a former complete will, the legacies given by the latter only shall take effect, notwithstanding both instruments are proved in the spiritual court; but where a former will makes a charge of legacies generally on land, and a subsequent will, giving legacies, is not attested so as to affect the land, yet the general charge of the former shall include the legacies given by the latter, otherwise where the charge is made of particular legacies. Jackson v. Jackson, 2 Cox, 35.

XII. MUTUAL WILLS.

An agreement between two sons to divide equally whatever property they may receive from their father in his lifetime, or become entitled to under his will, or by descent or otherwise from him, is not contrary to public policy, but will be enforced in equity. Wethered v. Wethered, 2 Sim. 183. PUBLIC POLICY; AGREEMENT.

Mutual wills by two unmarried sisters under twenty-one, the marriage of one does not revoke the will of the other. Hinckley v. Simmons, 4 Ves. 160. WILL, REVOCATION OF.

Mutual will can only be revoked by both jointly or by one separately, by giving notice of such revocation, and not at all after death of one party. Dufour v. Pereira, Dick. 419.

XIII. OBTAINED BY FRAUD.

Where the latter part of a will in favour of a party was clearly executed under undue influence, held inoperative as to the party suggesting it, but valid as to others. Id. Trimbleston v. D'Alton, 1 Dow, N. S. 85. 1 Bli. N. S. 427.

A court of equity will not entertain bill by heir at law for setting aside and declaring void an impeached will, alleged to have been procured to be made under circumstances of fraud charged, unless some obvious definite impediment, which court can see and reach, to proceeding at law by ejectment, be shown by bill to obstruct heir in that (the regular) course, and that although defendants have possessed themselves of all the papers and muniments of the deceased, and threaten to set up outstanding terms. Jones v. Jones, 7 Price, 663. HEIR AT LAW.

Injunction granted to restrain executor claiming under a will, and also by gift from testatrix in lifetime, from selling, upon affidavit of undue influence. Edmunds v. Bird, 1 V. & B. 542. INJUNC.; EXECUTOR.

Relief granted on fraud, in not performing a promise, relying on which, the testator forbore to bequeath. Chamberlain v. Agar, 2 V. & B. 262.

Circumstance that one residuary devisee was the attorney who drew the will, not decisive evidence of fraud. Puine v. Hall, 18 Ves. 475. EVIDENCE.

Discovery compelled where devise was obtained, or prevented by undertaking of devisee or heir, to do certain acts in favour of individuals, and relief upon the ground of fraud. Stickland v. Aldridge, 9 Ves. 519. PL. DISCOVERY.

Executor promised his testator to pay plaintiff 100*l.* legacy, and said he need not put it in his will; after the testator's death, he said he would not pay it. Decree for payment out of assets. Beech v. Kennigate, Ambl. 67. S. C. 1 Ves. 23. 1 Wils. 227.

A fraud in procuring a will, cannot be determined in equity, but must be decided by a trial at law. Webb v. Claverdon, 2 Atk. 424. Vide Bennet v. Vade, 2 Atk. 324.

Bill to set aside a will as obtained by fraud, will lie in equity. Welby v. Thorough, Prec. Chan. 123. But not of real estate. Bramby v. Kerridge, 1 Eq. Ab. 133. JURISDICTION.

A will of land may be good at law as well executed, and yet ill in equity, as if obtained by fraud. Goss v. Tracy, 1 P. W. 288. 2 Vern. 699.

A will as well as a deed may be set aside in chancery for fraud or circumvention. Welby v. Thorough, Prec. Chan. 123. JURISDICTION.

A copyholder by his will intending to give the greatest part of his estate to his godson, and the other part to his wife, the wife persuades him to nominate her to the whole, and that she would give the godson the part designed for him; decreed against the wife notwithstanding the statute of frauds and perjuries. Devenish v. Baines, Prec. Chan. 4. FRAUD, STAT. OF.

Fraud in obtaining a will relating only to a personal estate, is not examinable in Chancery after the will is proved in the spiritual court, so long as that probate is in force. Warwick v. Gerard, 2 Vern. 8. S. P. Nelson v. Oldfield, id. 76. JURISDICTION.

A, having made his will and his wife executrix, the son prevails with the mother to get his father to make a new will, and that he might be made an executor, and promises to be a trustee for his mother: Trust decreed. Thynn v. Thynn, 1 Vern. 296. TRUST.

XIV. MISTAKE AND UNCERTAINTY IN.

To avoid a will for uncertainty, it is not enough that the dispositions in it are so absurd and irrational that it is difficult to believe they could have been intended by the testator; but it must be incapable of any clear meaning. Mason v. Robinson, 2 S. & S. 295.

Will in favour of charity, containing many blanks as to some of the objects to take, and sums, &c.; under circumstances a scheme directed for application of the remaining funds provided for charity by will. Peischel v. Paris, 2 S. & S. 384. CHARITY SCHEME.

One name may be substituted for another in the construction of a will, where it is manifest not only that the name used was not intended, but that a certain other name was necessarily intended. Deut v. Pepps, 6 Mad. 350.

Evidence admitted to prove mistake in name of legatee in will; but one legatee in will who might otherwise have had a claim to that legacy being an infant, inquiry was directed as to the party entitled. Still v. Hoste, 6 Mad. 192. INFANT; EVIDENCE.

Gift of the residue of a fund after the application of an undefined amount to a void charity, is void for uncertainty. Att. Gen. v. Hinman, 2 Jac. & W. 277. RESIDUE; CHARITY.

If testator gives stock standing in his name, and has no such stock, the legacy fails; the court sends it to the master to inquire what the testator intended, as well where there is a misdescription of fund, as of legatee. Frans v. Tripp, 6 Mad. 91. INQUIRY BEFORE MASTER; LEGACY, SPECIFIC.

Evidence not admissible that deviser did not mean what he had expressed, but admissible to show that a particular expression was not his will. Porell v. Mouchett, and Litchfield v. Mouchett, 6 Mad. 216. EVIDENCE.

Where testator gives stock standing in his name, and has not stock so standing, but it is in the name of a trustee, parol evidence is admissible of the mistake. Henson v. Reid, 5 Mad. 451. PAROL EVIDENCE.

Testator possessed of 5000*l.* three per cent. consols, bequeathed 2000*l.* thereof to trustees, in trust, as to 1000*l.* to A, and as to 2000*l.* to B. Held, that testator meant to give trustees 3000*l.* in trust, bequest to them being mentioned only once, and a id legacy of 2000*l.* to B being mentioned twice. Alfred v. Green, 5 Mad. 92.

Testamentary papers in this form: "I leave and bequeath to all my grandchildren, and share and share alike;" and "further, I appoint F H and F E my trustees for all my grandchildren and nieces;" are void for uncertainty, and pass no interest in the real estate. Mohun v. Mohun, 1 Swan. 201.

Bequest in trust for such "benevolent purposes as the trustees in their integrity and discretion may unanimously agree on," not to be supported as a charitable legacy, the word "benevolent" not being to be restricted to the sense of "charitable," so as to authorise the court to say that the application of the property must be confined to such objects as are, strictly speaking, objects of charity; therefore void for uncertainty, and distributable amongst the next of kin. James v. Allen, 3 Mer. 17. WILL, C. OF; CHARITY.

The meaning of an ambiguous will to be collected from the words and the context, not from the punctuation. Sanford v. Railles, 1 Mer. 651.

Testator having a right to order a thing to be done, expressing in his will that it is to be done, must be understood to speak imperatively, and not merely by way of recital. Id. ib.

Bequest of personal property in trust for A (a married woman) for her separate use; with a power of disposing by will (except to particular persons); "And in case she dies without a will, I give all that may remain at her decease to B," followed by a gift of "all the rest and residue" to A, who is appointed executrix: A takes the absolute interest in the property, not a power of disposing merely; and the gift to B of "all that may remain at her decease," is void for uncertainty. Bull v. Kingston, 1 Mer. 314. WILL, C. OF, WHAT INTEREST.

Legacy to "R C, my nephew, the son of Joseph C," other clauses describing "my nephew R C," generally, and one legacy to my nephew, R C, the son of John C." The testator had only two brothers, John C, & T C, each having a son named R C: parol evidence admitted to resolve this latent ambiguity; shewing intimacy with the son of John C, and very slight knowledge of the other, and the legacy was decreed to the former. Careless v. Careless, 19 Ves. 601. S. C. 1 Mer. 384. PR. EVIDENCE PAROL.

Where it was impossible to ascertain the mistake in a devise, the name belonging to one, the description to another, it was held void for uncertainty. Id. 604.

Devise in trust for a son of the testator's nephew, A, at the age of twenty-four; if he have no son, to A, son of the testator's great nephew, B; but if neither have a son, then to a son of the testator's great niece's daughter, taking his name; whoever should take, not to be put in possession of any of the testator's effects until twenty-four, nor the executors to give up their trust till a proper entail be made to the male heir by him; is an executory trust in tail for an only son of A in ventre at the testator's death, and not void for uncertainty, nor too remote. Blackburn v. Stubbs, 2 V. & B. 367. WILL. C. O.; LIMIT. TOO REMOTE; TRUST, EXECUTORY.

General disposition by will not restrained by a defective specification. Chalmers v. Storil, id. 222.

Devise of my estates at S, which were devised to me or purchased from A, the fact proving otherwise, construed not as an intended restriction, but as a misdescription. Welby v. Welby, id. 191.

Evidence of mistake not admissible to affect the construction of a will. Shergold v. Boone, 13 Ves. 376. EVIDENCE.

Bequest to the children of R H, late of N, and now of L, the sum of 100*l.* a piece; R H had left N at the age of fourteen or sixteen, and died in L several years before the will; his only surviving child entitled to the legacy against the claim of the children of G H, formerly of N, residing in L at the testator's death, upon the suggestion of mistake. Holmes v. Cusance, 12 Ves. 279.

Bequest in trust for such objects of benevolence and liberality as trustee in his own discretion should most approve, cannot be supported as a charitable legacy, and is, therefore, a trust for the next of kin. Morice v. Bp. Durham, 9 Ves. 393. Affid. 10 Ves. 522. CHARITY; RESULTING TRUST.

Bequest to A or B void for uncertainty; if discretionary in C, it is good. Longmore v. Broom, 7 Ves. 128.

The christian name of legatee was mistaken in will; legacy was established on evidence. See after great delay in filing bill. Smith v. Coneu, Ves. 42. LACRES.

Legacy of 2400*l.* in the 5 per cent. consolidated bank annuities: decreed, that 2400*l.* 5 per cent. annuities, viz. navy bills, should be purchased, evidence of the intention and mistake as to the fund being rejected. Chambers v. Minchin, 4 Ves. 675.

Legacy to — P. the son of — P.; upon the evidence, the plaintiff, the only claimant, was declared entitled. Price v. Page, 4 Ves. 679.

A will cannot be varied upon the ground of mistake, unless the alleged mistake is clearly inconsistent with the intention upon the whole will. Mellish v. Mellish, 4 Ves. 45. Phillips v. Chamberlaine, id. 51.

Testator gave 100*l.* in trust to pay the interest to A, till her daughter, B, should attain twenty-four, and then he gave the said 100*l.* and the interest then due, to her said mother, A: held, a mistake, and decreed the legacy to be paid to the daughter at the age of twenty-four. Clarke v. Norris, 3 Ves. 362.

Legacy "to Mrs. G." Evidence admitted to prove who was intended. Abbot v. Massie, 3 Ves. 148. PR. EVID., PAROL.

A wrong description of a legatee will not defeat a legacy given to him by name. Standen v. Standen, 2 Ves. 589.

When the testator expresses his intention incorrectly, the court will effect it by supplying proper words. Dodson v. Hay, 3 Bro. C. C. 404.

Gift by will of pictures to Lady —; absolutely void, and shall not go to the master or be supplied by evidence. Hunt v. Hort, id. 311. EVIDENCE, PAROL.

Testator's mistake not rectified, because nothing to shew what would have been the intention, if no mistake. Smith v. Maitland, 1 Ves. J. 362.

Testator directs his executors to invest personal estate in the purchase of real estates, which when purchased, he devises to A, to him and the male heirs of his body for ever; and if A should die without issue male, then he devised the same to the heir male of the body of B: after tail to A, the court will insert a limitation to trustees to preserve contingent remainders. Harrison v. Naylor, 2 Cox, 248. S. C. 3 Bro. C. C. 108. TRUST, EXECUTORY, AFTER ESTATE TAIL.

The testator gave the residue "amongst his seven children A, B, C, D, E, and F," naming only six. The seven children shall all share equally. Humphreys v. Humphreys, 2 Cox, 185.

Legacy to "James, son of Thomas A." There was no person of that description; but there was a "Thomas, son of James A." The court will not receive evidence to show that this was a mistake in the description. Andrews v. Dobson, 1 Cox, 425. EVIDENCE.

A court of equity will not supply words in a will, unless there be palpably error scribentis. Molesworth v. Molesworth, id. 75.

Devise of residue to charitable and pious uses generally; it is not void, but the crown may appoint. So also, if the charitable object be uncertain. Att. Gen. v. Herriek, Amb. 712. CHARITY.

Bequest for the benefit of poor dissenting ministers living in any country; it was in proof that there are three distinct societies of dissenters, and that collections are made for the poor ministers of each: held, the bequest not void for uncertainty, but should go to the poor ministers of each society. Waller v. Childs, id. 524. Id.

Mistake in a will and codicil, as to the amount of a fund out of which younger children were to be provided for, rectified on the evident intent of the testator. Brackenbury v. Brackenbury, 2 Eden, 275. S. C. Amb. 474.

Legacy to the poor inhabitants of L, held good, and to go to the poor not receiving alms. Att. Gen. v. Clarke, Amb. 422. CHARITY.

Devise to the descendants of S now living in or about S, or hereafter living any where else: held good. Crossley v. Clare, id. 347.

Mistake in the description of legatees; yet legacy held good, and took place according to intention. Bradwin v. Harpur, id. 374.

Legacy to son and daughter of W; W had four sons: held, none of the sons could take, but the daughter took the whole. Dorset v. Sweet, id. 175.

Legacy to John and B, sons of S; S had two sons, James and B, but none of the name of John: held, James should take. Id. ib.

Husband devises to his wife 700*l.* E. I. stock, having none; but there was 700*l.* Bank stock, to the surplus of which the wife was entitled as an executrix, after payment of her testator's debts, and which the husband afterwards transferred in his own name. The 700*l.* Bank stock shall go to the wife, being an erroneous description. Doer v. Geary, 1 Ves. 255.

Mistake in the computation of a legacy rectified according to the intention, though contrary to the words. Milner v. Milner, id. 106.

Where there is no devise named, this is an absolute omission, and cannot be supplied by parol evidence. Castledon v. Turner, 3 Atk. 258. PR. EVID. PAROL.

Where testator gave to Bread-street ward, 200l. according to Mr. —'s will, parol evidence was not allowed to explain testator's intention where there is a blank only. Baylis v. Att. Gen. 2 Atk. 239. PAROL EVIDENCE.

When a person is mentioned by a nick-name, or where there have been two, who have had the same christian and surname, parol evidence has been admitted to ascertain whom the testator meant. Ib.

R devised 5000l. S. S. annuities to A, and 5000l. S. S. annuities to P. The testator had only 5000l. in this stock : declared that these should be considered as legacies of quantity and number, and other 5000l. were ordered to be purchased out of the testator's personal estate. Purse v. Smaplin, 1 Atk. 414.

One bequeaths to her grandchild A, some of her best linen ; this void for the uncertainty, yet the court recommended it to the executor to give some of the best linen to the legatee A. Bequest of such of the best linen as the executor should think fit, or as the legatee should choose, had been held good. Peck v. Halsey, 2 P. W. 389.

Legatee's both christian and surnames mistaken, yet the legacy is good. Bennumt v. Fell, id. 141.

One devises all his freehold houses in A, and hath none but leasehold houses there ; the leasehold shall pass ; secus, in a grant. Dog v. Trig, 1 P. W. 286. WILL, C. OF, WHAT PASSES.

A, seised of Blackacre in tail, and Whiteacre in fee, by mistake devises the entailed acre, and leaves the fee-simple acre to descend : the devisee upon his bill had a decree to enjoy. Thomas v. Gyles, 2 Vern. 233. PR. BILL. OF PEACE.

1. General Principles.

Bequest in terms importing an intention not to make an immediate disposition, may upon the construction of the whole will, amount to a present bequest. Lynn v. Beaver, 1 Turn. & R. 67.

The literal and technical force of words in a will, to be counteracted by rational implication. Vauchamp v. Bell, 6 Mad. 343.

On construction of a will, the enjoyment of bequests given in terms indicating a future period, accelerated by implication. Parroti v. Worsfold, 1 Jac. & W. 594.

In construction of residuary clause, question is not what the testator had in contemplation when it was made, but what the words he used according to their ordinary signification will embrace ; unless qualified by other expressions in the will. Bland v. Lamb, 5 Mad. 412.

The sense of the words "die without issue," or "for want of issue," not to be departed from without satisfactory evidence, that they were not intended in that sense. Down v. Penny, 12 Ves. 548.

In construing a will, the state of testator's family at time of will is to be attended to. Odell v. Crone, 1 Ball & B. 449. and affid. in Dom. Proc. S. C. 3 Dow, 68. S. C. 1 Bli. N. S. 594.

In construing will, the intention of testator, and not the technical import of words is to be regarded. Id. ib.

Rules for construction of wills ; the intention if possible to be collected from the words, not from circumstances dehors ; upon general principles and established rules, not by conjecture ; and without inquiring whether the personal estate sufficient for the debts. The personal estate first liable to the debts ; unless the intention is clearly to exempt it, and throw them wholly on the real, for which express words are not necessary. Boote v. Blundell, 19 Ves. 521.

Inconvenient consequences, not in the contemplation of the testator, at the time of making his will, not sufficient to authorize a variation or interpolation in the terms of a bequest : where those terms are in themselves clear and intelligible. Smith v. Streetfield, 1 Mer. 358.

Words in a will must be taken in their legal sense, unless by the context or by express words they clearly appear to be intended otherwise. Synge v. Hales, 2 Ball & B. 506.

The construction of a legal devise must be the same in a court of law or equity. Id. 507.

Where a testator expresses himself in ambiguous terms, respecting the disposition of his property ; the legal operation of the words he uses must be adopted. Stubbs v. Roth, 2 Ball & B. 553.

General rules of construction of will. Noel v. Weston, 2 V. & B. 271.

Construction of will passing fee without words of limitation. As to effect of description of lands as in the occupation, &c. of particular tenant to restrain the legal effect of the word "estate" in a devise to pass the fee. Qu. ? Churton v. Taylor, 3 V. & B. 160.

Semble, that the general word "things" in a will, following particulars enumerated, are confined to things ejusdem generis. Stuart v. Marq. Bute, 1 Dow, 73.

Will is to be construed without regard to the instructions. Murray v. Jones, and Fawcett v. Jones, 2 V. & B. 318. INSTRUCTIONS.

Will, if extrinsic evidence could be admitted, not to be construed by matters posterior to its execution. Welby v. Welby, 2 V. & B. 192.

Construction for creditors favoured not doing violence to or straining the words. Noel v. Weston, 2 V. & B. 269. DEBTOR & CRED.

Words in will "rents and profits" extended beyond their natural meaning, viz. "annual profits" to mortgage or sale, when necessary to effect the object, such as raising a gross sum ; for fines on renewal, as well as portions ; and are not controlled by apparent intention to preserve estates entire. Allan v. Buckhouse, id. 65. Affid. 1 Jac. 631. RENTS & PROFITS.

Rule of construction that the words used by a testator shall be interpreted according to their legal effect and operation, unless it clearly appear that he intended to use them in a different sense. Winslow v. Figlie, 2 Ball & B. 204.

To have recourse to the declarations of a testator as operating on his will, is considered dangerous, and if he has made different declarations at different times, little reliance can be placed on them. Dwyer v. Ly-saght, 2 Ball & B. 162.

Will not to be construed by something dehors ; as by the state of the property where no latent ambiguity. Page v. Leapingwell, 18 Ves. 466.

Different construction of the word "surplus" from that which it commonly bears, inferred from the expression of the will. Id. ib.

A will cannot be construed by adverting to a single clause; every thing bearing on the subject must be taken together. Crome v. Odell, 1 Ball & B. 466. 480. Affd. 3 Dow, P. R. 61.

Particular intent clashing with the general intent in a will must give way. Id. ib.

The state of testator's property cannot be resorted to as a criterion to explain the will. Kellett v. Kellett, 1 Ball & B. 542. Affd. 3 Dow, P. C. 248.

The word "effects" in a will equivalent to "property" or "worldly substance." Campbell v. Prescott, 15 Ves. 607.

Express bequest or power not controuled by the reason assigned; which, though it may aid the construction of doubtful, cannot warrant the rejection of clear words. Cole v. Wade, 16 Ves. 46.

If the meaning of a will is ascertained, reasoning from supposed cases will not induce the court to make a different construction; but can only lead to a conclusion that the testator did not see all the consequences; but the absurdities, improbabilities, and inconsistencies, which may arise out of cases falling within one construction or another, are attended to, with a view of ascertaining the meaning. Leigh v. Leigh, 15 Ves. 103.

It is not universally true, that the expression of a purpose, for which even a devise of land is made, limits the devise to the purpose expressed; where, for instance, there is a devise of land for payment of debts, it does not necessarily follow that there is a trust for the heir after the debts paid. Each case depends upon the circumstances. Where the purpose expressed is in favour of the party to whom the bequest is made, the presumption for limiting the bequest is rather stronger. Walton v. Walton, 14 Ves. 322.

In trying the meaning of phrases in a will all circumstances may be looked at in which the court might have been called to determine the meaning of the same phrases applied to a different state of circumstances. El. Radnor v. Shafte, 11 Ves. 457.

Plain words of gift or necessary implication are required to disinherit heir at law. Berry v. Usher, 11 Ves. 92. HEIR AT LAW.

Words primâ facie equivalent to pass future interests in personal estate, to have that effect, unless controuled by the context. James v. Dean, 11 Ves. 389. Affd. 15 Ves. 236.

The construction of will is not to be altered upon inference from testator's knowledge of circumstances of family. Radeliffe v. Buckley, 10 Ves. 195.

Rule of construction is not to make any intendment contrary to plain and usual sense of words, unless from other parts of will plainly appearing not intended to have that extensive operation. Exp. El. Ilchester, 7 Ves. 368.

Parol evidence not admissible to shew the intention of the testator against the construction upon the face of the will. Cambridge v. Rous, 8 Ves. 22. EVID. PAROL.

Court will not take into consideration the amount of the property, nor the number of objects, for the purpose of construing will, except in case of a specific disposition. Sibley v. Perry, 7 Ves. 522.

The expression "without being married," in a will, construed according to the common acceptance, "without ever having been married." The word "children," legally construed, is confined to legitimate children. "And" construed "or," to give effect to all the words. Bell v. Phyn, 7 Ves. 458.

Every devise of land must be of necessity specific, whether in particular or general terms; otherwise as to personal property. Hays v. El. Dartmouth, 7 Ves. 147.

The word "when," in will, alone and unqualified, is conditional, but it may be controuled by expressions, &c. Hanson v. Graham, 6 Ves. 239.

Every word in construction of will, is to have effect, if not inconsistent with general intention, which is to controul. If two parts are inconsistent, the latter prevails. If a meaning can be collected, but it is wholly doubtful in what manner it is to take effect, it is void for uncertainty. Constantine v. Constantine, 6 Ves. 100.

General words controuled, in order to make the whole will consistent. Survivorship by words creating a joint tenancy, the intention of severance not being sufficiently clear. Whitmore v. Trelawny, 6 Ves. 129 a.

Implication in a will cannot prevail, unless necessary. Upton v. Ferrers, 5 Ves. 801.

The rule of construction of wills is, that if the general intention can be collected, or any one particular object, expressions militating with that may be rejected, if plainly appearing to have been inserted by mistake; not otherwise, and if two parts of the will are totally irreconcilable, the latter overrules the former. Sims v. Doughty, 5 Ves. 243.

Every word of a will must have a meaning imputed to it, if capable of it without a violation of the general intent, or any other provision in the will. Reeves v. Brymer, 4 Ves. 698.

The intention of a testator, if clear and consistent with rules of law, is to govern without regard to the grammatical construction, or whether it deserves favour or not. Thellusson v. Woodford, 4 Ves. 311; affd. 11 Ves. 112.

In some cases, as for creditors, an intention will be inferred from the purpose, beyond what it expressed. Id. ib.

A will is not to be affected on account of the unmeritorious object; only one general rule of construction for courts of law and equity applicable to all wills; however the court may condemn the object, the intention is to be collected from the whole will; every word is to have effect according to the natural common import; words of art to be construed according to the technical sense, unless upon the whole will, plainly not so intended, the court are bound to carry the will into effect, if consistent with the rules of law, and if they can see a general intention consistent with the rules of law; but the particular mode is not; though that shall fail, the general intention shall take effect. Id. 329.

"Heir male," in a will may be words of purchase. Id. 326.

The intention of the testator is not to be set aside, because it cannot take effect to the full extent, but it is to work as far as it can. Id. ib.

Where the whole property is devised with a particular interest given out of it, it operates by way of exception out of the above absolute property. Booth v. Booth, 4 Ves. 408.

Where an absolute property is given by will, and a particular interest is given in the mean time, it is not a condition precedent, but a description of the time when possession is to be taken. Id. 409.

A relict shall be rejected, if repugnant, not if it can be reconciled and made restrictive. Wilson v. Mount, 3 Ves. 194.

Will not to be construed by subsequent circumstances. Moggridge v. Thackwell, 1 Ves. J. 475. S. C. 3 Bro. C. C. 517. Affd. 13 Ves. 416.

The words, "and also" may so far disunite two clauses of a sentence, as to give a different construction to the same words. May v. Wood, 3 Bro. C. C. 472.

In construing wills, the leading rule is, that the intent of the testator should be observed, and no part of a will to which a meaning or operation can be given, shall be rejected. Reeves v. Newnham, 2 Ridgw. P. C. 36.

Where a testamentary instrument incomplete as a will, appears on the face of it, to be intended as a substitution for a former complete will, the legacies given by the latter only shall take effect, notwithstanding both instruments are proved in the spiritual court; but where a former will makes a charge of legacies generally on land, and a subsequent will, giving legacies, is not attested so as to affect the land, yet the general charge of the former shall include the legacies given by the latter, otherwise where the charge is made of particular legacies. Jackson v. Jackson, 2 Cox, 35.

A will restrained in point of extent to a partial disposition by a particular enumeration, and a reference to other instruments, notwithstanding the general words "personal estate," specific disposition by will subsequent to annuities and legacies held auxiliary only, the general personal estate to be applied in the first instance. Holford v. Wood, 4 Ves. 76.

A survived share, shall not survive again without express words. Exp. West, 1 Bro. C. C. 575. S. C. 1 P. W. 275, 276, 5th edit.

Where plain words give an estate tail, they should not be controuled, but by a very plain indication. Sayer v. Masterman, Ambl. 345.

Under a devise to trustees during life of A, of all testator's estates and farms, held word "estate," referred only to the thing and the interest in it. Id. ib.

The most liberal construction of wills for creditors. El. Godolphin v. Penneck, 2 Ves. 272.

The construction of the execution of a will is the same in equity, as at law. Ellis v. Smith, 1 Ves. J. 16.

Order of words in wills not considered; if the intent better answered, it is otherwise. East v. Cook, 2 Ves. 32.

Wills in general construed from the making, unless circumstances, or the tenor of it shew, it should be from death of testator, but the intermediate time not regarded. Loma v. Holmden, 1 Ves. 295.

Word "estate" when used generally, includes not only the lands or thing, but also the estate or interest so, if "in; or at" such a place is added: but if it is further added on the occupations of particular tenants, Qu.? Goodwyn v. Goodwyn, 1 Ves. 228.

Where the words of a will are so inconsistent that they cannot be reconciled, the court must reject those that are the least consistent with the testator's intent; and the same words in the same will, though in a different clause, ought to have the same sense; and therefore where the testator intended survivorship among his children in the personal, he must mean it in the real estate also. Haus v. Haus, 3 Atk. 524. 1 Ves. 13. 1 Wils. C. B. 165.

Though real and personal estates are joined in the same devise, yet the same words may be taken in a different sense with regard to the different estates, to support the intention of the party, ut res magis valeat quam pereat. Sheffield v. Id. Orvery, 3 Atk. 288. Vide Forth v. Chapman, 2 P. W. 633.

The court ought not to consider the circumstances of the testator to determine his intention as to personal estate: whether as to real, Quare? Inchiquin v. French, Ambl. 40. S. C. Ridgw. 230. and 1 Cox, 1.

The court may expound the words in a will, but cannot strike them out. Southcot v. Watson, 3 Atk. 233.

"And," must be construed "or," where it is necessary to put a reasonable construction on the will. As where the interest with the principal of the residue of a testator's estate was directed to be settled on his daughter "or" the heirs of her body, as the executors shall think fit: the word "or" shall be construed "and," for the executors are not empowered to give it from the daughter to the grandchildren. Read v. Snell, 2 Atk. 643.

The testator's intent in a will must be consistent with the rules of law, and in many cases the intent has been restrained, as where attempting a perpetuity, or to prevent a tenant in tail from alienating. Bugshaw v. Spencer, 2 Atk. 575.

Words that are doubtful and afford implication only, are not to be attended to, where testator has expressed himself in legal words. Id.

The words "without impeachment of waste," do not give a power inconsistent with an estate tail, or at least will not defeat it. Id. 576.

Departing from strict words of a will has produced such uncertainty that it is to be wished they had been left to legal construction. Id.

Where testator's intent appears plain, the court will help an unapt expression by making the words, "heirs of the body," words of purchase. S. C. Id.

In construing words to make them agree with the intent of the party, a court of equity is more liberal than a court of law. Id. 580.

On the construction of Seijeant Maynard's will, heirs of the body were held to be in the sense of the first and every other son. Id. 582.

It is established that in a will the word "issue" is as strong as the word "heirs." Id. ISSUE.

Notwithstanding all the parties are volunteers under a will, it is not necessary the words must be taken as they are, but in many cases may be varied. Id.

Where the court are obliged to depart from the words of a will, it should rather be to support than to frustrate the intention of the testator. Id. 584.

In what case the disjunctive "or" shall be taken to mean the conjunctive "and." Walsh v. Patterson, 9 Mod. 441.

In construing one legacy to be a satisfaction for another, regard must be always had to the particular circumstances, limitations and funds, out of which the two several legacies are to arise. Heather v. Rider, 1 Atk. 426. LEGACIES ACCUMULATIVE.

Mistakes in wills shall not be supposed, if any construction that is agreeable to reason can be made out. Purse v. Snaylin, 1 Atk. 415.

In our law, particular legatees are always preferred to the residuary legatees. Secus, in the Roman law. Id. 418.

The court leans against double portions, yet regard must be had to circumstances; as where there is an eldest son, or more children, and the demand would be to their prejudice. Otherwise in the case of an only child. Belliss v. Lithuatt, 1 Atk. 427. PORTIONS DOUBLE.

A devise an estate for life to his wife; and in the latter part creates a trust term, to take place from the day of his death, for payment of debts in such manner as the wife should direct. Declared that the term, though subsequent, shall take place of the wife's estate for life, and that the last words do not give the wife the power of exempting her life estate, but only the power of raising it by the most convenient method, by mortgage or otherwise. Ridout v. Dowding, 1 Atk. 419.

A court never construes a devise void, unless it is so absolutely dark that they cannot find out the testator's meaning. Minshull v. Minshull, 1 Atk. 412.

Subsequent words of limitation affect not the legal operation of the preceding words of limitation, unless the word "heir" is used in the singular number, or an express estate for life limited to the first taker. Id. 413. 1 Co. 66. b.

The words "begotten and to be begotten" are the same as well on construction of wills as settlements. Cook v. Cook, 2 Vern. 545.

In case of doubtful words of a will, an heir is to be favoured, not where the will is plain. Falkland v. Hertis, 2 Vern. 340. S. C. 12 Mod. 182. 2 Freeman. 220. 3 Ch. Ca. 129. S. C. Sel. Cas. Ch. 129. Qu. ? S. C.

2. Generally, from particular Form and Words of Will.

As to when Executors take beneficially, see EXORS. VII.—ELECTION.

When Parol and other Evidence admitted to explain, see PR. EVID. 4; 26.

When Personal is exempted, see ESTATE IX. 1.

A testatrix, by her will, gave to T 50s. a month during his life, in lieu of his giving up all other notes and claims; and by a codicil, she gave him 3l. a month during his life, and concluded by directing that all other things should be paid and done as directed by her will: held T was entitled to both the monthly payments. Lord v. Sutcliffe, 2 Sim. 27. LEGACY; ACCUMULATION.

Devise to A and her heirs, but if she died leaving issue, then to such issue and their heirs; A died, leaving issue: held, that her husband was not entitled to be tenant by the curtesy. Barker v. Barker, 2 Sim. 249. TENANT BY CURTESY.

A testator bequeathed to his daughter 50,000l., of which 20,000l. was to be paid to her absolutely, and as to the remaining 30,000l. she was to receive the interest to her separate use during her life, and after her death the principal was to be paid to such person or persons as she might by her will appoint, and after giving various other legacies, and bequeathing to the same daughter a share of the residue of his personal estate, he directed that all the specific and pecuniary legacies therein before bequeathed should be paid to the respective legatees, free of the legacy duty; the daughter having died in his life-time, he afterwards, by a codicil, "instead of the legacies given to her by will, which are now lapsed, bequeathed to her husband 20,000l. : held, that the husband was not entitled to have the 20,000l. paid to him free of legacy duty. Chatteris v. Young, 2 Russ. 183. LEGACY DUTY.

Where, looking to the whole contents of the two instruments, the testator's intent might be inferred that an annuity given by the codicil was intended to be only a substitute for the two others; the court on error held, that the bequests were not cumulative. Hemming v. Gurrey, 1 Dow. N. S. 35, & 1 Bli. N. S. 479. LEGACY, SUBSTITUTION OF.

There is no distinction between a residuary and a specific devise of real estate; every devise of land being in effect specific, in as much as a residuary devise will only pass such real estate as the testator had at the time of making his will, and will not pass as real estate subsequently acquired. Spong v. Spong, 1 Y. & J. 300.

When pecuniary legacies are charged upon real and personal estates, and there is a deficiency of personal assets, the real estates as well those specifically devised, as those devised under a general residuary devise, must make good the deficiency. Id. ib. CHARGE ON REAL ESTATES.

A testator gave stock to trustees to be divided after the death of two persons, who had life interest in it, among A, B, C, D, & E, in equal shares, and he directed that if any of them should die without issue before their respective shares should become payable, the share of him, her, or them, so dying without issue, should go to, and be equally divided among the survivor and survivors of them; A died, leaving issue, who were living at the time fixed for the distribution of the fund, then B died, leaving a son, who died without issue, before the period of distribution; shortly afterwards, and also before the period of distribution, C died without issue: held, that B's personal representative was not entitled to any portion of the fund; that the one-third of B's share, which on the failure of her issue, survived to C, did not, on C's death, survive to the other legatees, but was transmitted to her personal representatives: that the words "survivor and survivors," were to be construed in their natural sense, and not as equivalent to "other and others," so that no part of the shares of B & C went over to A's personal representative. Crowder v. Stone, 3 Russ. 217. INTEREST VESTED; SURVIVORSHIP.

A trust created by will to purchase land, to be added and closely entailed to testator's family estate, in the possession of T B; testator declaring that his object was to have a head to the family, and that if T B should die without male issue, or dispose of the family estate, the residue of his fortune should go to A, or his nearest relative in the male line; how to be executed. Woolmore v. Burrows, 1 Sim. 512. TRUST, EXECUTORY.

Testatrix gave her real and personal estate to trustees to sell, and directed that the proceeds of her real estate should be taken as part of her personal estate, that out of the monies to arise by such sale, and out of all other her personal estate, her legacies should be paid, and gave the residue to A for life, with remainder over: held that the real estate was absolutely converted into personalty, and that some of the legacies which had lapsed, belonged to the residuary legatee and not to the heir. The legacies not having been paid within the year after the testatrix's death, A is not entitled to that year's income, but it forms part of the capital of the residue. Amphlett v. Parke, 1 Sim. 275. CONVERSION OF REAL ESTATE; INTERMEDIATE PROFITS.

A testator directed that one of his residuary legatees should be answerable for all debts due to him from the father of the legatee. A debt, though usurious, must be deducted from the legatee's share. Stanton v. Knight, 1 Sim. 482. USURY.

The tenant for life of a residue, which is directed to be laid out in certain securities, is entitled to the income accrued in the first year after the testator's decease, on such parts of the testator's estate as are invested at his death in the proper securities, and on such parts as are afterwards so invested within the same year, but the income before such investment forms part of the capital of the residue. La Terriere v. Bulmer, 1 Sim. 18. TENANT FOR LIFE OF RESIDUE, FROM WHEN ENTITLED.

Testator directed his executors to purchase, out of his residuary estate, a certain sum of stock, and to pay the dividends to his wife for her life, and after her death to divide the capital between such of his three daughters as should be then living; provided that if any one of them should be then dead, or should afterwards die before her share should become payable or divisible, leaving a child or children, that share should go to such child or children. The testator's wife died in his life-time; one of the daughters died three months after the testator: held, nevertheless, that she had a vested interest in one of the shares. Collins v. Macpherson, 2 Sim. 87. INTEREST VESTED.

Devise and bequest of real and personal estate in trust to pay the rents, dividends and interest, from time to time, as the same should become due, and be received unto and for the only use and behoof of the testator's daughter, for and during the term of her natural life, and to pay the same into her own hands, independent of her present or future husband, and not in any manner subject to the debts, control or engagements of such present or future husband, and her receipt to be sufficient discharge to the trustees, as if she were sole and unmarried: held that the wife had a power of alienation over her life-interest. Glyn v. Baster, 1 Y. & J. 329. FEME COVERT; ALIENATION.

A, having a power to appoint by will, certain funds, in such manner as he should think fit, he by his will, so executed and attested as required by the power, gives and bequeaths to his relations sums of money, amounting in the whole, to precisely the sum of which he had the power to dispose, but without any reference or allusion in his will to the power, or any words indicative of his intention to execute it: held, that the will was a good execution of the power. Qu. if the testator, in deciding whether a will is a good execution of a power, can look at the state of the testator's property at the time of making his will, as a guide to his intention? Lounds v. Lounds, 1 Y. & J. 445. POWER, EXECUTION OF.

A testatrix having, under her marriage settlement, a power in default of issue, to appoint by her will, a sum of 2200*l.*; she, by her will, after reciting the power, proceeded thus: "and I give and bequeath several legacies," some to persons absolutely, and others to persons for life, and after their decease to their children or other persons by substitution, amounting, in the whole, to the precise sum of 2200*l.*; and as to all such real estates as she had power to dispose of, under her marriage settlement or the will of her husband; she expressed her desire that the same should descend to and vest in her daughter, by the preferable title of descent; and subject as aforesaid, she bequeathed the residue of her personal estate to her said daughter: held, that the legacies were not general legacies, payable out of her general personal estate, but were intended to be given by the testatrix under a mistaken notion, that the execution of the power was not restricted to the event of her dying without issue. Walker v. Taitton, 1 Y. & J. 557.

Legacies given by a codicil, held to be additions to, and not substitutions for legacies given by the will to the same legatees. Mackenzie v. Mackenzie, 2 Russ. 262. LEGACIES ACCUMULATIVE.

A testator by will bequeathed 4000*l.* in trust, after the death of his daughter C, who was then unmarried, for her children, to be paid if the children were under twenty-one, and unmarried at her death, to such of them as were sons at their ages of twenty-one, or sooner if the trustees should think fit; and to such of them as were daughters at their ages of twenty-one years or days of marriage, but if after C's decease the children should all die under twenty-one, and unmarried, then in trust for C's next of kin in consanguinity. C married and died, leaving R, her only son, an infant. After her death the testator by a codicil bequeathed to his grandson R, 6000*l.* payable when he should attain the age of twenty-one years, and directed his executor to spend any sum not exceeding 250*l.* a year in the maintenance and education of R: held that the legacy of 6000*l.* was not a substitution for the legacy of 4000*l.* and that R was entitled to both legacies. Wray v. Field, 2 Russ. 267. LEGACIES ACCUMULATIVE.

A testator bequeaths all his right, title, and interest, in two policies of insurance, which he had effected on the life of his wife, together with all benefit and advantage thereof, to his executors, upon trust after the death of his wife to receive the amount of the proceeds, and thereout to pay or provide for certain legacies of his wife having died he received the money and invested it in securities, of which he continued to be possessed at his death: held that the legacies failed.

Barker v. Rayner, 2 Russ. 122. LEGACY, ADVERTISEMENT OF.

A testator gave a number of legacies, adding, "I guarantee my estate at C, for the payment of the above legacies;" and he in the subsequent part of his will gave many other legacies. The first class of legacies are not specific, and failing the estate at C, are to be borne by the general personal estate. Willor v. Rhoades, 2 Russ. 452. LEGACIES, SPECIFIC.

A testatrix gave the interest of the residue to her brother during his life, and after his death she gave the residue to her executors in trust for four persons by name, and the survivors and survivor of them to be paid to them respectively when they should attain twenty-one, with interest in the mean time; of those four persons two died during the life of the brother: held that they did not take vested interests in any part of the residue, but that the whole of it belonged to the two survivors. During the lifetime of the testatrix's brother, one of the two survivors assigned all other the estate and effects, of or to which she was then possessed or entitled, to trustees upon trust for her creditors; this assignment did not pass her contingent interest in the testatrix's residuary estate. Pope v. Whitcombe, 3 Russ. 124. INTEREST VESTED; WILL, C. OF WHAT PARTS.

A testator devised his estate at S and H, to trustees in trust if there should be only one son of D, who should attain twenty-one, for that son; and in case there should be two or more such sons, in trust for the second of them, and gave all the residue of his estates to trustees in trust to sell. He afterwards erased and by codicil declared that he intended to erase the direction to sell only. He then gave all his estates to the son of D, who should first attain twenty-one, and change his name to E. D, at death of testator had a son who was still an infant, and afterwards had another son: held that codicil revoked the devise of the S and E, estates, and also the devise of the residue of the estate to the trustees, and that D's eldest son took under this codicil an immediate vested interest, both in the estates of which the testator was seised at the date of his will and those he afterwards purchased, and consequently was entitled to the receipts during his infancy. Duffield v. Elwes, 2 S. & S. 544. CODICIL; VESTED INTERESTS; WILL, REVOCATION OF.

Will directed settlement to be made of real estate on A, and his first and others sons in tail, with power of jointuring, leasing, sale, and exchange, and all other clauses, powers, and provisos, usually inserted in settlements of same kind: held these last words did not give power to charge with portions. Higginson v. Barney, 2 S. & S. 516. POWER; PORTIONS.

Legacy to A, as soon as she attains twenty-one, with interest: held to be contingent, and no interest payable till legatee attains twenty-one, and is then to be computed from end of a year after testator's death. Knight v. Knight, 2 S. & S. 490. INT. VESTED.

Bequest of money to trustees on trust to invest in public funds, and pay dividends to A until marriage, and then to transfer stock to her husband; in case she should die unmarried, then as she should appoint by will, and in default of appointment, to her executors and administrators. Simble; she is not entitled to have fund transferred while unmarried. Wilson v. Mount, 2 S. & S. 493. TRANSFER.

Residuary devise of real and personal estate to all the issue, child or children of M F, as should be alive at the time of the decease of the survivor of two successive tenants for life, equally amongst them if more than one, to be divided, share and share alike, when and as they should respectively attain the age of twenty-four years, and to their respective heirs, executors, administrators, and assigns for ever, as tenants in common: held that children living at death of tenant for life took absolute vested interests in personal as well as in real estate. Farmer v. Francis, 2 S. & S. 505. INTEREST, VESTED.

Testatrix directed her legacies to be paid by executor, to whom she afterwards gave all her real estates, and the residue of her personal, after payment of her debts and funeral expences: held that legacies were not charged on real estates. Parker v. Fearnley, 2 S. & S. 592. CHARGE ON REAL ESTATE.

A testator having bequeathed various legacies, and among others, an annuity of 5*l.* to his daughter during her life, directs his son (whom he afterwards makes his executor,) to take care of and provide for her, and "subject as aforesaid," he gave to that son the residue of his real and personal estate: the daughter is entitled to a provision out of the residue in addition to her annuity, and a reference will be directed to the master to fix the amount of such provision. Broad v. Bevan, 1 Russ. 511, (note.)

A testator, after bequeathing a sum of long annuities to his wife for life, gave the capital after her death to A, if she shall be living at her decease, and if not to A's son. A outlives the wife, but both he and the wife die in the testator's life time: held that the legacy lapsed, and that the gift to his son did not take effect. Williams v. Jones, 1 Russ. 517. LEGACY, LAPSED.

A testator by his will directs that with the money arising from the personal estate bequeathed to his trustees (which is to be first so applied,) and from the sale or mortgage of certain real estates devised to the same trustees for a term of years, the annuities and legacies thereafter given, are to be paid; and he afterwards gives, among other things, an annuity, secured by powers of distress and entry on the real estates: by a codicil he bequeaths his personalty, and the residue of his real estates for a term of years to other trustees, upon the trusts in his will and codicil mentioned; and he then gives to A M, an annuity which he charges on the residue of his real estate, and secures by a power of distress: held, that the personalty is the primary fund for the payment of A M's annuity, and that the real estate is charged only as an auxiliary fund. Fitzgerald v. Field, 1 Russ. 428. ADMON. OF ASSETS; CHARGE ON ESTATE.

A testator bequeathed a sum of stock to trustees upon trust to pay the interest to his son during life, with a direction, if he married a woman with a fortune of a specified amount, to settle the fund upon her and the issue of such marriage; but in case of the son's decease, leaving no issue of his body, the stock was given over to various persons; and the testator also disposed of the residue of his estate. The son married a woman who had not the fortune required by the will, and died leaving issue of that marriage: held, that the son's life interest in the stock was not extended by implication, to a quasi estate tail; that the issue of his marriage took no interest in the stock; that the gifts over failed; and that after the son's death, the stock belonged to the residuary legatee. Andree v. Ward, 1 Russ. 260.

A testator having directed his executors to lay out, in what government security they pleased, as much money as would produce a certain annual interest, and having given that annual interest to his wife during her life in case she did not marry again, the executors invested in the 5 per cents. a sum which yielded dividends exactly equal to the specified income, those dividends being afterwards diminished by the conversion of the 5 per cents. into 4 per cents.: the widow was held entitled to have the deficiency made good, either by the sale from time to time of portions of the appropriated stock, or out of any other part of the residue which could be made available. Mey v. Bennett, 1 Russ. 370. INVESTMENT.

A testator, resident in India, bequeaths to an infant a sum of money to be invested in the Company's securities, of which the interest is to be applied to her maintenance, and the principal to be settled upon herself for life, with remainder to her children. He is lost on his voyage to England, leaving all his property in India. Executors resident in that country prove his will at Calcutta, invest the legacy in the Company's securities, and for several years remit the interest to their correspondents in London for the benefit of the legatee, who had come to England; a part of that interest is brought into court, in a suit established by her for the appointment of a guardian, and for the allowance of maintenance, and an order is made for the payment of her guardian out of the fund so created, of 200*l.* a year as maintenance: held, that there was a specific appropriation in India of the legacy, and that the payment of 200*l.* a year was not liable to the legacy duty. Hay v. Fairlie, 1 Russ. 117. LEGACY DUTY.

A testator having, by a post-nuptial settlement, made certain provisions for his wife, which were expressed to be in bar of dower, bequeaths to her specific legacies, and a sum of money, adding, that what he has so given her, together with the provision made for her by the settlement, shall be in lieu of any dower which she might claim; the assets having proved insufficient for the payment of the legacies in full, held, that the wife is entitled to priority over the other legatees, and that the legacies given to her, ought not to abate proportionally with the other legacies. Heath v. Dendy, 1 Russ. 543. PRIORITY OF PAYMENT; ABATEMENT OF LEGACIES.

G, having by deed given his niece a life interest in some real property, by his will devises to her other real property in fee, and then directs the debts due to him from her husband, to be released on condition that within two months from his, the testator's decease, the husband shall release all claim in or to the property which the testator had given or should give to the wife: held, that the release which the husband is to execute, is to be in favour of his wife, and not for the benefit of the estate; that the husband does not forfeit the benefit intended for him by not executing, within the time limited by the will, such an instrument as the testator required of him. Hollinrake v. Lister, id. 500. CONDITION, PERF. OF.

A testatrix devises to A for life, remainder to A's first and other sons in tail male, remainder to A's daughters as tenants in common in tail, with cross remainders between them in tail, remainder to trustees for a term of years upon trusts to raise and pay such legacies as she had thereafter given, or should give by any codicil; and in a subsequent part of the will she bequeaths various legacies from and immediately after the decease and failure of issue of A: held, that "failure of issue" in the gift of the legacies must be considered "failure of such issue" as were included in the limitation of the estate; and that therefore the bequests were not too remote. Morse v. Ld. Ormonde, 1 Russ. 382. LIMIT, TOO REMOTE.

A will began as follows:—"In the first place I will, that all my debts and funeral charges be paid and discharged by my executors hereinafter named; and I give and bequeath unto my eldest son Richard William, my estate at Shap, on condition that he make up the deficiency in the payment of the two legacies, which I have left to my younger son and daughter;" held, that the testator's debts were not charged on the estate at Shap. Willan v. Lancaster, 3 Russ. 108. CHARGE ON REAL ESTATE.

Testator gave his real and personal estate, to persons whom he afterwards appointed his executors, in trust, in the first place, to sell an advowson, and apply the proceeds in discharge of his debts and legacies, and if they should be insufficient, then to raise the deficiency by sale or mortgage of his real estates, and directed his executors to retain their expenses, but did not expressly declare any trust of his personal estate: held, that the personal estate was primarily applicable to the payment of the testator's debts. Rhodes v. Rudge, 1 Sim. 79. ADMON. OF ASSETS.

Residuary bequest to two grand-daughters of testator "in trust, till they come of age or marry, the interest to be received in the meantime, and paid to them; but if one of them die before marriage, or twenty-one, then to survivor and her children; but if both should die, leaving no issue, then I give them power to leave it by will as they should think proper. One legatee married, and other attained twenty-one: held, that both acquired vested interest. Thackeray v. Hampton, 2 S. & S. 214. VESTED INTEREST.

Condition in will in restraint of particular marriage, is dispensed with by consent of testator to it in his lifetime. Smith v. Coudery, 2 S. & S. 358. LEGACY, CONDITIONAL.

Where, from construction of will, executor who was residuary legatee, had power to release debtor of testator, and he waived the debt by writing, but did not formally release his executor, executor might, it seems, withhold annuity given in consideration of whole debt being paid. Hemming & Gurrey, 2 S. & S. 311. PAROL WAIVER.

Testator directed his personal and real property to be sold and divided amongst sisters: a power to executors to sell real property was held to be implied. Tylden v. Hyde, 2 S. & S. 238. TRUSTEES; POWER IMPLIED.

Where residue directed to be laid out in land, and in meanwhile interest thereon to be accumulated, tenant for life held entitled to the interest from the end of the year after the testator's death, till residue laid out. Kelvington v. Gray, 2 S. & S. 396. INTEREST, FROM WHEN; ADMINISTRATION.

Bequest to executors of residue of testator's estate in trust to sell and invest produce, and to apply so much of the interest and dividends as might be necessary for the maintenance, &c. of testator's five infant children during their minorities, to accumulate the surplus for their benefit; and upon their severally attaining twenty-one, to pay them 2500*l.* each; and if there should be any surplus after such payments, to pay and divide it amongst the five children, or such of them as should be living when the youngest attained twenty-one; and in case any of them died under twenty-one, having issue, his share should go to children, with benefit of survivorship, among the five children, in case of one dying without issue: held, that one dying after twenty-one, and before youngest had attained twenty-one, (though with issue,) took no vested interest in the surplus. Hawes v. Herring, 1 M'Clel. & Y. 295. INTEREST, VESTED.

A testator bequeathed a fund, which was to be produced by the conversion into money of the residue of his real and personal estate, to trustees upon trust to pay the interest of one moiety to his daughter for her separate use during her life, and after her death to pay 100*l.* a year to her husband during his life, and to apply the remainder of the dividends to the maintenance and education of all and every her children, until they attained twenty-one respectively; and when they attained their respective ages of twenty-one, upon trust to pay the principal to them in equal shares; the mother survived the testator, and left two children, who died under twenty-one: the moiety of the residue vested in these children. Jones Blackthorn, 1 Russ. 220. INTEREST, VESTED.

Testator bequeathed personal property to his trustees and executors upon trust, to pay dividends to his daughter during her life, to her separate use, and after her decease to pay the principal unto all and every her children who should live to attain twenty-three years of age, share and share alike, with benefit of survivorship in case any of them died under that age, with limitations over, in case there should be no such child or children, or being such, all of them should die under twenty-three years without lawful issue. The daughter had a child who died under age, in the daughter's lifetime. The bequests to the children, and the subsequent limitations were too remote. Bull v. Pritchard, 1 Russ. 213. LIMIT. TOO REMOTE.

A native of Scotland domiciled in England, having personal property only, executed during a visit to Scotland and deposited there a will prepared in the Scotch form, and died in England: held, that the will was to be construed according to the English law. Austruther v. Chalmers, 2 Sim. 1. DOMICIL.

Testatrix devised all her messuages, &c. and real estate to trustees, to sell and pay funeral, &c. expences and legacies, except her charitable legacies, which she directed to be paid out of her personal estate, legally applicable for that purpose, and not out of any part of her said messuages, &c.; and she also directed her trustees to keep separate accounts of the proceeds of her messuages, and of her personal estate legally applicable as aforesaid, and that if proceeds of messuages should be insufficient to pay the legacies, trustees to apply to her personal estate: Held, first, that though personal estate more than sufficient to pay charity, no part could be applied for other legacies, till real estate exhausted: second, that testatrix's leasehold passed to trustees under devise of all her messuages, &c.: third, that heir and next of kin, and not residuary legatee, were entitled to surplus proceeds of freeholds and leaseholds: and fourth, that freeholds having been properly sold in heir's lifetime, the surplus was part of his personal estate. Dixon v. Dawson; Sturges v. Farside, 2 S. & S. 327. ASSETS, ADMON. OF.

Legacy given charged on real estate, to vest immediately on testator's death, but payable at twenty-one, vests, though legatee dies before twenty-one. Hutkins v. Cheek, 2 S. & S. 199. VESTED INTEREST.

Father, under marriage settlement, with power to appoint shares in which his younger children were to take a sum to be raised for their portion, having exercised that power by will, afterwards advances one daughter, took release from her of her portion, and by codicil revoked his appointment by will as to her: Held, her portion was to go to the other children. Noel v. Id. Walsingham, 2 S. & S. 99. PARENT & CHILD; PORTION; ADVANCEMENT.

Legacies given to the same persons, though by different instruments, and in some instances of different amount: Held, to be substitutional. Gillespie v. Alexander, 2 S. & S. 145. LEGACY; SUBSTITUTION.

Devise of moiety to A for life, and of other moiety to B; and after A's death, fee to be conveyed of both to B: if B dies before A, A is not entitled to B's moiety by implication. Aspinall v. Pettin, 1 S. & S. 544. ESTATE BY IMPLICATION.

A legacy given out of the personal estate of the testator, in trust to pay the interest to a legatee for her life, and after her death, to pay the principal absolutely in certain shares to and amongst several legatees, and in case of the death of such legatees, (naming them) or any or either of them, before such their respective legacies should or might become payable, then the legacy or part of him, her or them so dying, to go to his, her or their executors, or administrators, as part of his, her or their personal estate; on the death of one of the legatees, in the life time of the testator, held that the mention of the executors and administrators in the clause of the will, did not amount to a substitution so as to vest any interest in them, and prevent the lapse. Bone v. Cook, 13 Pri. 332. LAPSED LEGACY.

A legacy bequeathed out of personal estate also, after the death of a legatee, of the interest and dividends thereof for life, in precisely the same words, except that there was this further provision introduced after the bequest to the several legatees: And in case of the death of any of the said legatees before their legacies should become payable, then the said testatrix willed and directed that the legacy of each of them so dying, should go to and be paid amongst his her or their children share and share alike; and in case of such decease of any of the said legatees, without leaving a child or children, the legacy of him or her so dying, should go to his or her executors or administrators, as part of his or her personal estate: Held, also to be lapsed as to the share of a legatee dying unmarried in the lifetime of the testatrix, and of the tenant for life, and consequently that the executors and administrators of the legatee so dying were not entitled to it. Such a legacy, so lapsing, lets in the next of kin of the testator. Bone v. Cook, 13 Price, 332.

LAPSED LEGACY.

Under a bequest of the interest, dividends, proceeds and profits of a sum in stock to S for life, and of the stock after death of S to A, but if A should die before twenty-one, to S, a bonus on the stock given under stat. 56 G. 3. c. 96. was held to belong to A as the legatee of the stock. Hooper v. Rossiter, 13 Price, 774. S. C. 1 McClell. 527. TENANT FOR LIFE; STOCK, BONUS ON.

Devise of real estates to testator's daughter for life, with remainder to his two sons in fee, and in case daughter should leave any child or children living at her death, then be directed that the two sons or their heirs should pay to such child or children 200*l.* equally between them, as they should severally attain twenty-one, and interest for the same, until the legacy should become due, for maintenance, &c. The daughter left one child which lived several years, but died an infant: Held, that interest was due from mother's death to child's death. Harris v. Finch, 1 McClell. 141. INTEREST, VESTED.

Where deviser directs that after payment of 800*l.* to charity to be raised by sale of real estate, residue thereof should go to residuary devisee J R; legacy to charity being void, 800*l.* goes to heir and not residuary devisee; costs to be borne between those two parties equally. Jones v. Mitchell, 1 S. & S. 290. LAND DEVISED FOR SALE; TRUST RESULTING; HEIR AT LAW.

Marriage in lifetime of father with his consent or subsequent approbation, is equivalent to marriage after his death with consent of trustees. Wheeler v. Warner, 1 S. & S. 305. CONDITION; LEGACY.

Where an annuity is given by will, with direction that it shall be paid monthly, the first payment is to be made at the end of a month after the testator's death. Houghton v. Franklin, 1 S. & S. 390. ANNUITY.

Devise of freehold, in trust to pay rents as same should become due and payable, into the hands of testator's wife, and not otherwise, for her life, for her separate use, and her receipts alone, for what should be actually paid into her own proper hands, should be good discharges to trustees. Held, wife had no power to alienate her life estate. Acton v. White, 1 S. & S. 429. HUSB. & WIFE, SEPARATE ESTATE; ALIENATION.

Where husband having, by articles, power to appoint wife's real estate, and by other articles, to appoint his own real estates, by will, reciting power over his own estates, in exercise of that power, and all other powers, appointed his own real estates, and all other real estates over which he had power in trust, &c. making no mention, in any part of will, of wife's estates, or of his power over them, and expressing that all persons taking under his will, should be bound by doctrine of election. Held, wife's estate was included in appointment by will. Trollope v. Linton, 1 S. & S. 477. POWER.

Where real estates are devised in strict settlement, subject to trust for raising portions to younger children, during minority of tenant for life, out of rents and profits, or by sale or mortgage. Held, certain funds that had arisen from rents during such minority, were applicable to payment of the portions, and that deficiency only could be raised by sale or mortgage. Warter v. Hutchinson, 1 S. & S. 276. PORTION.

Testator having devised lands to A for life, remainder to his children in strict settlement, directs the residue of his personal estate, subject to the payment of debts and legacies, with all convenient speed, to be laid out in the purchase of lands, to be settled forthwith to the same uses, with a proviso, that the trust monies, until they should be laid out, might be invested upon government or real securities, the dividends and interests of which were to go and be paid as the rents of the lands to be purchased would go and be payable; a large portion of the testator's personal estate not required for the payment of debts and legacies, being invested in the funds, and upon securities carrying interest, the tenant for life was entitled to the interest of that portion from the death of the testator. Ingerstein v. Martin, 1 Turn. & R. 232. See also S. P. Hewitt v. Morris, id. 241. TENANT FOR LIFE; INTERMEDIATE PROFITS.

Testator, after bequeathing to A and B legacies of stock unequal in amount, and giving several legacies to public charities, requests the said A and B to be his executors, and gives to them as such one hundred guineas each. He then orders his books, jewels, plate, and household furniture, to be sold, and after desiring mourning to be provided for his servants, and five guineas each to be given to several persons named in the will, and to his two executors, for a ring, as a token of remembrance, concludes his will in the following manner: "In case there is any money remaining, I should wish it to be given in private charity." Held, that private charity was an object too indefinite to give the crown jurisdiction, or to enable the court to execute the trust. Ommalley v. Butcher, 1 Turn. & R. 260. CHARITY; JURISDICTION.

A testator having first directed all his debts to be paid, bequeaths all his copyhold estates, and all his property whatsoever, to his wife, during her life, and after her decease to his surviving children, and appoints A and B his executors; the debts are charged on the copyhold estate. Ronalds v. Feltham, 1 Turn. & R. 418. COPYHOLD; CHARGE ON LAND.

Bequest to A for life, and to her child, &c. at twenty-one, is a vested interest at twenty-one; and not divested if child attain twenty-one, and die in life of A, by subsequent expression in will, that in case A should die, not leaving child, or leaving child, such child should die before twenty-one, gift over. Maitland v. Chalie, 6 Mad. 243. VESTED INTEREST.

Two classes of legacies payable in two opponent events: Held, on construction, one class only payable. Swayne v. Smith, 1 S. & S. 56. LEGACIES, CONTINGENT.

Where a testator gives to legatees, who shall be living at the time of actual distribution, the court will fix a year as the proper period. Brooke v. Lewis, 6 Mad. 358. DISTRIBUTION, AT WHAT TIME.

Having purchased certain lands and hereditaments, they were, by his direction, by indenture of bargain and sale, conveyed by the vendor to trustees, for charitable uses. The indenture was enrolled in the court of chancery within six calendar months, but F died within twelve calendar months after its execution: Held that the conveyance was void under the stat. of 9 Geo. 2. c. 36.; held also, that certain pecuniary bequests in F's will, depending on the validity of the said indenture, had failed. Price v. Hathaway, 6 Mad. 304. MORTMAIN.

Devise to trustees, in trust to constitute and support a grammar school at P, to appoint a master and usher, and pay them certain salaries; and the trustees to direct the management of the school. Held, that the school was to be a free grammar-school, for teaching the learned languages; that the proper objects were the children of the resident inhabitants of P; that they must be the children of protestants, and must be educated according to the principles of the church of England. The master might take boarders and day scholars, the number of free scholars was to be limited, and in fixing the number, the trust was guided by the amount of salary originally intended; that the free scholars were to be nominated by the trustees; that the trustees were to visit the school at their discretion, and to be allowed their reasonable expenses. The augmentation of the salaries of the master and usher, made by the trustees, upon an increase of the income of the charity, not allowed to them, the school, through error, not having been devoted to the proper objects. Att. Gen. v. Dean &c. of Christchurch, 1 Jac. 474. CHARITY.

A will directing a settlement of estates, and that there should be inserted all proper powers for making leases, and otherwise, according to circumstances, to and for the tenants for life, to be exercised by them when qualified, and when not, by the trustees, does not authorise the insertion of a power of sale and exchange. Horns v. Barton, 1 Jac. 437. SETTLR.; POWERS, USUAL.

Bequest by codicil, that dividends only of legacies which had been bequeathed by will, should be paid to legatees, and that legacies should not be paid to them, leaving the principal not further disposed of, is equivalent to a gift of the corpus, and is a gift of the substance of the principal. Richards v. Richards, 9 Price, 219. LEGACY, SPECIFIC.

When real estate is devised for payment of debts, and articles of personality exempted, if the executors, to preserve the latter from the creditors, delay selling them, and in consequence a loss happens, it may be thrown on the real estate, semble. Clarke v. El. Ormonde, 1 Jac. 115. EXORS., DUTIES OF; ADMON. OF ASSETS; CHARGE ON REAL ESTATE.

Bequest out of real estate to erect a monument in a church to the testator's memory, is not within the statute of mortmain. Bequest to erect a monument to the testator's memory, within a year after his death, in the church of A, with a legacy to the rector of A, on condition of his consenting to the erection of the monument, and a direction that, if he refused, the testator was to be buried elsewhere. Held, that the purpose failed, by the rector's refusing, for many years, to allow the monument to be erected, though a succeeding rector was willing to consent. Mellick v. The Asylum, 1 Jac. 180. MORTMAIN.

Bequest; and provided that, if done should, by any means or ways whatever, sell, dispose of, or incur the right, his interest should cease. Held, his banishment was a forfeiture. Cooper v. Wyatt, 5 Mad. 482. TESTAMENTARY; BANACY.

Legacy to feme covert "to and for her own use and benefit," does not give her a separate estate. Roberts v. Spicer, 5 Mad. 491. HUSB. & WIFE, SEP. ESTATE.

Bequest to testator's daughter and her children, and in default of such issue, and in case of her death, to A and B; the limitation over takes effect on her dying without children. Gawler v. Cadby, 1 Jac. 346. INTEREST, WHEN IT VESTS.

Where testator himself refers to "the rules of law," the limitations ought to go as far as those rules will permit. Gover v. Grosvenor, 5 Mad. 343.

Devise to college, for founding additional fellowships and scholarships, under regulations, by which certain stipends were to be paid to the new members out of the rents, and the testatrix hoped that a surplusage would remain for the benefit of the college, which was to be thrown into the common stock of the college, and improved as a fund for the repairs of the college in general, discharging debts, building, buying books, or other such public uses within the college; the rents having increased considerably: Held, that the surplus not required for repairing, building, &c. belonged to the old foundation. Att. Gen. v. Catherine Hall, Cambridge, 1 Jac. 381. CHARITY.

Devise of an estate for charitable purposes, with a direction that the rents should not be raised: Held, that this discretion was void, and that there was no resulting trust for the heir at law as to the increased rents. Id. ib. CHARITY; RESULTING TRUST; HEIR AT LAW.

Where testator, in each of two testamentary instruments, gives a legacy simpliciter to the same person, court will presume both to be meant for him. Hurst v. Beach, 5 Mad. 358. LEGACY ACCUMULATIVE.

And it is indifferent whether the second legacy is of same amount, or greater or less than first. Id. ib.

But where same motive is attached to each, and the amounts are similar, it is presumed to be but one legacy, but the double coincidence must occur. Id. ib.

Gift of personal property to trustees, to be settled on marriages of testator's daughters for their separate use, and on their deaths upon trust for their children, with limitation over in case of either of daughters dying without having been married, or without leaving any children, her surviving. The shares of the children of each daughter are vested, subject to be divested, by all dying before their mother; and there being one alive at her death, the representatives of the two who died before her were held entitled to their shares. Broomhead v. Hunt, 2 J. & W. 459. VESTED INTEREST.

A legacy of so much of a specific fund, and in case of failure of that fund, the deficiency out of another fund: Held a specific legacy, and not a general or pecuniary one, and that therefore legatee was entitled from testator's death. Fontaine v. Tyler, 9 Price, 94. LEGACY, TIME OF PAYMENT; LEGACY SPECIFIC.

Where testator directs his executors as soon as they should think proper after his decease, to sell so much stock as would produce legacy of 12,000*l.*, legacy is not payable till end of the year after his death. Benson v. Maude, 6 Mad. 15. LEGACY, TIME OF PAYMENT; ADMON. OF ASSETS.

Testator gives legacy of 20,000*l.* to daughter by will, free of duty, and by codicil, reciting death of daughter, and consequent lapse of her legacy, and instead thereof, gives to daughter's husband sum of 20,000*l.*: Held, he does not take free of duty. Chatteris v. Young, 6 Mad. 31. LEGACY DUTY.

The words, "I will and direct that my just debts, &c. be paid and satisfied," in the introductory part of will, amount to a charge of debts on real estates. Clifford v. Lewis, 6 Mad. 33. CHARGE ON REAL ESTATES.

Interest in property given to wife, on condition "that she should neither directly nor indirectly keep, or have any concern or interest in a public or licensed victualling-house, or any other kind of business." Condition not broken by her keeping and having the care of a public-house belonging to others, as their servant and at regular wages, without participating in profits or losses. Jones v. Bromley, 6 Mad. 157. CONDITION.

Construction of an obscure will, whether a trust was created or merely a discretionary power? Robinson v. Smith, 6 Mad. 194. TRUST.

A, being possessed of freehold and copyhold estate, the latter of which could not be devised but by conveyance to a trustee, and declaring uses by will, devised to his younger son all his messuages, lands, and tenements at A., and also, all that his messuage and tenement at S. in the occupation and tenure of J., as farmer thereof, &c. Held, that the copyhold land did not pass by the devise, the testator not having observed the formalities necessary for the passing thereof, and that the court would not supply a surrender, or put the heir to election, though the devise was to a younger child. Hodgson v. Merest, 9 Price, 556. COPYHOLD, DEFECTIVE SURRENDER OF; HEIR AT LAW; ELECTION; YOUNGER CHILDREN.

Direction for the sale in a given event, of an estate devised by the will, without expressing by whom it was to be sold, does not give a power of sale to the executors by implication. Patton v. Randall, 1 Jac. & W. 189. POWER OF SALE, C. OF; EXOR.

A power of sale not expressly given to any one, is not to be implied to the executors because the devisees of the estate are minors. Id. ib.

Testator bequeathed interest of 400*l.* to daughter; testator afterwards advanced 100*l.* to daughter's husband, and latter gave receipt for it expressive of its being part of daughter's portion, and testator enclosed receipt, together with his will, in an envelope, and husband, since wife's death, received interest on the 300*l.* only. Held, advance of 100*l.* was not an ademption pro tanto of the 400*l.* legacy. Bell v. Coleman, 5 Mad. 22. LEGACY; ADEMPITION.

On construction of will, Skinner's Company held to be trustees of certain lands in their corporate character as governors of the possession, &c. of the free grammar-school of Sir A. Judd in Tonbridge, and that the same are held by them according to letters patent of Edw. 6. for the support of the master and under master of the said school, and for the reparation of the lands, &c. and not otherwise, nor to any other uses or interests. Att. Gen. v. Skinner's Comp. 5 Mad. 173. Affd. with variation, 1 Jac. 629. CHARITY CORPORATION; TRUSTEE.

It is not of course to let a cestui que trust under a will into possession of the estate; it must depend on testator's intention. Tidd v. Lister, 5 Mad. 429. TRUST; CESTUI QUE TRUST.

Gift, upon trust, to wife for life, and then to use of son for life; and after death of survivor upon trust for such person as should, from time to time, be Lord V. &c. Held, not an executory trust, but a direct gift to each Lord V. successively, and that all living at death of testator, who might become a Lord V. took a vested interest. Deerhurst v. St. Albans, 5 Mad. 232. INTEREST, VESTED.

By will testator nominated wife his executrix, "thereby bequeathing to her all the property of whatever description or sort that I may die possessed," &c. Held, she is entitled, though not as executrix, to all his property that such a will could pass. Noel v. Hay, 5 Mad. 38. EXOR.

Testatrix, by her will, limited certain estates to her daughter O for life; remainder to her first and other sons successively in tail male; remainder to her daughters as tenants in common in tail general; and if an only surviving daughter, to her in tail general; and in default of all such issue of O, to trustees for 1000 years, upon trust to raise certain legacies as she should bequeath by any codicil; and she afterwards, by codicil, bequeathed certain legacies after the decease and failure of issue of her daughter O. O died without issue: Held, legacies were payable when the term was to take effect. Morse v. Marq. Ormond, 5 Mad. 99. Affd. 2 S. & S. 479. LEGACIES, WHEN PAYABLE.

Where, by will, estate is directed to be sold (but no time therefore is stated), and interest of produce is bequeathed to plaintiff, and estates continued unsold, plaintiff, on construction of will, is entitled to rents and profits of first year after testator's death. Fitz- gerald v. Jervoise, 5 Mad. 25. RENTS & PROFITS; ADMON. OF ASSETS.

Bequest of 1000*l.* long annuities "now standing in my name, or in trust for me." At the date of the will the testatrix had no long annuities, but had 1000*l.* three per cent. reduced annuities: Held, that that sum passed by bequest. Pentecost v. Ley, 2 Jac. & W. 207. LEGACY, ADEMPITION OF.

Devise of a house, after the death of A, for the use of the master that might be appointed to a school for the instruction of poor persons in W, and a bequest of money upon trust to apply the interest in procuring a master and mistress for instructing poor children, and in keeping the school-house in repair, and to apply the residue of the interest to the poor: Held, that the bequest to the school was void as being connected with the devise of the house; and the amount intended for that purpose being uncertain, the gift of the residue was also void. Att. Gen. v. Hinman, 2 Jac. & W. 270. MORTUARY.

Where the fund is applicable at discretion to several purposes, some of which are void and the others not, it will be confined to the latter. Id. 277.

Gift of residue to be equally divided between the testator's wife, sons and daughters; subject nevertheless as to the shares of the daughters, which were to be placed in the funds in the names of trustees; the interest to be paid to them for their lives for their separate use, and after their deaths the testator gave the shares, to the interest of which his daughters should have been entitled for life, to their children equally, with benefit of survivorship. Two of the daughters having survived the testator, died without children: Held, that their representatives were entitled to their shares. Whitell v. Dudin, 2 Jac. & W. 279. INTEREST, VESTED.

Bequest of personal property held a general residuary disposition, although accompanied with expressions favouring a more limited construction, and pointing only to a surplus beyond the property specifically mentioned. Bland v. Lamb, 2 J. & W. 399. RESIDUE.

Devise of copyhold estates, the legal estates being outstanding, "to my son R W G, to be entailed upon his male heirs, and failing such, to pass to his next brother, and so on from brother to brother, allowing 2500*l.* to be raised upon the estates for female children each." Whether a trust executed or executory, and if the latter, whether an estate tail in R W G; qu? The point too doubtful to compel a purchaser to take the title. Jerraise v. Dk. Northumberland, 1 Jac. & W. 559. TRUST; VEND. & PURCH.; TITLE.

The circumstance of the testator not having had the legal estate, can make no difference in the construction of a devise. Id. 573.

Legal representatives means executors and administrators, unless contrary intention is manifest. Price v. Strange, 6 Mad. 159. LEGAL REPRESENTATIVES; WILL.

Death, without leaving issue, signifies, as to real estate, a general failure of issue. Franklin v. Lay, 6 Mad. 258.

Testator, after devising lands to uses in strict settlement, gives the residue of his personality to be invested in lands, to be settled to the same uses. The tenant for life is not entitled to the interest of the residue till one year from the testator's death. The general rule, fixing the end of the first year as the period at which the enjoyment of the tenant for life is to commence, is not to be departed from, unless it appears that the testator's intention is incompatible with it. Taylor v. Hibbert, 1 Jac. & W. 308. TEN. FOR LIFE; INTEREST.

Under a devise of all the residue of the testator's estate and effects whatsoever and wheresoever, of what nature or kind soever, to trustees, upon trusts applicable only to personal property, held, that the real estate passed, with a resulting trust for the heir. Dunmage v. White, 1 Jac. & W. 583. RESULTING TRUST; HEIR.

Testator, reciting that he has 1500*l.* five per cents., gives it to A, and then gives to B all other his stocks that he might be possessed of at his death. The latter bequest is not specific, but is liable to debts in preference to the former. Parrott v. Worfield, 1 Jac. & W. 594. LEGACY SPECIFIC.

Legacy "of all my stock that I may be possessed of at my decease," not specific. Semble. Id. 601. LEGACY SPECIFIC.

The word "my" alone, is not enough to make a legacy specific, unless a particular fund is referred to. Id. 602.

A will, directing a settlement of estates, and that there should be inserted all proper powers for making leases, and otherwise, according to circumstances, for the tenants for life, to be exercised by them when qualified, and when not, by the trustees, does not authorise the insertion of a power of sale and exchange to the trustees, to be exercised with the consent of the tenant for life. Whether the will authorises the introduction of a power of sale and exchange of any description, quære? Brewster v. Angell, 1 Jac. & W. 625. POWER.

Where a real estate is charged with payment of debts, &c., in exoneration of the personal estate, in order to favour the residuary legatee, and such residuary legatee dies in life of testator, so that bequest lapses; held, on construction of the whole will, that the real estate becomes exonerated, and the personal liable. Noel v. Henley, 7 Price, 241. LAPSE; CHARGE ON REAL ESTATE.

Real estate being devised in trust to sell at such times or time after testator's death as should seem most advisable, either together or in separate parcels, by auction or private contract, the trustees to stand possessed of the produce of such sale, and the rents and profits accruing in the mean time, upon the trusts of the devise; held, that trustees have not an unqualified discretion as to sale, or to entitle them to retain the accumulation of the mesne rents and profits to answer the exigencies of the will, but that cestui que trusts were entitled to receive their respective proportions of the accruing rents, &c., from the end of the year after the death of testator. Id. 242. LEGACIES, WHEN PAYABLE.

Testatrix having made several specific bequests of stock, gives the residue of her funded property, after payment of her debts and legacies, to A: she gave the residue of her real and personal estates to others, and directed one particular legacy to be paid out of the stock. Held, that the residue of the stock was the primary fund for the payment of the debts and legacies. Choat v. Yeats, 1 Jac. & W. 102. ADMON. OF ASSETS.

Bequest to wife of real and personal estate for life, and, after her decease, a gift of various legacies, and a devise of all the rest, residue, and remainder of real and personal estate, to testator's nephews. Held, legacies are a charge on real estate. Bench v. Biles, 4 Mad. 187. CHARGE ON REAL ESTATE.

Charge on specific bequest of debts and legacies. Brown v. Groombridge, 4 Mad. 495. LEGACY SPECIFIC.

Expressions in will after payment of debts direct "in the next place," certain legacies, and that trustees should afterwards raise other legacies: held, not to give first legatee any priority in payment; but in case of deficiency all should abate in proportion. Boston v. Booth, 4 Mad. 161. LEGACIES, ORDER OF PAYMENT; ABATEMENT OF LEGACIES.

* Unless clear contrary intent appear in will, presumption is, that testator intends all legacies to be equally paid. Id. 168. LEGACY, ORDER OF PAYMENT.

Words, "In the first place I give to A, then to B, then to C," not evidence of such intent." Id. ib.

Nor words, "to A, payable at one month, to B, at six months, to C, at twelve." Id. ib.

Nor, "In the first place I direct, &c. to A, then to B, then to C;" nor, "I direct that my executors shall, in the first place, &c. to A, in the next place to B, then to C." Id. 169.

Covenant in settlement to leave by will, satisfied by legacy to amount; though followed by general direction for payment of debts. Wathen v. Smith, 4 Mad. 236. 325. SETTLED, SATISFACTION OF; TRUST TO PAY DEBTS.

Where will directs dividends to be paid to tenant for life at Lady-day and Michaelmas day, the money was ordered to be invested in the 3 per cents. reduced; the dividends on that stock being payable at that period. Caldecott v. Caldecott, 4 Mad. 189. INVESTMENT.

Unconditional legacy given by a third instrument which is nearly similar to the first: held to be merely a substitution for a conditional legacy given by the first. Att. Gen. v. Harley, 4 Mad. 263. LEGACY, SUBSTITUTION OF.

Words of will after giving legacy were, "And in case of legatee's death," legacy to children: held, that words referred to legatee's death before testator, and that legatee surviving testator, took absolutely. Slade v. Milner, 4 Mad. 144. INTEREST VESTED.

Who is to execute power of sale of real estate, is implied to be in him through whose hands the fund is to pass. Bentham v. Wiltshire, 4 Mad. 44. POWER OF SALE.

Testamentary expences does not include costs of suit occasioned by will. Broome v. Groombridge, 4 Mad. 495. TESTAMENTARY EXPENCES, WHAT.

Where literal force of expressions differs in a will, rule is to seek the intent of testator in a consistent and rational purpose, rather than in a purpose irrational and inconsistent. Jenkins v. Herries, 4 Mad. 67.

Bequest to trustees for some covert to her sole and separate use and benefit; and also bequest to her of residue for her own use and benefit: held, residue not separate estate of wife. Wills v. Sayers, 4 Mad. 409. HUSB. & WIFE, SEP. ESTATE.

Under a will directing the transfer of stock among all the children of the testatrix's daughter, except an eldest son; a second son having become the eldest living by the death of his elder brother, who survived the testatrix, is not entitled to a share, although an estate limited to his elder brother did not descend to him. Matthews v. Paul, 3 Swan. 328. YOUNGER CHILDREN.

Bequest to A for life, and then to be equally divided between her three children, or such as shall be living at A's death: children take vested interests transmissible to their representatives. Sturges v. Pearson, 4 Mad. 411. see 6 Mad. 250. VESTED INTEREST.

Bequest of a legacy to A for life, and then to be paid at twenty-five, or between twenty-one and twenty-five, if the executors should think proper; and maintenance in the mean time, with a limitation over, in case A should not receive or dispose of it by will or otherwise, in his life-time: the limitation over held void. Ross v. Ross, 1 Jac. & W. 154. LIMITATION OF PERSONALS.

Bequest to a natural child en ventre sa mere, held good, if there is not affixed to gift, by construction of the will, a condition precedent, that it must be ascertained to be the child of the testator. Evans v. Massey, 8 Price, 22. BASTARD, IN VENTRE SA MERE.

Words of survivorship are to be referred to the period of division and enjoyment, unless the contrary intent be specially shown. Cripps v. Woodcott, 4 Mad. 11. SURVIVORSHIP.

Legacies to infants payable at twenty-one, with benefit of survivorship in the event of death under that age, and a power to the executors to apply any part of the legacies towards the maintenance of the legatees, bear interest from the death of the testatrix, the infants being her cousins and destitute of other provisions. Pett v. Fellows, 1 Swan. 561. INTEREST ON LEGACIES; INFANT.

The rule as to interest on legacies given to infants by persons standing in loco parentis, does not extend to an adult, though she had during the life of testator received a voluntary annuity from him. Raven v. Waite, 1 Swan. 553. INTEREST ON LEGACIES; PARENT & CHILD.

A testator having directed legacies to be paid at the expiration of six months after his decease without deduction, the legatees are entitled to the full amount, and the legacy duty must be paid by the executors. Bucksdale v. Gilliat, 1 Swan. 562. LEGACY DUTY.

A testator having bequeathed annuities issuing out of a leasehold estate to some annuitants for life, to some during the continuance of the fund, and to others indefinitely, with a general provision for an increase or diminution of the annuities, in proportion to the increased or diminished income of the estate; and a particular provision that, on the death of some of the annuitants for life, their portions should be paid to the survivors; the annuities given indefinitely are payable during the continuance of the fund; and the amount of annuities ceasing by the death of annuitants for life not named in the particular provision, belongs not to the survivors, but forms part of the residue. Hack v. Tuck, 3 Swan. 270. RESIDUE.

The will (attested by three witnesses) of a person having a power to dispose of a fund consisting partly of household furniture, linen, and plate, containing a gift of "all my estates and effects, of whatever denomination," and of "my household furniture, with linen and plate," is not an execution of the power. Jones v. Currey, 1 Swan. 66. POWER, EXECUTION OF.

A testator having by his will directed his executors to transfer 500*l.* part of his residuary estate to H N, and made a specific disposition of the other parts, and having afterwards drawn a pen through the name of H N, and by a codicil declared that he razed her name out of his will with his own hand; the 500*l.* belongs as undisposed of to his next of kin. The costs of ascertaining the right to that sum paid thereout in exemption of the general residue. Skrymsher v. Northcote, 1 Swan. 566. LEGACY, ADEMPITION; RESIDUE.

R being in possession of mines and iron works under leases of unequal duration, by will bequeathed "25,000*l.* to B, as a capital for him to become partner with my executors of one fourth share in trade of all those works so long as the lease endures," with a devise to H and his wife of residue of his estates real and personal. By codicil testator gave to W three-eighths of concern at iron works, "so the partnership will stand at my death W three-eighths, H three-eighths, B two-eighths." After R's death, W, H & B carried on works for two years, selling iron manufactured not only from the produce of the mines but from other sources. Held, that codicil revoked residuary claim in favour of H's wife as to the trade, and that the concern was a partnership in trade. Crawshaw v. Maule, 1 Swan. 495. PARTNERSHIP; WILL, REVOCATION OF.

A testator having by his will, devised his freehold and copyhold estates in trust for his son in strict settlement, with remainder to his nephew; and having given by his first codicil a special power of sale over a part of his estates, to be exercised at the request of his son, in favour of his nephew; and by his second codicil a general power of sale over "all or any part of his estates," to be exercised at the discretion of his trustees; the conveyance by the trustees must contain both the particular and the general power of sale. Green v. Wigglesworth, 1 Swan. 234. POWER OF SALE; CONVEYANCE.

For the purpose of collecting the intention, every part of the will must be considered. Gittins v. Steele, 1 Swan. 28.

Under a bequest of stock in trust to pay the dividends to M H H the niece of the testator, "for and towards the maintenance, education, and bringing up, of all and every the child and children of the said M H H until he, she, or they shall attain twenty-one," then to transfer the principal equally among the children, with a bequest over of principal in default of such issue to the nephews and nieces of the testator living at the death of M H H: The dividends are payable to M H H although she has no child. Hammond v. Neame, 1 Swan. 35.

Question on construction of intricate will as to forfeiture by children, through non-compliance on part of father, with condition of assumption of name of devisor. Hawkins v. Luscombe, 2 Swan. 375. FORFEITURE; PARENT & CHILD; CONDITION, BREACH OF.

Legacies charged on a reversion directed to be raised by sale or mortgage, and declared to carry interest from the death of the testator, it not appearing from the will that the estate charged was a reversion. Darries v. Davies, Dan. 84. LEGACIES, HOW RAISED.

Testator directing by will, his trade to be carried on with the capital then employed therein; and executors fail in the business; held, the capital only and not the general assets of testator were liable to creditors. Exp. Richardson, 3 Mad. 138. BUCK, 202. S. C. BANKCY, ASSIGNMENT.

Legacy to A of 600*l.* to be paid at end of one year after testator's death, or to her respective heir; held lapsed by death of A in lifetime of testator. Tidwell v. Ariel, 3 Mad. 403. LEGACY LAPSED.

Testator exempts personal estate from payment of mortgages on real estate, which he devises to C. subject to the incumbrances: Held, that descended estates are liable to mortgages. Barnwell v. Id. Cawdor, 3 Mad. 453. CHARGE ON REAL ESTATES.

Directions in will that executors shall pay annuity, "unless circumstances render it unnecessary, impracticable and inexpedient," means unless in the opinion of executors it shall become so, and court has no controul over such discretion, unless they act malà fide. French v. Davidson, 3 Mad. 396. TRUSTEES, DISCRETIONARY POWER.

Bequest to A for life, and afterwards to B, but if he should be then dead, to C & D in equal shares, or the whole to the survivor of them. B died in lifetime of tenant for life, as did also C & D: Held that gift to C & D was a vested interest as tenants in common, subject to be divested if one only had been living at death of tenant for life. Brown v. Id. Kenyon, 3 Mad. 410. VESTED INTEREST.

Semble, the same rule will apply to annuities out of residue, unless the contrary is directed by will. Storer v. Prestage, 3 Mad. 167. ANNUITIES, WHEN TO COMMENCE; ADMON. OF ASSETS.

Tenant for life of residue under will has no claim to interest till from one year after testator's death. Stott v. Hollingsworth, id. 161. INTEREST, FROM WHEN; ADMON. OF ASSETS; TEN. FOR LIFE.

Gift to two executors and survivor of 1000*l.* stock, in trust for A & B, to pay them the dividends thereof from time to time, and from and after the decease of the executors the 1000*l.* to A & B, their executors, &c. equally: Held, that they took absolute equitable interests in the stock as tenants in common during life of executors, and on their death absolute legal interests. Gardiner v. Butt, 3 Mad. 425. INTEREST, VESTED.

Legacy of 3000*l.* to testator's wife A for life, and after her death, one-third to each of his daughters M and H, with proviso, that if either daughter should die unmarried or without issue, the surviving daughter to take both shares, and if both die unmarried or without issue, then to his son of his children. And he gave two-thirds of the residue equally among his daughters, subject to such contingencies in favour of their issue, and with like benefit of survivorship as were before declared as to the 3000*l.* stock. A died in life of testator: Held on her death, that M and H took vested interests in shares of 3000*l.* stock, and of residue. Laffer v. Edwards, 3 Mad. 310. VESTED INTEREST.

Construction of will as to vesting of interest, accumulation and maintenance. Marshall v. Holloway, 2 Swan. 432. VESTED INTEREST; ACCUMULATION; MAINTENANCE.

Construction of charitable bequests with reference to a local act of parliament, concerning charitable bequests to the parish, &c. Att. Gen. v. Freeman, 5 Pri. 425. CHARITY; STAT. C. OF.

Power to appoint sum of money to children in such shares as appointor should think proper, with direction as to time they should take such appointed shares. Two children die before appointor: Held not to have vested interests. McGhie v. McGhie, 2 Mad. 368. VESTED INTEREST.

When a legacy is to vest or be paid at a particular age, and there is a clause of forfeiture on marriage without consent, the court will construe it as having relation to a marriage under the specified age. But where no age is specified, quære, if the court can limit the condition to a marriage without consent under twenty-one? clearly not, where the party so marrying was above twenty-one at the date of the will. Lloyd v. Bruntton, 3 Mer. 116. INTEREST, VESTED.

A subsequent condition of forfeiture on marriage without consent, where there is no devise over, will not be enforced. The reason of this rule is differently assigned, either because the bequest over affords a manifestation of intention that the condition is not merely in terrorem, or on account of the interest of the legatee over. Id. 117. CONDITION IN TERRORUM.

Testator gives 24,000*l.* upon trust, as to 6000*l.* to pay the interest to S B (his niece), during her life, and after her decease, the principal among her children; if she should die without issue, over. H declares similar trusts as to three other sums of 6000*l.* (making the remainder of the 24,000*l.*) for his three other nieces and their children. Proviso, that in case any of his said nieces should marry without such consent as therein prescribed, each, &c. so marrying should forfeit the interest of her 6000*l.*, and all other sums to which she may be entitled under his will, and the respective sums of 6000*l.*, and all such other sums, &c. should fall into his residue; and he gives the residue in trust for his two nephews and their children; in case of the death of either, without issue, his moiety to go over to, and be divided among his said nieces. Afterwards by codicil, he gives to each of his nieces 2000*l.* in addition, "subject to the same powers, provisions, directions, and limitations, as are contained in the will respecting the sums of 6000*l.*" S B, who was of age at the date of the will, marries without the consent required: Held, a forfeiture, extending not only to the future interest of her 6000*l.*, but to the capital, and also to the 2000*l.* given by the codicil, and to a fund set apart to answer an annuity to which S B would otherwise have been entitled on the death of the annuitant. Whether the forfeiture would also extend to her share of the residue, in the event of the contingency upon which it is given over to the testator's niece; Qu. Id. 108. CONDITION, BREACH.

Bequest of residue "to the widows and children of seamen belonging to the town of Liverpool, held a valid charitable bequest, to be applied in aid of a subsisting charity for such poor sailors' widows and children as should in the judgment of the persons appointed to administer, be deserving of it. Powell v. Att. Gen., 3 Mer. 48. CHARITY.

Bequest in trust for such "benevolent" purposes as the trustees in their integrity and discretion may unanimously agree on, not to be supported as a charitable legacy, the word "benevolent" not being to be restricted by the sense of "charitable," so as to authorize the court to say that the application of the property must be confined to such objects as are strictly speaking, objects of charity; therefore void for uncertainty, and distributable amongst the next of kin. James v. Allen, 3 Mer. 17. WILL, UNCERTAINTY; CHARITY.

Devise to R subject to the payment of legacies of 200*l.* each, to the testator's three nephews, to be paid as soon as the legatees should arrive in England, or claim the same, provided they should arrive or claim within three years: Held, the condition not performed by one of the legatees arriving in England and making his claim after the time specified, although ignorant till then of the will and of the testator's death, and no advertisement for legatees. Burgess v. Robinson, 3 Mer. 7. CONDITION, PERF. OF.

Testator gives 4000*l.* to trustees upon trust for his two daughters at twenty-one, and directed that the legacy duty due in respect thereof, shall be paid by his executors out of the residue; by codicil reciting this bequest, and that he is desirous of increasing the same to 5000*l.*, he revokes the gift of 4000*l.*, and gives 5000*l.* upon the same trusts, &c. By a second codicil reciting the former, and that he is desirous of further increasing to 6000*l.*, he revokes the gift of 5000*l.*, and gives in lieu thereof 6000*l.* upon the same trusts. This is not a revocation but substitution in each instance, and the 6000*l.* is therefore exempt from the legacy duty. Cooper v. Day, 3 Vern. 154. LEGACY DUTY; WILL, REVOC. OF; LEGACY, SUBSTITUTION.

Testatrix gives to the minister, &c. of A, 5*l.* per annum bank long annuities; to the minister, &c. of B, 5*l.* per annum like bank annuities; to the treasurer of C and D 100*l.* long annuities, stock each; to the governors of E 100*l.* long annuities, stock, and "30*l.* per annum farther part of my bank long annuities upon trust to apply the interest and dividends to and for the use of L D till she attains twenty-one," and then to transfer "the said 30*l.* per annum bank long annuities," to the said L D. She then gives to W C 150*l.* bank long annuities stock; and 10*l.* per annum "further part of my long annuities," in trust for H G. By a codicil reciting, "Whereas I may have made a wrong calculation of the value of my fortune in the funds at the time of my decease," she directs in case of deficiency, it may be deducted out of the residue, as she would have all her legacies paid to the full. The testatrix at the time of her death possessed of only 385*l.* long annuities, and her personal estate was insufficient to pay her debts. Upon a question whether the treasurer of C was entitled to a legacy of 100*l.* long annuities, stock, or only to 100*l.* to be raised by the sale of stock to that amount; Held that it was a specific legacy of so much stock, and decreed accordingly. Att. Gen. v. Grote, 3 Mer. 316. LEGACIES SPECIFIC.

300*l.* to A, to be paid to him, his executors, &c. within twelve months after the death of B, in case B shall happen to survive my wife. The latter words construed with reference only to the time of payment, and not to make void the legacy, B having died in the lifetime of the testator's wife. Mansey v. Hudson, 2 Mer. 130. INTEREST, VESTED.

Devise of an estate charged with two several legacies to A and B; and in case A or B die without lawful issue, then the whole of the said two legacies to go the survivor, his executors, &c. A dies without issue in the testator's lifetime. Held, the legacy lapsed, the contingency on which it was given over being too remote. Id. LEGACIES LAPSED; LIMIT. TOO REMOTE.

M gives to the defendant all her freehold and copyhold estates upon trust to permit E to receive the rents, &c. during her life, and after her death to sell, and out of the produce to pay 100*l.* to such person as she should by will appoint: E by will, without reference to the power, gives 100*l.*, and the whole of her household furniture to the plaintiff: it was charged by the bill and not denied that the testatrix had no personal property at the time of her death, besides some household furniture to very small amount in value, but no evidence was gone into, and an enquiry was asked as to the state of the property at the time of making the will with the view of ascertaining that the testatrix must have intended the gift of the 100*l.* as in execution of her power. But the enquiry was refused and the bill dismissed. Jones v. Tucker, 2 Mer. 533. POWER, EXECUTION OF; PR. ENQUIRY AS TO TESTATOR'S PERSONAL ESTATE.

No enquiry as to the quantum of personal property to determine whether gift is or is not in execution of a power, as to an enquiry whether there be any thing but copyhold, to answer a devise of land; the question there being whether there was any thing for the will to operate upon at the time when it was made; whereas a will of personalty speaks at the death. Id. ib.

Where there are not, nor ever were, nor can by possibility be, any persons strictly answering the description of children, it is necessary to resort to evidence dehors the will, for the purpose of finding whether there were any who had acquired the reputation of children; and it is possible for illegitimate children to acquire that reputation. Id. Woodhouselee v. Dalrymple, 2 Mer. 419. BASTARDS; PR. EVID.

Testator by will charges all his estates with payment of debts, and makes his son residuary devisee; afterwards purchases copyholds which are duly surrendered to the use of his will, and by codicil devises those copyholds to his son in fee. The codicil held a republication of the will so as to subject those copyholds to the payment of debts. Rowley v. Eytton, 1 Mer. 128. CHARGE ON LANDS; WILL, REPUBLICATION OF.

On construction of will, legacy with prohibition to executor not to advance it unless "in case of an establishment or acquisition which may to executors seem advantageous:" Held a conditional legacy. Pink v. De Thuissey, 2 Mad. 157. LEGACY, CONDITIONAL.

Testator, after making a provision for the maintenance of his children, gives "all the rest, residue and remainder of his real and personal estate," to his son T, "to be a vested interest on his attaining the age of twenty-one," and "if he shall happen to die before," then to his daughter E, with remainders over. The rents and profits are to accumulate until T attains the age of twenty-one, or dies under that age. Glanvill v. Glanvill, 2 Mer. 38.

The testator bequeathed to A, "should she survive, and continue unmarried; all his goods, chattels, estate and effects at time of his death, to use, occupy and possess the same during the term of her natural life, and from and immediately after her death," he disposed of the same. A married. The conditions held to be only in terrorem. Marples v. Bainbridge, 1 Mad. 590. MARRIAGE; CONDITION IN TERROR.

Bequest of "120*l.* per annum, (that is to say) the interest of 4000*l.* of three per cent. consols" to A, and direction that interest, as it becomes due, be added to principal, till A attains twenty-one, except 20*l.* per annum for clothes, gives a vested interest. Stretch v. Watkins, 1 Mad. 263. VESTED INTEREST.

Construction of will, whether issue take by way of purchase or limitation. Lyons v. Mitchell, 1 Mad. 467.

Devise of real estate in trust to sell, and out of the money to pay debts, &c. and with the surplus to maintain and educate the daughter of the testatrix until twenty-one, or marriage. But if she should die unmarried under twenty-one, all such money as should remain in the hands of the trustees, or such parts of the real estates as should remain unsold, (if any,) to be to the use of A. The daughter lived to attain twenty-one. This is a conversion out and out, and the real estate remaining unsold at her death goes to her personal representative. Ashby v. Palmer, 1 Mer. 296. CONVERSION; ADMON. OF ASSETS.

Legacy to A of 12,000*l.*, and to B 4000*l.*, the latter sum directed to be paid out of money in the hands of the testator's agent. At the time of testator's death, there was a sufficient fund in the agent's hands to answer this legacy; but the general assets did not extend to the payment of both. Legatee of the 4000*l.*, held entitled to be paid by priority. Acton v. Acton, 1 Mer. 178. PRIORITY OF PAYMENT.

Testatrix bequeaths all her personal estate to trustees in trust to sell, and out of the produce to pay all debts; "and in the next place to pay to A 300*l.* due on bond." The testatrix owed only 120*l.* to A upon bond; but the court decreed payment of the whole 300*l.* Whitfield v. Clement, 1 Mer. 402. ADMON. OF ASSETS.

Devise upon trust by mortgage, or out of the rents and profits, to pay debts, and afterwards to raise portions for the testator's daughters, "such portions to become due, and be considered as vested at the expiration of two years next after my decease, if my debts shall be then paid." This is a condition precedent to the portions becoming vested; and one of the daughters having died while her portion remained unpaid, upon a question between her representative, and the persons who would be entitled in the event of the portion not having become vested in her life-time, an inquiry was directed as to the time when the debts were, or might have been paid. Bernard v. Mountague, 1 Mer. 422. See 11 Ves. 508 a. note. INTEREST WHEN IT VESTS; CONDITION PRECEDENT.

Testator contracts for the purchase of a house, and afterwards by a codicil to his will, gives to A, his executor, "the house which he had given a memorandum of agreement to purchase, and which was to be paid for out of timber which he had ordered to be cut down." This amounts to a direction that the purchase money for the house shall be so provided for: and evidence was admitted to shew what was the order given by the testator, with reference to the cutting of timber. Sandford v. Raikes, 1 Mer. 646. ADMON. OF ASSETS.

Testator gives his personal estate to trustees upon trust to pay the interest to his daughter E D for her life, and after her decease to pay and divide the principal among the children of his said daughter, and the issue of a deceased child as she should appoint, and in default of appointment to go to, and be equally divided among them, and if but one, then to such only child, the portions of sons to be paid at their respective ages of twenty-one, and of daughters at their respective ages of twenty-one, or marriage. If no issue, or all die before their respective portions become payable, then over. The shares are so given as to vest immediately in the children of E D, though liable to be divested by all dying under twenty-one without issue. The share of a child so dying, was therefore held to pass to its representative. Skay v. Barnes, 3 Mer. 335. INTEREST, VESTED.

A devise over upon a contingency, does not of itself prevent the shares from vesting in the meantime, provided the words of bequest be in other respects sufficient to pass a present interest, although such a devise over, the entirety may be called in aid of other circumstances to shew, that the present interest was intended to pass. Id. 340. INTEREST, VESTED.

Construction of a will, devising specific parts of the estate to certain persons for their lives, the residue after the death of those persons, to others, some of whom were the heirs at law; that the words "after the death," &c. meant only subject to the life estates, repelling the implication of an estate for life in the residue, if it could arise; and whether it could, where some of the devisees were not heirs, quære? Dyer v. Dyer, 19 Ves. 612. S. C. 1 Mer. 414.

Testator gave all his real and personal estate to his executors, in trust to pay legacies, and after a particular disposition gave the residue of his property in trust for his next of kin, directing his executors to pay any debts upon any evidence they think proper, except the claims mentioned in the margin: a general conversion into a mixed fund, applicable to all debts, none being mentioned in the margin, on evidence satisfactory to the executors, although not strictly legal. Mildred v. Robinson, 19 Ves. 386. CONVERSION.

Legacy without any interest to A, if claimed within fifteen years from the testator's death; if not the same sum without interest as aforesaid to B: no claim being made by A, decreed to B with interest from the end of five years at four per cent. Careless v. Careless, 19 Ves. 601. S. C. 1 Mer. 384. INTEREST ON LEGACY.

Testator directs the residue of his effects to be divided for certain charitable purposes named by him, "and other charitable purposes I do intend to name hereafter, after all my worldly property is disposed of to the best advantage." Codicil naming no other purposes. A bequest to charity to be executed by the court, having regard particularly to the objects specified. Mills v. Farmer, 19 Ves. 483. CHARITY, CY PRES.

Trust by will to permit testator's wife to receive interest and rents for life, for the maintenance of herself and children, and in case of her marriage that the interest, &c. shall not be paid to her any longer, but be applied by his executors and trustees (she being an executrix with them) for maintenance of the children, revoked on her marriage, and not restored by a general residuary disposition to her. Duncan v. Duncan, 19 Ves. 396. LEGACY, CONDITIONAL.

Under a bequest over, after an interest for life by words importing both a joint interest and a tenancy in common as to three, "or the survivor, share and share alike," the period to which the survivorship relates, depends not on any technical words, but on the apparent intention collected from the particular disposition, or the general context. Newton v. Ayscough, 19 Ves. 534.

Devise to trustees for ninety-nine years upon the trusts hereinafter expressed, and from and after the expiration or other sooner determination of the said term in strict settlement. The term on trust being declared, decreed to attend the inheritance, according to the limitations of the will, and no resulting trust for the heir upon apparent intention to devise immediate estates, subject to the term, not future estates expectant on its determination. Sidney v. Shelley, 19 Ves. 352. S. C. Coop. 206. TERM TO ATTEND; HEIR AT LAW; TRUST RESULTING.

Where a devise is made subject to be reduced to a certain extent on the happening of a given event, that is the condition or ground of reduction, and if the event never happens, the ground of reduction is gone, and the devise remains entire and absolute. Tregonwell v. Sydenham, 3 Dow, 210.

Under words in will "to pay to each of my younger children (three daughters,) as and for their respective portions, a sum equal to one-fourth of what shall remain to my (eldest) son William, payable to each of my said daughters respectively, at her or their respective ages of twenty-one, or marriage, &c. held that all daughters were only entitled to a sum equal to a fourth of what remained to the eldest son, or each of them to one seventh, (such appearing to be testator's intent,) and that the time of testator's death was that at which the amount of his property and proportions of the shares were to be computed. Colclough v. Gaten, 3 Dow, 267.

Wherever lands, &c. which would descend to heir at law are devised for the purposes which law will not suffer to take effect, the heir at law shall have the benefit of the interest so devised as undisposed of, whether the testator intended he should have it or not. Tregonwell v. Sydenham, 3 Dow, 196. RESULTING TRUST; HEIR AT LAW.

Testator limiting remainder to his right heirs, shews his intention, that failing the devise, the heirs should take. Id. 208. RESULTING TRUST; HEIR AT LAW.

Portion by will on marriage with consent of the executors, or the major part of them, their heirs or executors, &c. One of the survivors consenting, and the other declining to interfere, inquiry directed whether the intended marriage was suitable, and if so, a proposal for a settlement to be received. Goldsmid v. Goldsmid, 19 Ves. 368. S. C. Coop. 225. CONDITION OF CONSENT; SETTLEMENT BY COURT.

A bequest by the obligee to one of joint obligors of debt due on bond, in these terms: "I remit and forgive to A, the sum of 500*l.*, which he stands indebted to me on his bond, and I direct said bond to be delivered up to him and cancelled." Held merely a personal bequest to A, and lapses by his death in lifetime of testator. Therefore surviving obligors and representatives of A are not released from bond. Isen v. Butler, 2 Price, 34. LAPSED LEGACY; DEBTOR & CRED.

Bequest over in case of death of devisee generally, and not expressly referable to any certain event or time, within or before which such dying must occur, to give effect to the remainder: Held not necessarily to refer to a dying in the lifetime of the testator, but will be construed so as to give effect to such intention on part of testator as may be presumed from the language of the will to have been his object. Hervey v. M'Laughlin, 1 Price, 264.

Bankruptcy held not a forfeiture under a clause in a will against alienation. Wilkinson v. Wilkinson, Coop. 259. FORFEITURE; BANKRUPTCY.

Direction to trustees to cut trees in aid of testator's real and personal estate: held not a trust, but a mere power, upon the whole of the will. Gower v. Eyre, Coop. 156. TRUST; POWER.

Maintenance ordered, upon the fair inference of intention, where legacy is given to children "when" and "as" they attain twenty-one, with survivorship in case of any dying under that age; and if all die, the legacy to cease. Lambert v. Parker, Coop. 143. MAINTENANCE.

Devise in trust to sell in such manner, and at such time as the trustees shall think proper. The period of conversion, as between those entitled for life and in remainder, depends not upon an arbitrary discretion, nor even a sound direction in each case, but upon some fixed rule, ascertaining a given period; as upon a trust to sell with all convenient speed; controlled in that instance by consent. Walker v. Shore, 19 Ves. 387. TRUSTEES, DUTIES OF.

Devise in trust for a son of the testator's nephew

A, at the age of twenty-four; if he have no son, to a son of the testator's great nephew B; but if neither have a son, then to a son of the testator's great niece's daughter, taking his name; whoever should take, not to be put in possession of any of the testator's effects until twenty-four; nor the executors to give up their trust "till a proper entail be made to the male heir by him;" is an executory trust in tail for an only son of A, in ventre at the testator's death, and not void for uncertainty, nor too remote. Blackburn v. Stubbs, 2 V. & B. 367. WILL, UNCERTAINTY; LIMIT, TOO REMOTE; TRUST EXECUTORY.

"Heir," or "heir male of the body," in the singular number, words of limitation, not of purchase, unless words of limitation superadded, or the context shews that those words are not used in their technical sense, as the word "issue," or "without impeachment of waste;" a limitation to trustees to preserve contingent remainders; or a direction so to frame the limitation, that the first taker shall not have the power of barring the entail. Id. 371.

Appointment of a sum of money by will, the appointee to pay an annuity and give bond for the payment. The appointment lapsing by the death of the appointee in the life of the testator, the annuity is a trust by way of legacy, and not a condition. Taylor v. George, 2 V. & B. 381. TRUST.

Annuities bequeathed to testator's brothers and nephews during their respective lives, payable out of lands held for a term of years, "provided my interest therein shall so long continue," and in case they should die before the expiration of the said leases of the said lands, to go to the plaintiff; held to be charges on the lands, and on the lease subsisting at testator's death, and on any future renewals obtained by the executors. Stubbs v. Roth, 2 Ball & B. 548. CHARGE ON LAND.

A devise of real estate to A, and the heirs of his body lawfully begotten, and in case of his death without leaving issue of his body, to go over, the testator then bequeathed the residue of his personal estate to A, and in case he should happen to die without issue of his body lawfully begotten, then, in such case, the residue should also go over. The bequest over of the residue not too remote, but a good executory bequest, as depending on the same event on which the real estate had been limited over. Foley v. Irwin, 2 Ball & B. 435. EXECUTORY BEQUEST; LIMITATION OF PERSONALS.

Testator expressing his will and desire that one-third of the principal of his estate and effects be left entirely to the disposal of his wife among such of her relations as she may think proper, after the death of his sisters: a trust for her next of kin at the time of her death, having made no disposition. Birch v. Wade, 3 V. & B. 198. TRUST, IMPLIED.

Construction of a will, whereby specific legacies are given out of a specific debt. Smith v. Fitzgerald, 3 V. & B. 2. LEGACIES, SPECIFIC.

Construction of will passing an estate originally on mortgage, but foreclosed, the testator's intent being to dispose of all his interest, though inaccurately mentioned both as land mortgaged, and as money due on mortgage. Silverschildt v. Schiott, 3 V. & B. 45. MORTGAGE.

Will of mortgagee, disposing of the money, carries his interest in the land. Id. ib.

Clear words in the operative part of a clause, not controlled by ambiguous words in the introduction. El. Orford v. Churchhill, 3 V. & B. 67.

Where there is a total want of persons properly answering the description; others, who do not so completely answer it, may be let in; grandchildren, for instance, under a liberal construction of the word "children," if there are none; but no such instance, if there are children. Id. ib.

Interest, from testator's death, upon legacies to his grandchildren, by implication; the object being a provision and maintenance for the legatees, described as infant orphans, and some of them illegitimate. Hill v. Hill, 3 V. & B. 183. INTEREST ON LEGACIES.

Construction of a devise in fee, subject to, and chargeable with, annuities, upon the intention, collected from the whole will, a beneficial devise, and not a trust resulting to the heir at the surplus beyond the annuities. King v. Dawson, 1 V. & B. 260. RESULTING TRUST.

Distinction between a devise charged with debts, and on trust to pay debts. The former a beneficial devise, subject to the particular purpose; the latter limited to the particular purpose; and therefore the interest not exhausted is a resulting trust for the heir. Id. 272. RESULTING TRUST; TRUST TO PAY DEBTS.

Devise, after a direction that all the debts shall be paid, amounts to a charge. Id. 274. CHARGE ON REAL ESTATE.

Legacy, reciting the probability that the legatee was not living, upon express condition that he shall return to England, and personally claim of the executrix, or in the church porch: if he shall not so claim within seven years, to be presumed dead, and the legacy to fall into the residue. The legatee not having returned, and dying abroad within seven years, the legacy was held not due; the existence of the legatee, though appearing otherwise, being to be proved by the particular means prescribed, and therefore not within the cases from the civil law, where, the end being obtained, the means were not essential. Tulk v. Houlditch, 1 V. & B. 248. LEGACY, CONDITIONAL.

Devise of real estate, though in form residuary, is specific. Hill v. Cook, 1 V. & B. 175. REAL ESTATE.

Devise, after payment of debts, legacies, &c., of specific freehold and leasehold estates to A, subject to incumbrances, and of all other his freehold and leasehold estates, together with all his personal estate, to trustees, to sell, and out of the money, in the first place, to pay their expenses in execution of the will or trust, and, without further disposition, appointing the trustees executors: a resulting trust as to the produce of the real estate for the heir at law. Id. 173. RESULTING TRUST.

Where a testator means to convert real estate into personal for a particular purpose, if that purpose cannot be served, the court will not infer any other purpose. Id. ib. LAND DEVISED FOR SALE.

Devise of freehold estate, in trust to sell and apply the money towards payment of the legacies; the residue of the personal estate, after payment of debts, legacies, &c., upon trust to convert all the said residue of his personal estate into ready money to be laid out in freehold property, to be settled. The personal estate leaving a residue beyond the charges, the real estate a resulting trust for the heir at law, and charged with the legacies, not primarily, but only as an auxiliary fund to the personal estate. Maugham v. Mason, 1 V. & B. 410. RESULTING TRUST; CHARGE ON REAL ESTATE; TRUST TO PAY DEBTS.

Bequest to a son of the testator on his accomplishing his apprenticeship, with the dividends in the mean time for maintenance; and in case he shall die, before he accomplishes his apprenticeship, then, and in such case, to the other children. The legacy lapsed by the death of the legatee, having accomplished his apprenticeship in the testator's life. Humberstone v. Standish, 1 V. & B. 385. LEGACY LAPSED.

Bequest over, in case of the death of a legatee before a certain period, takes effect on his death within that period during the testator's life. Id. 388. LIMITATION OVER.

Where the vendor of an estate would have absorbed the personal assets in payment of his purchase-money, a rateable contribution was decreed, as between the devisee of the estate, and the legatees and annuitants under the purchaser's will. Headley v. Readhead, Coop. 60. CONTRIBUTION; ADEMP. OF ASSETS; MARSHALLING ASSETS.

After a general direction that debts, funeral, and testamentary charges shall be paid, and a bequest of the personal estate, subject to the payment of those charges, the testator, in case his personal estate should not be sufficient to discharge "the same," charged his freehold estates with payment "thereof," and "subject thereto," gave all his freehold and copyhold estates, which he had surrendered, or intended to surrender, to the use of his will. The copyhold estates charged. Noel v. Weston, 2 V. & B. 269. CHARGE ON COPYHOLD ESTATES.

Construction of a residuary clause, after a bequest to the testatrix's younger children: "but in case I shall have but one child living at the time of my decease," or all but one die under twenty-one and unmarried, to another family; not a condition. Residuary bequest is therefore established in the event of the testatrix's death, having never had a child. Murray v. Jones; Fawcett v. Jones, 2 V. & B. 313.

Construction of devise, as applying to the body of the estate, or merely a reversion from the combination of it with other estates, and the general inaptitude of the expressions, &c. Welby v. Welby, 2 V. & B. 192.

Where discretionary power is given by will to trustees, to invest fund in real or personal estate, and it is to be collected from the whole will, that it shall be invested in real estate, though never invested, it shall be regarded as real estate. Cowley v. Hartstonge, 1 Dow, 361. TRUSTEES, DISCRETIONARY POWER; ADEMP. OF ASSETS.

If testator's intention is clearly manifested on will to give an unlimited discretion to trustees, the court will not controul it; but in general, discretion must be held to refer to the limitations in the will. Id. 378. TRUSTEES, DISCRETIONARY POWER.

Testator, by will, gives annuity to wife and legacies to children: knowing that his personal estate was insufficient to answer these purposes, he says nothing about his real estate, but appoints certain persons trustees of inheritance for the execution of his will. Semble. The trustees took an interest in real estates for the purposes of this will. Trent v. Trent, 1 Dow, 102. CHARGE ON REAL ESTATE.

Under the description of "children" in a will, illegitimate children existing at the date of the will, not entitled, unless proved by the will itself to be intended; and evidence can be received only for the purpose of collecting who had acquired the reputation of children. An only legitimate son therefore held entitled as devisee. Swaine v. Kennerley, 1 V. & B. 469. BASTARD.

Devise in trust for payment of debts, does not revive a debt, upon which the statute of limitation had taken effect by the expiration of the time before the testator's death. Burke v. Jones, 2 V. & B. 275. LIMITATION, STATUTE OF; TRUST TO PAY DEBTS.

Ademption of a legacy from a father to his then unmarried daughter, by a portion of equal amount, afterwards advanced by him on her marriage, as equity will not, where there is a contradictory evidence, reject the presumption arising from the will and marriage settlement, and decide against the legal effect and operation that it is to be attributed to them. Dwyer v. Layne, 2 Ball & B. 156. LEGACY, SATISFACTION OF.

Devise in trust to sell, but not for less than 10,000*l.*, and to pay several sums, amounting to 7800*l.*, and the overplus monies arising from the sale to A. A specific legacy of 10,000*l.* and the sale producing less, A and the others to abate. Legacies to charity void by the stat. 9 Geo. 2. c. 36. fell into the general residue. Page v. Leapingwell, 18 Ves. 463. LEGACY, ABATEMENT OF.

A bequest of an annuity charged upon the testator's leasehold interest during the term of the said lease, extends to, and is a charge upon every renewal obtained by the devisee of the leasehold interest; the annuitant must contribute to renewal fines in proportion to his interest. Winslow v. Tighe, 2 Ball & B. 195. CHARGE ON LANDS; CONTRIBUTION; LEASE RENEWAL, FINES ON.

Under a bequest to such child or children, if more than one, as A may happen to be enient of by me; a natural child of which she was then pregnant cannot take, though a bequest to the natural child of which a woman was enient, without reference to any person as the father, would probably be good, having no uncertainty. Earle v. Wilson, 17 Ves. 528. BASTARD EN VENTRE; LEGACY.

A legacy to the heir not sufficient to defeat his claim to the undisposed real estate. Kellott v. Kellott, 1 Ball & B. 543. Affd. 3 Dow, P. C. 248. HEIR AT LAW.

Whether the case of resulting trust arises between the heir and next of kin, or heir and residuary legatee, the question is, what is the residue? Id. ib.

Devise when the devisee attains twenty-one, a resulting trust for the heir until that period, and by the previous death of the devisee, the remainder accelerated. Chambers v. Brailsford, 18 Ves. 368. HEIR AT LAW; TRUST RESULTING.

No devise by implication from the mere recital of an erroneous conception of right. Dashwood v. Peyton, 18 Ves. 27. ESTATE BY IMPLICATION.

Directions to trustees to correct any defect, or incorrect expression in the will, and to form the settlement from what appears to them to be the testator's real meaning, does not authorise them to change the limitations. Stanley v. Stanley, 16 Ves. 491. TRUSTEES, POWER OF.

Direction for sale or transfer of stock, without attention to rise or fall, the party must take it as it happens at the time of appropriation. Exp. Pye, 18 Ves. 141. STOCK.

Conversion directed by will, of real estate into personal, not to all intents, but for the purpose only of answering legacies and annuities, subject to that as to the real estate, a resulting trust for the heir, which cannot be affected by an unattested codicil, bequeathing a lapsed share of the residue. Hooper v. Goodwin, 18 Ves. 156. TRUST, RESULTING; HEIR AT LAW; CONVERSION OF REAL ESTATE.

The presumption of intention to satisfy a legacy, by a portion to a child, from a parent, or a person placing himself in loca parentis, not raised upon a legacy, not described as a portion; the legatee reported to be the testator's natural child, described not so, but as the daughter of another man. Exp. Dubaut, 18 Ves. 140. LEGACY, PRESUMP. OF SATISFACTION; PAR. & CHILD.

Copyhold conveyed in trust to sell, the money to be deemed part of his personal estate, and in trust for such uses as he should, by deed or will, appoint, and in default for his right heir. A will, executed on the same day, but not referring to the deed, directing a sale of particular property, and disposing of the personal estate in general terms, held not applicable to the estate conveyed by the deed, which went to the heir, no use being, by the subsequent instrument, declared, if the estate was converted. Lowe v. Hackwood, 18 Ves. 168. POWER.

Where in a will the intention of the testator being to provide an auxiliary fund for legacies, and not a complete conversion out and out, the residue of the real estate, after making good the deficiency of the personal in payment of legacies, is a resulting trust for the heir, notwithstanding a legacy given him, and the testator appointed and devised residuary legatees.

Kellatt v. Kellatt, 1 Ball & B. 533. Affid. 3 Dow, P. C. 248. RESULTING TRUST; HEIR AT LAW.

Devise of real and personal estate in trust for debts and legacies, void under the stat. 9 Geo. 2. c. 36. as a charge of charity legacies upon the real and leasehold estates, and money on mortgage; but on a deficiency of assets, the other legatees preferred to the heir. Currie v. Pye, 17 Ves. 462. MORTMAIN; ADMON. OF ASSETS.

Devise in trust to pay several persons 1000*l.* each, on the death of any, in case of a deficiency, the others abate; but if to pay debts and legacies, and one legatee dies, the trust is for the other legatees, if necessary, id. 466. LEGACIES, ABATEMENT OF.

Testatrix gave all her estate, real and personal, to her daughter and her heirs, and half the navigation money for her natural life, and in case she dies without issue, all to be divided between four nephews and nieces named; the part of one only for life, and then to be divided between the survivors. The limitation over too remote, there being no expression or circumstance to limit the generality of the words to a failure of issue at the time of the death: as to what property it extends to, qu? Barlow v. Salter, 17 Ves. 479. LIMIT. TOO REMOTE.

Devise for life, and in default of issue, to another for life, and in default of his issue, and under over; the limitation over void, as to the personal property, either as too remote, or an estate tail by implication. Id. 484. Id.

Devise in strict settlement, with a clause of forfeiture, by cutting any trees. Upon a bill by the infant remainder-man in tail, an inquiry was directed, whether any trees, in the park, not ornamental, or affording shelter to the mansion-house, are proper to be felled; and whether it would be for the benefit of all parties interested, that they should be felled, and sold, and the money laid out in other estates to be settled to the same use. Delapole v. Delapole, 17 Ves. 150. PR. INQUIRY BEFORE MASTER; TIMBER.

Devise to A and his heirs, with a direction, that yearly he and his heirs shall for ever divide and distribute according to his and their discretion, amongst the testator's poor kinsmen and kinswomen, and amongst their offspring and issue, dwelling within the county of B, 20*l.* by the year. This is in the nature of a charitable bequest, and the will being made in 1581, was sustained, and inquiries directed as to the poor relations dwelling within the county of B. Att. Gen. v. Price, 17 Ves. 371. CHARITY.

Legacies to the same persons by distinct instruments accumulative, subject to be repelled by internal evidence; as where the same sum is given for the same cause; whether by the mere equality of amount, qu? Benyon v. Benyon, 17 Ves. 34. LEGACIES, ACCUMULATIVE.

Construction of a will, giving to the testator's daughter by the description of heir under his will, the legacy of a legatee, who died during the testator's life, by way of special substitution, not merely by lapse to her, as the residuary legatee. Rose v. Rose, 17 Ves. 347.

Conversion of real estate into personal, by will for particular purpose, which failed; held a resulting trust for heir. Williams v. Code, 11 Ves. 500. CONVERSION OF PROPERTY; HEIR AT LAW; TRUST, RESULTING.

General residuary disposition of real and personal estate not herein-before specifically disposed of, held to comprehend specific legacies lapsed, the word "specifically" being construed "particularly." Roberts v. Cook, 16 Ves. 451. RESIDUE; LEGACIES LAPSED.

Resulting trust for the heir; the only express devise being to convey to the devisor's son, from and after his age of thirty, which he did not attain, and no devise by implication, from a declaration, that he shall have no power over the estate, until his age of thirty. Nash v. Smith, 17 Ves. 29. HEIR AT LAW, TRUST, RESULTING.

Trust by will, subject to an interest for life, to pay and transfer to the testator's nephew and nieces, equally at twenty-one, with survivorship, in case any should die before his or their shares should become payable, and a limitation over, in case all should die, &c. Vested interest at the age of twenty-one, before the death of the tenant for life. Hallifax v. Wilson, 16 Ves. 168. INTEREST, WHEN VESTED.

Legacy at the decease of a person entitled to the fund out of which it is given, vested immediately, and payment only postponed. Blamire v. Geldart, 16 Ves. 314. INTEREST, WHEN VESTED.

Residuary devise and bequest for such of the testator's relations and kindred, in such proportions, &c. as his executor should think proper, recommending and advising his said executors and executors to give the greatest share to such person and persons, who in their opinion and judgment should appear to them to be his nearest relations, and most deserving, declaring his intention not to controul their discretion, but that every thing relative to that disposition, who were his relatives, and the proportions, should be entirely in the discretion of the said trustees and executors, and the heirs, executors, administrators, of the survivor of them: held, a trust and a power, the ground of the power being personal confidence, it is prima facie limited to the original trustees, not without express words passing to others, to whom by legal transmission the same character may happen to belong; and cannot be executed by the devisees and executors, for that specific purpose only, of the surviving trustee; a trust, therefore, executed by the court for the next of kin at the death of the testator, according to the statute of distributions. Cole v. Wade, 16 Ves. 27. The real estate, except what was converted in execution of the power taken by the next of kin as real: the will not operating a conversion out and out; the representatives, therefore, the trust being disappointed, taking the respective estates as they find them, having no equity against each other. The costs apportioned according to the value of the real and personal estates. Waller v. Maunde, 19 Ves. 424. TRUST EXECUTED BY COURT; TRUSTEES, DISCRETIONARY POWER.

A bequest of a sum of money "for building a house for twelve decayed gentlewomen," is valid and not against the mortmain acts in Ireland. Whether a bequest of a sum of money to be applied in clothing such poor children as should be educated in the school of the nunnery of W, be legal, quere? An inquiry directed to ascertain the character and description of the school. Att. Gen. v. Power, 1 Ball & B. 145. MORTMAIN.

Construction of a residuary claim, as comprehending a legacy given upon a contingency, which did not happen. Bird v. Le Fevre, 15 Ves. 589. RESIDUE, WHAT.

Trust to pay dividends of stock to the testatrix's niece for life, and after her death to divide the capital among the brothers and sisters of the testatrix, and in like manner to the survivors or survivor of them, the shares of those who died in the life of the niece, passed to their representatives. Hallifax v. Wilson, 16 Ves. 171. INTEREST, VESTED.

Residue bequeathed in trust to be laid out in real estates, to be settled to the same uses as estates devised to the trustee for life, successively without impeachment of waste with various limitations in strict settlement, all the estates for life being without impeachment of waste, and the ultimate remainder in fee, the trustees having laid out part of the fund in an estate with a considerable quantity of timber upon it, taking that to be a sound exercise of discretion, the first tenant for life cannot cut the whole. Burges v. Lamb, 16 Ves. 174. TENANT FOR LIFE; WASTE.

Charge by will on real estate of simple contract debts of another person, considered as a legacy carrying interest from the death of the testator at four per cent. Shire v. Westley, 16 Ves. 393. INTEREST, WHEN PAYABLE; CHARGE TO PAY DEBTS OF ANOTHER.

Bequest of the produce of the sale of a copyhold estate to A, the wife of B, for life, and after her death, to divide the principal among the children of B and C, equally; and of the testator's reversionary interest in bank stock, on the death of D, if in his name at his decease, and if not, at D's death, equally among the same children: vested interests in all the children, comprising those who died, and those who came into existence after the death of the testator, and during the lives of the tenants for life. Hether v. Shore, 15 Ves. 122. INTEREST, VESTED.

A direction for maintenance, in general terms, comprehending all children not restrained by the bequest of the capital in terms limited to those living at the date of the will. Freemantle v. Taylor, 15 Ves. 363. MAINTENANCE.

Bequest of residue in trust, in case A shall, within six calendar months after the testator's decease, give security not to marry B; then, and not otherwise, to pay to the children of A, with a proviso to go over, if she shall refuse or neglect to give such security. A condition precedent. The six months are exclusive of the day of the testator's death; therefore, as he died on the 12th January, between eight and nine in the evening, a security given on the 12th July, about nine in the evening, was held sufficient. Lester v. Garland, 15 Ves. 248. COMPUTATION OF TIME; CONDON, PRECEDENT.

Bequest of 3000*l.* on trust to apply the dividends to the maintenance of A, until twenty-one, and afterwards to pay the whole dividends to him for life, with power to the trustees before his age of twenty-six, to raise and pay not exceeding 600*l.* towards or in order to his preferment or advancement in life, or his other occasions as they should think proper. Upon a claim of the whole at the age of twenty-one, as absolute property, inquiry directed as to his circumstances, and whether they required the advancement of any and what part, before he should attain twenty-six. Lewis v. Lewis, cited 15 Ves. 527. ADVANCEMENT.

Devise to A for life of an estate pur autre vie, with power to will it to B, and his lawful issue, in such manner as A shall think proper, and in case A shall die intestate, then to B and his lawful issue, with remainder over to plaintiffs. This is a vested estate tail in B, liable to be divested by the execution of the power in A. A and B can, by deed conveying their estates, bar the remainder over. Osborne v. Bury, 1 Ball & B. 53. INTEREST, VESTED.

Testator directed that all his plate, furniture, &c. at his mansion-house should remain there as heir looms, and devised the same to trustees, upon trust to permit the same to go, together with the mansion-house, to such persons as should, from time to time, be entitled to it for so long time as the rules of law and equity would permit; and devised his real estates to trustees to the use of several persons and their first and other sons, &c. successively in strict settlement. The absolute interest in the personal chattels vested in the first tenants in tail, and upon his death, under age passed to his representative. Carr v. Ld. Erroll, 14 Ves. 478. INTEREST, VESTED.

Bequest to the child or children of the testator's two daughters in terms creating a tenancy in common, viz. equally to be divided, &c. to be paid at twenty-one or marriage of daughters, with survivorship upon the death of any before his or their shares become payable; the accrued share to be equally divided, and to be payable, &c. as the original shares; the issue of any dying in the lifetime of the two daughters to stand in the place of the parent, and a limitation over in case his daughters die without issue, or having had issue, such issue should die in the lifetime of his daughters. The event of a death of a child above twenty-one not being within the survivorship expressed, his interest vested in his representative subject to the ultimate contingent limitation. Bayard v. Smith, 14 Ves. 470. Id.

Legacy to the children of A, to be equally divided among them, and if either of them die before twenty-one, their share to go to the survivors, a vested interest in the children living at the testator's death subject to be divested in the event pointed out; after-born children, therefore, excluded. Davidson v. Dallas, 14 Ves. 576. POSTHUMOUS CHILD.

Legacy in trust to pay the interest to the separate use of A for life; and after her decease, as to the capital, for her children; if no child, to pay the interest to her husband during his life; and from and after his decease, in case he shall become entitled to such interest, then to pay the principal to other persons. Though the husband, having died during his wife's life, never became entitled to the interest, the limitation over was established, as distinguished from the case of express condition. Pearsall v. Simpson, 15 Ves. 29. LIMIT OF PERSONALS.

Upon appeal, the Ld. Chancellor's opinion being that the reversion of the copyhold estate passed under the general devise, "as to all such worldly estate and effects as it may please God to bless me withal, or I may leave, or I may be entitled to at the time of my decease, whether real or personal, not before given or disposed of," especially if there was no freehold estate: inquiries were directed to ascertain that fact, and also whether there was any custom of surrendering a vested interest in reversion or remainder expectant upon an estate tail. Church v. Mundy, id. 396. INQUIRY BEFORE MASTER.

Legacy of "5000*l.* sterling, or 50,000 current rupees," afterwards described as "now vested in" the E. I. Company's bonds, and sometimes mentioned as "the said sum of 5000*l.* sterling," held not specific, but general, as a demonstrative legacy, with a fund pointed out: a construction to be favoured for a natural child, as giving a provision in all events: the will also giving one legacy, clearly specific, viz. the sum of 3548*l.*, "which said sum is in two bills," described as then lying for acceptance. Gillanne v. Adderley, 15 Ves. 348. LEGACY, SPECIFIC.

Devise of real estate to be sold, and the produce, with the personal estate upon trust, to be laid out in lands, or the funds subject to the debts and legacies for the maintenance of a charity in Scotland, void as to the produce of the real estate, valid as to the personal property, by the effect of the option. Curtis v. Hutton, 14 Ves. 537. MORTMAIN.

Residuary clause to be "divided amongst my next of kin as if I had died intestate," a bequest to the next of kin, as they would take under an intestacy and the widow is not one of the next of kin in the ordinary sense in which the testator used the words. Garlic v. Ld. Camden, 13 Ves. 372. NEXT OF KIN.

Primâ facie bequest by a husband to his next of kin, does not include his wife, nor does a similar bequest by a wife under a power include her husband. Id. 382.

Legacy to A, to be paid to her as soon as she shall attain twenty-one, and in case she shall live to that age, and not otherwise, or upon her marriage with consent of the executors and not otherwise, but in case she shall die before she shall have attained twenty-one, or be married with such consent, over: held a condition precedent, and by her marriage under age without consent, one executor being dead and the other resident abroad, reduced to the single contingency of her attaining twenty-one. Knight v. Cameron, 14 Ves. 389. CONDITION PRECEDENT.

A payment for mourning rings, though not directed by the will, allowed under the discretion given to the executors. Price v. Archbp. Canterbury, 14 Ves. 361. EXORS. POWER OF.

Bequest to the testator's two natural sons, with survivorship upon the death of either before twenty-one, and without issue; but in the event of both dying without issue, over; the interest beyond maintenance to be added yearly to the principal for their benefit, to be paid when they attain twenty-one. The limitation over upon the death of both established. As to the accumulation, held a vested interest, and the payment only postponed. Kirkpatrick v. Kirkpatrick, 13 Ves. 476. LIMIT. OVER OF PERSONAL.

Trust of a term by will to pay "the several legacies thereby given," and also "the several other legacies thereafter bequeathed." The subsequent part of the will reciting that the legacies given by the will to the testator's daughters were not an adequate provision, gave each of them a further legacy "in addition to the said legacies" given them respectively by the will. The legacies by the codicil are not charged upon the real estate. ASSETS MAINLY. Bonner v. Bonner, 13 Ves. 379. MARCHALING ASSETS; CHARGE ON REAL ESTATE.

Legacies to be paid out in money due on mortgage when recovered. The right to interest at four per cent., the mortgage producing five, does not depend upon the time when the money is recovered. Wood v. Penoyre, 13 Ves. 326. INTEREST ON LEGACIES.

A devise to J, W, C, &c. and their heirs each in due succession as named, with usual limitations in failure of issue in, and on the demise of A B, does not import an indefinite failure of issue in A B, but the limitation over to J, W, &c. is good by way of executory devise, these words meaning issue living at the time of the decease of A B the first taker. Stratford v. Powell, 1 Ball & B. 1. EXECUTORY DEVISE.

Distinction between marriage articles and wills; all the parties to the former considered purchasers to effectuate their intention; none of the parties mentioned in the latter are so, as the testator's intention is alone to be considered. Id. 25. MARRIAGE SETTLEMENT, C. OF.

Legacies to one younger child of the sum of 12,000*l.* of my funded property to be transferred in his name or employed as it shall appear most beneficial; to another the sum of 12,000*l.* in every respect the same; to a third the sum of 12,000*l.*, to be enjoyed by him in every respect as the former; the residue, real and personal, to the eldest son. The legacies to the younger children pecuniary, not specific; the fund, if deficient, to be equally divided among them. Lambert v. Lambert, 11 Ves. 607. LEGACY, SPECIFIC.

Distinction between a legacy given at a future time; the latter vested, and payment only postponed, the time being annexed, not to the legacy, but to the payment only. Hixon v. Oliver, 13 Ves. 113. LEGACY, WHEN VESTS.

Money under a direction to be laid out in land, considered as real estate under a general disposition by the will of a person, entitled to it absolutely in either shape, of "the money and land," in the absence of intention, the word "money" being answered by another fund, of stock. Biddulph v. Biddulph, 12 Ves. 161. MONEY TO BE LAID OUT IN LAND; ADMIN. OF ASSETS.

Devise by very general and extensive words, restrained upon the apparent intention. Devise to the first and other sons in tail male, and for want of such issue, to the daughter and daughters, her and their heirs as tenants in common, and for want of such issue to three nieces, and their several and respective heirs for ever as tenants in common, and for want of such issue to the testator's right heirs. As to the estate of the nieces, the prior limitations having failed, and the implication of cross remainders, qu? Green v. Stephens, 12 Ves. 419. See further, 17 Ves. 64.

Maintenance not allowed upon a legacy by a grandfather to his grand-children at twenty-one with interest, though the father was not of ability to maintain them, the legacies with the interest being given over in the event of death under twenty-one. Errington v. Chapman, 13 Ves. 20. INFANT MAINTENANCE; GRANDCHILDREN.

A right of pre-emption given by will, whether at a price expressed, or to be fixed by the trustees, will be executed, the construction in the latter case being a reasonable price to be ascertained by reference to the master. But to pass such right to the heir or devisee, the intention to accept the offer must appear by some act, or at least by will. El. Radnor v. Shafto, 11 Ves. 448. RIGHT OF PRE-EMPTION GIVEN BY WILL.

Testator directed maintenance for his sons during minority, and for daughter till twenty-one or marriage, and gave her a legacy in case she should attain twenty-one payable at, and to carry interest from that time; having married at eighteen, she was allowed maintenance for the interval until twenty-one. Chambers v. Goldwin, 11 Ves. 1. INFANT MAINTENANCE.

Maintenance out of interest of legacy to grandchild, when youngest should attain twenty-one, refused. Lomax v. Lomax, 11 Ves. 48. MAINTENANCE; GRANDCHILDREN.

An express estate for life, with a power to dispose by will, does not give an absolute interest, so as to preclude the necessity of executing the power. Reid v. Shergold, 10 Ves. 370. POWER, EXECUTION OF; ESTATE FOR LIFE; POWER.

The words "what remains" at the close of a bequest of a specific fund, held a general residuary disposition, the full sense not being necessarily confined; comprising, therefore, personal estate bequeathed upon a contingency too remote; not being to take place until thirty years after the testator's death. Crooke v. De launde, 11 Ves. 330. RESIDUE, WHAT.

Leasehold estates, bequeathed in trust to pay the rents and profits to the persons for the time being, entitled under the limitations of real estate devised in strict settlement, with power to the trustees at any time, with consent of the persons so entitled, or if minors, at their own discretion to sell and invest the produce in real estate to the same uses. The leasehold estates vest absolutely in the tenant in tail upon his birth, and the power is void. Hare v. Polhill, 11 Ves. 257. INTEREST VESTED; POWER, VOID.

Devise of real estate to be sold, the object being a provision for legacies, is not an absolute conversion, and is therefore a resulting trust for heir at law as to surplus, though a residuary executor is appointed. Berry v. Usher, 11 Ves. 87. CONVERSION, RESULTING TRUST; HEIR AT LAW; SURPLUS; LANDS DEVISED FOR SALE.

Residue bequeathed to infants with survivorship among them in the event of death, under the age of twenty-one; maintenance not being directed by the will, was not ordered by the court, there being a limitation over upon the death of all under twenty-one to their sister, having no other interest in that fund though a distinct legacy by the same will. The case in which the court has given maintenance, has been where the fund being given to the children, with survivorship among them, their interests and the chance of taking the whole, as survivor, were equal; and no other person interested. Exp. Keeble, 11 Ves. 604. INFANT MAINTENANCE.

Construction of will confining a clause of survivor-ship, not having issue, to the death of the tenant for life. Jenour v. Jenour, 10 Ves. 562.

Maintenance allowed in the case of children and grandchildren; though the interests were contingent with reference to case of survivorship, and though accumulation was directed, and no express authority for any application during minority, except for younger children surviving the eldest in the event of his death under twenty-one without issue. The court however refused to make the order on petition, and directed a bill to be filed. Fairman v. Green, 10 Ves. 45. INFANT MAINTENANCE; INTEREST, CONTINGENT; PR. PETITION.

On construction of will, held, that under a bequest to the younger children of A, an only surviving younger child was upon the whole will entitled; and the second having become the eldest was excluded. Ly. Lincoln v. Peihum, 10 Ves. 166. * YOUNGER CHILDREN.

Portion by will given, over upon marriage without the consent of executors, a conditional consent upon the offer of a settlement retracted upon a subsequent refusal to settle, and the marriage taking place. Held, forfeiture not relievable against. Dash v. Id. Bulkely, 10 Ves. 230. CONDITION, BREACH OF; FORFEITURE.

Annuity, part out of general assets, part specific, upon intention out of funds, some of which were perpetual, others temporary, to be divided equally between A, B, & C, and their heirs or the survivor of them, "in order as they are now mentioned." Held, that the annuity was limited only with reference to the temporary funds, with an absolute power of disposition; and that A dying in life of testatrix, her share goes to B and C equally, the concluding words "in order," &c. being rejected as repugnant. Smith v. Pybus, 9 Ves. 566.

G, by articles settling in strict settlement, real estate then subject to a mortgage of 1500*l.* (which had been borrowed to pay fines of certain leasehold interests), and subject also to other incumbrances, covenanted to exonerate the real estate from the 1500*l.*, and to charge it on the leasehold. Afterwards G, by will reciting the articles, devised the leasehold to his eldest son "in order to exonerate his second real estates from the said sum of 1500*l.* and to enable his second son to pay the same, and other debts and incumbrances affecting the same;" and the will proceeded: "and I do hereby charge and incumber the said leasehold interest to be bequeathed, with the payment of the said sum of 1500*l.*" The testator also by his will confirmed the articles with the exception of certain directions therein made as to the rents and profits of the settled lands, which he thereby limited in a manner different from the articles. Held, 1st, that the words "in order to exonerate, &c., and to enable," &c. amounted to a direction, and that the devise was a trustee to pay out of the leaseholds not only the 1500*l.* but all other debts and incumbrances affecting the real; 2dly, that G, by charging such debts and incumbrances on the leasehold, meant to purchase the power of disposing of the rents and profits of the settled estate, as he did by his will differently from the provisions in the articles; 3dly, the testator's eldest son, who was tenant in tail of the settled estates, not having applied the leasehold property in exoneration thereof in pursuance of the will, and having died without suffering a recovery. Held, that the remainder man in tail had a right to compel the exoneration of the settled estate out of the leasehold. Carey v. Carey, 2 Scho. & L. 173. EXONERATION OF REAL ESTATE.

After a devise of freehold and leasehold interest charged with incumbrances that affected the testator's real estate, he bequeaths to the same devisee all the rest of his real and personal estates, adding "and I do hereby order and direct my second son to pay off my just debts." This is an obligation on the son to pay off all the debts of testator in respect of the property given, and discharges a chattel interest bequeathed to another. Id. 188. CHARGE ON REAL ESTATE.

Bequest to testator's wife for life, and after her death to be divided between his brothers and sisters in equal shares; but in case of the death of any in life time of wife, the shares of him, &c. to be divided between his children. Held, vested, subject to be divested only by death in life of widow leaving children. Smither v. Willock, 9 Ves. 233. INTEREST VESTED.

Interest on the arrears of an annuity, bequeathed to a married woman for her sole and separate use, not given, though the fund was productive, and though there was a large residuum; nor in such annuities apportionable. Secus, semble, if it had been given as a separate maintenance. Anderson v. Dwyer, 1 Scho. & L. 301. INTEREST, WHEN PAYABLE; ANNUITY, ARRIARS OF.

Bequest of residue payable at a future time carries interest, though the legatee does not live to receive the principal. Sisson v. Shaw, 9 Ves. 289. INTEREST, WHEN.

Trust term by will of grandfather for raising portions provided among other events, that if the children be by their father in his life time advanced and preferred with portions as good or greater, to cease; personal property under the intestacy of father, held no satisfaction. Twisden v. Twisden, 9 Ves. 413. LEGACY, SATISFACTION OF.

Devise and bequest in trust to pay the income to A for use during life, with remainder in default of issue to B for his use during life; remainder in default of issue to C for life in same manner, with remainder over. The remainder after the limitation to A for life is void as too remote, and A being heir at law and residuary legatee, his title to the real estate and personal was established. Boehm v. Clarke, 9 Ves. 580. LIMITATION, TOO REMOTE.

Gift of 500*l.* by father to daughter, held not a satisfaction in part of legacy of 1000*l.* by previous will, the presumption against double portions in case of parent and child being repelled by circumstances, the gift not being by way of portion, but after marriage and from a particular motive appearing by declarations of testator to wife, which she proved. Robinson v. Whitley, 9 Ves. 577. DOUBLE PORTIONS; LEGACY, SATISFACTION OF.

Devise of a particular estate upon trust to raise and pay 400*l.* to A, held an exclusive charge not exonerated by subsequent direction for application of personal estate to debts and legacies, in exoneration of real estates before charged, which was referred to a prior charge upon estates, expressly excepting the estate charged with 400*l.* Spurway v. Glynn, 9 Ves. 483. CHARGE ON REAL ESTATES.

Devise upon trust by demise, sale, or mortgage or by rents and profits, to raise, &c. with all convenient speed after death of deviser, a sum, and subject thereto on other trusts. Held, interest payable at four per cent. from death. Id. ib. INTEREST.

Where the will, going beyond a mere charge, creates a particular fund for payment of debts, that shall be first applied in exoneration of descended estates, whether acquired after the date of the will or not, and of the personal estates even in favour of the next of kin taking it for want of disposition. Devise upon several limitations for life and in strict settlement with a direction, that incumbrances shall remain charged upon the estates respectively, until discharged by the several tenants for life, to whom they are respectively limited; all the rents and profits during the estate for life are to be applied to the incumbrances, principal as well as interest. Milnes v. Slater, 8 Ves. 295. INCUMBRANCES.

Bequest of the testator's fortune in India not extended under the general words, "temporal estate" in the introductory part of the will, to the property in England, part remitted from India between the will and the death, and some in its passage to England at his death. Sadler v. Turner, 8 Ves. 617. CHOSE IN ACTION.

After a legacy of stock in four per cent. consol. bank annuities, a legacy to same persons of "an additional sum of 200*l.* more, to be paid out of the four per cents." &c. was held pecuniary. Dennis v. Test, 9 Ves. 146. S. C. 1 Smith, 112. LEGACY, SPECIFIC.

The vesting of a legacy is not prevented by a provision for survivorship among the legatees, in case of the death of any under the age of twenty one. Id. ib. INTEREST VESTED.

Though, to effect the execution of a power by will, a direct reference to the power is not necessary, the intention must distinctly point to the subject of it; as if something is included which the testator had not otherwise than under the power, and part of the will, unless applied to it, would be wholly inoperative. Bennett v. Aburrow, 8 Ves. 609. POWER, EXECUTION OF.

Bequest to A for her and her children's use, a transfer decreed to A. Robinson v. Tickell, 8 Ves. 142.

Power not executed by general bequest of my estate and effects, which will pass only if the testator has an interest in; nor what he has an authority over. Roach v. Haynes, 8 Ves. 583. POWER, EXECUTION OF.

Devise to the testator's wife for life, and as soon after her decease or refusal to release dower as conveniently might be, upon trust to sell and divide the produce between five nephews, at such time as the sale should be completed, if then living; if any should die in her life or before the sale should be completed, his share to his children, if none to the survivors; the interests not vested till the sale. Elwin v. Elwin, 8 Ves. 547. INTEREST VESTED.

Legacy of "200*l.* 4 per cent. cons. bank anns." held not specific. The general assets, therefore, are liable to make up the deficiency of the fund. Wilson v. Brownsmith, 9 Ves. 180. LEGACY, SPECIFIC.

Devise to testator's wife for life, and from and after her decease to trustees on trust, to sell, and among other bequests, to lay out 500*l.* in an annuity for life of son. Held, a vested interest in son, if surviving the testator. Bayley v. Bishop, 9 Ves. 6. INTEREST VESTED.

Bequest of money in trust, to lay it out on government or other security, in purchase of annuity for life: Held on construction, to be laid out in annuity for life. Id. ib. INVESTMENT.

Testator married, but not then having children, gave the guardianship of all his children, born or to be born, to his wife and brother, or the survivor. The guardianship extends to all the children, by that or a future marriage. Exp. El. Chester, 7 Ves. 346. TESTAMENTARY GUARDIAN.

A tenant for life, in case she should so long live, and continue unmarried; in case of her marriage to her in fee; in case of her decease, unmarried, to her sister, B, in fee. A and B, and the husband of B, join in a sale by fine; the purchase-money was laid out in funds in names of trustees, without any declaration of trust, or agreement as to the application; nor was any notice of this fund taken in the wills of B and her husband. B, being the survivor, made a general disposition of all her personal estate in favour of A, although still unmarried: held absolutely entitled to the stock. Scawen v. Blunt, 7 Ves. 294. ADMON. OR ASSETS.

Where the suit is occasioned by a difficulty arising from the will of the testator, the costs are to be paid out of the general fund. Pearson v. Pearson, 1 Sch. & L. 12. PA. COSTS.

Bequest to three children in thirds respectively, with a direction that they should not be put in possession till their respective attainments of particular ages, and in case of the death of either of the above-named children before the ages mentioned, that third to be equally divided between the two surviving children, and in the event of the death of two before the respective ages above-mentioned, then the whole to devolve to the surviving child; but should all his children die before they should attain their said respective ages, then the whole of his estate was given over. One died having attained the age mentioned; afterwards another died under that age; the share of the latter a vested interest in the child who died first, and the survivor attaining the age specified. Wilmut v. Wilmut, 8 Ves. 10. INTEREST VESTED.

Legacies to two sisters, with a direction in case of the death of either, reciprocally to devolve to the other, that direction confined to the case of lapse by the death of either, in the life of the testator, and did not prevent the vesting absolutely. Cambridge v. Rous, 8 Ves. 12. Id.

Residuary clause passes all personal property that is not disposed of, as by lapse contended, upon the particular expressions, to have been separated, and not intended to pass with the residue. Id. 13. RESIDUE.

Bequest of personal property to A for life, and after her decease, to her children, when at age of twenty-seven respectively, and in the event of her not leaving any child or children, or of the death of all under age of twenty-seven, over. The limitation over too remote. Id. 24. IMITATION OF PERSONAL, 100 REMOTE.

Leasehold estate renewable, being bequeathed with limitation, in nature of strict settlement, the habit being to renew annually, and to under-let, the decree declared that the fines upon renewal ought to be paid out of the rents and profits, that the person entitled for life, undertaking to pay those fines out of rents and profits, was entitled to the fines of renewal of under-lease, and a renewal to such under-tenants as should be desirous of it, was directed. Mills v. Mills, 6 Ves. 761. FINES ON RENEWAL OF LEASE; TENANT FOR LIFE.

A legacy bequeathed generally, without assigning any time for payment, bears interest only from a year after the death of the testator, though the fund out of which it is to be paid, consists of stock and other matters yielding immediate profit. Pearson v. Pearson, 1 Scho. & L. 10. INTEREST ON LEGACY.

Pecuniary legacies bear interest from the expiration of a year, although the fund may not become disposable till afterwards. Id. ib.

E being on bad terms with his eldest son, bequeaths him a trifling annuity, and bequeaths to M, the daughter of his said son, "if unmarried, and if she does not marry without the consent of his trustees, the sum of 400*l.* one moiety to be paid her upon her marriage, with such consent, the other moiety in one year after; but if said M was then married, or should marry without consent, said sum to sink into his personal fortune." M being unmarried, is not entitled immediately either to principal or interest. Ellis v. Ellis, 1 Scho. & L. 1. LEGACY; CONDONA PRECEDENT.

Bequest of personal estate not held specific merely from being combined with a devise of land. Howe v. El. Dartmouth, 7 Ves. 137. LEGACY, SPECIFIC.
Bequest to testator's three children to be equally divided between them, share and share alike, but in case of the death of any without being married, and having children, the share of such child so dying to be divided between the surviving children, and so if one should only survive; any being married, and having a child, her share vested. Bell v. Phyn, 7 Ves. 453. INTEREST VESTED.

Simple contract debts not charged upon real estate by will, first directing that all his debts, &c. might be paid by his executors, all the real estate being specifically devised. Powell v. Robins, 7 Ves. 209. CHARGE ON REAL ESTATE.

The produce of real estate, sold under a power in a will, passed by a residuary clause with the personal estate, the object being a conversion out and out; but part remaining unsold, held a resulting trust for heir at law. Brown v. Bigg, 7 Ves. 279. ADMON. OF ASSETS.

Devise charged with debts to trustees, and their heirs in trust to receive, &c. rents, &c. and thereout to support and educate the deviser's son, till twenty-one, and then to him. Held, not a use executed in son before twenty-one. Bailey v. Ekins, 7 Ves. 322. USES & TRUSTS.

Testator having directed transfer of 3 per cent. consols, three months after his decease, gave several other legacies of stock "as aforesaid." Those words upon construction referred to description of stock, not to the time of the transfer. Sibley v. Perry, 7 Ves. 522.

Annuitants fall under general character of legatees, unless distinguished by testator. Therefore, entitled under a residuary bequest in favour of legatees. Id. ib. ANNUITANTS.

If general substantial intent of will is charity, the failure of the particular mode shall not defeat it, but the law will substitute another mode. Muggeridge v. Thackwell, 7 Ves. 69. Affid. 13 Ves. 416. CUM-ARITY; PERF. CY PRES.

Legacy to "A, or in case of his death," &c. construed to mean to A absolutely, if living. Turner v. Moor, 6 Ves. 557.

Charge of legacies by implication upon fund arising from accumulation of rents and profits, dividends and interest. Austin v. Hulsey, 6 Ves. 475.

Testator directed residue of his personal estate, subject to payment of legacies, &c. with all convenient speed to be laid out in real estate, to be strictly settled, and that interest should accumulate, and be laid out in lands to be settled in like manner. Various circumstances having delayed the collection and investment of personal estate, the tenant for life was held entitled to interest from end of year after testator's death. Sitwell v. Barnard, 6 Ves. 520. INTEREST; TENANT FOR LIFE.

Bequest of debt which shall be owing on a particular day, taken as it stood at that day, and not affected by consignments from Indies, on account, since death of testator, which happened previous to day specified. Innes v. Mitchell, 6 Ves. 461. LEGACY, ANTIPECTION.

Bequest to A, her executors, &c. provided that, in case she shall die under twenty-one, or without having any husband living, it shall go over; held, vested at twenty-one, upon intention, the word "or" being construed "and." Weddell v. Mundy, 6 Ves. 341. INTEREST, WHEN IT VESTS.

Residuary bequest to A, in case she should have legitimate children, in failure of which, to go over, A having only one child born alive, who died before her, entitled absolutely. Wall v. Tomlinson, 16 Ves. 413.

Costs of a doubt upon meaning of will to be paid out of the general property. Barrington v. Fris tram, 6 Ves. 345. PR. COSTS.

Devise in trust to sell, and apply money to such persons as trustees should think had a just demand, &c. on A, at his death, in equal degree and proportion, according to principal sum, as far as the money would extend; the securities to be delivered up, but the money should be received in no other way than as a voluntary bounty. The fund being more than sufficient, is liable to interest of bonds to extent of penalties. Austin v. Gregory, 6 Ves. 151. INTEREST, WHEN PAYABLE.

Legacy after limitations for life, and in default of children, to be paid equally between two persons, or the whole to the survivor of them: Held, not vested till the time of division. Daniell v. Daniell, 6 Ves. 297. INTEREST, WHEN IT VESTS.

Devise and bequest until a certain period, from nature of purpose and circumstances, held, not transmissible to representative. Ex parte Davies, 6 Ves. 147 a.

Testatrix gave a fund over which she had a power to appoint, &c. to trustees, in trust for her residuary legatee after named, and gave the general residue to A. By codicil she revoked the bequest of the residue and gave it to A & B. A was held solely entitled to the fund under the appointment. Roach v. Haynes, 6 Ves. 153. Affid. 8 Ves. 584. POWER, EXECUTION OF.

Residuary bequest construed to vest only as the property was received. Gaskell v. Harman, 6 Ves. 159. But see further, as to the decree in this cause, 11 Ves. 489. RESIDUARY BEQUEST, WHEN IT VESTS.

A direction for maintenance has not the same effect in favour of vesting as giving interest. Hanson v. Graham, 6 Ves. 249. INTEREST, VESTING OF.

An illegitimate child not entitled under the description of a child in a will, though the testator knew that some in the family were legitimate, and others not. Godfrey v. Davis, 6 Ves. 43. BASTARD.

A residuary bequest upon the whole will, vests only as the property is received: Held, therefore, that the representatives of a deceased residuary legatee are entitled only to part which was got in before his death. Gaskell v. Harman, 6 Ves. 159. Innes v. Mitchell, id. 461. From this decree plaintiff appealed; and the J.d. Ch. reversed that part of it which declares that the residuary property vested only as it was converted into money; his lordship holding that such an intention, though if clearly expressed, must, notwithstanding its convenience, be executed, and it is not the true construction of the whole will; and it is not to be collected unless clearly expressed. S. C. 11 Ves. 489. INTEREST, WHEN IT VESTS; RESIDUE.

A clause of survivorship between two legatees, if either of them should die, confined to a case of lapse, and did not prevent the legacies vesting. King v. Taylor, 5 Ves. 806.

Construction of a very inaccurate will, that the words "and all I am possessed of," were confined to a specific bequest of stock immediately preceding, meaning all interest in that fund, and did not compromise the general residue, which was, by a subsequent clause, expressly disposed of in a different manner. Wilde v. Holtzmeier, 5 Ves. 811.

The words "all I am possessed of," in a will, in legal construction, relate to the time of the death, not of the execution of the will, unless explained. Id. ib.

Devise to an infant grandson at twenty-one, with accumulations in the mean time, with similar limitations, in case of his death under twenty-one, to his sisters. Their father being dead, having left all his property, which was inconsiderable, to his wife, who married a person in low circumstances, maintenance was decreed, without an inquiry whether it was for the benefit of the infants, the court judging of that. Greenwell v. Greenwell, 5 Ves. 194. INFANT MAINTENANCE; GRANDCHILD.

Bequest, in trust to pay the annual produce into the proper hands of a married woman, is a bequest to her separate use. Hartley v. Hurlie, 5 Ves. 545. FEME COVERT; SEPARATE ESTATE.

Legacy general, notwithstanding an appropriation of part of the property. Legacy of a sum of money, Jamaica currency, decreed, with Jamaica interest, from the death of the testator. Raymond v. Brodbelt, 5 Ves. 199. LEGACY; INTEREST.

Residue of personal estate bequeathed to the children of the testator's two daughters, their executors, &c., with a limitation over in case both his daughters should die without issue: a vested interest in the grandchildren, and the limitation over is too remote. Rawlins v. Goldfrap, 5 Ves. 440. INTEREST, VESTED; LIMIT. TOO REMOTE.

A direction by will to apply so much interest as might be necessary towards the maintenance and education of the testator's grandchildren, upon the decease of their respective mothers, the residue to accumulate for them all, was confined to so much as should be actually necessary, regard being had to their situation at the death of their mother, the father having, by his will, left them a considerable property, with a provision for maintenance. Id. ib. MAINTENANCE OF INFANTS.

The rule taken from the ecclesiastical court that a direction postponing the payment of a legacy does not prevent the vesting, prevails in courts of equity as to personal legacies, unless a contrary intention can be inferred, as where the time of payment forms part of the description of the person to take: the vesting of a residuary bequest, is especially favoured to prevent an intestacy; and a direction that the interest should accumulate and be paid with the capital after a deduction for maintenance and preferment, is not sufficient to prevent it. As to the real estate, the contrary rule prevails, but subject to exceptions. Bulger v. Mutchell, 5 Ves. 509. INTEREST, WHERE IT VESTS.

Legacy in trust for the testator's son for his own use and benefit, provided no misfortune in business shall in the meantime have happened to him, so as to deprive him or his family of the benefit of it; his son's fortune being amply sufficient by this fund to form a certain and permanent provision for him or his family; but in case he fail in business at any time before the age of thirty-two, then in trust for the support of him, his wife and children, as the trustees think proper, so long as he shall labour under the effects of any misfortune in trade; but as soon as he shall be freed and absolutely discharged from the effects of any misfortune or failure in trade, then (but not before) to be paid to him, otherwise the interest to be continued to be paid for the support of him, his wife and children, for his life; and if at his death he shall be under any difficulty from misfortune or failure in business in trust for his wife and children according to his appointment by will, and if he shall have no widow or child, according to his disposition. There was a considerable settlement. The son in the twenty-eighth year of his age being discharged under a deed of composition, the legacy was decreed to him, his trustees and his children not opposing it; but the court observed that if he should not be discharged, as in case it should end in a bankruptcy, the trustees would not be indemnified. De Mierre v. Turner, 5 Ves. 306. TRUSTEES, LIABILITY OF.

Legacy for the board and education of an infant until he shall be fit to be put out apprentice, and then a farther sum with him as an apprentice fee: the infant having attained nineteen, and not having been put out, was held entitled to the legacies. Barton v. Cooke, 5 Ves. 461. LEGACY, WHEN PAYABLE.

If a legacy is given for the benefit of an infant in one way, and it cannot be so applied, it may be applied for his benefit in another way, as if it was to put him into orders; and he became a lunatic. Id. ib.

Residuary bequest to the testator's nephews and nieces, per stirpes, equally for their lives, and after the death of either, that share of the principal to be paid equally to and among the children of such of his said nephews and nieces as should die; and if any die without leaving any child or children, that share to go to and among the survivors or survivor of them in manner aforesaid. Upon the death of one without a child, that share goes to the survivors for their respective lives only, and will pass to their children respectively with the original shares: but upon the death of the last survivor without a child, his shares both original and accrued are undisposed of, notwithstanding another has left a child. Milson v. Audry, 5 Ves. 465.

A contingent legacy failed; the event which happened not being provided for; and as no necessary implication in favour of the legatee. Parsons v. Parsons, 5 Ves. 578. LEGACY CONTINGENT.

If a testator by will gives 2000*l.* a year by way of jointure to any woman he might marry, and after marriage, by codicil gives his wife the same jointure, she cannot claim both. Osborne v. Dk. Leeds, 5 Ves. 382. LEGACIES, ACCUMULATIVE.

Residuary disposition of all the testator's real and personal estate in trust to be remitted to England, was held specific and not to include a debt originally upon bond and judgment in T., and afterwards further secured by bond and judgment in England, under which it was received, and being considered undisposed of, was applied in the first instance to the debts, &c. Wisebett v. Murray, 5 Ves. 149. LEGACY, SPECIFIC.

Bequest of various particulars, comprising all the testator's personal estate, to his wife for life, then after specifically disposing of and charging with legacies, certain parts after the death of his wife, he appointed her executrix, she paying debts and funeral expences. Held, a resulting trust as to the residue, there being no further disposition and no evidence. Dicks v. Lambert, 4 Ves. 725. S. C. 4 Bro. C. C. 326. EXECUTORS BENEFICIALLY INTERESTED; TRUST RESULTING.

Legacy of "my stock," or "in my stock," or "part of my stock," will make a legacy specific. Kirkby v. Potter, 4 Ves. 750. LEGACY, SPECIFIC.

Upon a question as to the amount of a legacy from a doubt as to a figure, an issue was directed instead of a reference to the master. Norman v. Morrell, 4 Ves. 769. ISSUE AT LAW.

A provision by will for payment of interest of debts, held not to extend to a debt by simple contract. Tait v. J. Northwicke, 4 Ves. 816. INTEREST; SIMPLE CONTRACT DEBTS.

Bequests to the testator's wife for life then after an appropriation to answer annuities to the children of the testator's brothers and sisters. All the children living at the death of the testator, and those born afterwards before the death of the wife, had vested interests; a codicil in favour of the same objects only restrained to those surviving at the time of distribution, being held to apply only to the capital of the fund appropriated to the annuities. Middleton v. Messenger, 5 Ves. 136. INTEREST VESTED.

Legacy of the money due on a note, held specific upon the intention; but the inclination of the court is against specific legacy, and to hold it a general legacy with reference only to the security, as the fund first to be applied to it. Chaworth v. Beech, 4 Ves. 555. LEGACY, SPECIFIC.

Testator gave to his sister the interest of 300*l.* upon bond for life, and, after her decease, to her daughter the interest due upon the said bond at her death, with the principal. The legacy is specific; and there being among other bonds one of the exact amount, it was held to refer to that, though an insolvent security, and the interest in arrear before the death of the testator. Innes v. Johnson, 4 Ves. 568. LEGACY, SPECIFIC.

Residuary bequest to trustees, upon trust to pay the dividends, &c., equally between the testator's two great nieces until their respective marriages, and from and immediately after their respective marriages, to assign, and transfer their respective moieties or shares thereof unto them respectively, held a vested interest before marriage. One of the legatees being dead without having been married, the court directed one moiety to be paid to her executors, but would not permit the other moiety to be paid, but directed the interest and dividends of that moiety to be paid to the other legatee, with liberty to apply, in case of her marriage, or her death before marriage. Booth v. Booth, 4 Ves. 399. INTEREST, VESTED.

Bequest of the residue to A for life; and, after her death, legacies were given to B, or to her proper representative in case she should not be living at the decease of A, and to four other persons, or their representatives or representative. One of the four died in the life of testator, and another survived him, but died in the life of A. The former lapsed, and the latter vested. Corbyn v. French, 4 Ves. 419. LEGACY, LAPSED; INTEREST, VESTED.

Legacy to the testator's wife of the dividends of stock for her life, which he directs shall be continued in the same stock, and then to be shared equally, share and share alike, to his children that shall be then living. He also gave to his wife a leasehold house, of which fifty years were unexpired, for her life, and then to be let during the time of the lease to come, and the net produce thereof to be equally placed in the stocks for the benefit of his children that shall be then living, equally; and as to the residue of his estate whatsoever and wheresoever, the product he gave, &c., the same to be collected yearly, to his wife and children equally, share and share alike, that are then living: in other dispositions, the words "then" and "then living" were used with reference to some period expressed, viz. the age of twenty-one, or the death of the person to take for life: the stock and house vested at the wife's death in those children who survived her; the residue vested, at the testator's death, in his wife and all the children equally. Reeves v. Bryner, 4 Ves. 692. INTEREST, VESTED.

Portion by will prima facie a satisfaction of a portion by settlement. Tolson v. Collins, 4 Ves. 491. SETTLEMENT, SATISFACTION OF, PORTION.

Specific disposition by will, in trust to sell, and in the first place to pay debts, legacies, and charges of probate and execution of the trust, and in the next place, that the residue of the money be appropriated to the improvement of the city of Bath, is void, by stat. 9 G. 2. c. 36. As to a navigation share, which bequeathed at estate, goes to the heir, and as to money on real securities, as mortgages, trustee bonds, and commissioners' bonds for the improvement of the city of Bath, which go to the next of kin, the general residue undisposed of was first applied to the debts and other charges, and the deficiency was borne by the trust property that passed to the city of Bath, and that of which the disposition failed by the statute pro rata. Howes v. Chapman, 4 Ves. 542. MORTGAGE.

Bequest for the improvement of the city of Bath construed to mean improvements carrying on under an act of parliament, not by private persons. Id. ib.

By settlement 10,000*l.* provided for one daughter, or younger son: 15,000*l.*, if more. There being but one daughter, the father, by will, under a power reserved to him, appoints the time of payment, and the application of the interest of the 15,000*l.* provided for her by settlement, and gives her the further sum of 5000*l.* She was held entitled to 20,000*l.* Phipp v. Id. Mulgrave, 3 Ves. 613. SETTLEMENT, C. OF.

Bequest of personal estate, after a contingent limitation which did not take effect, established. Id. 614. LIMIT OF PERSONALTY.

Legacies to be paid out of a specific security which failed, held general upon the circumstances. Robert v. Peacock, 4 Ves. 150. LEGACY, SPECIFIC.

Bequest to A, and in case of her death to B, held an absolute interest in A. Hinchley v. Simmonds, 4 Ves. 160. INTEREST, VESTED.

Upon a devise to a charitable use, the heir has no right to the rents and profits accrued before the devise is carried into effect. Att. Gen. v. Bwyer, 3 Ves. 714. INTERMEDIATE PROFITS; CHARITY; HEIR AT LAW.

Legacy by will; the same sum given by a codicil to the same person upon a contingency, was held additional. Hodges v. Peacock, 3 Ves. 735. LEGACY, ACCUMULATIVE.

Testatrix gave nine legacies of 1000*l.* each, part of 14,500*l.* South Sea Annuities, and as to the residue of the said fund and all other her personal estate, including such of said legacies as should lapse by death, before they should be transferable, upon trust to convert into money such part of her residuary personal estate as shall not consist of South Sea Annuities, and invest such money with any money belonging to her at her decease in said fund, South Sea Annuities, and from time to time invest the dividends, &c. of all such South Sea Annuities, as shall constitute her residuary personal estate in the same fund, till the youngest of the said legatees shall or would, if living, have attained twenty-one, and then to transfer the whole of such South Sea Annuities to said nine legatees, equally with such survivorship, as their original shares; the nine legacies of 1000*l.* each only are specific; the remainder of the South Sea Annuities is part of the general personal estate. Richardson v. Brown, 4 Ves. 177. LEGACIES, SPECIFIC.

Devise, on condition of paying 500*l.* in six months, upon trust, to pay the interest to the devisor's wife for life, and after her death, the principal, according to her appointment in writing, with witnesses, whether sole or married, provided she shall release her dower within six months, and in case of her marriage without consent of the trustees, one moiety to go over; the wife who took other interests under the will, died within the six months, and not having married nor released dower, the 300*l.* did not vest in her. Croft v. Slee, 4 Ves. 60. INTEREST VESTED.

Two annuities of equal amount in the same will to same person, held not accumulative. Holford v. Wood, 4 Ves. 76. LEGACIES ACCUMULATIVE.

Legacy to A, if he be living, and in case of his death before the decease of B, to C, is contingent, viz. if A survives B. Hodges v. Peacock, 3 Ves. 735. LEGACY CONTINGENT.

Devise, after payment of debts; the debts are charged. Shatterers v. Finden, 3 Ves. 738. CHARGE ON LAND.

Real estate devised to be sold, and the produce disposed of with the personal, with a power to direct the fund to be laid out in land, no such direction having been given, it was held personal property. Maberly v. Strade, 3 Ves. 451. ADMON. OF ASSETS.

The rule, that legacies to the same persons by different instruments shall be accumulative, repelled by internal evidence, and the circumstance that all the legatees by the first instrument were legatees in the second, except those who were dead, or had quitted the testator's service. Barclay v. Wainwright, 3 Ves. 462. LEGACIES ACCUMULATIVE.

Slight circumstances are laid hold of to get rid of the rule that a legacy to a creditor extinguishes the debt, but a little difference between a portion and a legacy to a child, and as to the time of payment, will not prevail against the presumption of satisfaction. Id. 466. LEGACY, SATISFACTION OF; PARENT AND CHILD; DEBT, SATISFACTION OF.

Devise to A and her heirs, but if she dies under twenty-one and unmarried, to B and her heirs. A dies in the life of the testator under twenty-one and without issue, but having been married, the heir is entitled. Williams v. Chitty, 3 Ves. 546. TRUST RESULTING; HEIR AT LAW.

Real estates devised, held liable to simple contract debts under a direction in the beginning of the will, that debts and funeral expences should be first paid; that which descended to the heir by the failure of the devise to be first applied. Id. ib. ADMON. ON ASSETS; REAL ESTATE.

Leaschold property bequeathed in remainder, in trust for a child en ventre, if a son, for life, and after his decease, for such of his issue male as should be his heir at law at his death; if no such then living, for such persons as should then be the legal representatives of the testator; a son being born, and dying without issue, the limitation over was established in favour of the next of kin, according to the statute at the time of distribution. Long v. Blackall, 3 Ves. 486. LIMITATION OVER.

Vesting of a legacy postponed to the time of payment, and a limitation over in nature of a cross-remainder implied, from the general intention, reversing a decree that it vested at twenty-one. Mackell v. Winter, 3 Ves. 536. INTEREST, WHEN IT VESTS.

Limitation over upon the death of a person unmarried and without issue, unmarried in its usual sense, meaning never having been married; "and" was construed "or" for a reasonable construction. Marberly v. Strole, 3 Ves. 450.

Words of a survivorship added to a legacy in common in a will, are to be applied to the death of the testator, unless an intention to postpone the vesting is apparent. Id. 451.

Testatrix gave to A the dividends of 500*l.* stock, till he should attain the age of thirty-two, at which time she directed her executors to transfer the principal to him, the legacy does not vest till the age of thirty-two. Batford v. Kebbell, 3 Ves. 363. INTEREST, WHEN IT VESTS.

Legacy in trust for testator's mother and sister for life, and after the death of the survivor, for all and every the child and children of his sister living at her death, share and share alike, each receiving his or her share of the principal at twenty-one, and if but one child should be so surviving, in trust to pay the whole to such surviving child at twenty-one, the payment only is postponed, not the vesting. Wadley v. North, 3 Ves. 364. INTEREST VESTED.

Testator in India gives all his estates and effects to A in England, in trust, and directs his property to be remitted to him, and after several legacies, he gives A 800*l.* and requests him as soon as the property is remitted to lay out the same in the funds or other securities which shall appear most advantageous or those who shall be benefited by it hereafter, the 800*l.* is a beneficial legacy, not in trust. Id. ib.

Testator gave his wife real and personal estate in bar, full satisfaction, &c. of all dower or thirds which she can have or claim in, or out of, any part of his real and personal estate, or either of them; he gave the residue to four persons, and afterwards by codicil, directed them to dispose thereof in charities; part of the residue being invested in real securities, goes according to the statute, as undisposed of, and the widow is not barred. Pickering v. Ld. Stamford, 3 Ves. 332. affd. id. 492. HUSB. & WIFE; DOWER; DISTRIBUTION.

Testator gave real and personal estate to one daughter, in satisfaction of her child's part of whatsoever more she might have expected from him or out of his personal estate; he also gave a provision to his wife in full of her dower, thirds, or other claim at law or in equity, or by any local custom to any other part of his real or personal estate; the residue to his other daughter; upon her death in his life, he by codicil gave it according to the appointment of his wife; the power not being duly executed, the residue goes according to the statute as undisposed of, and the widow and daughter are not barred. Id. 335. CUSTOM OF LONDON; DISTRIBUTION.

There being a provision in marriage settlement to raise 5000*l.* for a child at twenty-one, the father by will adds 5000*l.* more, and charges the whole specifically on residuary real fund, which he had also by the same will made liable to debts and legacies in aid of his personal estate; the charged estate shall not be exonerated by the personal estate, for the charge is considered as a real devise, and cannot fall on the personality. Ld. Dudley and Ward v. Ward, 7 Bro. P. C. 566. ADMON. OF ASSETS; EXEMPTION OF PERSONAL ESTATE.

A, by will, devises his real estate to trustees in trust to sell the same in order to pay off the incumbrances, to apply the residue as he directed with respect to residue of his personal estates. He devises the residue of his personal estates after payment of debts and legacies, to executors on trusts. Held on construction that surplus money produced by sale of real estates was charged with the payment of simple contract debts. Kidney v. Cousmaker, 7 Bro. P. C. 573. ADMON. OF ASSETS; CHARGE ON REAL ESTATE.

A condition inconsistent with the gift is void: therefore upon a bequest to A for life, and at his decease to his heirs, executors, &c. but if he attempts to dispose of the principal, over; he takes the absolute interest, and the condition being inconsistent with it, is void. Bradley v. Peizito, 3 Ves. 324. CONDITION.

Testator by his will gave legacies to A, and B, describing them as grandchildren of C, and their residence in A.; by a codicil he revoked these legacies giving as a reason that legatees were dead; that fact not being true, they were held entitled upon proof of identity. Campbell v. French, 3 Ves. 321. MISTAKE.

Upon the ground of an express maintenance and other indications of the intention of testator, Ld. Ch. inclined to the opinion that the rule for interest upon a legacy given by a parent to a child till the time of payment was not applicable, but the bill of the children was dismissed upon circumstances of acquiescence, laches, and the consequent difficulty of taking the accounts. Mitchell v. Bourr, 3 Ves. 283. INTEREST ON LEGACY; PARENT & CHILD.

Contingent legacy out of real and personal estate payable two years after the event by codicil, the testator reciting that he found his estate would not bear that payment during the life of A, being chargeable with an annuity for her life, declared he revoked that part of his will, and that the said legacy upon the same event was to be paid twelve months next after the death of A, and not before; A dying before the contingent event, the legacy is not payable till the expiration of two years after it. Woodsworth v. Younger, 3 Ves. 73. LEGACY WHEN PAYABLE.

Devise in trust to sell for payment of debts and funeral expences with a particular disposition of the surplus money, the personal estate not being otherwise disposed of than by the appointment of an executor who was not one of the trustees, is first liable to the debts, &c. especially as the produce of the sale was not sufficient for them. Gray v. Minnethorp, 3 Ves. 103. ADMON. OF ASSETS.

Testator directed that his wife should have liberty to occupy his house for a year, provided she continues so long in L. Then by a distinct clause he directed his executors to pay her a guinea a week during her stay at L: her residence there beyond the year does not entitle her to a continuation of the weekly payment. Walker v. Watts, 3 Ves. 132.

Where a charity cannot be executed as directed, but the general purpose appears distinct, and may be in substance attained by another mode, it shall be executed cy pres; but a personal bequest attached to a void charity, as an endowment, must fall with its principal. Att. Gen. v. Whitchurch, 3 Ves. 141. CHARITY, PERPETUITY.

Annuity by will charged upon real estate for A for life, payable to him only upon his own receipt and no other, and to cease immediately on alienation, ceases by the bankruptcy and bargain and sale of the estate of A. Donnell v. Belford, 3 Ves. 149. ANNUITY; BANKRUPTCY; ASSIGNMENT.

Testator gave his sister M and his brother W the interest of the residue equally; at the death of M, one-half of the principal to her children, her husband by no means to have any part, but to be entirely for the children; if none, to W's children, and after the death of W and his wife, the other half to his children, and he excluded his eldest brother from any benefit. M's life interest is not to her separate use; the interest of the other moiety during the lives of W and his wife, would have vested in M, and therefore lapsed by his death in lifetime of the testator. Broune v. Clark, 3 Ves. 166. LEGACY LAPSED.

Though a general charge of debts upon a devised estate will not prevent the previous application of an estate descended, yet if the devised estate is selected and appropriated to the debts, it is liable before the estate descended, but this arrangement does not bind the creditors. Manning v. Spooner, 8 Ves. 114. ADMONITION OF ASSETS; CHARGE ON REAL ESTATE.

Real and personal estate devised to the executor in trust to pay debts and legacies, the rest and residue to himself, the only purpose of devising the real appearing to be to insure payment of the debts, without any intention to disinherit the heir: it was held only a charge, and that the heir was entitled to the surplus of the real estate. Halliday v. Hudson, 3 Ves. 210. CHARGE ON REAL ESTATE; HEIR AT LAW.

Condition by will requiring consent of trustees to marriage, not applicable to the second marriage of a natural daughter, who had married between the date of the will and the death of testator, having approved it, and was a widow at his death. Crommelin v. Crommelin, 3 Ves. 227. CONDITION; CONSENT.

"I return A his bond," in a will, is not a release, but a legacy, and having lapsed, the bond remains in force against a surviving co-obligor. Maitland v. Adair, 3 Ves. 231. BOND; RELEASE; LAPSED LEGACY.

Legacy in trust, to pay out of the interest 60*l.* a year to the testator's wife for life, and remaining interest during her life to B, duke of M, and in case of his death to his eldest or only son, and for want of issue male to his eldest or only daughter, for want of such issue female, to sink into the residue; and after the death of his wife, the testator gave the principal to the said duke, if then living, but if then dead, to his eldest or only issue male then living, and for want of such issue male, to his eldest or only daughter, for want of such issue female, to sink into the residue. B, duke of M died, leaving two sons and a daughter; both the sons died; the eldest left a son, duke of M, who filed the bill; the plaintiff is entitled to the surplus interest, but the principal is contingent till the death of the testator's widow. Dk. Manchester v. Boulham, 3 Ves. 61.

Devise in fee and bequest of personal estate to A, and in case of his death under twenty-one, without leaving issue to B. Codicil affirming the will in all respects, except by directing that A should not be entitled till twenty-five. A dying between the ages of twenty-one and twenty-five without issue, B has no title. Scott v. Chamberlayne, 3 Ves. 302.

Under a devise of manors, lands, &c. to A, his executors, &c. for a term of eleven years, in trust to receive the rents, issues and profits of the premises that should from time to time accrue and become due, and dispose of the same for the benefit of a cestui que trust, A may, by the directions of the cestui que trust, and for his benefit, assign the advowson of a rectory appendant to a manor to a purchaser, for the said term of eleven years, to intent that purchaser may present for the next turn, in case of an avoidance before the expiration of term; and in case of such avoidance, the purchaser may present accordingly. El. Albemarle v. Rogers, 7 Bro. P. C. 522. ADVOWSON; VENDOR & PURCHASER.

Testator gave his wife 400*l.* a year, in addition to 500*l.* a year under her settlement, in consideration of the expence and care she would incur in the maintenance of their children; she must maintain them when at home, but is not to be charged with education or maintenance at school. Collier v. Collier, 3 Ves. 33. LEGACY, CONDITIONAL.

A bequest of two bonds and a mortgage to a married woman, with a direction that they should be delivered up to her whenever she should demand or require the same, is a bequest to her separate use. Dixon v. Olmuis, 2 Cox, 414. HUSB. & WIFE; SEPARATE ESTATE.

A devised to each of the children of B 50*l.* to be paid to B for their use; B left each of them 260*l.* if they attained twenty-one: Held no satisfaction. Pullen v. Cross, 3 Anst. 830. S. P. Field v. Mestyn, id. 831. note. DEBTS, SATISFACTION.

Where an estate is devised, subject to a yearly charity, if charity cannot take effect for a period, although without default of devisee, the arrears shall accumulate. Att. Gen. v. Bolton, 3 Anst. 820. CHARITY; INTERMEDIATE PROFITS.

Testator gave the residue of his personal estate to his wife, desiring her to provide for his daughter A out of the same, as long as she, his wife, should live, and at her decease to dispose of what shall be left among his children, in such manner as she shall judge most proper. This is not an absolute trust for the children after the death of the wife. Pushman v. Filliter, 3 Ves. 7. TRUST.

A devised all his estates to widow for life, remainder to nephew, he paying 2000*l.* to appointee of widow, and made her executrix and residuary legatee. The estates were held under church leases, which testator renewed after will; quære, if a revocation? The widow by will, "in pursuance of power," appointed plaintiffs; and devised estates "so given by her said husband's will, and all her interest, &c. therein" to trustees for nephew, on his paying the said 2000*l.* "according to the true intent, &c. of husband's will, but not before or otherwise." Supposing the renewal of leases a revocation, the widow shall be presumed to have designedly given effect to real intent of husband. Penrice v. Garnons, 3 Anst. 821. WILL, REVOCATION OF; RENEWAL OF LEASES; POWER, EXECUTION OF.

Where testator, by will, devised to daughters as tenants in common his residue, and afterwards made a codicil expressly for a particular purpose, but thereby also re-devised the residue to daughters omitting the words of severance, the codicil was construed by will, and they took as tenants in common. Mathews v. Bowman, 3 Anst. 727. CODICIL.

P. gave by will "to his three daughters, 500*l.* each, to be paid them severally within five years after his decease, if then alive, or any issue of their several bodies, to be paid by son, the residuary devisee, the interest from his death at four per cent. for so many of the five years as his son should keep it in his hands, but if there should be no issue living of any of daughters, at end of five years, then annuity for life of 20*l.* each, and the several sums of 500*l.* to be paid to them so dying without issue, should be equally divided between the survivors and their issue." One of the daughters dies within five years, leaving issue, and having previously assigned her interest. The assignee held entitled to the 500*l*. Oseland v. Oseland, 3 Anst 628. INTEREST VESTED.

Testator gave his personal estate to his mother for life, remainder to his children, on condition that his mother should see the fines for renewal of a lease and the interest of a mortgage paid, and be consulted as to the manner of raising the fines, that she may give her approbation as she may think proper: she is only to keep down the interest. Buckridge v. Ingram, 2 Ves. J. 651. TENANT FOR LIFE; INCUMBRANCES, KEEPING DOWN.

Testator by will duly attested, gave an annuity to his daughter, charged on his real estate in aid of his personal; by codicil not attested, he gave his real and personal estate to his mother for life during her life; the personal estate is discharged from the annuity, but it remains a charge on the real. Id. ib. CHARGE ON REAL ESTATE.

Devise of real estate to be sold, and the produce, with the personal estate, to testator's wife for life, with power to appoint a moiety by deed or will, with two or more witnesses: the estate was not sold; the wife, having no other real estate, by will with three witnesses, gave specific legacies, some described to have been her husband's, and all the rest, residue, and remainder, of her estate and effects of what nature or kind soever, and whether real or personal, and all her plate, china, linen, and other utensils which she should be possessed of, interested in, or entitled to at her decease: the power is executed by the residuary clause. Evidence of conversations with the person who drew the will, to shew the testatrix had no other real estate, rejected. Standen v. Standen, 2 Ves. J. 569. PR. EVIDENCE.

Testator gave real estates to be sold, and the produce to be considered as part of his personal estate, and thereout and out of his personal estate, gave legacies to his next of kin, heir, and others, he gave other estates to be sold, and the produce to be considered from thenceforth as other part of his said personal estate, and to be disposed of in manner following: he then gave legacies, and some estates specifically, and other legacies out of his said trust monies and personal estate, and gave his executor 1000*l*. to be disposed of according to any instructions he might leave in writing, and gave all the residue of his goods and chattels, personal estate and effects, whatsoever, subject to debts, legacies, &c. No instructions being found, the heir is entitled to the 1000*l*. Collins v. Wukeman, 2 Ves. J. 683. HEIR AT LAW; RESULTING TRUST.

Testator gave the interest of a bill of exchange on the E. I. Comprny to his wife for life, and directed that after her death the bill should be sold and the money divided among certain persons, with survivorship in case of the death of any in her life. This bill, which constituted the bulk of the testator's property, was paid in his life; that was not an ademption of the legacy. Coleman v. Coleman, 2 Ves. J. 638. LEGACY, ADEMPITION OF; LEGACY SPEC.

Where a testator having both freehold and copyhold estates, charges his real estate with payment of his debts if he has surrendered the copyhold to the use of his will, the freehold and copyhold shall be applied rateably; but if he has not surrendered the copyhold, it shall not be applied until the freehold is exhausted. Groucock v. Smith, 2 Cox, 397. COPYHOLD; CHARGE ON REAL ESTATE.

This clause beginning a will, "First, I will and direct that all my legal debts, legacies, and funeral expences, shall be fully paid," is not sufficient alone, to charge legacies on real estates specifically devised; for which the intent must be clear. Kightly v. Kightly, 2 Ves. J. 328. CHARGE ON REAL ESTATE.

Testator created a term for debts and legacies, and gave 1000*l*. to his niece to be paid immediately after his decease, if she should be then married, if not the interest of the said legacy to be paid her for life, to be calculated and paid to the day of her death or marriage; if she should die unmarried, the legacy to lapse for the benefit of the estate, and by codicil he gave her 200*l*. in addition to what he had given her by the will: held that the additional legacy is to be raised out of the same fund, and subject to the same conditions, and the legatee having married after the testator's death is entitled. Crouder v. Clowes, 2 Ves. J. 449. LEGACY CONDITIONAL; CHARGE ON LAND.

A legacy substituted for another, shall be raised out of the same funds and subject to the same conditions. Id. ib. LEGACY SUBSTITUTED; LEGACY CONDITIONAL.

Legacy by a grandfather in trust for five children by name, and all and every the child and children of his son equally, the shares to be assigned at twenty-one or upon marriage of the daughters, with power to advance money for putting out all and every, or any of the sons to businesses. The first attaining twenty-one is entitled to receive his share then. Prescott v. Long, 2 Ves. J. 690. LEGACY, WHEN PAYABLE.

Covenant in marriage articles by the husband, to pay his wife if she should survive, 200*l*. as jointure, and 50*l*. to provide herself with a house yearly for life; afterwards by will, he gave her for life, an estate and house, above the yearly value of 100*l*. a year, with the household goods, &c. and an annuity of 100*l*. commencing and payable at different times, from those in the articles: held not a performance, nor intended as a satisfaction, no such intent being expressed. Richardson v. Elphinstone, 2 Ves. J. 462. MARRIAGE SETTLEMENT, SATISFACTION OF.

Testator devised all his real estate to his sister for life, remainder to her children as she should appoint; for want of appointment to all her children and their heirs as tenants in common. His sister having two daughters, by a codicil declared to be a codicil to his will, not then at hand, he gave one of them an annuity, and directing his annuities to be paid out of his three per cent. stock, he charged them on his real estate in case of a deficiency; and directing the residue of his personal estate to be invested in freehold lands and hereditaments, he recommended to his sister to settle and convey or join with her husband in settling and conveying all his estates and property, which she might derive from him after his decease, to the use of her two daughters for life in such parts, shares, and proportions, as he should approve, with the remainder to their respective issue, and cross remainders, and the usual powers and clauses in strict settlement. The testator's sister died in his life and her two daughters were his co-heiresses. Some real estates were purchased between the executions of the will and codicil. As to the real estate the will is not revoked, but is republished by the codicil, and the two nieces are entitled to all the real estates, and to those directed to be purchased, as tenants in common in fee. Meggison v. Moore, 2 Ves. J. 630. WILL, REVOCATION OF; CODICIL; WILL, REPUBLICATION OF.

Devise of freehold and copyhold surrendered to the use of the will to trustees and the survivor and his heirs, in trust to pay debts and legacies, an annuity to the testator's son, and for other purposes; then on the marriage or attaining twenty-one of his granddaughter, to convey to her for life, remainder to trustees, &c. remainder to her first and other sons in tail male, remainder to her daughters in tail general, remainder to such persons for such estates, and subject to such charges and conditions as he should by any deed or instrument, with two or more witnesses, appoint: the next day by deed poll, with two witnesses, reciting his will, and that he had reserved a power of disposing of his estate, further, he directed his trusttees, immediately after the death of his granddaughter, and failure of her issue to convey all his real estate to the first and other sons of his son in tail male, then to his daughters in tail general, then to the right heirs of the survivor of his trustees, his heirs and assigns for ever. No conveyance was made. The granddaughter died without issue; then the son died without issue, leaving one trustee surviving. Under the will alone, the trustees have a mere legal estate, and all the equitable interest beyond the express dispositions would result to the son as heir; but the deed was considered as a codicil sufficiently executed to pass copyhold but not freehold. The last limitation is a contingent remainder to the heir of the surviving trustees, and a conveyance was directed with an insertion of trustees to support that remainder as to the copyhold; the rents and profits of the copyhold during the life of the trustee, and all the freehold to go to the heir of the testator. Haubergham v. Vincent, 2 Ves. J. 204. S. C. 4 Bro. C. C. 353. DEED C. OF; REMAINDER, CONTINGENT.

Testatrix directed her real estate to be sold, and all her estate to be converted into money for the purpose of her will; the will was satisfied without touching the real; no equity for the next of kin against the heir. Chitty v. Parker, 2 Ves. J. 271. 4 Bro. C. C. 411. MARSHALLING ASSETS; NEXT OF KIN.

Though a gift of a legacy may release a debt, yet where the bond remains uncancelled, it must clearly express the intention so to do. Wilnot v. Woodhouse, 4 Bro. C. C. 227. DEBT, RELEASE OF.

Money was to be laid out in land to be settled to the husband for life, remainder to raise portions for younger children, the money was afterwards invested by direction of the husband in S. S. annuities, afterwards by will, he devised generally all his manors, &c. to certain uses, the money in the funds must be laid out in land. Hickman v. Bacon, 4 Bro. C. C. 333. MONEY AGREED TO BE LAID OUT IN LAND.

In an executory trust to be effected by the court, it is sufficient, if it can satisfy itself of the testator's intention to carry it into execution; therefore, where testator gave his real estate to A, to devise in strict settlement, and ordered other estates to be sold, and converted into personalty, and the produce, with the residue of his property to be laid out in land in A, contiguous and convenient to his estate in A, and by strong expressions (though without direct words) shewed he intended it to go to the same uses, it was decreed so to be. Brown v. De Laet, 4 Bro. C. C. 527. TRUST, EXECUTORY.

Devise of lands made chargeable "with what I shall hereafter charge upon it:" a legacy not expressly charged shall be paid out of the land. Compton v. Oxenden, 4 Bro. C. C. 402. S. C. 2 Ves. J. 261. CHARGE ON LAND.

After a clear gift to a college of three presentations to a living, their interest cannot be extended by doubtful words. Emanuel Coll. Can. v. Bp. Norwich, 4 Bro. C. C. 481.

A residue to be divided by executors at an indefinite term vests at the death of the testator, unless an intention is manifest to the contrary upon the face of the instrument. Stapleton v. Palmer, 4 Bro. C. C. 490. INTEREST, VESTED.

The testator being married, and in ill health, devised the estates in question, after failure of issue male of his own body (and issue male would have taken under his marriage settlement), to the defendant, who was his heir at law, for life, with remainder over: Ld. Northington declared, that the devise being after a general failure of issue male, was too remote and void, and that the defendant took as heir at law; and the declaration reversed upon a bill of review. Lytton v. Lytton, 4 Bro. C. C. 141. LIMIT, TOO REMOTE.

Devise to A for life, with liberty to leave the same to whom she thought most deserving of it, recommending to her to have a due regard to the testatrix's mother's relations, is not mandatory as to the objects of the appointment. Randal v. Hearle, 1 Anst. 124. TRUST; WORDS, RECOMMENDATORY, &c.

Bequest of real and personal estate to take a house for a school to educate children, and grandchildren of particular persons, and other children; good as to the particular objects, but bad as a general charity. Blanford v. Fackrell, 4 Bro. C. C. 394. CHARITY.

A devised the residue of his property to his wife, in trust to divide it among their children in such manner as they should deserve. One of the seven children sold her share, and covenanted to make it up a full seventh; this is good: and on a specific performance, she can make a good conveyance without the mother joining. Musprat v. Gordon, 1 Anst. 34. VEND. & PURCH.; TITLE.

Legacies nearly similar given to the same persons by different instruments, legatees not entitled to both. Moggridge v. Thackwell, 1 Ves. J. 464. S. C. 3 Bro. C. C. 517. Affid. 13 Ves. 416. LEGACY, ACCUMULATIVE.

Legacies to the same persons by different instruments generally, presumed additional, unless contrary intent appears, of which simple repetition, if exact, is sufficient proof. Id. 472. Id.

A bequest of money to be laid out in land, and applied to a charitable use; but until an eligible purchase can be made to be laid out at interest, and the interest applied in the same manner, does not give any alternative to the trustees, but is void by the statute; and so is a bequest made in favour of two persons by name, if given to them by officiating in a charity, void by the statute. Grievs v. Case, 2 Cox, 301, 302. S. C. 4 Bro. C. C. 67. 1 Ves. J. 548. MORTGAGE; PARTNERSHIP.

Legacies of New S. S. annuities, declared to be pecuniary, not specific, though the testator had more of that stock than sufficient to pay them. Simmons v. Vallance, 4 Bro. C. C. 345. LEGACY, SPECIFIC.

Devise of real and personal estate to trustees, to pay, &c. to testator's wife for life, then to pay a legacy to his daughter; this is a vested legacy in the daughter, and transmissible. Molesworth v. Molesworth, 4 Bro. C. C. 408. Reversing S. C. ante, 3 Bro. C. C. 5. to 7. INTEREST, VESTED.

Devise of lands to be sold in aid of personal estate, "and after death of my wife, the estates not sold, and the personal estate not applied to be subject as aftermentioned; the rents and produce to be carried on in accumulation of 3 per cents. as aforesaid during her life, and also for five years after her death, and to be laid out in land; then if my son M shall be living, and any lawful issue of his body, and if my son G shall be living, and any lawful issue of his body, to them for life, as tenants in common, then to their issue in moieties; if only issue of one, to that issue; if but one, to that one, with power of settlement; my wife to receive such provision as aforesaid, neat and clear, and the residue only to be subject to the devise over, to take place after her death, to her son, his heirs, &c.; and if she should have any other issue, to them, their heirs, &c., on failure of issue of his sons and grandson." The devise over is attached to the single event of both sons being dead without issue at the death of the wife, or five years after at most; and one son being alive at that time, though without issue, it never took effect: but the son is not entitled to the estate absolutely, on account of the contingent interest in his issue. Grievs v. Bainbridge, 1 Ves. J. 562.

Devise of land to be sold, money produced by the sale charged with simple contract debts on the intention, though doubtful. Kidney v. Coussmaker, 1 Ves. J. 436. CHARGE ON REAL ESTATE.

"After paying debts" amounts to a charge for debts, for which very little is sufficient, the court leaning that way : but the leaning of the court to charge land with simple contract debts, must be warranted by the intention. Id. 440. 443. CHARGE ON LAND.

Where testator combines real estate with personal generally, the real estate is subject to all the burthens of the personal. Id. 444. CHARGE ON REAL ESTATE.

Testator devised to all the children of his two sisters A and B; A, long before the date of the will, changed from the Jewish to the Roman Catholic religion, was baptised by a new name, and became a professed nun at Geneva. Bill by the children of C, a third sister, living with B at Leghorn, upon ground of mistake in testator, and evidence of intent to provide for his sisters at Leghorn, dismissed. Delmare v. Robello, 1 Ves. 412. MISTAKE.

Devise, properly attested, of land upon several trusts, remainder to such trusts as testator should by any deed appoint; whether land would pass by the deed of appointment? sent to law upon a case stating the devise to be to uses. Hubergham v. Vincent, 1 Ves. J. 410. POWER TO APPOINT, EXECUTION OF.

A devised to trustees to pay debts, and then to hold till his son should attain twenty-one; then to the son, he paying the father of the testator 10l. per quarter. The annuity does not commence till the estate of the son comes in esse. Turner v. Probyn, 1 Aust. 66. ANNUITY, WHEN COMMENCING.

In this case, a portion proceeding from a parent held vested in a deceased child, upon what was collected by the court, as the intention of the parties, against very strong expressions to the contrary. Woodcock v. Dk. Dorset, 3 Bro. C. C. 569. INTEREST, VESTED.

Testator declaring his debts should come out of the real estate and the personal, gave the real to trustees charged with some charitable legacies, and one to each trustee; by codicil he removed one trustee, and revoked his legacy, appointing another with the same legacy. He revoked all the charitable legacies, and gave a less legacy to one of the charities mentioned before, and other new charitable legacies without specifying any fund; all held to be charged on the real estate, and, therefore, void as to the charitable legacies. Leacroft v. Maynard, 1 Ves. J. 279. S. C. 3 Bro. C. C. 233. CHARGE ON REAL ESTATE; MORIMAIN.

Codicil considered as part of the will, and intent drawn from the whole. Hill v. Chapman, 1 Ves. J. 407. CODICIL.

Plate excepted by bequest of personal estate to wife, after her decease over, and recited to be hereinafter given to daughter, but not father nor son; undisposed of. Frederick v. Hall, 1 Ves. J. 396.

Legacy out of a fund in the East Indies given over in case of death of legatee before he might have received it, vested from death of testator. Hutcheon v. Mannington, 1 Ves. J. 366. INTEREST, VESTED.

Testator, after giving life interests in stocks to each of his daughters, afterwards the principal among his grandchildren, in pursuance of a power in articles of partnership appointed his executors to carry on the trade in his room, with power to dissolve or nominate any other person, and gave them his share of the capital, and all freehold and leasehold in trust to carry on the trade as long as they should think fit, and after expiration of partnership to sell the estates, and with the produce and profits of trade, and all the rest of his estate form a fund to accumulate twelve years, then among the grandchildren living. By codicil he substituted his partner, who was his son-in-law, in the room of one executor removed, and desired, that if his executors should continue in trade, and his grandsons T and J should attain twenty-one, his executors would nominate each a partner for a quarter, when executors should think fit, with legacies at the same time, to sink into the estate, if they should decline the partnership or die before twenty-one; executors to advance any further sum they might want to carry on trade; the rest of his property among all the grandchildren, except T and J. By another codicil he left it entirely to executors to appoint J or not, if not appointed his legacy to be void: T and J both entitled to be partners, and to their legacies at twenty-one; one executor, (their father) being for admitting them, the other two against it; but if all had without fraud united in declaring J unfit, they might have excluded him, in which case he could have taken nothing under this devise. Wainwright v. Waterman, 1 Ves. J. 311. PARTNERSHIP.

Wife entitled, under bond by the husband upon the marriage, to the sum payable three months after the death, for her life, then for the children; if none, for her absolutely. By will he gave all real and personal estate he then had, or might die possessed of, upon trust to pay her the rents and interest for life, then the whole equally to the children; if none, over; and revoked all former settlements and wills; there were no children; the widow entitled to both. Forsight v. Grant, 1 Ves. J. 298. S. C. 3 Bro. C. C. 242. SETTLEMENT, SATISFACTION OF.

Gift of a residue to children not to be claimed till twenty-two, but the interest given in the meantime, is vested. Dadson v. Hay, 3 Bro. C. C. 404. INTEREST, VESTED.

Devise of an annuity of 50l. to be purchased by executor, who, till the purchase, was to pay annuitant 40l. a year; executor, instead of purchasing, paid 50l. a-year from testator's rents; annuitant held entitled to 40l. the first year, and 50l. a-year afterwards. Broune v. Spooner, 1 Ves. J. 291.

Interest of residue of personal estate given by will to a woman for life, then the residue of her nieces; if they die without issue, over; the last limitation over is too remote, and on the death of the aunt, the nieces take the whole. Everest v. Gell, 1 Ves. J. 286. LIMITATION TOO REMOTE.

Testator leaves a residue in trust for four, with survivorship; two died; the survived share shall survive as well as the original shares, being the case of an aggregate fund. Worlidge v. Churchill, 3 Bro. C. C. 465. SURVIVORSHIP.

Legacy to a feme covert, "her receipt to be a sufficient discharge to the executors," is equivalent with saying "to her sole and separate use." Lee v. Prieaux, 3 Bro. C. C. 381. LEGACY, FEME COVERT.

First, a devise to A at twenty-one, and if she die under twenty-one, to her children, or if she die under twenty-one and no children, then over. A survived twenty-one and had children, and then died in the life-time of the testatrix; decided at law, that A's children could not take, the above being a condition precedent, contrary to the opinion of Lord Thurlow C. Doo v. Brabant, 3 Bro. C. C. 393. CONDITIONAL LIMITATION; CONDITION PRECEDENT.

Devise of W. acre to A for life, upon condition that A suffer a recovery of B. acre and settle it, and if he does not then after the decease of A, W. acre to go to B; A took W. acre, but did not settle B. acre, the heir of A is not bound to convey pursuant to the condition, nor are A's assets liable to make good the breach of the condition. Freeke v. Ld. Barrington, 3 Bro. C. C. 274. LIMITATION, CONDITIONAL; CONDITION, WHO BOUND BY.

A legacy given to daughters equally to be divided between them, with a devise also thus, "and all my estate at St. O. to be equally divided between them," when they arrive at twenty-four years of age; the legacy held to be vested immediately, and only the time of payment postponed. May v. Wood, 3 Bro. C. C. 471. INTEREST VESTED.

Testator having given to charities, legacies, and also a residue in bank stock, and having no bank stock at his decease, but having three per cent. annuities which would satisfy the legacies in that shape, and leave a residue; but if sold would not purchase bank stock to satisfy the legacies in that form, a decree taken by consent, that the legacy should be paid in three per cents. according to the sums given; an infant not opposing, his legacy, ordered to be paid in the same manner; but if the testator's property had been sufficient, the legacies should have been paid in bank stock. Finch v. Inglis, 3 Bro. C. C. 420. ADMON. OF ASSETS; LEGACY HOW PAYABLE; INFANT.

Testator by his will taking notice that he had not surrendered copyhold estates which he devised, but directing his son to convey them, and devising to the son other estates, though the copyholds are not devisable by custom, yet the surrenders decreed to be made. Wardell v. Wardell, 3 Bro. C. C. 116. COPYHOLD SURRENDERED.

Testator bequeathed the residue of his personal estate in trust to pay 12l. per annum to the schoolmaster of R, and to apply the surplus, if any, in the clothing, and putting out apprentice two children of R, and one child of W, and he made no further disposition of it; the residue being more than sufficient for the specific purposes of the will, the surplus is not considered as undisposed of, but must be applied in increasing the number of the objects of the charity. Att. Gen. v. Hurst, 2 Cox, 364. S. C. nom. Att. Gen. v. El. Winchelsea, 3 Bro. C. C. 374. SURPLUS RESIDUE; CHARITY.

A legacy charged on land to be purchased with the residue of a personal estate will lapse by the death of the legatee before the day of payment, as if charged upon lands actually purchased. Harrison v. Naylor, 2 Cox, 248. S. C. 3 Bro. C. C. 108. LEGACY, LAPSED; CHARGE ON REAL ESTATE.

Latent ambiguity arises dehors the will, and evidence is admissible to explain it; as in case of two manors of the same name, or an inadequate description of a child; not to explain a patent ambiguity upon the face of the will. Fangh v. Read, 1 Ves. J. 259. S. C. 3 Bro. C. C. 192.

Legacy payable at twenty-one, with proviso to go over, if legatee should at any time become seized of the real estate, to which he was entitled in remainder after an estate tail limited upon an estate for life, subsisting when he became twenty-one. Even supposing there is a contingency left, he must have the legacy at twenty-one; but it may be disputed afterwards upon the happening of the contingency. Griffith v. Smith, 1 Ves. J. 97. LEGACY, CONDITIONAL.

Jewels, &c. to A for life, then to such grandchildren as she should appoint; in default of appointment, it shall go equally. Watts v. Boddington, 3 Bro. C. C. 95. POWER TO APPOINT.

Interest of legacy to A for life, remainder to B and C, or in case one should die, living A, then to the survivor; B and C, both die in the life of A; the legacy was vested, and went to the survivor. Scarfild v. Hoves, 3 Bro. C. C. 90. INTEREST, VESTED.

Executor not entitled to his legacy without proving the will, although the will expressed it as a mark of gratitude for past favours. Read v. Delagnes, 3 Bro. C. C. 95. EXECUTOR; LEGACY; RENOUNCMENT OF TRUST.

Testator reciting that he is possessed of a certain sum in navy bills bequeaths it; this is a specific legacy, and shall pass only such navy bills as he possessed at his death. Pitt v. Ld. Camelford, 3 Bro. C. C. 160. LEGACY, SPECIFIC.

Legatee entitled, notwithstanding a mistake of his name. Campbell v. French, 3 Ves. 322. MISTAKE.

No difference between a lapse and what is not disposed of, except for construing intention. Bennett v. Batchellor, 1 Ves. J. 67. S. C. 3 Bro. C. C. 28. RESIDUE.

Testator gives the accumulation of rents till A should attain twenty-one, to be laid out, and to permit A to receive the interest during life; after his death, he gives the said monies to the issue male of A, and in default to the plaintiffs; A died without issue, the issue would have taken as purchasers, and therefore the limitation to the plaintiffs takes place. Knight v. Ellis, 2 Bro. C. C. 570. LIMITATION OVER.

The words "if he shall happen to die without issue," may be so controlled by the context of a will as to mean children, and the remainder over will in that case not be too remote. Att. Gen. v. Bayley, 2 Bro. C. C. 553. LIMITATION, TOO REMOTE.

Testator having a debt secured on lands, gives the mortgage-money to the mortgagor, and desires that he will give a reversionary interest therein to a third person; the mortgagor selling the estate, shall bring the mortgage-money into court for the use of the devisee, subject to the life estate. Lewis v. King, 2 Bro. C. C. 600. PAYMENT INTO COURT; MORTGAGOR & MORTGAGEE.

Gift to testator's brother, without any restriction as to his children, to whom he shall leave, before or after his death, such part of the testator's inheritance as their conduct may deserve; but if at the death of his brother, there should be no children, then to A; this is an executory devise, which if it took place, would defeat the interest of the children of the brother. Lientand v. Agassiz, 2 Bro. C. C. 615. DEVISE, EXECUTORY.

Bequest of all other unbequeathed goods and chattels is residuary, notwithstanding a subsequent bequest to the same person of debts due to testator. Bennett v. Patchellor, 1 Ves. J. 63. S. C. 3 Bro. C. C. 28. RESIDUE.

Testator gives legacies in money, and dies abroad, where the will was made; currency shall be understood, if sterling is not expressed. Semble, that as to the interest on such legacies, an inquiry ought to be directed to ascertain in what country the fund, out of which the legacy is payable, has been deposited, and interest shall be paid according to the rate of interest in that country. Malcolm v. Martin, 3 Bro. C. C. 50. INTEREST, AT WHAT RATE.

Testator ordered his trustees out of certain funds to pay to his wife what should be to be returned of her portion, and to invest the residue in funds to pay her the interest for life, then to pay the interest to his niece for life, then to pay the principal to her children, if any, if not, to the younger children of H W W, if any, if not to the defendant W W, and gave the residue of his effects to his wife. The niece and nephew had neither of them children: the intermediate interest from the death of the niece to that of the nephew, shall not follow the principal but fall into the residue, and go to the wife's executors as personal estate of the testator undisposed of. Wyndham v. Wyndham, 3 Bro. C. C. 58. INTERMEDIATE PROFITS.

Testator being indebted on mortgage, and being possessed of 5000l. stock, by his will gave to A and B all the stock he had in the three per cents., being about 5000l., except 500l. which he gave to C, and he devised other specific parts of his property to be sold, and the produce to be applied in discharge of the mortgage. Testator himself afterwards sold out 2000l., part of the 5000l., and paid off the mortgage with it. This adeemed the legacy pro tanto, and the specific legatees can have no relief from the funds by the will appropriated for payment of the mortgage. Humphreys v. Humphreys, 2 Cox, 185. LEGACY, ADEMPMENT OF.

A bequest of a debt is adeemed by the debt being paid to the testator in his lifetime whether the payment be compulsory or voluntary, or whether the sum be expressed in the bequest or the debt bequeathed generally. Stanley v. Pottle, 2 Cox, 180. LEGACY, ADEMPMENT OF.

When a testator expresses himself so ambiguously as to make it necessary to come to this court, the costs shall be paid out of his general assets. Jolliffe v. East, 3 Bro. C. C. 25. COSTS.

Legacy to A payable at twenty-one or marriage with interest, is a vested legacy; and executor having become bankrupt, might have been proved under the commission; his certificate therefore a bar, and the residuary legatees not liable. Wallcott v. Hall, 2 Bro. C. C. 305. LEGACY VESTED; EXOR. LIAB. OF; BANKCY. CERTIFICATE.

J, bequeathed, in these words: "I give to N the sum of 400*l*. which he owes me on mortgage of his estates in Shropshire, and I further order my executor to give him up all bonds owing from him to me, and which shall be found in my custody at my decease, with all interest due thereon." N had given the testator a bond as a collateral security for the mortgage money. N died before the testator: this is a lapsed legacy, and the executor of N must pay the money. Toplis v. Baker, 2 Cox, 118. LAPSED LEGACY.

Devises of real estates to A and B, and their heirs, to the use of them and their heirs, in trust to permit C to receive the rents and profits for life, and after her decease to stand seised of the said premises in trust for the second son of D and the heirs male of his body, remainder in trust for the third, fourth, and other sons of D in tail male, remainder in trust to E, for life, without impeachment of waste, remainder to trustees to preserve, &c. remainder to the first and other sons of E in tail male, &c. proviso that in case there should not be a second son of D at the time of the death of C, then until such second should be born, the said trustees should pay the rents and profits of the said estates to such person as was next in remainder and should be entitled to receive the same in case no such son should be born. C having cut timber, this was sold under an order of the court, and the produce paid into the bank. At C's death D had no son, and E was dead leaving F his eldest son. The produce of the timber belongs to F absolutely, and shall not abide the event of D's having a son. Dare v. Hopkins, 2 Cox, 110. TIMBER.

Where an intention appears in a testator to give the whole of a fund to a charity, the objects whereof are not sufficient to exhaust the whole, the court will apply the residue as nearly to the testator's designation as it can; but such defects will not be supplied without some such intention appearing to guide the court, which cannot go so far as to dispose of a fund merely on seeing a general intention in the testator to die testate as to the whole. Att. Gen. v. Painter Stainers' Comp., 2 Cox, 51. CHARITY.

Tenant devised his estates to trustees, upon trust as counsel should advise, to convey, settle, and assure the said premises to or for the use of, or in trust for his daughter J for her life, and after her death, then on the heirs of his body, &c. The court directed the estates to be settled upon J for her life, with remainder to her first and other sons in tail general, with remainder to her daughters in tail general, &c. The limitations being to both sons and daughters in tail general, there is no necessity for a subsequent limitation to J, and the heirs of her body. Bastard v. Proby, 2 Cox, 6. SETTLEMENT BY COURT.

A legacy payable out of land at a future day, although given with interest, in the meantime shall not be raised if the legatee die before the time of payment. Gawler v. Stauderwick, 2 Cox, 15. LEGACY LAPSED.

Testator devised all his manors, messuages, lands, &c. to trustees in trust for A for his life, with remainders to his first and other sons in tail male, and for want of such issue, he devised all the same manors,

&c. to his daughters and granddaughters respectively during their lives, and after their decease to the heirs male of their bodies, to take as tenants in common, and on failure of such issue, he devised the remainder of his whole estate to his own right heirs. The devise will create cross-remainders amongst the daughters and granddaughters. Staunton v. Peck, 2 Cox, 8. CROSS-REMAINDERS.

Where the testator in his will and codicils has clearly shewn his intent to exempt his personal estate from his judgments and specialty debts, the court will charge them on the lands descended in exoneration of those devised. Reeves v. Newenham, 2 Ridgw. P. C. 11. EXONERATION OF LANDS DEVISED.

Testator having by his will devised all his lands to A subject to an annuity for his wife, and afterwards by a codicil devised part of those lands to B & C, confirming all his devises and bequests in favour of his wife. The lords held, that she ought not to be restrained from resorting to this part of the lands for her annuity, and reversed a decree for an injunction made by the court of exchequer. Id. 2 Ridgw. P. C. 11. Vern. & Seriv. 482. CHARGE ON LAND.

Testator had four daughters, A, B, C, and D, and by his will gave 4000*l*. to each of his daughters, A and B, with a direction, that if either of them died unmarried, 3600*l*., part of the 4000*l*., should be divided among his surviving daughters, and the child or children of such of them as should be then dead; A died unmarried; C had five children; two of whom survived A; but the other three died in her life-time. The five children of C took vested interests in equal fifths of the fund, as well those who died before, as those who survived A. Stanley v. Wise, 1 Cox, 432. INTEREST, VESTED.

Testator charged his real estate with 1000*l*. to be applied as the residue of his personal estate was thereafter directed. He then gave the residue of his personal estate, after his debts, legacies, and funeral expenses were paid, to certain trustees for the benefit of his relations in manner therein mentioned. The personal estate was deficient for payment of his debts. The 1000*l*. is payable to the trustees for the relations, without being subject to the claims of the creditors. Killet v. Ford, 1 Cox, 442. LEGACY, SPECIFIC.

A widow will not be barred of her dower by a provision made by will, unless there be a clear indication of the testator's intention, or unless some other part of the disposition of his property would be defeated by the widow's taking both. The testator's having given all his real and personal estate on trust, in the first place to pay such provision to the wife, is not of itself a sufficient indication of such intention. Thompson v. Nelson, 1 Cox, 447. DOWER.

Testator appointed four executors, and gave to each of them, who should prove his will, and take upon themselves the execution thereof, a legacy of 1500*l*., and an annuity of 100*l*. All the executors proved the will, and soon afterwards a bill was filed to carry the trusts of it into execution. After this, M, one of the executors, ran away with the infant daughter of the testator from a boarding school, and went through a ceremony of marriage with her in foreign parts, which marriage was afterwards declared null in the spiritual courts. Although M did prove the will, yet as he did not appear to have done it with an intention of really acting in the execution of it, he is not entitled to his legacy. Harford v. Browning, 1 Cox, 302. EXECUTOR'S RENUNCIATION OF TRUST.

A bequest for preaching a sermon on Ascension day, for keeping the chimneys of the church in repair, and for a payment to be made to the singers, in the gallery of the church, are all bequests to charitable uses, within 43 Eliz. Turner v. Ogden, 1 Cox, 316. CHARITABLE USES.

Testator gave 1000*l.* to M, and the issue of her body, and in default of such issue, he gave the said 1000*l.* to be equally divided between the daughters then living of J and E his wife. This devise takes in daughters of J and E, born after the testator's death, and therefore the limitation is too remote. See v. Audley, 1 Cox, 324. LIMITATION TOO REMOTE.

Testator gave the residue of his personal estate to trustees for the use of B during his life, and to the lawful heirs of his body after his demise; but in case of his dying without issue of his body after his decease, "I give all such residue to O." This creates a contingency with a double aspect, and in the event of B having no child, the limitation to O is good. Trotter v. Oswald, 1 Cox, 317. LIMITATION, CONDITIONAL.

Legacies, when cumulative. 1. The same legacy given by different instruments, shall be cumulative. 2. Probate being granted as of a will and codicil, is conclusive as to the fact of their being distinct instruments. Baillie v. Butterfield, 1 Cox, 392. LIGACIES, CUMULATIVE.

A larger legacy being given after a less, to the same legatee in the same will, the legatee decreed to take both. Curry v. Pile, 2 Bro. C. C. 225. LEGACY, ACCUMULATION.

A, having given his real, leasehold, and personal property, which leasehold was bishops' leases, renewable as a general fund, charged with annuities to trustees to pay rents and profits to B for life, with remainder to the plaintiff; the fines for renewing the leases which he directed should be renewed, are to be paid out of the whole fund not appropriated between the tenant for life and the remainder-man. Stone v. Theed, 2 Bro. C. C. 243. FINES; LEASE, RENEWAL OF; APPORTIONMENT.

A, by will, gave lands to trustees for terms, remainder to T Lord Foley, and C Foley for life. The trusts of the terms were for payment of scheduled debts, and to make an allowance to Lord Foley and E Foley; the debts being stated to be paid, a trust results to the tenants for life; a demurrer by the trustees to a bill by creditors for an account as having no interest, therefore overruled. Davidson v. Foley, 2 Bro. C. C. 203. TRUST, RESULTING.

Testator by will limited his estate in E. to several persons in succession; he then devised his estate in S. to trustees, in trust to sell, and out of the purchase money to pay all his debts, legacies, and funeral expenses; but in case the S. estate should be deficient for those purposes, then the deficiency should be made good out of the E. estate. He then gave several specific and pecuniary legacies, and all his personal estate not before disposed of, to his wife; and after making this will, the testator sold the estate, and received the purchase money. Held, that the debts, legacies, and funeral expenses should be raised out of the E. estate, in exoneration of the personal estate. Williams v. H. of Landaff, 1 Cox, 254. CHARGE ON REAL ESTATE.

C, by his will, devised all his freehold and copyhold estates to his two daughters, A and M, and all other daughters that he might thereafter have, as tenants in common in fee: he had afterwards another daughter, L. He then gave directions for another will, by which he gave all his real estates to his two eldest daughters, and a sum of 15,000*l.* to his daughter, L. The attorney took the minutes of this second will in writing; but, before it was prepared, the testator died: these minutes were proved in the spiritual court as a testamentary paper. Held, 1st, this paper being proved in the spiritual court, is sufficient to pass freehold estate; 2d, but is so totally void as to the residue, that it will not put L to her election, and she will take her share of the freeholds under the first will, as well as the 15,000*l.* under the second; 3rd, the testator gave the 15,000*l.* to his daughter, L, to be paid to her at twenty-one or marriage, without interest for the same in the mean time; but if she died before twenty-one or marriage, then the 15,000*l.* was not to be raised, but was to sink into the residue of his personal estate. And he directed that, out of the interest of the 15,000*l.*, certain sums of money should be applied for the maintenance of L. The interest of this legacy, beyond the maintenance, is vested in L, and must be appropriated to accumulate for her benefit. Curry v. Askew, 2 Bro. C. C. 58. 1 Cox, 241. and see 8 Ves. 492. 498. 499. WILL, WHAT A SUFFICIENT; COPYHOLD.

Bequest of all testator's estate to A, to pay the testator's mother for life, and after her decease, "I then give to A, &c., the residue to B, with power to dispose of it by will:" the legacy to A vested immediately, and was transmissible. Benyon v. Maddison, 2 Bro. C. C. 75. INTEREST, VESTED.

Devise to sell the residue after payment of debts, and the money to be part of the personal estate; upon a total insolvency, held to be equitable assets. Batson v. Lindgreen, 2 Bro. C. C. 94. ASSETS.

Giving the interest of a legacy to the legatee, or for his maintenance, vests the legacy. Hoath v. Hoath, 2 Bro. C. C. 3. INTEREST, WHEN VESTED.

Legacies to be paid from a farm when A's son attains twenty-one, the farm not being carried on, are not to be paid out of the residue. Mayott v. Mayott, 2 Bro. C. C. 125. LEGACIES, HOW PAYABLE.

A bequest that 4000*l.* and a further sum of 1500*l.* shall pertain to J, after the death of R without lawful issue, is too remote, and the whole shall vest in R. Glorer v. Strothoff, 2 Bro. C. C. 33. LIMITATION, TOO REMOTE.

Testator seized of freehold and copyhold estates in the counties of H and C, devised all his lands, tenements, and messuages and hereditaments in those counties, to his wife for life, remainder to his first and second sons in tail, remainder to his wife in fee, having in the beginning of the will, declared that as to all his worldly estate he disposed thereof as therein followed; but not having surrendered the copyhold to the use of his will, the court would not supply the want of a surrender, there being freehold estates to answer the words of the devise. Milbourne v. Milbourne, 1 Cox, 247. S. C. 2 Bro. C. C. 64. SURRENDER OF COPYHOLD.

W by his will, devised his real estate to trustees in trust to sell and to apply the purchase money, in the first place, in payment of all the charges, and all other his debts and legacies, and as to the residue of the purchase money, to pay one moiety to his daughter M, and to lay out the other moiety in government securities, and to pay the dividends for the maintenance of the three sons of his daughter A, until they should attain their respective ages of twenty-four years, and when they should have attained that age, he gave that moiety equally to be divided amongst them; but if they all should die under twenty-four, then he directed that such moiety should sink into and be deemed part of the residue of his personal estate, and be applied in such manner as his personal estate was thereafter given and disposed of. He then gave several specific legacies; and all the residue of his personal estate he gave to his daughter A and to H, equally to be divided between them. The debts and legacies are payable in the first instance out of the purchase money of the real estate. Webb v. Jones, 1 Cox, 245. S. C. 2 Bro. C. C. 60. ADMON. OF ASSETS.

On legacies to a natural child of the testator, with directions to apply a competent part of the interest for maintenance, interest is payable from the testator's death. Newman v. Bateson, 3 Swan. 689. INTEREST ON LEGACIES.

Testator authorised his executors, at any time before T L should attain the age of twenty-six years, to raise by sale of a sufficient part of certain bank annuities, any sum of money not exceeding 600*l.*, and pay and apply the same towards the preferment or advancement in life, or other the occasions of T L as the said executors should think proper; and at the age of twenty-six, he gave the said 600*l.* to T L absolutely. The executors declining to act, the court will not give this 600*l.* to T L before twenty-six, without referring it to the master to inquire whether T L's situation requires the 600*l.* or any part thereof to be advanced. Lewis v. Lewis, 1 Cox, 162. ADVANCEMENT OF LEGACY; PR. REF. TO MASTER.

Where legacies are given by different instruments (whether will and codicil, or two codicils), to the same persons, they will in general be accumulative. Foy v. Foy, 1 Cox, 163. LEGACY, CUMULATIVE.

A makes a lease to B for seven years, and on the lease is indorsed an agreement, that if B shall within a limited time be minded to purchase the inheritance of the premises for 300*l.*, A would convey them to him for that sum: B assigns to C the lease and the benefit of this agreement. A dies, and by will gives all his real estate (generally) to D, and all his personal estate to C and D equally. Within the limited time, but after the death of A, C claims the benefit of the agreement from D, who accordingly conveys the premises to C for 300*l.* This sum of 300*l.* when paid, is part of the personal estate of A, and E is entitled to one moiety of it as such. Lawes v. Bennett, 1 Cox, 167. PERSONAL ESTATE; ADMON. OF ASSETS.

Testator gave legacies to his three children, payable after the death of his executrix, and directed that if any of the children should die unmarried and without issue, before the death of the executrix, the legacy should go to the surviving children. One of the daughters married, but died without issue in the lifetime of the executrix. The legacy survived to the other children. Hemcorth v. Taylor, 1 Cox, 112.

Testator gave to A B C D and E 500*l.* each to be paid to them at their respective ages of twenty-three years; and if they should die before that time, then their respective legacies were to sink into the residue of his personal estate. These legacies do not carry interest, and no maintenance can be allowed to the legatees. Descrambes v. Tomkins, 1 Cox, 133. LEGACY, INTEREST ON; MAINTENANCE.

Two legacies of equal sums being given to the same person, the one by the will, the other by a codicil, the legatee shall take both in this case, the rule in favour of the benefits being accumulative, as given by different instruments, was supported by particular expressions of kindness towards the legatee. Ridges v. Morrison, 1 Bro. C. C. 389. LEGACIES, CUMULATIVE.

Bequest to an hospital of 3400*l.* in the 3 per cents. the dividends to be divided among four widows, this is a pecuniary, not specific legacy. Peterborough v. Mortlock, 1 Bro. C. C. 565. LEGACY, SPECIFIC.

Testatrix gave 500*l.* stock in long annuities to A, the same to B; 200*l.* long annuities to C, the interest thereof to accumulate, an enquiry admitted into the state of her property, to shew she meant such sums of money, not annuities of this amount. Fonnerneau v. Poyntz, 1 Bro. C. C. 472. LEGACY, SPECIFIC.

Personal estate bequeathed to F II, her executors, administrators, and assigns; but in case of the death of F II, without issue, remainder over; this remainder over too remote, as it must be construed a general dying without issue. Bigge v. Bensley, 1 Bro. C. C. 187. LIMIT. TOO REMOTE.

Devise of estate to second son, J, after the decease or marriage of the wife, charged with 100*l.* to testator's daughter, M. M died, living the wife; but held, the legacy vested in M, and transmissible to her representative. Goodwyn v. Munday, 1 Bro. C. C. 191. S. C. 2 Dick. 551. INTEREST, VESTED.

A charge of legacies under a will includes only those which follow, and not others at a great distance separated by other bequests. Hone v. Medcraft, 1 Bro. C. C. 261.

Rent charge devised to a wife, not a bar of dower unless so expressed or the circumstances such as to shew it must be intended. Pearson v. Pearson, 1 Bro. C. C. 292. DOWER.

Testator gave the use of 800*l.* to his wife for life, and after her decease made a disposition of parts of the principal; he then gave several other devises, and afterwards to J 100*l.* J died, living the widow: held, that his legacy was vested and transmissible. Monkhouse v. Holme, 1 Bro. C. C. 298. INTEREST VESTED.

R seized in fee of estates in C, which were mortgaged to a considerable amount, and also of an estate in the I. of W., and being seised for life with an ultimate remainder or reversion in fee, after limitations in tail to himself as heir at law to his brother, of an estate which was so devised by his brother, and possessed of an equal interest in money bequeathed by him to be laid out in lands, devised the mortgaged lands to several uses, and inter alia to the plaintiff for life, remainder to her sons in tail, remainder to her daughters as tenants in common: he devised the estate in the I. of W. to his executors as trustees for twenty-one years, among other uses, to pay his bond and book debts, if his personal estate should not be sufficient; and by a further clause to pay all his debts: the trust term, after the personal estate, shall exonerate the mortgaged estate. Two other questions were agitated: 1st, Whether the reversion in the brother's estate, which had fallen in since R's death, was assets to pay his debts: 2nd, As to the interest of the plaintiff and her granddaughter (the daughter of a deceased daughter) in the devised estates? which were not determined. Tweedale v. Coventry, 1 Bro. C. C. 240. EXONERATION OF REAL ESTATE.

W T devised to his wife for life, remainder to trustees to preserve contingent remainders, remainder to E for life, remainder to trustees at supra, remainder to the heirs of body, remainder over. In a subsequent clause he declared his intention, that C should have only a life estate; upon a bill filed by the remainder-man for a conveyance in which E should take only a life estate, it was demurred to, and the demurrer allowed, because these are legal estates. Thong v. Bedford, 1 Bro. C. C. 313. PL. DEMURRER; JURISDICTION.

N devised an annuity of 300*l.* per annum to his wife for life, then to accumulate to make a portion for his first daughter who should marry, then in order to raise portions for other daughters, then to remain to his eldest son, and on his decease to the heirs male of his body, and in case his having no issue, remainder to the next eldest son and his heirs male. The daughters married in the life of the wife; the eldest, and two other sons of testator died, leaving the wife without issue: this is not personal estate vesting absolutely in the eldest son (on the principle that it would be an estate tail in land), neither does it vest as an executory devise in the fourth son of testator who survived; but it is an annuity, and being exhausted by the events, there being nobody to take it as such, sinks into the residuary estate of the testator. Turner v. Turner, 1 Bro. C. C. 317. S. C. Ampl. 776. ADMON. OF ASSETS.

A, by will, devises all his estates to his eldest son in tail male, with remainders over; part of the property consisted of an estate in Jamaica, and, therefore, the testator added the following clause: "And

I recommend to my executors, that all sugars, rum, and other plantation produce that is sent to the port of London, be consigned to the house of Collet, Evans and Co. until such time as any of my sons shall set up in the business of a sugar factor; then my desire is, that the consignment may pass through his or their hands." C, a natural son of the testator's, set up the business of a sugar factor, during the minority of the devisee, and accordingly got the consignments. Upon the devisee's coming of age, C accounted with him, but insisted on being entitled to his commission, not only upon the produce which he had actually sold, but also upon the produce which had been consigned to him, but was not then arrived in the port of London: held, that the words of the above clause were not imperative, or amounted to words of bequest in favour of C, but were recommendatory only: held also, that C was entitled to a commission only upon what he had actually sold, and not upon what was only consigned, but not delivered to him. Decretal order of chancery confirmed. Beckford v. Beckford, 4 Bro. P. C. 33. PRINCIPAL AND FACTOR; ACCOUNT.

B devised his estate to trustees, to pay yearly rents and profits in discharge of his wife's jointure, his sister's annuity, and in payment of his debts, and the interest thereof; then to certain uses. The creditors file a bill, praying a sale, but this court cannot, under such a devise, decree the estate to be sold. Lingard v. Derby, 1 Bro. C. C. 311. SALE OF REAL ESTATE; DEBTOR & CRED.

T gave the residue to trustees, inter alia, to lay out one third part in securities, the interest to accumulate for the benefit of the children of his niece; and if she should survive her husband, and have issue under twenty-one years of age, the trustees were to apply the interest for their maintenance till twenty-one, and upon the children attaining their ages of twenty-one, equal shares of the principal to be transferred to them; the interest accrued between the elder and the younger children coming of age decreed, to be divided between them. Hawkins v. Combe, 1 Bro. C. C. 335. INTERMEDIATE PROFITS.

Testator ordered his estate to be sold, and after giving a legacy to his wife, directs the remainder to be vested in the executors for payment of debts; the money arising from the sale is equitable assets. Lucas v. Calcraft, 1 Bro. C. C. 135. ASSETS, EQUITABLE.

Words of confidence, desire, or request, in order to raise a trust, must not only attach on a precise subject of property, but also describe with precision, the objects of bounty; in this case, a bequest of leaseholds to a brother, hoping "he will continue them in the family," was held insufficient. Harland v. Trigg, 1 Bro. C. C. 142. WORDS RECOMMENDATORY, &c.

C provided by his will a maintenance for his second son, out of the real estate; he afterwards gave large legacies to his younger children with maintenances out of the interest; the second was entitled to both maintenances. Clive v. Walsh, 1 Bro. C. C. 146. DOUBLE PORTIONS, &c.

Devise of lands to be sold, and other lands to be purchased in another county; A to be tenant for life, (sons waste,) of the lands to be purchased; and the rents and profits of the lands to be sold to be to the same uses; A cannot cut down timber on the lands to be sold, since he thereby would have the benefit of double waste. Plymouth v. Archer, 1 Bro. C. C. 150. TENANT FOR LIFE; TIMBER; WASTE.

T provided, by a codicil to his will, that his wife, (whom he had made tenant for life,) might cut timber for her own use and benefit, at reasonable times; what timber the tenant for life shall be restrained from cutting. Chamberlayne v. Dumas, 1 Bro. C. C. 166. S. C. DICK. 600. O'Brien v. O'Brien, Amb. 107, 108. WASTE; TENANT FOR LIFE; TIMBER.

P, in his lifetime granted two annuities to T, his son, and there being subsisting accounts between them, by will gave him an annuity of 600*l.* on condition that he should, within three months, execute a release of all demands on his estate; the release tendered including the two annuities, granted during the life; T did not forfeit his annuity of 600*l.* by refusing to execute it; but a release settled by the master, omitting those annuities being tendered, and refused; the court held, that he forfeited the annuity under the will. Taylor v. Popham, 1 Bro. C. C. 168. CONDITION, BREACH OF.

Devise to testator's wife, not doubting she will give what shall be left to my grandchildren, not sufficiently certain to raise a trust. For such purpose the objects must not only be defined, but the subject of property precisely ascertained, so as to be incapable of diminution by the party. Wynne v. Hawkins, 1 Bro. C. C. 179. WORDS RECOMMENDATORY, &c.

Devise of personalty to B, and the lawful heirs of his body if he should have any; but if he should die without lawful heirs 1000*l.* to S, and 500*l.* to C: the contingencies too remote. Att. Gen. v. Hird, 1 Bro. C. C. 170. LIMIT, TOO REMOTE.

Introductory words, referrible to all testator's worldly estate, amounting to a charge of simple contract debts; under such a charge, copyhold lands are liable, as well as freehold; in this case there was also a copyhold which had not been surrendered: this was also declared liable. Coombe v. Gibson, 1 Bro. C. C. 273. CHARGE ON LAND; COPYHOLD.

R by will gave an estate to his wife for life; and if there should be no issue between them, to defendant, charged with two sums to be paid to M and W; afterwards M being dead, by codicil he ordered the legacy to be paid to W and A; W died, living the wife; the charge was vested, and transmissible to his representatives. Dawson v. Killet, 1 Bro. C. C. 119. INTEREST, VESTED.

A devises lands to her sister B for life, remainder to trustees to preserve, &c., remainder to the heirs of the body of B, remainder to her other sister C for life, with remainders to trustees to preserve, &c., remainder to the heirs of the body of C, remainders over, B died in testatrix's lifetime; C suffered a recovery, and then contracted to sell estate. On a bill by C. against purchaser, it was held, that B would have taken an estate tail in the premises if she had survived the testatrix; and that having left an only daughter, C could make no title, and therefore bill was dismissed. Ambruse v. Hodgson, 3 Bro. P. C. 416. ESTATE TAIL.

When the ancestor by any gift or conveyance takes an estate of freehold, and in the same gift or conveyance an estate is limited either mediately or immediately to his heirs in fee or in tail; the word "heir" in such case is always taken to be a word of limitation, not of purchase. Id. ib.

Testator gave several legacies, and ordered his real and personal estate to be sold, his debts and legacies paid, and the residue to certain legatees in the proportion of their legacies. Two of the residuary legatees died, living the testator. These shares are lapsed, and so far as they are constituted by personal estate, shall go to the person next of kin, and so far as they are constituted of real estate, to the heir at law. Ackroyd v. Smithson, 1 Bro. C. C. 503. S. C. SHORTLY, 3 P. W. 22. note. S. P. Amb. 582. See 7 Pri. 258. LEGACIES, LAPSED.

Testator devises the residue to his children, but if any of his daughters shall marry without the consent of her mother, or guardian, her share to go to those unmarried. This is a condition subsequent, and a daughter who married without consent is entitled. Jones v. Suffolk, 1 Bro. C. C. 528. CONDON. SUBSEQUENT, BREACH OF.

Testator devised subject to this contingency: "if either of the devisees should marry into the families of R or G, and have a son, I give all my estate to him, with remainders over; if not, to B." The devisees married, but not into the favoured families. B files his bill, but dismissed; for the devisees have their whole lives to perform the condition. Randal v. Payne, 1 Bro. C. C. 55. CONDON. PERF. OF.

Residue to executors in nature of joint tenancy; will revoked by codicil as to one, other takes the whole. Humphreys v. Taylor, Dick. 161.

Question as to cross remainders in will. Eastland v. Reynolds, Dick. 317.

Legacy to children of A, lawfully begotten, or to be begotten, extends only to those born in testator's lifetime. Sprackling v. Ranier, Dick. 344.

Real and personal, by will, to be sold; legacies, &c. therewith to be paid; residue by fifths to five persons. One dies before testator: held to be real estate to heir of testator. Digby v. Lingard, Dick. 500.

Legacy given, devised, and bequeathed: on construction of will, held chargeable on real estate. Hassel v. Hassel, Dick. 327.

Held on construction, greater legacy not satisfaction of lesser debt. Field v. Mostin, Dick. 543.

Legacy on death of tenant for life does not lapse by death of legatee before that period. Gibbs v. Monday, Dick. 551.

Residuary bequest in favour of infant grandchildren, payable at twenty-one or marriage, or to the issue of those dead, with survivorship and accumulation till the time of payment, and a limitation over, absolutely, in case of the death of all without issue before that time. The father, in consequence of bankruptcy, being wholly unable to maintain his children, maintenance was directed by the court, taking the consent of the persons to whom the property was given over. Fendall v. Nash, 5 Ves. 197. INFANT MAINTENANCE; GRANDCHILD.

Devise of residue to an infant, payable at twenty-one, remainder over; the infant died under age; the interest from the death of the testator to that of the infant shall go to her representative, not to the remainder-man. Chaworth v. Hooper, 1 Bro. C. C. 82. INTERMEDIATE PROFITS.

Two equal legacies in the same will, and to the same legatee, only one shall pass. Garth v. Meyrick, 1 Bro. C. C. 30. LEGACIES, ACCUMULATIVE.

Residue to six grandchildren, the name of one repeated, that of another omitted; all of them shall take. Id. ib.

Where will recites and refers to a voluntary deed, which is not found at the testator's death, but is by verdict of jury, declared to have existed at the time of such death; this reference and recital in the will shall establish the deed, and it shall be considered as incorporated with, and constituting part of, the will. Healey v. Copley, 7 Bro. P. C. 496. VOLUNTARY CONVEYANCE.

Residuary bequest to a very large amount in favour of infant grandchildren, payable at twenty-one or marriage, with survivorship, the interest to accumulate, and be paid with the capital, and in case of the death of all before the time of payment, over to their mother absolutely. The father's income, though considerable, bearing no proportion to the fortune bequeathed, and there being several children, the court directed maintenance, taking the consent of the mother. Curdish v. Mercer, 5 Ves. 195. INFANT MAINTENANCE; GRANDCHILD.

Legacy given, devised, and bequeathed, held on construction of will to be chargeable on real estate. Hassel v. Hassel, Dick. 527.

A devises lands to his eldest son for life, remainder to the heirs male of his body lawfully begotten; remainder to the youngest son in like manner; remainder to any afterborn son of the testator for life; remainder to the heirs male of the body of such afterborn son; and for want of such issue, to his brother T for life, with remainder to the heirs male of his body. The testator was on his death-bed at the time of making his will, and died in about three weeks afterwards. The younger son, however, died before him, and the eldest enjoyed the estate, but died without issue, and without having barred the entail. Upon a question, whether the limitation over to the testator's brother ought not to be considered as depending upon a general failure of issue, and consequently too remote, it was held, that a remainder after estates tail was vested in the brother, and that the testator had not the event of a second marriage in his contemplation. Jones v. Morgan, 3 Bro. P. C. 323. LIMITATION OVER.

S gives the residue of his estate to his daughter E for life, and after her death to be equally divided among her children, when the youngest should attain twenty-one. But if his daughter should die without any child, or the youngest should not arrive at twenty-one, and none of them should have left lawful issue, then he gave the residue to other persons. E had only one daughter, who married and had four children, but both she and all the children died in the lifetime of E. Held, that upon the death of E without any child then living, the devise took effect. Thickness v. Liege, 3 Bro. P. C. 365. LIMITATION OVER.

One bequeaths several leasehold estates held for years under the Duchy of Cornwall to his wife, during so many years of the term as she shall live, and after her decease, if the terms of the several leases be then in being, unto and amongst, &c.; the wife got an additional term; and held it shall not be for her own benefit, but should go to the uses of the will. Raise v. Chichester, Amb. 715. LEASE, RENEWAL OF; TRUST; TENANT FOR LIFE.

A gives by will to B 500*l.* and by codicil an annuity, and by another codicil in these words "I add this codicil to my will; I give to B 1000*l.*" Held, that B should have both the 500*l.* and 1000*l.* Halton v. Hooley, Loffl. 122. CODICIL; LEGACY, ACCUMULATIVE.

L M gave 4000*l.* bank stock to trustees, in trust to pay the dividends to his daughter E for life; and after her death, he directed the principal to be divided equally between her children at their ages of twenty-one or marriage; but if they should die before, then to his son L: the daughter had two children who both attained twenty-one, but one of them died in her lifetime. Held, that this legacy did not vest absolutely in the children of E on their attaining twenty-one, but only in such of them as should be living at the time of her death. Randall v. Metcalfe, 3 Bro. P. C. 318. VESTED INTEREST.

Devise of freehold houses to A for life, remainder to B, he paying thereout to C and D legacies three months after the death of his wife. C and D died living the wife. Held raiseable for their representatives. Jeele v. Titchener, Amb. 703. INT. VESTED.

Testator enumerates mortgages, bonds, and notes due to him, and gives out of the interest an annuity to A for life, and after her death directs the securities to be vested in trustees for charitable uses; some of the securities are paid off and new securities taken after the will. Held a general bequest of the amount of the value of the securities to be made good out of the general assets. Att. Gen. v. Pagin, Amb. 566.

Residue under particular circumstances will not take in lapsed legacies; the residue being given as a small residue of about 100*l.*, and the lapsed legacies amounting to 20,000*l.* In general the residue takes in lapsed legacies; as to real estates it is otherwise, but the legatee must be a general legatee. Att. Gen. v. Johnston, Amb. 577. 580. LAPSED LEGACIES; RESIDUE.

A gives all his worldly substance to his daughter J, provided she marries with the consent of his executors; but if she should marry without such consent, or should die without issue, then he gives his estate to other persons. The daughter married with consent, but died without ever having any issue. Upon a question when this bequest over, took effect, it was held to take effect upon the death of the daughter without issue living at that time. Keily v. Fowler, 3 Bro. P. C. 299. CONDITION.

Devise of land to wife, that she might give her children such fortunes as she should think proper or they deserve. There being five children, and the eldest being provided for, an appointment of a guinea to him, and the rest among the other children, was held a good appointment. Burrell v. Burrell, Amb. 660. POWER, EXECUTION.

Devise of lands, "which he has before given to A," over to B on a given event, is a devise by implication to A. Bibin v. Walker, Amb. 661. IMPLICATION.

Testator bequeathed to his daughters 1500*l.* each to be paid them respectively at the time of their marriage, with consent of his executrix and executor, who are made guardians during their minority, with a clause for maintenance and education till twenty-one. Held, a child attaining twenty-one, her legacy was vested; the condition is to be understood as confined to marriage under twenty-one. Knap v. Nokes, Amb. 662. INTEREST VESTED.

Devise of lands to be sold, and part of the money arising by sale to go to charitable uses, and the residue of the money is given over. So much as is given in mortmain shall lapse to heir, and not go to residuary legates. Cravenor v. Hallum, Amb. 643. MORTMAIN.

R devises all his real estates to his son J for life, on condition that he should, in twelve months after the testator's death, suffer a recovery of his own testate, and settle it to certain uses mentioned in his father's will; but if he should neglect or refuse so to do, then the testator declared, that the devise of his real estate to his said son J, should cease and be void; and that in that case, the same should go according to the uses before limited in the same manner, as if his said son was really dead. J suffered a recovery of his own estate, but declared the same to other uses than those mentioned in his father's will; he nevertheless continued in the possession of the devised estate. But it was held, that not having complied with the condition, he was not entitled to any benefit or advantage under the will. Dk. of Montagu v. Ld. Beaulieu, 3 Bro. P. C. 277. See S. C. Amb. 533.

A devises an exchequer annuity of 1000*l.* to trustees in trust for J, for so many years as he should live, and from and after his decease for such persons as at the time of his death, should be the heir male of his body, and in case there should be no such person, then in trust for the heir male of B, J's father. J died an infant, and without issue, and about four years afterwards B had another son born, G, who also died an infant without issue. Held that absolute property of annuity vested in G, and that upon his death it belonged to B as his administrator. Id. ib. VESTED INTEREST.

Devise of lands to wife for life, and after her death to the son, he paying out of such lands 600*l.* to testator's daughter within six months after death of wife, with power of entry in case of non-payment, the daughters died in the life of testator's wife: Held their legacies vested, and on his death to be raised for their representatives. Manning v. Herbert, Amb. 575. INTEREST VESTED.

A man by his will gives to his executor an annuity of 200*l.*, and charges his real estate with the payment of it. The testator by a codicil, attested by two witnesses only, gives his executor another annuity of S. 400*l.* payable as mentioned in my will. Held that the executor was well entitled to both the annuities; but the annuity given by the codicil was payable out of the personal estate. Wright v. Ld. Cadogan, 1 Bro. P. C. 486. LEGACY ACCUMULATIVE.

Bequest of personality to A for life, and after A's death to his heirs male of his body, &c. for ever, and for want of such issue, to B for life, &c. A takes absolutely, and gift over to B, void. Tothill v. Pitt, 1 Mad. 488. LIMITATION OVER OF PERSONALS.

Bequest of the remainder of his effects, annuities, mortgages, &c. to a charity; the devise of the mortgages is void, but being part of enumerated residue, the court will order them to be applied first in payment of debts before any other part of the personal estate, to leave a larger fund for the charity. Att. Gen. v. Caldwell, Amb. 635. CHARITY, MARSHALLING ASSETS.

A devise to A and B, and their heirs in default of issue male and female of the testator's own body, is at the testator's death, a devise in possession, and not an executory devise; the contingency being determined at the instant the will takes place, viz. at the death of the testator without issue. French v. Cardell, 3 Bro. P. C. 257. EXECUTORY DEVISE.

Power contained in a will for the devisees for life, when in possession, to cut down timber as four trustees or the survivors or survivor of them should direct, &c.: all the four trustees being dead, held that the court would execute the trust, by referring it to a master to see what timber was fit to be cut down from time to time. Hewett v. Hewett, 2 Eden, 332. S. C. Amb. 508. POWER, EXECUTION BY COURT; PR. REFERENCE TO MASTER.

Bequest of money to build and endow an hospital upon land not already in mortmain, held to be void under the stat. 9 G. 2. Pelham v. Anderson, 2 Eden, 296. MORTMAIN.

Bequest of personal estate to A during his life, and if he had no heirs, then over; held the bequest over, was void, as being too remote. Bodens v. Ld. Galway, 2 Eden, 297. S. C. Amb. 478. LIMITATION OF PERSONALS.

Bequest of money to A upon condition that he should pay an annuity to B, and in case B should die without issue, then to be equally divided amongst such of testatrix's nearest relations which should at that time be living: held the bequest over, was too remote. Destouches v. Walker, 2 Eden, 261. LIMITATION OF PERSONALS.

Bequest of residue of real and personal estate to the children of A equally, with a bequest over thereof to other persons; if A should die without leaving issue, this is a vested interest defeasible, and the children as they are respectively born, shall take the accruing interest equally. Shepherd v. Ingram, Amb. 448. INTEREST, VESTED.

Where there is a devise of a residue with devise over on a contingency; the devisee is entitled to the rents and profits till the contingency happens. Id. 450. INTEREST, VESTED; INTEREST, CONTINGENT.

A woman, by marriage articles, reserves a power of disposing of her present or any future estate, real or personal, by deed or will; a devise is a good execution of her power, the legal estate being in trustees: devise to first and other sons, and in default to daughters as tenants in common, and in default of such issue, over, raises cross-remainders between the daughters. Wright v. Englefield, Amb. 468. S. C. 2 Eden, 239. POWER, EXECUTION OF.

Where there is an estate of freehold, limited to the ancestor, no subsequent limitation to his heirs or to the heirs of his body, can make them purchasers. Dubber v. Trollope, Amb. 462. ESTATE BY PURCHASE.

J gives the residue of his estate to his daughter C, to dispose of as she shall think fit; but if she should die unmarried, or intestate, then what was left to her should go to his brother's children; C possessed this residue, and disposed of it in making purchases, and taking securities in her own name. She afterwards died intestate and unmarried: held, that all her personal estate belonged to her next of kin; and that no part of it could be considered as the specific personal estate of her father, or go to his brother's children. Lighthorne v. Gill, 3 Bro. P. C. 260. ADMINISTRATION OF ASSETS.

Testator devises leasehold premises to his executors, after payment of certain sums, to pay the rents to A for life, and then that his natural daughter should have the same for her life; and in case she should die, having no lawful issue, he bequeathed the premises to his executors, to be sold for the purposes of the will: held, the devise over to the executors not too remote. Taylor v. Clarke, 2 Eden, 202. LIMITATION OF PERSONALS.

Bequest of money to testator's wife and the issue of her body, and failing such issue, to such of her heirs whom she should appoint by written will: held, that the subsequent words did not controul the previous limitation, and therefore that a bequest over of the money was void, as being too remote. Houston v. Ives, 2 Eden, 216. LIMITATION OF PERSONALS.

J, by will, devises his real estates to trustees, in trust for several persons for life, with remainders to their first and other sons in tail male successively; but directs his trustees, upon the birth of any son of each tenant for life, to revoke the issue before limited to their respective sons in tail male, and to limit the premises to such sons for their lives, with immediate remainders to the respective sons of such sons in tail male: held, that this clause of revocation and resettlement, as tending to a perpetuity, and repugnant to the estate limited, was void, and of no effect. J. d. Spencer v. Dk. Marlborough, 3 Bro. P. C. 232. PERPETUITY.

A, by will devised his colliceries, &c. to trustees, upon trust, to dispose and convey the same in such manner as his daughter M, whether sole or covent, should direct or appoint; and for want of such direction or appointment, to apply the money arising thereby to certain purposes in his will mentioned. He then declared, "that though his meaning was to give his said daughter the absolute disposal of the said colliceries, &c. to prevent the expences and trouble that must attend the management of affairs of such a nature, under the direction of the court of chancery; he requested his said daughter to direct the money arising therefrom, to be applied in such manner as he had directed the same in default of her direction and appointment." The daughter made an appointment in favour of her husband absolutely; but this appointment was held to be void, as being contrary to the testator's intention. El. Bute v. Stuart, 1 Bro. P. C. 476. POWERS, EXECUTION OF.

A devises certain premises (subject to a mortgage of 3500*l.*) to his three daughters, to be divided equally; one dies; mortgage bequeaths to the two survivors all the money due on the mortgage and the interest, so that it do not altogether exceed 4000*l.* and if it do not amount to 4000*l.* then to be made up; the other daughter dies, leaving all her real and personal estate to the third: held, that the charge is merged in the inheritance. Price v. Gibson, 2 Eden, 115. MERGER OF CHARGE ON ESTATE.

Testator gives the residue of his personal estate to his three children, A, B, and C, share and share alike, as tenants in common, and not as joint tenants; but by a codicil revokes C from being one of his residuary legatees, and gives a pecuniary legacy instead: held, that this third does not belong to the two other residuary legatees, but shall go according to the statute of distributions. Creswell v. Cheslyn, 2 Eden, 123. DISTRIBUTION.

Where testatrix, by will, directed a sum of money to be laid out in land, and settled, after some previous limitations, on her own right heirs; and afterwards made a general residuary devise of all her real and personal estate: Held, that upon the evident intent of the testatrix to exclude the residuary devise, the heir at law was entitled to a remainder in fee in the lands to be purchased. Robinson v. Knight, 2 Eden, 155. RESIDUARY DEVISE.

A, having agreed to purchase a real estate, the purchase money for which exceeded the amount of his personal estate, by his will made a few days afterwards, attested by three witnesses, as to all the worldly goods that it had pleased God to bless him with, gave and bequeathed to his wife and two sons all his goods, cattle, chattels, personal estate and effects whatsoever; and in case they died without issue, &c. he gave the children's share of the personal estate and effects over: testator dying before the purchase could be completed, held, that the agreement ought to be specifically performed; and that the words of the will, being insufficient to comprehend real estate, the estate ought to be conveyed to the eldest son and his heirs, &c. Cane v. Cane, 2 Eden, 139. SPEC. PERF.

A pedigree made by a testator's direction, and found among his papers, not admitted to explain a will equivocal, but not unintelligible. Crosley v. Clary, 3 Swan. 322. See S. C. Amb. 397. PR. EVID.

Where a testator devises a leasehold for years to one for life (who has no children), with remainder to his first and other sons in tail male; remainder to another for life, and to his first and other sons in tail male, with several remainders over; if the second tenant for life has a son born before the first tenant for life has a son, the remainder in tail limited to that son will vest; and all the subsequent remainders which were good, as possibilities, while the contingency of a nearer heir's coming in case were in suspense, are ipso facto from that moment determined; and though such tenant in tail should die an infant the next day after his birth, yet the ownership of the term must vest, and his administrator must take it subject only to be defeated by the birth of a son of the first tenant for life, which will still be prior to such intestate infant in the order of limitation. J. y. Pelham v. Gregory, 3 Bro. P. C. 204. LIMIT. OF ESTATE; INTEREST, VESTED.

J S devised lands to his son M, and other lands to his son J, and in case both of them should die unmarried, and without lawful issue, then his three daughters were to have the lands as tenants in common, and not as joint tenants. Both the sons died unmarried, and without issue; and two of the daughters died in the lifetime of the surviving son, leaving issue: Held, that the three daughters had such a contingent interest vested in them upon their father's death, as was transmissible to their representatives; and that the surviving daughter was not entitled to the whole. Wilson v. Bayly, 3 Bro. P. C. 195. VESTED INTEREST.

Where A, by will, executed before the statute of mortmain, directs B to settle a freehold estate to pay a sum not exceeding 100*l.* per annum, in such manner, and upon such trust, on such a part of the poorer people of a parish as he should think proper; and B, in pursuance thereof, by will executed after the statute, appoints a sum less than the 100*l.* per annum: Held, 1st, that the appointment is not void by the statute; and, 2ndly, that the amount to be appointed was discretionary in B, and not to be increased under the 43 Eliz. to the whole amount given by the will of A. Att. Gen. v. Bradley, 1 Eden, 482. STAT. C. OF MORTMAIN.

Residue of testator's estate directed to be invested in government securities, and the interest paid to his wife; and after her death to be sold, and the money thereby arising to be divided amongst his daughters and grandchildren: Held, that the share of a daughter dying in the lifetime of the wife was vested. Hatch v. Mills, 1 Eden, 342. VESTED LEGACY.

Testator devises his real estates to trustees to several persons for life, with remainder to their first and other sons in tail male successively; but directs his trustees, upon the birth of every son of each tenant for life, to revoke the uses before limited to their respective sons in tail male, and to limit the premises to such sons for their lives, with immediate remainders to the respective sons of such sons in tail male: Held, that this clause of revocation and resettlement was void, as tending to a perpetuity, and being repugnant to the estate settled. D. Marlborough v. El. Cudolphin, 1 Eden, 404. PERPETUITY.

Devise to his son and his heirs, but in case he should die without issue, not having attained twenty-one, then over: he attained twenty-one. Held, he took by purchase, and not by descent. Scott v. Scott, Ambl. 383. S. C. 1 Eden, 458. ESTATE BY PURCHASE.

In case of a will, the intent shall prevail unless contrary to law, i.e. if the limitations are allowable by law; not that the words must be taken in such signification as the law imposes on them. In a will, words taken in law as of limitation, shall be taken as words of purchase if so intended. Austen v. Taylor, Ambl. 377.

Devise to J for life; remainder to his issue male, and to his and their heirs, share and share alike; and for want of such issue, to his issue female, and her and their heirs; remainder to J K, his heirs and assigns, with a proviso that if J K or his issue, or any of them shall alienate, mortgage or incur, or do any act to defeat the bequests, he or they shall pay, and he charges the premises with, 2000*l.* to such persons who should or ought to take next under the above limitations. J had two daughters and no son, and he and his daughter suffered a recovery. Bill to be paid the 2000*l.*: Held, J K took an estate tail, and that the proviso was repugnant to the estate. King v. Burrell, Ambl. 379. S. C. 1 Eden, 424.

Devise of a sum of money to A for life; then to her daughters and younger sons in such shares as she should appoint; and in default of appointment for the daughters and younger sons equally, and to the survivors; and in case no daughter or younger son, or that they should die before twenty-one or marriage, then over: Held, that the portions vested in A's children at twenty-one, though they died in her lifetime. Salisbury v. Lamb, Amb. 384. S. C. 1 Eden, 465. INTEREST, VESTED.

A devise of 30,000*l.* S. S. annuities to trustees in trust, to pay the dividends to J. S. until an exchange of certain lands shall be made between him and W, and then the capital to be equally divided between them. W, dies before the time limited by the will for making the exchange expires: held, that J. S. is absolutely entitled to the whole legacy. Ld. Curndish v. Louth, 3 Bro. P. C. 186. LEGACY, SURVIVORSHIP AS TO.

Bequest of 100*l.* to A, to be improved till he should attain the age of twenty-one; and in case he should die before twenty-one or afterwards without issue, then the money to be equally divided between the testator's sons and daughter: held the limitation over too remote. Gray v. Shaine, 1 Eden, 153. LIMITATION OVER OF PERSONALS TOO REMOTE.

Devise to A for life, with remainder to his first and other sons, remainder to his daughters, and in default of such issue the premises to stand charged with two sums, to be paid after the death of A without issue, and subject to such charge, over, with a power to A of jointuring the whole estate, which he executed, A dying without issue: held that the sums only carried interest from the death of the jointress, who survived him. Reynolds v. Meyrick, 1 Eden, 48. INTEREST, WHEN PAYABLE.

Bequest to the children of testator's daughter, to the number of four, of the sum of 1000*l.* each, if more, the 4000*l.* to be divided between such as should be living at testator's death: but if his daughter should die without issue, then over; a child by another husband, born after testator's death, cannot take, and the bequest over is good, being not a limitation over, but an absolute legacy. Bequest of the residue to his daughter and her issue, and for want of such issue, over; the limitation over too remote, and therefore void. Salkeld v. Vernon, 1 Eden, 64. LIMITATION OVER OF PERSONALS.

Appointment at the end of will of A and B to receive and pay the contents before mentioned, makes them executors. Pickering v. Towers, Amb. 364. S. C. 1 Eden, 142. EXECUTORS.

Devise to L, for his natural life, and no longer, provided he takes the name of R, and after his decease, to such son as he should have lawfully begotten; and for default of such issue to W, and his heirs for ever; held, that upon the true construction of the will, and to effectuate the manifest general intent of the testator, L, must be construed to take an estate in tail male. Robinson v. Hicks, 3 Bro. P. C. 180. ESTATE TAIL.

Devise of lands to "the thirteen fellows of Christ's and the fellows of Gonville and Caius, living at the testator's death," is a devise for the whole body corporate, not of the particular fellows in their natural capacities, and valid under the exception in the statute of mortmain. Att. Gen. v. Tuncard, 1 Eden, 10. S. C. Ambl. 351. MORTMAIN.

Where a testator, making provision for the different branches of his family, gives a fee simple estate to one, and a settled estate to another, imagining that he had power so to do; a tacit condition is implied to be annexed to the devise of the fee simple estate, that the devisee thereof shall permit the settled estate to go according to the will; and if in that respect he should disapprove the will, what is devised to him shall go to the person so disappointed. It being presumed, that if the testator had known his defect of power to devise the settled estate, he would out of the estate in his power, have provided for that branch of his family who was not entitled to the settled estate; and have declared that no person should enjoy a legacy or devise, who controverted his power, as to any benefit given to another. Bor v. Bor, 3 Bro. P. C. 167. IMPLIED CONDITION.

One by will gives annuities, and directs the residue of her estate to be disposed of in charity to such persons, and in such manner as her executors or survivor shall think fit. On the death of them new trustees were appointed to sustain the annuities, but they could not dispose of the residue, it being a trust confined to the executors personally. Hibbard v. Lamb, Ambl. 309.

A provision by a will by a father to a child is admeied by a subsequent portion given by the father in his lifetime. The court leans against double portions. Watson v. Lincoln, Ambl. 326. ADMEITION OF LEGACY.

Wills construed to charge real estate by implication for the benefit of creditors, such implication, however, may be afterwards destroyed. Thomas v. Britnell, 2 Ves. 313. CHARGE ON REAL ESTATE.

One partner by will gives to the other 2000*l.* which appears to be due to him on the last settlement, in trust, &c., if he did not draw it out of trade: held these last words made it a specific bequest; without them it would not have been specific. Ellis v. Walker, Ambl. 309. LEGACY SPECIFIC.

One partner by will gives one-ninth of one-twelfth of the profits reserved to him to his partners, he afterwards, on the expiration of the partnership, renews it with the same partners, giving them a greater interest than they had under the former articles: Held they were entitled to one-ninth of the testator's interest in the partnership at his death, and that the renewal of the articles was not an adoption nor revocation of the devise. Backwell v. Child, Ambl. 260. WILL, REVOC. OF; LEGACY, ADEMP. OF.

One having a daughter thirty years old, settles his estate on himself and wife for their lives, remainder for 500 years, remainder over, and declares the trust of the term to raise after the death of him and his wife, 850*l.* for his daughter, her executors, and administrators; the daughter died in the lifetime of her father: Held, the representatives were entitled. Smith v. Partridge, Ambl. 266. INTEREST VESTED.

One joint legatee, being outlawed, a codicil adeems his share, the other takes the whole. Alexander v. Alexander, 2 Ves. 645.

Devise to A for life, and after her decease to B and her children, or such of them as shall be then living, the children take vested interests; and if any die in the lifetime of A, the whole goes to the survivors. Dansen v. Hawes, Ambl. 276. INTEREST VESTED.

Bequest of "400*l.* E.I. bonds," under the circumstances not specific; but a legacy of quantity to be made good out of the general assets, the testatrix having repeatedly in this bequest omitted the word "my," which she had used in other bequests clearly specific, and having only one East India bond at her death. Bequests of South Sea stock in parcels to a larger amount than testatrix was possessed of, held specific, the bequest of the last parcel being called "the remaining S. S. stock standing in her name." These legatees must abate in proportion. Sleech v. Thornton, 2 Ves. 510. LEGACIES SPECIFIC; LEGACIES, ABATEMENT OF.

Charge by will of the whole real estate in aid of personal, for debts and legacies not restrained by subsequent devise of a particular part for that purpose, without negative words. Ellison v. Airey, 2 Ves. 568. CHARGE ON REAL ESTATE.

Devise of all real and personal estate "in trust," "by" "B, C, D," &c. must be construed by the subsequent acts to be done by them, and amounted here to a devise "to" them. Bullock v. Stones, 2 Ves. 521.

Under a devise that all testator's debts "should be first paid and satisfied:" Held that a customary estate surrendered in trust for several persons, and for the use of such as the testator should appoint, was subject to the testator's debts, the first disposition running over all. Godolphin v. Bennet, 2 Ves. 271. COVENANT; TRUST TO PAY DEBT.

Devise of real and personal estate to the first son of A when he should attain twenty-one, with a direction for his proper maintenance and education. A having no son at the time of the will, the testator's death, or the decree, held that the profits of the personal estate should accumulate; that as to the real estate it was good executory devise, but that the profits thereof descended to the heir until a son should be born, when they should be applied to his maintenance. Bullock v. Stones, 2 Ves. 521. ACCUMULATION.

Bequest of two navy bills describing them and the money due thereon. Testator afterwards received the navy bills in the course of payment, decreed the value of the bills to be answered out of his personal estate. Bronson v. Winter, Ambl. 59. LEGACY, ADEMP. OF.

W, by will, gives his wife an annuity of 100*l.* for life, and 500*l.* which together with the annuity, he declares to be in full for her dower or thirds out of his real or personal estate. On deficiency of assets, held the wife should not abate in proportion with the other legatees. Davenport v. Fletcher, Ambl. 244. DOWER; ABATEMENT OF LEGACIES.

Devise to J for life, remainder to his first and other sons in tail male, with a proviso that if the devisees entitled to the possession of the estate shall be severally under the age of twenty-six, the trustee shall receive the rents and apply them as directed. J died leaving a son under twenty-six; and held the proviso was void as against him. Lade v. Holford, Ambl. 479.

M by will devises land to his wife for life, remainders over, with remainder to W and P in fee; he leaves 400*l.* to be laid out in the purchase of lands or on any other security as his trustees should think fit and convenient, to be settled as his lands devised, the intermediate limitations being at an end, and W being dead, the estate came to P who was an infant, and being upwards of twenty, made a will, and gave all his estate to the plaintiff, and afterwards died two days before he was at the age of twenty-one. The 400*l.* not being laid out, held it did not pass by the will as money. The trustees had no election to consider it as money or land. The infant could not. The construction, to be laid out in land and on security till a purchase could be found. Earlson v. Saunders, Ambl. 241. MONEY TO BE LAID OUT ON LAND.

He devises his manors, advowsons, &c. to trustees to pay his son 1000*l.* for life, and the rest of the profits to be laid out in land during his son's life, and then settled: Held the son had a right to present to living when vacant, not under the devise, but as heir at law, it being a fruit undisposed of. Sheppard v. Id. Harborough, Ambl. 165. ADVOWSON; HEIR AT LAW.

Devise of lands to his sister, paying 100*l.* a year to his wife, for life, and several legacies, within twelve months after the death of his wife; several of the legatees died in the lifetime of the wife, and held their representatives were entitled. Tunstall v. Brachen, Ambl. 167. S. C. 1 Bro. C. C. 124. in note. INTEREST VESTED.

Estate given to a wife during widowhood, with remainder over, it is good as a limitation, but if given over on her marrying again, within a limited time, it operates as a forfeiture. Jordan v. Holkham, Ambl. 209.

One having two sons, G and T, and a daughter, devises several estates to his two sons and their issue, with cross-remainders, and declared, that if either of them should die without issue living at his death, so that his estate should come to his brothers, the surviving brother should pay 2000*l.* to his daughter, within one year after his brother's death, and charged the estate with it. G died, leaving two sons, afterwards T died without issue. Qu., whether the 2000*l.* should be raised? Held it should. Tollett v. Tollett, Ambl. 177. PORTION, IF RAISABLE.

J devised all his land, &c. to his daughter B for life, remainder to trustees, to preserve, &c., remainder to the use of the first son of B, remainder to the heirs male of the body of said first son, with divers remainders over; and in case of the death of B, without issue of her body living at her decease, then testator devised said lands to his trustees, until his cousin C should attain the age of twenty-one. And in case of the death of C under twenty-one and without issue, then to D for life, remainder to the first, &c. son of D in tail, remainder to E for life, remainder to his first, &c. son, in tail, remainders over. Ld. H. inclined to confine the contingency in the will of J, of B's dying without issue of her body living at her death, to the death of C under twenty-one, and that the subsequent limitations to C after attaining twenty-one, and to D and E are not contingent, but vested remainder.

Lethieullier v. Tracy, 3 Atk. 775. REMAINDER VESTED OR CONTINGENT.

Pecuniary legacies abate in proportion, notwithstanding a direction in the will that they are to be paid "in the first place," or a direction as to the time of payment. If, however, an intention that any legacies are to be paid in full is to be collected, or reasonably inferred, it will be otherwise, as where a legacy is meant as a purchase of dower to which the party is entitled. Blower v. Morret, 2 Ves. 420. LEGACIES, ABATEMENT OF.

Devise of residue to A and B. Codicil revokes every legacy, thing, and part as to A; B shall take the whole. Humphrey v. Tayleur, Ambl. 136. S.C. 1 Dick. 161.

If an estate is limited to two jointly, the one capable of taking and the other not, he who is capable shall take the whole. Id. 138.

Annuity out of personal estate, devised to A during life of his executor. A dies in the life of the executor, the annuity does not cease but goes to A's executor. Savory v. Dyer, Ambl. 139. S.C. 1 Dick. 162.

Devise of residue of real and personal estate, which consisted partly of a term to a charity, whether it be an old term or created de novo, is within the statute of mortmain. Att. Gen. v. Grares, Ambl. 155. MORTMAIN.

Annuity, by will, to a wife otherwise unprovided for, and sums for children's maintenance. On a deficiency of assets, held on the intention of the testator, that they should not abate in proportion with the general legacies. Lewin v. Lewin, 2 Ves. 415. LEGACIES, ABATEMENT OF.

Under a bequest of the residue of a personal estate to A, if he attain twenty-one, the profits will accumulate. Trevanion v. Virian, 2 Ves. 430. ACCUMULATION.

After a bequest before the mortmain-act of 50*l.*, charged on land to P J, the minister of a baptist meeting-house, certain other premises were devised away, charged with an annuity of 10*l.* "to the minister belonging to that meeting-house." This held a valid charitable bequest for the ministers in succession, and not personal to P J. Att. Gen. v. Cook, 2 Ves. 273.

Devise of Bank-stock to daughter for life, remainder to such child or children of her as should be living at her death, and if she should not leave any child, or if all children should die without issue, then to J. The daughter had a son born at the time of making the will. Held, the words, without issue, were to be construed without leaving issue, and that the remainder over to J was a good remainder, and not too remote. Sheppard v. Lessingham, Ambl. 122. LIMIT, OF PERSONALS; LIMIT, TOO REMOTE.

Bequest of residue of personal estate, after a life interest, to the use of all and every the children of testator's daughter, equally to be transferred, delivered, and paid to them severally, when by law able to receive and give discharges: Held to be vested in each child on coming into being, and transmissible, though subject to be varied by the birth of others. Evel v. Wallace, 2 Ves. 118. INTEREST VESTED.

Devise of use of personal to A for life, and afterwards to B, though B dies first, transmissible. Id. 119.

Devise of house and appurtenances to wife during widowhood, but that the eldest son when twenty-one or married might have it on notice. The wife having married after the death of the former eldest son unmarried, and during the minority, &c. of the existing eldest, it was declared, that he would not be entitled to the enjoyment on attaining twenty-one or marriage upon giving notice. The intervening interest in the premises and appurtenances being undisposed of, held to fall into the residue of the real and personal estates:

Dk. Bridgewater v. Egerton, 3 Ves. 129. INTERMEDIATE PROFITS.

Devise to trustee in fee, if B attains twenty-one, or has issue, to B and heirs of his body, but if B dies before twenty-one and without issue, over. B attains twenty-one, and dies without issue. An estate tail vested in B at twenty-one, or on having issue, and the limitation over, a remainder which takes place on failure of issue of B. Brownswood v. Edwards, 2 Ves. 243. INTEREST VESTED.

A particular sum being given for maintenance, will not bar the party from being entitled to the surplus profits. El. Stafford v. Buckley, 2 Ves. 171. MAINTENANCE.

A by will gives all his real and personal estate to trustees in trust for the payment of his debts and legacies, and then to the use of his eldest son J and his heirs for ever; and failing issue of his said son J, then to the use of his second son L and his heirs for ever; and failing issue of that son, to his third son G and his heirs for ever; and failing issue of that son, then to the use of "every other son that I shall or may have and their heirs for ever; and failing my issue male then to the use of my issue female, and their heirs for ever." Held, that according to the intention of the testator his sons took successively an estate in tail male; and that upon the death of the eldest son, leaving only a daughter, the second son took in the order of succession. Fitzgerald v. Lealie, 3 Bro. P.C. 154. ESTATE, TAIL.

Devise of real and personal estates to trustees, their executors, &c. out of rents and profits to pay certain annuities and legacies: Held, a trust, not a chattel interest in the trustees. Gibson v. Rogers, Ambl. 93. S.C. 1 Ves. 485. 4 Ves. 288. (n.) TRUST.

Bequest of a moiety between two; one of them dying in testator's life-time, no survivorship, and his moiety is undisposed of. Peat v. Chapman, 1 Ves. 542. LAPSED LEGACY.

Devise of 100*l.* to a daughter to be paid by executor in a month after death of the widow, to whom the real estate was devised for life, and afterwards to his son the executor in fee, appointing two trustees or overseers to see the will performed. On deficiency of assets the real estate charged with the 100*l.* Lypet v. Carter, 1 Ves. 499. CHARGE ON REAL ESTATE.

Devise of the residue of real and personal estate after provision made for payment of annuities and legacies to the child or children of his natural daughter, and in case she should die without issue to S & J. Held, the intermediate profits till a child born should go to the residuary devisees, and not to the heir at law. Gibson v. Rogers, Ambl. 96. S.C. 1 Ves. 485. 4 Ves. 288. (n.) INTERMEDIATE PROFITS.

Term to raise portions, and the trustees to hold the estate till the son attain twenty-one, and then to convey to the son, there being no direction as to the intermediate profits: Held, they should go to the heir at law as undisposed of; that case was distinguished from the present by reason that the trustees were to convey at twenty one, and nothing given before to the son. Bland v. Bland, cited id. INTERMEDIATE PROFITS.

Archbishop P. devised his options to trustees, regard being had in the disposition of them according to their discretion to his eldest son Dr. P.; the husbands of his daughters, his present and former chaplains, &c. Held, a personal trust, and the trusteeship of C. being vacant, one of the trustees might present the other, he being within the description in the will. Potter v. Chapman, Ambl. 98. S.C. 1 Dick. 146. PRESENTATION TO BENEFICE; TRUST.

Devise of "rents, profits, and produce" of W. I. stock to be assigned to trustees, and applied by them in disencumbering an estate in Scotland of debts, and also in payment of other debts, funeral expences, and legacies. Held, on rehearing, that such charges could only be paid out of the annual perception of rents and profits; and that part of the former decree which had directed a sale was reversed. Conyngnam v. Conyngnam, 1 Ves. 522. SALE, POWER OF.

Money charged on estate in Novis, held to carry only English interest, the sum which was charged in favour of W held to be included in the bequest of a large sum to W's younger children; the testatrix supposing that they were entitled to the charge, although it was not the case, and decreed that no more should be raised than the sum bequeathed. Stapleton v. Convey, 1 Ves. 427. INTEREST; CHARGE ON LANDS ABROAD.

On appeal, devise of land on contingency to Robert or "his heirs." Robert, before the contingency happens, conveys "all his right, title, claim, and demand" therein by deed to his younger son and his heirs as a provision, and dies. The contingency happening, Robert's heir cannot claim this against his father's account. "Or," construed "and." Wright v. Wright, 1 Ves. 409. CONTINGENT INTERESTS, IF DEVISEABLE.

Real estate directed to be sold, and together with personal, applied, inter alia, in charitable purposes, and "that the trustees should place out all the residue of testator's estate and the interest therein on securities, and divide it, &c." Held first, that the bequest as to the charity was valid; and next, that the whole as to other matters was turned into personality. Durour v. Motteux, 1 Ves. 320. ADMIN. OF ASSETS; LAND DIRECTED TO BE SOLD.

Legacies of stock are specific or general legacies according to the intent of testator from the will and the circumstances, whether he meant to confine it to the stock he then had. Aetyn v. Ward, 1 Ves. 425. LEGACIES, SPECIFIC.

Dying without issue, held to mean without issue at her death. Chamberlain v. Jacob, Amb. 72.

Devise of all testator's "real" and personal estate "subject to debts," affects copyhold lands unsundered, for the benefit of the creditors, there being no freehold lands; if there had been, it would have been otherwise. Ithell v. Beane, 1 Ves. 215. N. C. Dick. 132. CHARGE ON REAL ESTATE; COPYHOLD.

Testator "desires" J "to leave" D 500*l.* at her death, out of the money he bequeathed her: held to amount to a legacy from the original testator, and not to lapse by D's death in J's life time, he having served the testator. Medlicot v. Bores, 1 Ves. 207. WORDS PRECATORY; INTEREST VESTED.

Bequest of 400*l.* to R to be paid in a year, and of a further sum of 100*l.* at the death of his mother; the latter held also a vested legacy. Jackson v. Jackson, 1 Ves. 217. INTEREST VESTED.

Devise to trustees from, and immediately after determination of precedent estates, to use of A in fee, charged and chargeable with legacies, to be paid in twelve months; they run over all the precedent estates as well as the fee. Carter v. Carter, 1 Ves. 168. CHARGE ON REAL ESTATE.

Devise of 400*l.* to be put out on good security for T B, that he may have the interest for his life and for the heirs of his body; if he dies without issue, then over. The whole property vests in the first taker, and the limitation too remote. Butterfield v. Butterfield, 1 Ves. 133. LIMITATION TOO REMOTE.

Devise of freehold and leasehold estates to trustees in trust by rents and profits, or by sale or mortgage, to pay debts and legacies which his personal estate should not be sufficient for, and subject thereto, in case J B should attain twenty-one, in trust for him, his heirs and executors: Held that the rents and profits, till J B attained twenty-one were not undisposed of, but passed by the devise to the trustees; and were after payment of legacies, annuities, and interest of the debts, to be applied to sink the principal of the debts. Popham v. Aylesbury, Amb. 68. INTERMEDIATE PROFITS.

Legacy to be paid at a future day is vested, but not where the sum is not certain. Maddison v. Andrew, 1 Ves. 59. INTEREST VESTED.

Devise of 1500*l.* to a grand-daughter, to be at her own disposal, if she married with consent of her father and mother, or trustees, and not otherwise; she dies at thirteen intestate and unmarried; it is not vested nor transmissible. Elton v. Elton, 1 Ves. 4. S. C. 3 Atk. 504. INTEREST, IF VESTED.

A gave several legacies, and declared that if any of the persons should die before they became due, they should not be deemed lapsed legacies, and then said "to B, the wife of R, and to her executors or administrators, I give 50*l.*" B died in the testator's lifetime, and her husband administered: Held, not a lapsed legacy, but shall go to the husband. Sibley v. Cook, 3 Atk. 572. LEGACY LAPSED.

If a man devises a real estate to S, and his heirs signifying his intention that if S die before him, it should not lapse; the heir is not excluded unless the testator nominates another devisee. Id. 573. LEGACY LAPSED.

A sale directed on the words "rents and profits" alone, though generally contrary to testator's intention in aid of a creditor, on the ground of law, that in a will those words meant and passed the land itself. Another construction, however, as to legatees, upon the addition of the words "as the rents and profits, &c." should advance the money. Baines v. Dixon, 1 Ves. 41. POWER TO SELL.

Executory trust for three, for their lives as tenants in common; if any died without issue living at their deaths, their shares to go to survivors, with contingent remainders in tail, and remainders over. Two of them dying in testatrix's lifetime, held, their shares lapsed and went over. Sperling v. Toll, 1 Ves. 70. LEGACY, LAPSED.

A legacy out of real estate to be paid within twelve months after the death of A. The legatee survives A but one month; it does not lapse, but goes to the representative. Hodgson v. Rayson, 1 Ves. 44. INTEREST, VESTED.

Devise to A in fee, with directions to settle on descendants of his mother for their several lives, &c. A may limit an inheritance to elude the general intent. Godolphin v. Godolphin, 1 Ves. 21.

Where goods, lands, and chattels, are given by will altogether as one fund, and a legacy is given, subject to the exception of what was given before; it is a charge on the fund. Edgell v. Haywood, 3 Atk. 538. CHARGE ON FUND.

A, by will, gave to trustees 312*l.*, and several jewels, in trust, to sell and apply the produce as a composition for his son's debts, provided the creditors should accept the same within four months, and discharge his son; and if not, then he gave the same to his son's children. Testator died on 15th December, and on 13th April following, the son's creditors filed their bill for the composition, submitting to release the son, and praying that the time might be enlarged: Held, that the creditors, by filing their bill within four calendar months, and thereby declaring their acceptance of the legacies towards satisfaction of their debts, and offering to release, have performed the condition annexed, according to the true intent of the will; and the court has so determined upon the performance of a condition in several cases, though the executors have suffered the time to elapse. Franco v. Abours, 3 Atk. 342. CONDITIONAL PERF.

In this case, an absolute term of ninety-nine, limited to C, amongst other limitations of a real estate under a will, was with reference to the true construction of the several parts of the will, considered not as an absolute term, but as determinable on the death of C.

Corbyn v. Helyar, 2 Cox, 340. cited Burr. 923. (63). LIMITATION, C. OF.

Legacy payable at twenty-one, with a certain allowance, in the meantime; the legatee dies before twenty-one: his administrator not entitled to the legacy till such time as he would have attained twenty-one. Roden v. Smith, AmbL. 588. LEGACY, TIME OF PAYMENT.

Where a condition is annexed by a will to a devise, either of real or personal estate, and no notice is required to be given, nor any person obliged to give notice, there the legatees must perform the condition, or cannot be entitled; and where they do not, if there is a devise over, a forfeiture incurs. Suppose an estate limited to A for life, and to B on certain conditions, and to C in formi prædicta, it will take in every condition in the preceding limitations to B. Chauncey v. Graydon, 2 Atk. 616. S. C. 2 Ves. 264. NOTICE; CONDITION.

Where either real or personal estate is given upon a contingency, and that contingency does not take effect in the life of the devise over; yet if real, his heir, if personal, his executor, will be entitled. Id. 621. INTEREST VESTED.

A provision out of a real estate for an executrix will not bar her, neither will specific legacies given to one, bar either of the residue of the personal estate, but are put in only to give one a preference to the other. Walker v. Jackson, 2 Atk. 626. EXECUTORS.

Where a testator expresses himself in the present tense, it relates to what is in being at the time of making the will. Abney v. Miller, 2 Atk. 597.

A direction to trustees to pay a principal sum after the death of a father and mother to their issue equally, to sons at twenty-one, and to daughters at twenty-one or marriage, is only a circumstance or qualification in the person receiving, and not intended to accelerate the payment, or vest it in the children, for the direction of the payment is the gift, and will not vest till the time of payment comes. Seamer v. Bingham, 3 Atk. 57. INTEREST, VESTED.

Testator bequeathed residuary personal estate to his daughter F, (an infant) to be paid to her at twenty-one or marriage; and if she should die before twenty-one or marriage, he bequeathed the same to such son of F as should first attain twenty-one; and if no son attain twenty-one, then to P. F died under twenty-one, and unmarried. Held, that the interest of the residue, from the death of F to the time it will vest in the son of F, who is an infant, must accumulate, and is part of the residue, till the bequest to the son vests. Green v. Ekins, 2 Atk. 473. ACCUMULATION.

Testator devised lands to wife for life, remainder to S, till grandson attained twenty-three, and when he attained twenty-three, testator devised to him, in fee, on condition that he paid H 60*l.* within two years after he attained twenty-three; and testator gave H powers of attorney. H lived till the grandson attained twenty-three, but died within two years after he attained that age. Held, that the 60*l.* should be raised, and paid to the representatives of H. Enes v. Handcock, 2 Atk. 507. INTEREST, VESTED.

Testator devised to trustees, in trust for N and the heirs of his body, and to pay such sums out of rents for maintenance as B should appoint: by codicil, he directs trustees, during N's minority, to pay rents to plaintiff, so much as she pleases for his maintenance, and the residue to her own use: by another codicil, he directs trustees shall not settle the estate on N and the heirs of his body, till twenty-six, and till then, such maintenance as trustees and plaintiff shall think fit. Held, that rents vested in N at twenty-one, and the time of receiving only prolonged till twenty-six; and trustees decreed to account for rents, &c., from N's age of twenty-one to twenty-six. Smith v. Newport, 2 Atk. 344. Id.

There is no difference between a direction to trustees to pay, and a gift; the testator is equally the donor in both cases. Nicholls v. Judson, 2 Atk. 301.

Testator says, "I make D my sole heir and executrix, and if she dies without issue, then to go to plaintiff." Held, that the limitation over of the personal estate was void, and cannot be confined to D's dying without issue living at the time of her decease. Beauchamp v. Dormer, 2 Atk. 308. PERSONAL ESTATE, LIMIT. OF.

"Then," in the grammatical sense, is an adverb of time, but, in limitations, a word of reference, and relates to the determination of the first limitation in the estate. S. C. Id.

A limitation over of personal estate, after the death of the first taker without issue generally, is void. S. C. Id.

Courts of equity will carry the limitation of a personal chattel or trust of it no further than the judges have done in the case of legal limitations of terms for years. S. C. Id.

According to Lord Hardwicke's note of Forth and Chapman, Lord Macclesfield held, that the words, "leave no issue," must relate to the time of the deaths of the testator's two nephews, William and Walter, and could not be extended to a dying without issue generally. S. C. Id.

No authority can be produced where it has been held that a limitation of personal estate shall be confined to a dying without issue living at the death of the first taker. S. C. Id.

If the court should admit of a distinction between chattels real and personal, it would introduce confusion. S. C. Id.

The wife is not barred of her paraphernalia, by a bequest of the use of all household goods, furniture, plate, jewels, linen, &c., for life. Marshall v. Blew, 2 Atk. 217. PARAPHERNALIA.

Such a bequest entitles her to use the goods any where, or even to let them out to hire. S. C. Id.

Heir male takes by purchase, though he is not heir general from the manifest intention in will. Neucoman v. Bethlem Hospital, AmbL. 8. TITLE; ESTATE BY PURCHASE.

Where testator devised four parts of his personal estate to B, and the children born of her body, and B had no child at the date of the will, but had one child born afterwards, and B died in testator's lifetime; held, that the legacy was not lapsed, for B did not take an estate tail but as a joint tenant with the child, and that the child took the whole by survivorship. Butler v. Bradford, 2 Atk. 220. LEGACY, LAPSED.

Children are words of purchase, and not of limitation, except it is to comply with a testator's intention, and it can take effect no other way. Id.

Where there are two executors, and a legacy is left to one for mourning for himself, his wife, and children, he shall have a moiety of the residue notwithstanding. Id. EXORS. BEN. INTERESTED.

Direction to raise and secure annuity of 50*l.* per annum for charity, by purchase of lands of inheritance, "or otherwise," held, not within statute of mortmain. Surrey v. Hollins, 9 Mod. 221. MORTMAIN.

Case where, from the general tenor of will, legacies which were charged on certain funds not existing at time of death, were held not adeemed. Wingfield v. Norton, 9 Mod. 428. ADEMP. OF LEGACIES.

Bequest of 3000*l.* to trustees, upon trust to invest same either in a purchase or at interest, and pay interest to testator's wife during her life, and after her decease to divide the whole, principal and interest, "among his four children, share and share alike, and the survivors of them, but not before they should have respectively attained the age of twenty-one years, or days of marriage." C, the plaintiff's wife, who was one of the four children, attained twenty-one, but died in the lifetime of her mother. Trustees laid out the part of the money in the purchase of freeholds and copyholds, and lent another part on bond. Held, that C had a vested interest; and that survivors meant such as should be living at the death of the child before twenty-one, and not such as were living at the death of the mother, and that the representative of C was entitled to a fourth of the bond, and a fourth on the whole in government securities, and which had not been invested in land. Weedon v. Fell, 2 Atk. 124. VESTED INTEREST.

A, by will, devised all her real and personal estate to B, to pay her legacies thereout, and then she gave to C 2000*l.*, in trust for his daughter D, to be paid within eighteen months after her decease, which she should place out at interest, and pay the same, with the produce thereof, to his daughter, for her own use, at eighteen or marriage. C died in the lifetime of testatrix, and his daughter died six months after. This legacy is a charge on both funds; and as the court always goes as far as possible to hinder the raising of portions out of land for the benefit of representatives, it was decreed that this portion shall not be raised; though, if D had survived the eighteen months, his representative would have been entitled, notwithstanding C was dead; so if she had died under eighteen, or unmarried, provided she survived the eighteen months. If a legacy is payable, or given at a certain time out of personal estate, with interest in the mean time, it is a vested legacy; but if out of a real estate, and the party dies before the time, it sinks into the inheritance; and the construction is the same, if charged on a mixed fund, where it is given or payable at a certain time. Van v. Clark, 1 Atk. 510. INTEREST, VESTED.

Where residue was directed by testator to be divided among six persons at the death of his wife, and two died before her; held, that the interest of the two was vested and transmissible, and depended not on surviving wife. S. C. 1 Atk. 511.

Where testator gave 300*l.* to trustee, in trust to be paid, within three years after his decease, to W, for her separate use, and after her decease, 200*l.* thereof to her son T, and the other 100*l.* to her son C, and W and T die within the three years; decreed, that the money should be paid, though charged on stock funds. S. C. Id.

A proviso in the will of R, that if his personal estate and houses and lands at W should not be sufficient to pay his debts, then his executors to raise the same out of his copyhold premises, enables the trustees, if the rents are not sufficient, to sell the copyhold lands, to satisfy the testator's intention of paying his debts. Bateman v. Bateman, 1 Atk. 421. POWER OF SALE.

A, by will, gives to the Latin school of Yeovil 5*l.* to be paid yearly for teaching three boys. This shall be construed a perpetuity for teaching three boys in succession. Cheeseman v. Partridge, 1 Atk. 436. CHARITY.

A wife during coverture appoints by deed poll 300*l.* to be paid to her husband, to be employed by him to such charitable uses, or other purposes and intents as he should think fit. Held, that the husband had the complete ownership of the 300*l.* and notwithstanding other directions in his will, it might be applied to satisfy his debts. Hinton v. Toyes, 1 Atk. 465. Id.

Where lands are devised to trustees, to be sold for payment of debts, and the heir is an infant, he has no day to shew cause, when he comes of age; but if the lands are not devised to a particular person, it is otherwise. Blatch v. Wilder, 1 Atk. 421. INFANT, PAROL DEMUR.

Testator devised lands to his wife for life, remainder to his son, R, in fee, and gave to A a legacy of 150*l.* to be paid in a twelvemonth's time, after his son, Robert, should come to enjoy the premises. Robert died in the lifetime of the wife, and left a son. Held that this was a condition annexed to the estate, and the legacy, with interest at 4 per cent. from the death of testator's wife, decreed against Robert's son and heir. Miles v. Leigh, 1 Atk. 573. CHARGE ON LAND.

A gives an annuity of 20*l.* to his daughter, and the heirs of her body, quarterly, without any abatement. B, the surviving executor of A, gives to the daughter of A and her daughter, an annuity of 20*l.* by his will, to be paid quarterly, without any abatement, out of his freehold houses in Holborn, and if they die without issue, then to return to the plaintiff, his heir; and by an indorsement upon the will, in pencil, not executed according to the statute of frauds; he says "I hope this 20*l.* will not be taken for another 20*l.* annuity her father left her and her daughter." This indorsement held invalid, because nothing can enlarge or diminish what affects real estate, unless it be executed according to statute of frauds. Heather v. Ridder, 1 Atk. 425. STAT. OF FRAUDS.

Where a person gives a debt by will to a corporation, it vests in them in law, and they may recover it in the ecclesiastical court. Att. Gen. v. Pyle, 1 Atk. 435. CORPORATION.

A devises his real and personal estate for payment of debts. The personal estate not being sufficient, the executors may sell the real estate, although no directions are given in the will, as to who shall sell, and the money arising from the sale is legal assets in the hands of the executors. Blatch v. Wilder, 1 Atk. 420. POWER OF SALE; ASSETS, LEGAL.

One devises the sum of 2,000*l.* S. S. stock; at the time of making his will he had just 2,000*l.* S. S. stock; he afterwards sold 1,500*l.* of it, and three-fourths of the residue was turned into annuities, by act of parliament. Held, the bequest was not specific, nor adeemed. Bronkton v. Winter, Ambl. 57. LEGACY, ADEMP. OF; LEGACY, SPEC.

A bequest of certain quantity of stock will not be held specific from the circumstance of the testator having that exact quantity at the time of the bequest. Id. 59. LEGACY, SPEC.

When one bequest is made in satisfaction for that to which the legatee is previously entitled, the thing given in satisfaction must be of the same nature, and attended with the same certainty as the thing in lieu of which it is given, as land for land, money for money. If personal estate be given for personal estate, one shall not be with a contingency, and the other without, for here the same certainty is wanting. Bellasis v. Uthwatt, 1 Atk. 428. LEGACY, SATISFACTION.

W II, by will, gave 550*l.* to his daughters, and then devises his land in trust for a term of ninety-nine years, with a power to raise a less term, upon trust that if his wife should, within four years, pay off the 550*l.*, then the lands to go to her for life, and after her death to W H, his son and his heirs, male and female, and for want of such issue, to him and his heirs for ever. Declared that this is a conditional limitation in the wife, taking place as an executory devise; that the freehold descended to the son, as heir at law to the testator, till the four years elapsed, or his wife had performed the condition, as part of the inheritance undisposed of; and that, by this devise, the son had a good estate tail of inheritance expectant on the termination of the term of ninety-nine years. Haywood v. Stillingleet, 1 Atk. 422. EXECUTORY DEVISE.

Where a particular chattel is specifically described, and distinguished from all other things of the same kind, and is not found among the testator's effects, it fails. If given first to A, and then to B, they must divide it; and if disposed of, in the testator's lifetime, it is an ademption of such legacy. Purse v. Snaphin, 1 Atk. 417. LEGACY, SPEC.

The mortgagee for a term of years being in possession, devises the premises as an estate of inheritance, to three several persons for life successively, with remainder to their first and other sons, remainders over; the remainders over are void as tending to a perpetuity. Brett v. Saubridge, 3 Bro. P. C. 141. PERPETUITY, REMAINDER OVER.

Devise of personal estate to A for life; several legacies after A's death; residue at her decease, to be divided between B, C, D, and E. B and C die in life of A. Held vested legacies in them. Corbett v. Palmer, 2 Eq. Ab. 548. INTEREST, VESTED.

Where legacy is left by will smaller than debt, accompanied with annuity, they are never considered as a satisfaction of debt, unless so expressed in will. Stanway v. Styles, 2 Eq. Ab. 355. SATISFACTION OF DEBTS.

A devised lands to his son B, but if he should die without issue male of his body then living, or which might be afterwards born; that then his daughter M should receive, at her age of twenty-one, or day of marriage, which should first happen, 3500*l.* over and above 2500*l.* before given her; and in case the contingency of his said son's dying without issue male, should not happen before his daughter's said age or day of marriage, that then she should receive the said 3500*l.* whenever such contingency might happen; and the testator charged this legacy or portion on his real estate. M having attained twenty-one, married, and died in the lifetime of her brother B, who afterwards died without issue male. Held that the husband and administrator of M was entitled to this legacy, and that it was a subsisting charge on the testator's real estate. Wither v. Ring, 3 Bro. P. C. 135. CHARGE ON REAL ESTATE.

The testator devises, as to all his worldly estate, that his debts be paid within a year after his decease; and then devises his real estate to trustees for a term in trust for his wife for life, remainder to his son successively in tail male; and gives several legacies. The real estate is chargeable with the debts, in case the personal do not suffice. Hutton v. Nichol, Forres. 110. Id.

A devises his freehold, copyhold, and leasehold, and all his real and personal estate not before devised, to three trustees, their heirs, &c. in trust, to pay his son B an annuity; and if he should have any child or children, the residue of the rents, during B's life, for the education and benefit of such child or children; and after B's decease, a moiety of the trust estate to such child and children as he shall leave, their heirs, &c.; the other moiety to the child and children of his grandson C, and every other child and children of his daughter S, their heirs, &c.; and if B die without issue, the first moiety to C, and other child and children of S, and their heirs, &c. and directs an annual payment to such wife as B shall marry. The testator died; B married, and had issue a son and daughter, and died: the limitation to the daughter of C is well supported by the estate in the trustees; or if not, is good as an executory devise; and the profits, &c. shall go to the children of B. Chapman v. Blissett, Forres, 145. EXECUTORY DEVISE.

A devises (as touching his worldly estate after payment of his debts, which he wills to be first paid,) his lands, in mortgage, to B, his wife, for life, and after her death to C, and directs the residue of his personal estate to be placed out at interest; B to have the interest during her life, and after her death to C, and gives B 1500*l.* provided she accept the devise, and bequests in lieu of dower. There is not sufficient personal estate to pay the debts and legacies; if the mortgagee take part of the personal estate, the legatee shall for so much stand in his place. Lutkins v. Leigh, Forres. 53. MARSHALLING ASSETS.

Devise of land to husband and wife for their lives, and after the death of the wife, then to their children, upon the death of the wife, the husband's estate determines. Cowper v. Cowper, 2 P. W. 739. ESTATE PUR AUTRE VIE.

If one owes debts by bond, and devises his lands to J in fee, and leaves a specific legacy, and dies, and the bond creditors come upon the specific legacy for payment of his debts, the specific legatee shall not stand in the place of the bond creditor, to charge the land, and why. Hustlewood v. Pope, 3 P. W. 324. ADMON. OF ASSETS.

One devises all his personal estate to his daughter, and all his real estate to trustees in trust, to pay debts, &c. remainder to his daughter in tail, remainder over; the personal estate shall, in the first place, be all applied to pay the debts. Id. ib.

A devises all his real and personal estate to trustees their heirs and executors, in trust to pay 15*l.* per annum to the plaintiffs, his two sisters, for their lives, and after several legacies, the surplus in trust for the dissenting ministers, at Reading, &c., and gives 300*l.* legacies to his trustees; afterwards the testator, by two deeds of a subsequent date, conveys all his real estate, and makes a gift of his personal estate to the use of the same trustees and their heirs, &c.; proviso, both deeds to be void on his tender of 10*l.* to them. There was also a proviso in the will, that if the sisters disputed the will, they should forfeit their annuities. Testator after he had executed the deeds, still kept the same in his own custody. The trustees refuse paying the sisters their annuities, who thereupon bring their bill insisting that the deed had revoked the will, and that there was a resulting trust for them as heirs at law, or at least that they (the sisters) were entitled to their 15*l.* per annum annuities. The defendant insisted on the plaintiffs' having forfeited their annuities; decreed that the annuities should be paid to the two sisters the plaintiffs, but the surplus to go to the dissenting ministers. Lloyd v. Spillet, 3 P. W. 344.

One devises a rent charge to be sold to pay legacies amounting to 800*l.*, and if the rent-charge should sell for 1000*l.* the testator gives a further legacy of 200*l.* The rent-charge sells for above 800*l.*, and less than 1000*l.*; what exceeds the 800*l.* shall belong to the heir as a resulting trust. Stonehouse v. Evelyn, 3 P. W. 252. HEIR AT LAW; RESULTING TRUST.

The words "Imprimis, I will that all the debts that I shall owe at the time of my decease, be discharged and paid," are sufficient to make the real estate liable, in case of a deficiency of personal assets. Legh v. El. Warrington, 1 Bro. P. C. 511. CHARGE ON REAL ESTATE.

One by his will devises that all his debts and legacies shall be paid by his executor out of his personal estate, if that shall be sufficient, but if not, then that his executor within twelve months after his death, shall sell or mortgage so much of his real estate as shall be sufficient for that purpose, and (inter alia) gives a legacy of 1000*l.* to J S, who dies within a year, and the personal estate is not sufficient; this is a vested legacy, and shall be paid to the executor of the legatee, though charged upon land; for the words within twelve months, denote the ultimate time, but the executor may pay the legacy sooner. Wilson v. Spencer, 3 P. W. 172. INTEREST, VESTED.

Devise to A until B shall attain forty years; B dies before forty A's estate ceases; secus, if the devise to A be made a fund to pay debts or portions, which cannot be raised until B shall have attained his age of forty, in which case the word "shall" is taken for "should." Lemax v. Holmendon, 3 P. W. 176. CONTINGENT LEGACY; CONDITION SUBSEQUENT.

Devise of lands to trustees in fee in trust, within six years after the testator's death, to raise and pay 1500*l.* to his daughter A; A dies within the six years; the 1500*l.* shall go to her administrator, here being no certain time limited when, but only the ultimate time, within which it shall be raised. Cowper v. Scott, 3 P. W. 119. INTEREST, VESTED.

Where estate is devised on condition that if first devisee should refuse or neglect to comply with the condition, (viz. a release of all demands within six months), a limitation over: Held, a conditional limitation and not relievable against. Weedon v. Ozenham, 2 Eq. Ab. 646. cited 1 Mad. Ch. 42. note (u), as MS. CONDITIONAL LIMITATION; CONDITION BREACH, WHEN RELIEVED.

A will begins "As to all my worldly estate, my debts being first paid, I give, &c." the real estate is liable to the debts; nothing being devised till the debts are paid. Harris v. Ingledew, 3 P. W. 91. CHARGE ON LANDS.

Legacy at twenty-one, or marriage with consent, but not otherwise: Held, that condition of consent applied only to marriage under age. Dobbins v. Bland, 2 Eq. Ab. 645.

Real estate is expressly charged with payment of debts, and personal estate is given to executor: Held, that executor was not beneficially entitled but that therefore personal estate shall be applied to discharge real estate in favour of heir at law. Lacy v. Bromley, Fitzgibbon, 41. ADMON. OF ASSETS; EXONERATION OF REAL ESTATE.

One by will gives a legacy to a daughter to be paid to her when she should attain twenty-one, or be married with the consent of his executors; proviso, that if the daughter marries without the consent of the executors the legacy to go over; this condition, though general, must yet be intended if she marries under twenty-one, sans consent of the executors, and on the daughter's coming to twenty-one, the court will decree the legacy to her. Deshoby v. Boyville, 2 P. W. 547. LEGACY, CONDITIONAL.

Where lands are devised to maintain an infant till twenty-three, and then to account, he shall not have an account, until he attains twenty-three, unless the trustee be insolvent. Tilley v. Simpson, Mos. 244. ACCOUNT.

Devise of a personal estate to A for life, and afterwards for her children, and the yearly interest and produce to be for their maintenance, till the sons attain twenty-one, and the daughters eighteen, at which ages their respective portions to be paid; and for want of such issue, then to B; A dies without issue and the devise over to B was held to be good, the words for want of such issue, being the same as for want of such children. Staines v. Maddock, 3 Bro. P. C. 108. LIMIT. OVER.

Lands are devised to trustees and their heirs, in trust to pay several legacies and annuities, and then to pay the surplus of the rents and profits to A during her life, for her separate use, or as she should direct; and after her death, the trustees were to stand seised to the use of the heirs of her body, with other remainders over. Held, that this was a use executed in the trustees and their heirs during the life of A, and that she had only a trust in the surplus rents and profits during her life; and that the subsequent limitation to the trustees, to the use of the heirs of her body, was a use executed in the persons entitled to take by virtue thereof; and therefore, there being only a trust estate in the ancestor, and a use executed in the heirs of her body, their different interests could not unite so as to create an estate tail by operation of law in the ancestor. Ld. Say and Sele v. Ly. Jones, 3 Bro. P. C. 113. USES & TRUSTS.

A devised his real estate to his son F during his life, remainder after his decease to his eldest son that should be then living, remainder over. F suffered a recovery, and declared the use to himself in fee: Held, that F took only an estate for life, and that the recovery was bad. For where a particular estate is expressly given, it shall not be altered by any implication from subsequent words; especially where such implication, if admitted, defeats the general intent of the will. Foord v. Foord, 3 Bro. P. C. 124. ESTATE FOR LIFE.

A, by will, devises 500*l.* to his infant grandson without appointing any time for payment, with proviso, that if the grandson dies before twenty-one, then the legacy to go over to B; the grandson shall have the interest of the legacy during his infancy. Taylor v. Johnson, 2 P. W. 504. Mos. 98. LEGACY, INTEREST OF.

If I devise a legacy of 100*l.* to A, payable at his age of twenty-one, and A dies before twenty-one, A's executors or administrators shall not have the legacy till such time as A (had he lived) should have attained twenty-one; and my executors shall have the interest in the meantime; but if I give a legacy to A of 100*l.* payable at his age of twenty-one, and if he dies before, then to B, and A dies before twenty-one, B shall have the legacy presently, and not stay till such time as A should have come to twenty-one. Laundy v. Williams, 2 P. W. 478. LEGACY, WHEN PAYABLE.

Devise of a personal estate to A for life, and afterwards for her children, the yearly interest and produce to be for their maintenance until the sons should be twenty-one, and the daughters eighteen, at which respective ages their respective portions to be paid them, and for want of such issue to B; A dies without issue; the devise over to B good; the words "for want of such issue," being the same as "for want of such children." Maddox v. Swaine, 2 P. W. 421. LIMITATION OVER.

Where trustees were directed to sell the whole real estate to pay debts, and to pay surplus to A and B; if only part of estates are sold, and fully pay the debts, the remainder unsold shall go to A and B, as if actually sold. Collingwood v. Wallis, 1 Eq. Ab. 395. S. P. Davers v. Folkes, id. 396. LANDS DIRECTED TO BE SOLD.

Will cannot be set aside in equity for fraud and imposition, because, if of personal estate, it may be set aside in the ecclesiastical court, and if of real estate, at law by issue deviseavit vel non. Kerrick v. Bramby, 7 Bro. P. C. 437. FRAUD; JURISDICTION.

A devise of lands to B and C, and the survivor of them and their heirs, equally to be divided between them, share and share alike; B and C are joint tenants for life, with several inheritances. Barker v. Gyles, 3 Bro. P. C. 107. JOINT-TENANCY.

J devised his real estate to his son M for life, and after his death if he leaves any issue male, to other persons; and to one of those other persons he gave legacy of 500*l.* at twenty-one. M died without issue; legatee also died: held, that legacy was not contingent, on his becoming entitled to real estate. Baynes v. Bertie, 5 Bro. P. C. 62. LEGACY, CONTINGENT.

A, by will, gave all his personal estate to trustees, until W should attain twenty-four years, and from thenceforth in trust for him, his executors, administrators and assigns. W lived to twenty-one, but died before twenty-four: held, a vested interest in W, at death of testator, and that age of twenty-four was only directory as to time of payment. Love v. L'Estrange, 5 Bro. P. C. 69. VESTED INTEREST.

A, seised in fee, has a son B, and a sister C, &c. and devises his lands to his son in tail general; and if his son B should die without issue, and his wife should survive him, then the wife to have the premises for life, remainder to C in fee; B, the son, dies without issue, but testator's wife dies before him; C is not entitled to the remainder in fee, because the contingency is annexed to all the devise over. Davis v. Norton, 2 P. W. 390. REM. CONTINGENT.

Devise of 100*l.*, and of 50*l.* per annum to A and his heirs, and if A die without heirs, then to a charity; A dies without issue, living the testator: the will void as to the whole, and the charity cannot take. Att. Gen. v. Gill, 2 P. W. 369.

Where there is a proviso in a will, that in case what is left to one daughter shall exceed in value what is given to another, the former shall refund pro tanto; what is given to either of the daughters' children is to be looked upon as given to the daughter. Thomas v. Bennet, 2 P. W. 343.

A legacy given to J S, shall not be taken to be a satisfaction of a subsequent debt. Id. DEBT, SATISFACTION OF; DEBTOR & CREDITOR.

J by his will gives a legacy of 1000*l.* to his niece B, at eighteen, or marriage; and by a codicil directs that this legacy shall be made 6000*l.* payable at twenty-one or marriage; the niece was eighteen, and under twenty-one, at the time of the testator's making his codicil: held, that she was entitled to interest for the whole 6000*l.* from the death of the testator, though she had not then attained twenty-one. Acherley v. Vernon, 3 Bro. P. C. 89. INT. WHEN PAYABLE.

J devises 100*l.* to A, at his age of twenty-one; A dies before twenty-one; his executors shall not have the legacy until such time as A should have come to twenty-one if he had lived. Chester v. Painter, 2 P. W. 336. LEGACY, WHEN PAYABLE.

A devises 500*l.* legacy to the second son of I S, and devises other legacies to the other sons of I S, and declares, that if any of the younger sons of I S should die before they are capable of receiving their share; the share or legacy of him so dying shall go to the survivor; the second son dies in the testator's lifetime; this 500*l.* given to the second son shall not survive. Kider v. Wager, 2 P. W. 330. LEGACY, Lapsed.

One devises to his wife six messuages, and the rest of his real estate equally to his two daughters in fee, and afterwards on the marriage of his eldest daughter, he covenants to settle one moiety on her and her husband: the devise of the six houses shall be good, and subsist out of the remaining moiety. Id. 332. LEGACY, SATISFACTION OF.

A has two daughters, B and C, and devises one moiety of his real and personal estate to B, the other moiety of his real and personal estate to C; and afterwards, A, in consideration of marriage, covenants to settle a moiety of his real estate upon the husband that marries B: the husband shall have one moiety by the settlement, and the wife the moiety of the other moiety by the will. Id. ib.

One devises lands to trustees in fee in trust, to apply the profits until sale for the benefit of all his four children, and the survivors and survivor of them equally; and on further trust, that as soon as the trustees shall see necessary for the benefit of the children, they should sell the premises and apply the money for the benefit of his four children equally, to be paid at twenty-one or marriage; A, the eldest of the four children, attained twenty-one, and married, and died without issue, intestate, leaving a wife: decreed, the land being in all events devised to be sold, though the time for sale was left to the executors, was personal estate, and A's widow must have a moiety of A's share; and the profits of the land, until sale, must go as the money arising upon sale would. Daughy v. Bull, 2 P. W. 320. LAND DIRECTED TO BE SOLD; ADMIN. OF ASSETS.

One devises that his executors shall sell his lands, and invest the money in purchasing an annuity for J; the testator dies, and the annuitant dies three months after the testator, yet the administrator of the annuitant shall compel a sale, and shall have the money arising therefrom, and also the rents and profits till the sale. Yates v. Compton, 2 P. W. 309. INTEREST, VESTED.

A, by will, gives all his personal estate to his wife for life, and then gives to his grandchildren T and F, 100*l.* each, if they attain twenty-one or marriage: held, these legacies were not payable till after the wife's death; but the legatees were entitled to have security for payment at that time. Young v. Burdett, 5 Bro. P. C. 54. LEGACY, TIME FOR PAYMENT; SECURITY.

A will says in the beginning, "after testator's debts and legacies paid," and then the will gives several legacies and portions to the testator's daughters, and then says that "after legacies paid, the surplus of the personal estate shall go to the son;" after which follows a devise of land to the son, but if he dies without issue in the life of any of the daughters, then to the daughters: there is out of the personal estate, a sufficiency to pay great part, though not all of the legacies; in such case, the deficiency is not chargeable upon the land. Davis v. Gardiner, 2 P. W. 189. CHARGE ON LAND.

A, amongst other legacies, leaves 1000*l.* to his niece B, at eighteen or marriage, and gives the residue of his personal estate to be laid out in land, and settled in strict settlement on C, for ninety-nine years, remainder to his first son, &c. in tail; afterwards A, by codicil, devises that the 1000*l.* given by his will to his said niece should be made up 6000*l.* payable at twenty-one or marriage. The niece was eighteen at the time of the testator's making his codicil, and under twenty-one: decreed, she should have the interest of the 6000*l.* from the death of the testator; and that C was only entitled to the residue, exclusive of the 6000*l.* Acherley v. Wheeler, 1 P. W. 783. 9 Mod. 68. 10 Mod. 518. Fort. 183. Com. Rep. 381. 513. See note (c), id. ib. PARENT & CHILD; INTEREST ON LEGACY.

Legacy when apprenticeship served, held, on construction of will, to be only directory as to time of taking, and not a condition. Sidney v. Vaughan, 2 Bro. P. C. 251. INTEREST, VESTED.

A, having issue three daughters, B, C, and D, devises 1000*l.* to B, to be paid her at the age of twenty-one or marriage, upon condition that she married with the consent of his executors, and likewise devises to her several messuages, &c.; and after several other legacies, he devises the residue of his estate to the executors for the benefit of his children; though B married a person who made his addresses to her in her father's lifetime, which the father knew, and was dissatisfied at, and had notice by the executors of her father's will, yet there being no limitation over, this will not amount to a forfeiture, being only in testoreum. Semphill v. Bayly, Prec. Chan. 562. FORFEITURE; CONDON. BREACH OF.

A directs that his estate should be sold after his death, for several purposes, and amongst others, that 200*l.* should be disposed of as he by a note should appoint, and dies intestate, having given no directions. This 200*l.* shall be a resulting trust for the heir at law. Emlyn v. Freeman, Prec. Chan. 541. RESULTING TRUST; HEIR AT LAW.

After a decree of foreclosure has been made absolute, and the mortgagee for many years in possession, he made his will, and thereby disposed of the mortgage debt in these words: "And if Mr. S's debt be paid, as I doubt not but it will, I order my executor to pay the sum of 4800*l.* (which was the exact amount of the debt) amongst the children of my nephew:" held, that this devise did not open the foreclosure, and that the testator's calling it a debt did not alter the nature of his estate in the premises. Tooke v. Ely, 5 Bro. P. C. 181. MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE, NOW OPENED.

Legacy at twenty-one with interest in meantime is a vested legacy. Harrison v. Buckle, 1 Stra. 238. LEGACY, VESTED.

One having two sons and a daughter, by will gives to each 2000*l.* payable at twenty-one; provided, if assets fall short, to pay the legacies, the abatement shall be borne out of the legacies; testator leaves assets to pay, which the executrix wastes; the daughter's legacy shall have the preference. Marsh v. Evans, 1 P. W. 668. ADMON. OF ASSETS; LEGACY, ABATEMENT OF; DEVASTAVIT.

Devise to A for life, remainder to B in fee, provided that if C, within three months after A's death, pays B 500*l.* then C to have the land in fee: C dies in life of A; A dies: the heir of C, though not named, is entitled to the benefit of devise. Marks v. Marks, 1 Stra. 129. S. C. 10 Mod. 419. PRE-EMPTION, RIGHT OF.

One devises a house to his cousin, directing that an annuity of 1200*l.* per annum shall be paid her, and that she shall maintain her son there; the son chuses to go from her, still the cousin shall have her annuity in the same manner as if the son had died. Blackborn v. Edgley, 1 P. W. 604. CONDITION.

Legacy of 1600*l.* to be laid out in land shall be taken as land; but if a deficiency of assets, then not specific, but shall contribute in proportion: the legacy is what vests by assent of executor. Hinton v. Pinke, 1 P. W. 539. MONEY DEVISED TO BE LAID OUT IN LAND; ADMON. OF ASSETS; SPEC. LEGACY; LEGACIES, ABATEMENT OF.

One by will gives all his lands, money, &c. to his wife, provided, if wife dies without issue, then 80*l.* shall remain to his brother after his wife's death; the brother dies in the lifetime of the wife: it was decreed the legacy good. Pinbury v. Ellis, 2 Vern. 758. 766. S. C. Prec. Chan. 483. 1 P. W. 563. INTEREST, VESTED.

One seised in fee of the manors of A and B, mortgages A for 4000*l.* and by will charges all his real estate, with payment of his debts and devises, &c. to C, and B to D, and dies: the devisee of A shall compel the devisee of B to contribute to pay the mortgage on A; but if the will prove void, then no contribution. Carter v. Barnadiston, 1 P. W. 505. CONTRIBUTION; PAYING OFF INCUMBRANCES.

One devises to her grandchild a debt of 4000*l.* owing to the testatrix by J S; provided, if any part of the debt should be paid in before the testatrix's death, then so much as should be paid in to be made good to the grandchild out of the surplus of her estate: afterwards the testatrix released 2000*l.* of the said debt to J S without having reserved any of the money: decreed, that this was no ademption of the legacy, pro tanto, but that the legatee or her representative was entitled to the whole 4000*l.* as much as if same had been paid in to the testatrix. Thomonde v. Suffolk, 1 P. W. 461. LEGACY, ADEMPMENT OF.

Real estate is, by will, charged with the payment of the legacies above mentioned, this will not extend to the legacies in the codicil; secus, if the land were charged with the payment of the legacies generally. Masters v. Masters, 1 P. W. 423. S. P. Amb. 556. CHARGE ON LAND.

One devises lands to his wife for life, and after her death to his son in fee, upon condition to pay his daughter 1000*l.* within a year after the death of J S, with a proviso, that if the money be not paid, the daughter may enter and receive the profits till payment: J S dies, living the wife; the daughter shall have the 1000*l.* during the life of the mother, and in default of payment, equity will decree a sale of the reversion. Bacon v. Clerk, 1 P. W. 478. Pre. Ch. 500. LEGACY, WHEN PAYABLE.

One devises his lands for payment of his debts; bonds, and simple contract debts shall be paid equally; but if he only charges his lands with the payment of his debts, so that the lands descend subject to the debts, the bonds shall be preferred before the simple contract debts; but if the heir sell the land before the action brought, then both to be paid equally. Freemoult v. Dedire, 1 P. W. 430, 431. ADMON. OF ASSETS; TRUST TO PAY DEBTS.

A had issue three sons; B, his eldest, who died in his lifetime, leaving a daughter, and C & D: A devises lands to his wife for life, and after her death to D and his heirs; provided, that if C do, within three months after the death of the wife, pay to D the sum of 500*l.*, then the land to remain to C and his heirs; C died in the lifetime of the wife; the heir of C shall take advantage of this condition, and not the right heirs of the testator. Marks v. Marks, Pre. Ch. 486. CONDITION, WHO MAY PERFORM.

On construction of a devise: held, that the words heirs male of the body of his great-grandfather are good words of purchase to pass the estate to him who is heir male, though not heir general. Brown v. Barkham, 1 Stra. 35. ESTATE BY PURCHASE.

A, by his will, ordered all his personal estate to be sold for the payment of his debts and legacies; and in case it should prove insufficient, he devised his real estate to his executors, for the purpose of making good the deficiency. He then devised his real estate, after such time as his debts and legacies should be paid by the rents and profits thereof, to E for life; and in case E should have any issue male, then to such issue male and his heirs for ever. And after the decease of E, in case he left no issue male, then after such time as the testator's debts and legacies were fully paid, he devised part of his said real estate to J in fee, and the residue to N in fee. E entered into possession, and kept down the interest of the debts; but afterwards suffered a common recovery of the whole estate, and declared the uses thereof to himself in fee: held, that an estate for life was vested in E at the time of the recovery, notwithstanding the debts were not paid, and that he could make a good tenant to the præcipe: held also, that the remainders limited to J & N were contingent remainders, and well barred by this recovery. Barnardiston v. Carter, 3 Bro. P. C. 64. S. C. 1 P. W. 509. RECOVERY; TENANT FOR LIFE.

A, seised in fee, devises to B, his executors &c. for ninety-nine years, in trust for himself and his wife for their lives, and the life of the survivor, and after the death of the survivor in trust, for the heirs of their two bodies, and in default of such issue, then in trust for the heirs of the body of the husband, and in default of such issue, in trust for the heirs of the survivor of the husband and wife; husband and wife have issue a son, and the husband dies, and then the son dies in the lifetime of the mother without issue; the mother administers to her husband and son, and assigns the term to the defendant: decreed, her assignee well entitled, and that the term should not go to the heir of the husband as attendant on the reversion. Hayter v. Rod, 1 P. W. 360. ASSIGNMENT OF TERM.

A man makes his will in the following manner. As to the disposal of my worldly estate, I give and devise, &c.: and then gives his lands to his eldest son in tail, remainder to his three other sons in tail, and devises copper mines and other estates to his eldest son, to be sold for payment of his debts, and gives his daughter 1500*l.*; there being personal estate sufficient to pay this legacy, whether real estate by the words of this will shall be charged therewith? Peulet v. Parry, Prec. Chan. 449. CHARGE ON LANDS.

Devise of lands to A, and the heirs male of his body. A dies in the life of the testator leaving issue. The devise is void, and the issue cannot take. Hutton

v. Simpson, 2 Vern. 722. Pre. Ch. 439. Gilb. Eq. Rep. 115. 120. DEVISE LAPSED.

A, devises lands in trust, to convey to B for life, remainder to his first &c. sons, for their lives successively, and so to their issue male for their lives, remainder over. Though this be a vain attempt of a perpetuity, yet the trustees shall make a strict settlement as may be, making all the persons in being but tenants for life; but the limitation to the son unborn must be in tail. Humberston v. Humberston, 2 Vern. 738. Pre. Ch. 455. Gilb. Eq. Rep. 128. S. C. 1 P. W. 332. SETTLEMENT; PERPETUITY.

If a man, by will, impowers his wife to dispose of his personal estate with the consent of the trustees, the wife, without such consent, cannot by her will devise it, and therefore, the husband as to that part, is dead intestate. Sympton v. Hornby, Prec. Chan. 1452. POWER, EXECUTION OF.

One devises 1200*l.* to A, B, C, and D, the four children of J, to be divided amongst them according to the discretion of J, whom he makes executor, and wills that he shall not be compelled to pay any of the legacies within a year after the testator's death. A dies before the testator. B dies within six months after the testator; and before any allotment or distribution, J pays to C 900*l.* and takes a receipt from C in full of his share of the 1200*l.*, and by will gives 400*l.* to D in full of his share. Held, first, that A dying in the life of the testatrix, a fourth part of the 1200*l.* was not a lapsed legacy; secondly, the administrator of B was not entitled to any part of the 1200*l.*; thirdly, C having received 900*l.* and given a receipt in full of his share, his representative could claim no part of the 1200*l.*; fourthly, the father ought to pay interest for the 1200*l.* from a year after the testator's death. Bird v. Lockey, 2 Vern. 743. INTEREST VESTED.

A, by will, devises particular estate to B, his second son, on condition that if by death of C, his first son, B should come into possession of C's estate, then B should relinquish the devised estate to D. C dies. B becomes entitled to C's estate, but it is much incumbered. Held, that incumbrances must be satisfied. Newburgh v. Newburgh, 2 Bro. P. C. 247. PAYING OFF INCUMBRANCES.

A devises 500*l.* a piece to his three daughters, at their ages of twenty-one or marriage, to be paid out of his stock, and devises the rents of his real estate to his wife for life in lieu of dower, and for the maintenance of his children, and towards making up their portions; and after his debts and legacies paid, devises the lands to his son, who together with his wife he made executors. The stock was but of 100*l.* value; the wife being dead and the two eldest daughters having had their portions paid them: Held, the lands were liable in the hands of the son to the youngest daughter's portions. Tompkins v. Tompkins, Prec. Chan. 397. S. C. Gilb. Eq. Rep. 90. CHARGE ON LANDS; PORTIONS.

A man devises his personal estate to the use of his relations without specifying any in particular; it shall be distributed according to the statute of distributions. Roach v. Hammond, Prec. Chan. 401. S. C. 1 P. W. 327. DISTRIBUTION.

One, by will, devises that his debts and legacies should be paid in the first place, and then devises his lands to his sister for life, remainder to her issue, remainder over, and made the sister executrix. Decreed, the lands to be charged with the debts. Trott v. Vernon, 2 Vern. 708. CHARGE ON REAL ESTATE.

One devises portions to his children, A, B, and C, and if any die before twenty-one or marriage, the portion of the child so dying to go to the survivor; one of the children dies in the lifetime of the testator. This is not a lapsed legacy, but shall go over to the surviving children. Perkins v. Micklethwaite, 1 P. W. 274. LEGACY LAPSED.

A debtor without taking notice of the debt, devises a sum as great or greater than the debt to his creditors. This shall be a satisfaction. Secus, if it were devised on a contingency, or if it were less than the debt. Talbot v. Shrewsbury, Prec. Chan. 394. S. C. Gilb. Eq. Rep. 89. DEBTS, SATISFACTION OF.

A clear implication is necessary to disinherit heir at law. Boutell v. Mohun, Prec. Chan. 381. HEIR AT LAW.

J devised a lease for lives (after payment of his debts) to his two grandchildren, H and W, but if either of them died without heirs of their own bodies, then the share of him so dying, should go to the testator's other grandchild. W died without issue; and on a bill filed by a mortgagee to foreclose, it was held, that H and C were entitled to redeem in equal moieties. Wastneys v. Chappell, 3 Bro. P. C. 50. MORTGAGE, REDEMPTION OF.

By a marriage settlement a term was limited to trustees for raising on failure of issue male, 3000*l.* for daughters' portions, payable at eighteen or marriage. The father and mother die leaving issue two daughters only, who at the death of the father (who survived the mother) were fifteen or sixteen years of age, and who had by the father's will 500*l.* a piece, devised to them, payable at the same time with their original portions, but the estate was devised to JS, one of the daughters being married and being of the age of twenty; held on her bill that she must have maintenance from the time of her father's death till the portion became due, and from thence interest at five per cent. till paid. Greenhill v. Waldoe, Prec. Chan. 367. S. C. Gilb. Eq. Rep. 31. MAINTENANCE; SETTLEMENT, C. OF.

A devises his real estate to his son charged with his debts and legacies, and devises 2500*l.* to his daughter at the age of twenty-one or marriage, provided that if she should marry in the lifetime of her mother, without her consenting in writing, then 500*l.* to cease and be applied towards payment of the debts. The daughter attains twenty-one and marries without her mother's consent, the whole portion shall be raised for it was vested in her at the time of the marriage. King v. Withers, Prec. Chan. 348. S. C. Gilb. Eq. Rep. 26. 3 P. W. 414. Ca. Temp. Talb. 117. 3 Bro. P. C. 131. INTEREST VESTED.

Legacy given upon a man's dying without issue, the man dies leaving issue, which issue within six months after died without issue, the legacy not due, it not being intended to rise upon any remoter contingency than the man's dying without issue living at his death. Nichols v. Hooper, 1 P. W. 198. 2 Vern. 686. LEGACY LAPSED.

A devised to his wife a rent-charge of 200*l.* for thirteen years, in trust nevertheless, for the payment of his debts and legacies; he also devised to her certain lands in augmenting of her jointure. The surplus of this rent-charge, after debts and legacies paid, is not a beneficial trust for the wife, but a resulting trust for the heir. Wych v. Packington, 3 Bro. P. C. 44. RESIDUE; RESULTING TRUST.

A devised a term for years to his wife for life, and after her death to the child she was then enceint with, but if such child died before twenty-one, then he devised one-third part of the said term to his wife, whom he made executrix. The wife not being enceint at the time of the devise, held 1st, That the devise to her was good, though the contingency never happened. 2ndly, That she have the undisposed surplus of the personal estate, and to go in a course of administration. Jones v. Westcomb, Prec. Chau. 316.

A legacy devised to J, when of the age of sixteen, and interest in the meantime; J dies before sixteen. The legacy vested and shall go to the executor of J. Stapleton v. Cheale, 2 Vern. 673. Prec. Chan. 317. S. C. INTEREST VESTED.

A devises a lease for twenty years, to wife for life, remainder to his son, she paying 10*l.* per annum to his son during her life; the son dies in the lifetime of his mother, the rent continues during the life of the wife, and shall go to the executor of the son, and the wife is compellable to pay her proportion for a renewal of the lease. Lock v. Lock, 2 Vern. 666. INTEREST VESTED.

Devise of 50*l.* per annum to the wife of A during the life of B, for her separate use. The wife of A dies, the 50*l.* per annum shall be paid to the executor of the wife of A during the life of B. Rawlinson v. Montague, 2 Vern. 667. INTEREST VESTED.

A devised his estate to trustees, in trust for H, and E his wife for their lives, and the life of the long liver of them; remainder to the first son of E for ninety-nine years, if he should so long live; remainder to the heirs male of the body of such first son, remainder to all and every the sons of the said E for ninety-nine years, if every such son respectively should so long live, remainder to the heirs male of every of them, to take, not jointly, but successively one after the other, according to the births of each of them, the sons to take the term of ninety-nine years, with immediate remainder to his said heirs male. On a bill brought for a conveyance of this estate, according to the testator's will, it was decreed, that in such conveyance where any part of the estate was limited in use to the plaintiff for ninety-nine years, if he should so long live, there should be a limitation over to trustees and their heirs during his life, to preserve the contingent uses in remainder, and then to the first and other sons of the plaintiff successively. El. Stamford v. Hobart, 3 Bro. P. C. 21. CONVEYANCE.

Who take under words "poor relations." Anon. 2 Eq. Ab. 191. DISTRIBUTION.

Legacy of 1000*l.* which devisor had on mortgage on college lease, to be paid when devise came of age, held first that it was vested, but secondly, it should not carry interest from testator's death, and thirdly, that it was a specific legacy and chargeable only on mortgage. Chambers v. Jeffery, 2 Eq. Ab. 541. INTEREST VESTED; INTEREST, WHEN PAYABLE; LEGACY SPECIFIC.

B made his wife executrix, and devised to her the use of his table-plate for life, and after to C his grandson, but made no disposition of the surplus of his personal estate. Parol evidence was admitted, that the testator intended his wife should have the surplus to her own use; it being only to rebut the construction of a court of equity, which would create a resulting trust, and make the executrix a mere trustee for the next of kin. De. Beaufort v. Ly. Granville, 3 Bro. P. C. 37. RESIDUE.

Lands devised in fee in trust to raise 300*l.* as portion to be paid at twenty-one or marriage, lapses by death of legatee before those times. Langley v. Oates, 2 Eq. Ab. 541. LEGACY LAPSED.

Legacies of 100*l.* each to three children at twenty-one or marriage, and if any should die before that, his legacy to survive to others. One died before testator, held his legacy survived. Hucksman v. Stroud, 2 Eq. Ab. 541. LEGACIES LAPSED OR SURVIVED.

Lands are devised to three persons and their heirs, to the use of them and their heirs, upon the trusts after mentioned, and then the testator directs them to convey part to A for life, and other part to B in tail, but gives no direction as to the remainder in fee. Though two of the trustees were related to the testator, yet the remainder in fee will not belong to them, but be a resulting trust for the testator's heir. Hobart v. Co. Suffolk, 2 Vern. 644. RESULTING TRUST; HEIR AT LAW.

Real estate made liable to a legacy, the personal estate proving deficient, and it being the testator's intention that it should be raised at all events. Jones v. Selby, Prec. Chan. 288. CHARGE ON REAL ESTATE.

Legacies are given to A, B, and C, to be paid at their respective marriages, and if any of them die, their legacies to go to the survivors. One of them dies unmarried; the survivors shall not receive her legacy before their respective marriages. Moore v. Godfrey, 2 Vern. 620. LEGACIES, WHEN PAYABLE.

A devises lands to B, his son and his heirs, and declares that out of the lands, he shall pay 200*l.* to his daughter at her age of twenty-one. She marries and dies under age. Legacy not vested. Garter v. Bletsoe, 2 Vern. 617. Pre. Ch. 267. S. C. Gilb. Eq. Rep. 11. INTEREST, VESTED.

J devised 3000*l.* a-piece to his three daughters, A, B, and C, at twenty-one, or marriage. If any died before, to go to the survivors: B died in the life of the testator; her legacy shall go to the surviving daughters. Ledsome v. Hickman, 2 Vern. 611, LAPSSED LEGACY.

Where a time is annexed to legacy, and not to the payment, and legatee dies before that time, it is lapsed. Snell v. Dee, 2 Salk. 415. LEGACY LAPSED.

J S, being entitled to a debt of 20,000*l.* due from the crown, devised the same to six of his relations, equally to be divided between them, share and share alike; and if either of them die, to the survivor or survivors of them. All the legatees survived the testator, but before the debt was recovered, one of them died: held that the legatees were joint tenants, and that the representative of the legatee dying, was not entitled to any part of this legacy. El. Bindon v. El. Suffolk, 4 Bro. P. C. 574. JOINT TENANCY.

One devises in these words: "As to my temporal estate wherewith God hath blessed me, I give and dispose thereof as followeth: first, I will that all my debts be justly paid, which I shall at my death owe or stand indebted in, to any person or persons, whatsoever; also I devise all my estate in G, to A B," and this was all the real estate the testator had: held per Lord Keeper, this will creates a charge on the real estate for the payment of debts. Boulter v. Smith, Prec. Chan. 264. CHARGE ON REAL ESTATE.

A devise of two farms to the father and mother, for their lives, remainder to trustees till A and B, respectively came of age, and then to convey one farm to A, and the other to B. A died before the time came for the conveyance; A being to have had an estate in fee, the conveyance shall be made to his heir. Hick v. Taylor, 2 Vern. 561.

A, by will, gives his granddaughter 200*l.* on condition she continue with his executors till she was twenty-one, but if she was taken from them by the father, who was a papist, before twenty-one, or married against the consent of his executors, then he gave her but 10*l.*; the daughter was placed by the executors with a clergyman, who, before she was twenty-one, with consent of one of the executors, permitted her to make a visit to her father, and he took that opportunity to marry her to a papist; decreed she should only have the 10*l.* Creugh v. Wilson, 2 Vern. 572. LEGACY CONDITIONAL.

A, by will, devises his lands to trustees to sell, and to dispose of the money as he by writing should appoint, and for want of appointment to his four nephews; A, by writing, appoints his trustees to pay several sums to several persons, but not near the value of lands: decreed the surplus to the heir, and not to the nephews, as an interest resulting, and not disposed of. City of London v. Garraway, 2 Vern. 571. HEIR AT LAW; RESULTING TRUST; LANDS DEVISED TO BE SOLD; POWER.

A is entitled to 8000*l.* in the chamber of London, and whilst a stop was put to payment there, he made his will, and declares that when the executors should receive the 8000*l.* he gives 2000*l.* to three hospitals, afterwards an act passed for settling a fund for paying a particular interest for the orphan's debt, and the 8000*l.* is then worth, to be sold, but 6300*l.*, yet decreed the whole 2000*l.* to be paid. Colwall v. Bonython, 2 Vern. 547. LEGACY SPEC.; LEGACY, ABATEMENT OF.

A disinherits his son, and by will gives the greatest part of his estate to B, and tells B, if his son behaved well, he might pay him 20*l.* a quarter, and if he used that well, he might make it up 40*l.* a quarter: decreed 40*l.* a quarter to the son. Kingsman v. Kingsman, 2 Vern. 659. TRUST.

A man having mortgages, one of which was a mortgage in fee of lands in D, on which he had entered, devises those lands to his two daughters and their heirs, and the other mortgages to them, their executors, &c. One of the daughters dies, her share of the land in D shall go to her heir, and not to her administrator. Noyes v. Mordant, 2 Vern. 582. And see Forrester v. Cotten, Amb. 388. S. C. 1 Eden, 532. But see 1 Swan, 408. in note. ADMON. OF ASSETS; INTEREST, VESTED.

A, living in Antigua, and having a plantation there, devises 50,000 lb. weight of sugar to the children of B, to be paid by his executors in ten years after his death. The executors not delivering the sugars within the time, on a bill brought by one of the children; decreed the value of the plaintiff's legacy to be computed according to the medium rate of sugars in Antigua, at the end of ten years, and paid with interest from the time it became due. Symes v. Vernon, 2 Vern. 653. LEGACIES, HOW COMPUTED.

A devises 4000*l.* to his son, to be paid at his age of twenty-five, and interest in the meantime, and he to have a maintenance thereout, and directs the 4000*l.* to be raised out of a trust estate: the son dies under twenty-five. This is a vested legacy, and shall go to his executors. Cuce v. Cuce, 2 Vern. 508. INTEREST, VESTED.

A by will, computing the surplus of his personal estate after debts and legacies paid, would amount to 5,800*l.*, gives the 5,800*l.* to some of his grandchildren in several proportions; and wills if the surplus fell short they should abate in proportion; if it amounted to more, it should be divided between them in the same proportions. Decreed, that a mortgage on an estate devised to two of her grandchildren should be paid out of the personal estate, although by this means the personal estate would fall short of the 5,800*l.* Hawes v. Warner, 2 Vern. 477. 3 Ch. Rep. 206. S. C. ADMON. OF ASSETS; PAYING OFF INCUMBRANCES.

Legacies are given by a will to four grandchildren, upon condition that as they came of age they should release all claims to the testator's estate. This condition must be taken distributively, and such only as refused to release shall forfeit their legacies. Id. 478. LEGACIES, CONDITIONAL.

A, by will gives portions to his daughters, but mentions no time when to be paid, but adds a proviso, that his daughters should marry with consent of his wife, and if any married without such consent, her portion to go over. On a bill brought by the daughters for their portions, the court decreed the portions to be paid, but on security to refund if the condition should be broken. Aston v. Aston, 2 Vern. 452. 1 Ch. Rep. 164. Prec. Ch. 226. S. C. PORTIONS, WHEN PAYABLE; CONDITION SUBSEQUENT; SECURITY.

A, by will, devised a chattel estate to his executor, that out of the profits his daughter should receive the interest of 2000*l.*, and that the principal should be raised out of the surplus profits. The executor mortgages this estate for 1800*l.*: Held, that the 2000*l.* and interest should be first raised. Savage v. Humble, 3 Bro. P. C. 5. ADMON. OF ASSETS.

Devises of lands to A, charged with a portion of 600*l.*; part of the lands are entailed by an ancient deed: Held, that the entailed lands are not liable to this portion. Ferrind v. Jackson, 3 Bro. P. C. 2. ESTATE IN TAIL; CHARGE ON LANDS.

A directs 1000*l.* to be laid out in the purchase of lands, that the rents and profits thereof might come to his nephew W for his life: but the testator made no disposition of these lands after the death of W. Held, that the lands belonged to the testator's heir at law. Fletcher v. Chapman, 3 Bro. P. C. 1. REVERSION; HEIR AT LAW.

A makes two of his daughters his executrices, and directs them to distribute a sum of 400*l.*, and also the residue of his personal estate among themselves and their brothers and sisters, according to their needs and necessities, as they in their discretion should think fit. The court restrained the exercise of this power, by decreeing a double share to the eldest son and heir, looking upon him as a necessitous person. Wurburton v. Wurburton, 4 Bro. P. C. 1. DOUBLE PORTION; DISCRETIONARY JURISDICTION.

A, by will, gives 500*l.* to his daughter, to be paid by his executors at her age of twenty-one, out of his personal estate, and rents of his real, and if not raised by that time, the executors to stand seised and take the rents till the 500*l.* was raised, and after payment gives the land to his son. The daughter marries at eighteen, and dies under twenty-one; the husband takes administration: Decreed, the portion to be raised, and that by a sale, though the land by reason of the incumbrances, would produce little more than the 500*l.* Jackson v. Farrand, 2 Vern. 424. Prec. Ch. 109. S. C. INTEREST, VESTED; PORTION, HOW RAISED.

Devise of lands to a man's wife who was entitled to dower, without saying in recompence or satisfaction of her dower: held to be a voluntary gift, and no bar of dower. Hitchin v. Hitchin, Prec. Chan. 133. DOWER, SATISFACTION OF.

Divers legacies given by a will, and the will is, that if any legatee died before his legacy was payable, it should go to his brothers and sisters; a legatee died in the testator's life-time, no lapsed legacy, but shall go to his sister. Darrel v. Molesworth, 2 Vern. 378. LEGACY, LAPSED.

One devises several parcels of land to his several children in tail, and if any of them die before twenty-one or unmarried, such child's part to go to the surviving children; if any of the children die unmarried, though above the age of twenty-one, his share shall go to the surviving child, but such survivor shall have such share for life only; what goes over on one child's death, shall not go over again a second time. Woodworth v. Glashbrook, 2 Vern. 388.

A, having entailed his land on his son, subject to a mortgage by will, devises his leasehold and personal estate to pay his debts and legacies, and directs, if his personal estate is applied to pay the mortgage, it should be kept on foot to make good his daughter's portion, and gives her 3000*l.* to be paid at twenty-one or marriage, if married with consent, if not, but 1000*l.*, she died at six years of age; the portion shall not be raised for the benefit of her administrators. Yates v. Philpott, 2 Vern. 416. Prec. Ch. 140. S. C. PORTION, LAPSE OF.

Devise of a legacy to a daughter, but if she marry without her mother's consent, then 500*l.* of the daughter's legacy to go to the son. The daughter marries without the mother's consent; the son shall have the 500*l.* Strutton v. Grymes, 2 Vern. 357. CONDON., BREACH OF?

Devise of express legacies to the executors and also to the next of kin, and no disposition of the surplus: how the surplus shall go. Bayley v. Powell, 2 Vern. 361. S. C. GIBB. EQ. REP. 225. Prec. Ch. 92. S. C. SURPLUS; DISTRIBUTION.

One devises lands to his son by his second wife, in tail male, remainder to his eldest son by his first wife, provided that if the land should come to his eldest son, that then he or his heirs should pay 1000*l.* to the testator's daughters within four months after the estate should come to them, and in default of payment, the trustees to enter and raise the money. The son by the first wife dies, leaving a son. The son by the second wife suffers a recovery of a moiety of the lands, and dies without issue; so that the moiety only of the premises comes to the son of the son by the first wife; though no part of the premises ever came to the eldest son, yet the moiety of the lands shall be liable to the payment of the whole 1000*l.* without any apportionment. Hooley v. Booth, 2 Vern. 359. CHARGE ON LAND; APPORTIONMENT.

A devises household goods to his wife for life, and afterwards to his son; the court allowed this a good devise over, and to be the same as if the devise had been only of the use of the goods to the wife for life. Hyde v. Parrat, 1 P. W. 1. S. C. 2 Vern. 331. LIMITATION OF PERSONALS.

A, devised his lands after debts paid, and then says, My debts are only those contained in the schedule. A, afterwards contracted new debts; the payment of the first debts is all that is required by the will. Lodding v. Kims, 3 Lec. 433. CHARGE TO PAY DEBTS.

One devises 3000*l.* to his daughter at twenty-one or marriage, provided she marry with the consent of A B, and if she married without such consent, then she was to have but 500*l.*, and the 3000*l.* legacy to cease. The daughter marries without consent; yet she shall have her whole 3000*l.* because it is not devised over, but only to fall into the surplus. Gurrel v. Pritty, 2 Vern. 293. CONDITION, BREACH OF.

One, on the marriage of his daughter; gives a bond to the husband for the daughter's portion, and afterwards by will, devises land of much greater value to the husband and the wife, and their heirs. The devise no satisfaction of the bond, though there be a defect of assets to pay the testator's debts. Goodfellow v. Burchett, 2 Vern. 298. BOND, SATISFACTION OF.

Legacy of 300*l.* to be paid to A, at his age of twenty-three; if he die before, to go over to B; A dies before twenty-three. B shall have it presently. Papworth v. Moore, 2 Vern. 283. LEGACY, WHEN PAYABLE.

One settles a house on his daughter for life, with remainders over, and then by will, devises the goods and furniture of the house to such persons as were to have the house after his death. By the settlement, the goods and furniture shall go according to the devise, and shall not be under the power of the first taker to dispose of, nor subject to her or her husband's debt. Offley v. Offley, Prec. Chan. 26. LIMIT, OF PERSONALS.

A devise to trustees for payment of debts and legacies, and the trustees are made executors; the estate falls short; the debts must be paid first, because the trustees being made executors, the money is legal assets. Greaves v. Powell, 2 Vern. 248. Semble, S. C. id. 405. ASSETS; ADMON. OF ASSETS.

Devise of lands to A for life, remainder to such child or children as should be living at his death, and to their heirs; A paying 40*l.* to B. This is a charge not only on A's estate for life, but also on the remainder. Sadd v. Carter, Prec. Chan. 27. CHARGE ON LANDS.

Devise of lands to his cousin A and his heirs, in trust to be sold for payment of his debts and legacies, and makes A executor, the surplus after debts and legacies no resulting trust for the heir, as it would have been in a like case on a conveyance executed. Contingham v. Mellish, Prec. Chan. 31. S. C. 2 Vern. 246. HEIR AT LAW; TRUST, RESULTING.

One by will, having two daughters, gives 20,000*l.* to each, payable at twenty-five or marriage, so as such marriage be with the consent of the mother and the trustees, and after the age of sixteen; if either of the daughters marry before sixteen, or without the consent, such daughters to have only 10,000*l.* portion. Testator afterwards treats with the plaintiff for a marriage with his eldest daughter, and he dying before the marriage had, she afterwards marries the plaintiff with consent of her mother and the trustees, but before the age of sixteen, yet she shall have the whole 20,000*l.* Salisbury v. Bennet, 2 Vern. 223. 3 Ch. Ca. 135. cited. CONDITION, BREACH OF.

J S, by will, devises his lands to his brother, who was the heir at law, in fee; gives legacies, and makes his brother executor, desiring him to see his will performed. The real estate is charged with the legacies. Alcock v. Sparhawk, 2 Vern. 228. CHARGE ON REAL ESTATE.

One charges his lands with 6000*l.* for the child of which his wife was enfeint, if it proved a daughter, with a clause of entry for non-payment. A daughter is born and dies. The 6000*l.* shall go to her administrator. Norfolk v. Gifford, 2 Vern. 208. Lapsed PORTION.

A, by will, devises his land to B in fee, paying 400*l.*, whereof 200*l.* to be at the disposal of his wife by her will, to whom she should think fit. The wife dies intestate, her administrator shall have this 200*l.*, the property thereof being absolutely vested in the wife. Robinson v. Dugate, 2 Vern. 181. INTEREST, VESTED.

Real estate decreed to be charged with an annuity given by the will; though no express words to charge the land, the executor being devisee of the land. Eliot v. Hancock, 2 Vern. 143. CHARGE ON REAL ESTATE.

A devises lands to B in tail, remainder to C; and gives his executor power to raise out of his estate 500*l.* for his next heir, and desires him to see his debts paid. This gives the executor a power to sell the lands to pay his debts. Wareham v. Brown, 2 Vern. 154. POWER OF SALE.

A, by will, devised to B 400*l.* in full satisfaction of all the monies which he owed B, and subjects his real estate to the payment of his debts. The debt which A owed B was in all 800*l.*, but was barred by the statute of limitations. Court will suppose the testator mistaken in his computation, and the whole debt of 800*l.* shall be paid. Gifton v. Mill, 2 Vern. 141. S. C. Prec. Chan. 9. DEBT, SATISFACTION OF.

One mortgages his lands, and by will appoints them to be sold for payment of the mortgage money; and afterwards, in another part of his will, devises a moiety of the mortgaged premises to A B. The personal estate shall be applied to pay off the mortgage in favour of devisee. Johnson v. Milksepp, 2 Vern. 112. PAYING OFF INCUMBRANCES.

One makes his nephew executor, and devises to him and his heirs all his lands, in trust to sell and to pay all his debts and his children's portions, and gave to his children 100*l.* a piece. The money arising by this sale is not legal assets, and the debts and children's portions are to be paid in equal proportions. Anon. 2 Vern. 133. ASSETS.

An estate by implication cannot be against the plain intent of the party expressed in his will. Smith v. Clever, 2 Vern. 60. TITLE BY IMPLICATION.

A devises lands in trust to pay one-third of the rents to his wife in satisfaction of dower, until his son, then two years old, attains twenty-one. The wife receives a third of the rent from the trustees, and dies; and afterwards the son dies during his infancy. The administrator of the wife shall have her third of the rents till such time as the son might have attained twenty-one. Cootes v. Needham, 2 Vern. 65.

One devises 100*l.* to his daughter for her portion, charged upon a real estate, and payable at twenty-one. Daughter dies before twenty-one. The portion shall sink in the land; otherwise if no time had been limited for the payment of the portion, for in that case it goes to the executor of the daughter. No difference where the portion is secured by a settlement or a will, if severed out of a real estate, and the party dies before it is payable. In either case it sinks into the lands. Smith v. Smith, 2 Vern. 92. PORTION, LAPSE OF, &c.

Devise of a portion to a child with interest, but not to be paid to the child till twenty-one. Child dies under twenty-one. Portion shall go to the administrator of the child. Collins v. Metcalfe, 1 Vern. 462. INTEREST, VESTED.

A devises to B rent out of a lease for years, determinable on lives, to be paid half-yearly if the cestui que vie lived so long. B dies during their lifetime. Decreed, the rent was not determined, but should be paid to the executors of B during the term. Gifford v. Goldsey, 2 Vern. 35.

"I will all my debts shall be paid before any of my legacies or gifts hereinafter mentioned." Then the testator gave several pecuniary legacies, and after devised lands to A on condition to pay 5*l.* per annum to D. Per cur. Testator's lands are not subjected to the payment of his debts. The general clause at the beginning of the will shall be intended only of the personal estate, and the pecuniary legacies thereout devised. Eyles v. Cary, 1 Vern. 457. CHARGE ON REAL ESTATE.

One devises his land for payment of his just debts; testator, while a student at Cambridge, had been, by surprise, prevailed upon to give a covenant for payment of a portion to his sister, but afterwards the testator all along contested this debt, yet decreed this to be a debt, to be paid within the general provision. Hollis v. Carr, 1 Vern. 431. CHARGE TO PAY DEBTS.

Debts arising by a misfeasance, as for an escape or breach of trust, or contracted multi fide, not within a general provision for payment of debts. Id. ib.

One devises all his lands to A and the heirs of his body, remainder over, and in another part of the will, devises to A all his personal estate, and makes him executor, willing him to pay his debts. This is a charge upon the lands, as well as on the personal estate to pay the debts. Clovesley v. Pelham, 2 Vern. 411. CHARGE ON LANDS.

A directs his lands shall descend to his three daughters in such shares and proportions as his wife, by deed, shall appoint. She makes a very unequal distribution. Whether equity will relieve against it. Wall v. Thurborne, 1 Vern. 355. POWER, ILLUSORY APPOINTMENT.

Devise of a personal estate to a trustee in trust for testator's only son, and the heirs of his body, and if his son die during his minority, and without issue, then to A, and makes his son executor, and B executor in trust for his son during the son's minority. The son lives to eighteen, and then dies without issue; the personal estate shall go to the executor of the son, and not to A. Whitmore v. Weld, 1 Vern. 326. 2 Ch. Rep. 383. 2 Ch. Ca. 167. S. C. ADMON. OF ASSETS.

A, on his marriage, settled a rent-charge on his wife for her jointure, and afterwards devises to the wife part of the land charged with the rent-charge. Bill is that the rent-charge might be apportioned. Bill dismissed. Knight v. Calthorpe, 1 Vern. 347. RENT-CHARGE, APPORTIONMENT OF; SETTLEMENT. C. OF.

Devise of lands to trustees in fee, is trust to pay debts and legacies, and after these paid, then to sell, and if any of the testator's name would buy it, such person to have it for 200*l.* less than the value: One of the testator's name brings a bill for this pre-emption, but delays bringing it until twenty-five years after testator's death. Bill dismissed. Huckstep v. Matthews, 1 Vern. 362. LENGTH OF TIME; PRE-EMPTION.

Black acre is devised to J, with a proviso that if he be evicted, he shall have White acre. J is evicted of a moiety of Black acre; he shall only have a satisfaction pro tanto out of White acre. Tyte v. Tyte, 1 Vern. 270.

Lands devised to be sold for payment of portions; one of the children dies after the portion becomes due, and before the land sold; the administrator is entitled to the money. Bartholomew v. Meredith, 1 Vern. 276. INTEREST, VESTED.

A devise to a man and the heirs of his body, and if he shall go about to alien, his estate shall cease, and the lands go over to a charity; the devise over is void, it tending to create a perpetuity. Comp. of Penitents v. Gov. of Christ's Hosp., 1 Vern. 161. LIMIT. OVER VOID; PERPETUITY.

Where mortgagee devises mortgage to A for life, remainder in fee to B, and mortgage is redeemed. Tenant for life takes one-third, and remainder man two-thirds of mortgage money. Brent v. Best, 1 Vern. 70. MORTGAGE.

Where land is devised to pay debts and legacies out of rents and profits, the land may be sold; otherwise, if out of annual rents and profits; but if such trust is by deed, the land cannot be sold in either case. Anon. 1 Vern. 104. SALE WHERE DIRECTED.

Devise of 400*l.* to be laid out in finishing a house; testator lives to lay out as much himself, but leaves the house unfinished; the 400*l.* shall not be laid out. Husband v. Husband, 1 Vern. 95. 2 Ch. Ca. 127. S. C. LEGACY, ADEMP. OF.

"My debts and legacies being first deducted, I devise all my estate, real and personal, to J." This amounts to a devise to sell for payment of debts. Newman v. Johnson, 1 Vern. 45. DEVISE TO PAY DEBTS.

A freeman of London settles a jointure on marriage in lieu of his wife's customary share of his personal estate, and then by will gives two-thirds of his personal estate to his daughters, and one third to his sons, and decreed according. Love v. —, 1 Vern. 6. CUSTOM OF LONDON.

Goods devised to A for life, and after the death of A to the heir of B. B dies in the life of A. Decreed the goods should go to him that was heir of B at his death, and not to him who was his heir at the death of A. Davers v. Clarendon, 1 Vern. 35. INTEREST VESTED.

Legacies were given to infants, to be paid at twenty-one. They shall have maintenance during their minorities. Rennesey v. Parrot, 1 Ch. Ca. 60. INFANT MAINTENANCE.

Where a man vests his estate in trustees for performance of his will, and for payment of debts and legacies, and then makes his will, directing the trustees to pay several legacies, and the surplus to his heir, and makes his wife executrix, but does not expressly give the personal estate to her, the personal estate, in this case, shall be applied in ease of the real. Grey v. Grey, 1 Ch. Ca. 296. EXONERATION OF REAL ESTATE.

Legacy to a child, at twenty-one. It shall have interest in meantime, especially where no maintenance is provided for it. 2 Vent. 346. INFANT MAINTENANCE.

If a man devises his lands to S, and desires that the said S should pay his debts, or if it be, the said S paying his debts, or if, immediately after the devise of his lands, he appoints or desires that his debts should be paid, or if he use any expression in his will whereby it appears that he had any intent to charge his lands with his debts, in such case his land will stand charged; but in the case at bar, where the testator had, in the beginning of his will, said, that he desired that all his just debts should be paid, and afterwards, in the said will, he gave several legacies and devised lands; it was held, that his devisee was not charged with the payment of the debts. Augu. 2 Freem. 192. CHARGE ON REAL ESTATE.

3. What Estate is given.

- (a) Generally.
- (b) Fee Simple.
- (c) Estate Tail.
- (d) For Life.
- (e) Joint Tenancy.
- (f) Tenancy in Common.

(a) Generally.

Devise, subject, as to part, to a devise to trustees and their heirs for debts in aid of the personal estate, and, as to part, to mortgages in fee, to sons and a daughter, and their respective issue male, in strict settlement, &c., with power to the sons respectively, when in possession, to convey or appoint all or any part to trustees on trust, by the rents and profits to raise a rent charge, as and for a jointure for any wife or wives, for each such wife's natural life only, and also to charge portions by deed and to lease for twenty-one years. Execution of the power, by conveyance to trustees and their heirs on trust, by the rents and profits to raise and pay a jointure during the wife's natural life only, and charging portions, with covenant for title, and for quiet enjoyment by the trustees during the natural life only of the wife. As to the estate of the trustees at law, quare? the court of K. B. certifying that they took an estate in fee, and the court of C. P. that they took no estate whatsoever. Wykham v. Wykham, 18 Ves. 395. POWER.

A money legacy to two, not executors, jointly and between them, is not a joint tenancy, but is a tenancy in common, the words meaning the same as "to be equally divided between them." Perkins v. Baynton, 1 Bro. C. C. 118. TENANCY IN COMMON; JOINT TENANCY.

A man, having daughters by his first marriage, died, leaving his second wife en ventre, having first devised part of a trust estate to his wife for life; and if the child en ventre proved a daughter, then the trustees to convey to his daughter, and to pay them the profits in the mean time. The child proved a daughter. What estate shall the wife take by the devise? Ball v. Smith, 2 Vern. 633.

A devise to A for life, and after his decease, to the heirs male of the body of A, and the heirs male of the body of every such heir male, severally and successively, as they should be in priority of birth, &c., remainder over. Whether this be a tenancy in tail, or for life only? Legate v. Sewell, 1 P. W. 87. 2 Vern. 551. ESTATE TAIL; ESTATE FOR LIFE.

(b) Fee Simple.

Testator gave to his heir one shilling, and devised to W all his lands, and in the next sentence, gave to him all his goods, chattels, personal and testamentary estate. Held, that the fee simple of the lands passed to W. Bradford v. Belfield, 2 Sim. 265.

A testator, after giving his wife an annuity for her life to be issuing out of "all his real estate, lands, and hereditaments in P" devised "the said estate, lands, and hereditaments" to his daughter and her heirs; but in case his daughter died under twenty-one and without issue, he devised "the said estate, lands, and hereditaments" to his wife for her life, and after his decease to the children of A, share and share alike. Held, that subject to the previous interests given to the daughter, and to the wife, the children of A living at the testator's death, took an estate in fee in the lands in P. Wilkinson v. Chapman, 3 Russ. 145.

Gift of a mortgage security for money will pass the fee, if the estate be mortgaged in fee. Renvoize v. Cooper, 6 Mad. 371.

Devise to testator's wife, she paying his debts, and 15*l.* to A B if so much can be shared, and rest of the estate to go to A B after her death, gives her the fee and power of sale. Dolton v. Hewen, 6 Mad. 9. POWER OF SALE.

Devise to the testator's wife, and after her decease to the heirs of her body, share and share alike; and in default of issue to be lawfully begotten by him, to be at her own disposal. A dies, and leaves six children by his said wife: Held, that the wife took an estate for life only, and that each of the six children took a fee-simple in remainder, expectant on the determination of the mother's life estate in one sixth part, as tenant in common. Gretton v. Haward, 1 Mer. 448. ESTATE FOR LIFE.

General disposition of all the testator's estates, real or personal, to his wife and two children, to be equally divided among them, subject to annuities; on death to devolve to his children equally; the portion of the wife, upon her death, to his children equally; upon their death before her, their portion to her during life, with a limitation over; upon the death of all without issue of the children, whether an estate for life or absolute to the wife; quare? Chalmers v. Sturt, 2 V. & B. 222.

Testator devised real estate to A in tail male, remainder over, and gave a sum of money in trust to be laid out in land to be settled to the same uses; by codicil he devised the same real estate to B and his heirs, and gave every thing that he had given by his will to A, in as ample a manner to B; B is tenant in fee of the real estate, and is entitled to have the money paid to him. Younge v. Combe, 4 Ves. 101.

Construction of a will and several very inaccurate codicils upon a disposition on the personal estate; as to the interest, whether absolute or for life; as to the extent, whether general or specific and exempt from debts. Cave v. Bissett, 3 Ves. 155.

Whether the word "hereditament" alone will carry a fee; quare? Denn v. Moore, 3 Aust. 781. ESTATE FOR LIFE-SIMPLE.

Whether a devise of lands to A "after payment of my just debts and funeral expences," will carry the fee; quare? Id. ib.

A devise of all "my lands, tenements, and hereditaments to A," will carry the fee if that appears to be the general intent of the testator. Id. ib.

Devise to G for ever, that is, if he have a son or sons who shall attain twenty-one; but if G should chance to die without son or sons to inherit, my will is, that the son of my son W shall inherit. This is a fee-simple to G with an executory devise to the son of W. Heath v. Heath, 1 Bro. C. C. 147. EXECUTORY DEVISE.

Devise of all my estate at C H to A for life, remainder to B and C, is a devise in fee to B and C. Price v. Gibson, 2 Eden, 115.

Devise of all that "estate" testator bought of M, held to pass the fee; so held also as to another charge which was a devise of "the reversion" of that tenement his sister lived in after her death. Held, contra as to other devises, being, first, "all those houses he bought of T W, containing three dwellings with all their appurtenances;" and next as to a devise of "the tenement in the possession of M B presently after his death." Bailis v. Gale, 2 Ves. 48.

The words "I devise all my temporal estate" the same as "I devise all my worldly estate" pass a fee, and this the plainer, where it is afterwards said "all the rest of my real estate; the word rest being a term of relation." Turner v. Wise, 3 P. W. 295. Ca. temp. Talb. 284.

Devise to daughters to augment portions, construed a devise of fee-simple. Carpenter v. Chapman, 9 Mod. 92.

A devises all the rest and residue of his real and personal estate whatsoever. This will pass a fee. Murry v. Wyse, 2 Vern. 564.

A message was settled upon A for life, remainder to B in tail, remainder to A in fee. A devises all his right, title, and interest in this house to B who was his son, but without adding any words of inheritance. Held, that by this devise the fee passes. Cole v. Raulinson, 3 Bro. P. C. 7.

Devise of land to A, paying out of the rents or out of the land a certain sum, is no fee-simple, otherwise if the devise was paying a certain sum generally, without saying, out of the land. Hucker v. Buckland, 2 Vern. 106.

A, being seised of lands of 10*l.* per annum in possession, and 34*l.* per annum in reversion, gave certain legacies to be paid at certain different times, and then devised all his lands to his youngest son R, who did not pay the legacies within the time: Held, that a fee passed to R, because it appeared that the sums to be paid were more than the profit of the lands in possession would amount to in that time. Reake v. Ley, 1 Freem. 479. CONDON, BR. OF, RELIEF AGAINST.

(c) Estate Tail.

Devise to A, B, C, &c. share and share alike for their lives, remainder to their respective children for their lives, and so to be continued from issue to issue for life; but if any of them die leaving no issue, their shares to go to the survivors for their lives, and the issue of such of them as shall be dead, and for default of any issue, then over: held that A, B, C, &c. take estates tail with cross remainders. Mortimer v. West, 2 Sim. 274.

Devise to A for life, and to her heirs, the issue of her body for ever for their lives, and in case A has no son, then to her eldest daughter, followed by a proviso containing a devise over if A left no issue, or they should become extinct, creates an estate tail in A. Itcece v. Steel, 2 Sim. 233.

Devise of freehold and leasehold to A for life, and after his death to the heirs of his body, their heirs, executors, &c.: held this gives A an estate tail in the freehold and absolute interest in the leasehold. Kinch v. Ward, 2 S. & S. 409.

Devise in trust to permit A B to enjoy estate during his life, and after his decease, his first and other sons and daughters now living, successively for life, as they were in priority of birth, but the sons to be preferred in succession to the daughters, and the heirs of the body or bodies of such sons and daughters respectively issuing, and for default of such issue in trust to testator's own right heirs for ever: held on death of A B, his eldest son entitled to estate as tenant in tail, and not a mere life estate, and then to next child of A B in succession. Green v. Staples, 5 Mad. 85.

Devise to A, and after his death to his first and other sons, and default of male issue, then unto his eldest and other daughters, and to their heirs male for ever. An estate in tail male in A. Wight v. Leigh, 15 Yes. 564.

The devise to J W, &c. and their heirs in due succession, as named, with usual limitations, gives an estate tail to the first taker, who having a son born alive, and since dead, is as his personal representative, entitled to the personal estate absolutely. Stratford v. Powell, 1 Ball & B. 1.

Devise and bequest to A, and the heirs of his body, with limitation over, in case of no such heirs; held, an estate tail in real estate, and an absolute interest in personal, the limitation over being void; but if expressed "if he leaves no such heirs," it would be good, as confined to the time of the death, and not after an indefinite failure of issue. Crooke v. De Fandes, 8 Ves. 197.

A limitation that will create an entail at law, will have the same effect upon an equitable estate; therefore, a devise in fee to pay debts, and then to the use of A in trust for B for life, remainder to the heirs male of his body, is an entail in B. Brydges v. Brydges, 3 Ves. 120.

Where the issue cannot take but through the father, there, though the father has only an estate for life, given him by express words, yet he must, by necessary implication, to effectuate the intention of the deviser, take an estate tail to convey that estate to his issue. Manderhill v. Carrick, 3 Ridgw. P. C. 365.

Devise to trustees to pay debts, then to stand seised to the use of A for life, without impeachment of waste, after his decease to the use of the heirs of his body severally, respectively, and in remainder, is an estate tail in A. Jones v. Morgan, 1 Bro. C. C. 206.

Devise to trustees to pay out of rents and profits, after deducting rates, taxes, and repairs, the residue to C S, and his assigns for life, and after his decease to the use of the heirs male of the body of C S, and in default of such issue, remainder over, not an estate tail in C S, the uses not being executed in him. Henpland v. Smith, 1 Bro. C. C. 75. See observations on this case, 11 Ves. 465.

Devise of lands to A for ninety-nine years, if he should so long live, and after the determination of the term, to the heirs of the body of A, and in default of such heirs, over: held an estate tail in the heir of the body of A, as an executory devise. Harris v. Barnes, Amb. 666. DEVISE EXECUTORY.

Devise of land to W for life, remainder to his first son for life, remainder to the right heirs male of his body, remainder to the second, &c. sons of W, and the heirs male of their bodies, remainder to T for life, and after to his first heir male of his body, and for want of such, over: held T took an estate in tail male. Dubber v. Trallope, Amb. 453.

A devise to a man for life, and if he die without heir male, remainder over, makes an estate tail. The words "for want of such issue" make an estate tail by implication. Id. 463.

Devise of premises to A, and the issue of his body living at his death, and for want of such issue over; is an estate tail in A. University of Oxford v. Clifton, 1 Eden, 473. S. C. Amb. 385.

Devise to S for life, remainder to his eldest son and his issue male, and for want of issue of S, to, &c. S died without issue, and, held he took an estate tail in remainder, like in Stanley v. Leonard. Langley v. Baldwin, Amb. 355. S. C. 1 Eden, 87.

Devise to T for life, remainder to trustees to preserve, &c. remainder to the heirs male of T and their heirs; provided if T should die without issue male living at his death, then over: Held T took an estate tail. Wright v. Pearson, Amb. 358. S. C. 1 Eden, 119.

One having several children devises land to one of them and his heirs, and for want of such to the heirs of his other children: Held, the first devise was an estate tail. Pickering v. Towers, Amb. 363.

Devise to G and heirs of his body, the males having the preference, and succeeding according to their birth, and the trustees to preserve contingent remainders during the life of G: Held G took estate tail. Sayer v. Matterman, Amb. 344.

Feme covert by will pursuant to power, leaves to her husband "all the profits and revenues of my estates of A and B for life, and after his death my said estates to my children if I should leave any to survive me, but if I leave no such child or children, nor the issue of such, the said estates to J II, making him sole heir in default of issue, and after the death of my husband." The children take an estate tail, not fee simple, and the remainder to J II is good, not a contingent executory limitation on her dying without children living at her death, but a general dying without issue. Southby v. Stonehouse, 2 Ves. 611.

A devise of testator's "estate at A," without more, will comprehend his whole interest in the lands rather than be referrible to the mere locality. If, however, words of limitation be added, they will determine the extent of the benefit. Id. ib.

G devised to A for life, and no longer, and after his decease to such son as he shall have, lawfully to be begotten, taking the name of R, and for default of such issue, then to B and his heirs for ever: Held that A must, by necessary implication, to effectuate the manifest intention of the testator, be construed to take an estate in tail male, notwithstanding the express devise to A for his life, and no longer. Robinson v. Robinson, 3 Atk. 736. 1 Burr. 38. 2 Ves. 225.

So in a cause between the will of some testator and his heir at law, Jekyll, M. R., declared that A, the devisee (above-mentioned) was entitled only to an estate for life, with remainder to his eldest son, and if but one son, for his life, and that the remainder would go over to W R testator's heir at law. Id. 738.

Devise to A for life with power to trustees to settle a jointure on his wife, and subsequent thereto, in strict settlement on the issue of such marriage; but if A should die without any issue of his body, then over. The latter words give him an estate tail by implication. Allanson v. Clitherne, 1 Ves. 24.

A devised to B and his heirs, and said afterwards, "if he shall die without heirs of his body;" this controuls the devise to an estate tail. Lampley v. Flower, 3 Atk. 398. Vide Lee v. Prieaux, 3 Bro. C. C. 381, where this case is stated from the register book.

A devise to A for life, and to the heirs of his body so unites the two estates as to make the first taker tenant in tail. Sheppard v. Gibbons, 2 Atk. 444.

A devised all his lands, &c. to his wife, and if it should happen that she should have no son nor daughter by him begotten upon her body, and for want of such issue, then the said premises to return to his brother B, if he should be then living, and to his heirs for ever, paying to two other brothers 150*l.* within a year after the wife's death. Decreed to be an estate tail in the wife, and not an estate for life only; that by "no son nor daughter," must be understood "no issue;" and that she ought not to be restrained from committing waste. Wyll v. Lewis, 1 Atk. 432. WASTE.

To one for life, and to the heirs of his body, has always been held to be an estate tail; but where it is to one for life, and after his death to the issue of his body, there is no instance where it has been so construed. Meure v. Meure, 2 Atk. 265.

A devises lands to J, his wife for life, then to his son H for life, then to his son G, and his heirs for ever; if he died without heirs, then to his two daughters K and L. This is an estate tail in G. Tyle v. Willis, Forres. 1.

A, having the reversion in fee of lands, settled upon the marriage of B, his son, in the usual manner, devises all lands in that settlement on failure of issue of the body of B, and for want of heirs male of his own body to his daughter F, and the heirs of her body.

This will does not give an estate tail by implication to B. The devise to F is executory, and is void, as being on too remote a contingency. J. y. Janeshorough v. Far, Forres. 262. LIMITATION TOO REMOTE; ESTATE BY IMPLICATION; EXECUTORY DEVISE.

Where there is a devise to the heirs male of the body of any person, he shall take an estate tail. Newcomen v. Bethlem Hosp., Ambl. 793.

A devised 10,000*l.* to trustees in trust, to be laid out in lands, and to be settled on B for life, without waste, remainder to trustees and their heirs for the life of B, to support contingent remainders, with a power to B to make a jointure; remainder to the heirs of the body of B, remainders over; and by the same will devises lands to B, to the same uses, and dies, leaving C executor; B sues C, the executor, for the deeds relating to the lands that are in his hands, and to have the money laid out in lands and settled: decreed, that B had but an estate for life in the lands, and so not entitled to the deeds; but that they were to be brought into court, and that the lands to be bought with the money were to be settled on B for his life only, remainder to his first, &c. son. But on appeal, B was decreed to have an estate tail in the lands devised, and consequently to be entitled to the deeds relating thereto, though as to the lands to be purchased, that being executory, and in the power of the court, B was to be but tenant for life, with remainder to his first, &c. son. Papillon v. Poise, 2 P. W. 471. 2 Kcl. 27. DEEDS, POSSESSION OF.

J being seized of some lands in fee, and cestui que trust of other lands, devises them to A for life; remainder to his first and second son in tail male, (going no farther); and after A's death, without issue male, then to a charity: held, that A was tenant in tail until issue born, saving as to the trust estate. Att. Gen. v. Sutton, 3 Bro. P. C. 75. S. C. 1 P. W. 754.

In a devise of land to A for life, and if A die without issue, then to B; though here is an express estate for life to A, yet the subsequent words will turn it into an estate tail; but where lands are devised to A for life, remainder to trustees, &c. remainder to his first, &c. son in tail male, &c., and if A dies without issue, then, &c., this will not give an estate tail to A; but the words "without issue," must be intended "without such issue." Blackburn v. Edgley, 1 P. W. 606. *

Devise of land to the testator's second son for life, he or his heirs, paying a rent thereout to the eldest son for life, and after the death of the second son and his wife, remainder to the first, &c. son of the second son; the wife of the second son had an estate for life by implication, by the opinion of Ld. Ch. Parker. Willis v. Lucas, 1 P. W. 472. 10 Mod. 416. S. C.

One devises his lands for payment of his debts, and then to A for life, with power to make leases, &c. remainder to the heirs male of the body of A; though this be but the devise of a trust, and executory, and expressed to be to A for life, yet it is an estate tail in A, barrable by a fine and recovery; secus, in case of marriage articles to settle an estate on A for life, remainder to the heirs male of his body, this being an agreement to do a future act, and in which the issue are particularly considered, and looked upon as purchasers. Bule v. Coleman, 1 P. W. 142.

Devise to A and his posterity. Ld. Keeper thought this would create an estate tail only; but the M. R. being of opinion that such a devise would amount to a fee, Ld. Keeper ordered precedents to be searched. Att. Gen. v. Bamfield, 2 Freem. 269.

A, by deed on his marriage, settled his estate upon the issue of the marriage, remainder to his own right heirs; and if he should die without issue male, and leave one daughter, then the lands to be charged with 3000l. for her at twenty-one, and 150l. yearly maintenance, in the meantime; A having then no issue, by his will devised thus: "and whereas by the settlement made on my wife, I have reserved the inheritance of my lands in myself, after the estate tail therein is spent: now in case I die without issue, or that such issue shall die without issue of his or their body, or that the estate tail limited by that settlement shall determine, I give all my said manors to my kinsman B, and to his first and other sons in tail male, remainder to C in fee." A had afterwards a daughter: held, that this daughter was entitled under the will to the whole estate as tenant in tail, and that B took nothing. Cornwall v. Williams, Colles' P. C. 117. WILL., C. OF, WHO TAKE.

A devise by a father to a second son and his heirs for ever, and for want of such heirs, then to the right heirs of the testator, is an estate tail: but had the devise over been to a stranger, the second son would have taken a fee simple, and consequently the devise over had been void. Nottingham v. Jennings, 1 P. W. 23. PARENT & CHILD.

A, having a son and two daughters, devised the estate in question to his son and his heirs; provided that if the son should die before twenty-one, or without issue of his body, then it should go to testator's two daughters. A died, and the son lived to twenty-one, and made his will, and devised the estate to plaintiff. The court inclined, that the son had but an estate tail, and so the devise to the daughters took effect, the son having died without issue. Helier v. Jennings, 1 Freem. 509. 1 Ld. Raym. 505. S. C. nom. Helliard v. Jennings, Com. 91. 1 Freem. 510. 12 Mod. 276. Carth. 514.

A house, together with the furniture thereof, is limited to a feme, and such heir of her body as should be living at her death, and in default of such, remainder over. The female has an estate tail in the house, and the absolute property in the furniture. Richardson v. Abbergareenny, 2 Vern. 324. LIMITATION OF PERSONALS.

Devise to A for life, remainder to the heir of his body, (though in the singular number,) is an estate tail. Id. ib.

A devised his land to his wife if she did not marry, and if she did, then his eldest son should enter presently, and hold the land to him and the heirs male of his body, remainder to his other sons in tail male. The wife did not marry; yet decreed that the son took an estate tail by the will, though he should not enter till the marriage or decease of the wife. Lawford v. Cheek, 3 Lev. 125. CONDON. PRER. OR.

Where A devised to B for life, and to his heirs, and for want of heirs to C, in like manner, and for want of heirs of him, to D, and his heirs for ever. B and C were brothers, and D was their cousin and heir: held, that B and C took but an estate tail, and that the remainder over to D was good. Parker v. Thacker, 3 Lev. 70.

A devised land to B his son, and if C his daughter survived B and his heirs, then she should have the land. Adjudged, that B had but an estate tail; but if the will had said that S, a stranger, should have the land if he survived B, B would have taken an estate in fee. Webb v. Herling, Cro. Jac. 415.

(d) For Life.

Devise to A for ninety-nine years, if he should so long; remainder to his first son, then unborn, for ninety-nine years, if he should so long live; and so on in tail male to such first son lawfully issuing for ever; and for want, and in default of such issue of such first son, to the second and other sons successively for ninety-nine years only, in case he should so long live; and that such elder son, or the issue of such elder son should have no greater estate than for ninety-nine years, determinable at his decease; and if there should be no issue male of A, at the time of his (A's) death, or in case there should be such issue male at that time, and they should all die before twenty-one without issue male, then to B for ninety-nine years, if he should so long live, &c.: Held, that A took under the will an estate for ninety-nine years in the freehold estates, determinable with his life, and the same estate in the leasehold, if they should so long continue; and that, upon his death, his first son would take an estate for ninety-nine years in the freehold, determinable with his life, and the remainder of the term in the leaseholds: but that the limitations to the second and other unborn sons of A were void as tending to perpetuity; and the limitations over to B, &c. after these void limitations were not accelerated, but were void also. Beard v. Westcott, 1 Turn. & R. 25. LIMIT. TOO REMOTE.

Devise to M J, and to all and every the child and children, whether male or female of her body lawfully issuing, and unto his, her and their heirs as tenants in common: Held, M J took estate for life, with remainder to her children as tenants in common. Jeffery v. Houghwood, 4 Mad. 398.

Produce of estate devised for sale directed to be paid between J and A, the wife of B, in equal proportions, share alike; and in case either should die leaving children, trustees to stand possessed of moiety so given to J and A to and for the use and benefit of such child or children at twenty-one, equally to be divided if more than one; and until twenty-one money to be invested in funds. Interest for children's maintenance. If either J or A should die without children, survivor to take share: Held, J and A only tenants for life. Farthing v. Allen, 2 Mad. 310.

Devise of "all my said manors, tenements and effects, real and personal," to one for life; and after his decease to his issue male and the heirs male of such sons successively one after another; with remainder to A, "and in default of his issue male as before;" then over to B, "and in default of his issue male as before;" then to the plaintiff. A held entitled for life, with remainder to his first and other sons in tail male; B to take in remainder in the same manner, and that the plaintiff was entitled to the ultimate remainder in fee. McNamara v. Ld. Wentworth, Coop. 241.

In a devise of real estate, words of limitation are required to give more than an estate for life; as are words of qualification to restrain the extent and duration of the interest in personal property. Adamson v. Armitage, 19 Ves. 418. REAL ESTATE.

Devise and bequest of real and leasehold estates to the testator's widow and her heirs, "in the fullest confidence that after her decease she will devise the property to my family:" Held, an estate for life only, with remainder in trust for the testator's heir as personae designatæ. Wright v. Atkins, 19 Ves. 299.

Devise to trustees and their heirs, in trust to receive the rents, &c. until A shall attain twenty-one; and immediately after he shall attain twenty-one, to convey to the use of A for life; and from and after the determination of that estate by forfeiture or otherwise in his lifetime, to trustees and their heirs during his life, upon trust to preserve the contingent uses; and after his decease to the use of his first and other sons in tail male; and for default of such issue, or in case of the death of A, takes a vested remainder for life after an estate in the trustees for so many years as his minority may last. Stanley v. Stanley, 16 Ves. 491.

Devise to B after the death of A. B being the heir at law, a necessary implication for A for life. Dashwood v. Peyton, 18 Ves. 40.

Testator appointed his daughter in law his sole executrix, to have and enjoy all his real and personal estate, all the goods, cattle, chattels, enumerating several other articles of personal property during her life, but not to diminish nor commit waste on the lands; and his highest heir at law to enjoy the same after her death. An estate for life only in the whole, both real and personal estate, with remainder to the heir at law. Gwynne v. Muddoch, 14 Ves. 488.

Devise in these terms: "I give to A my farm and lands at R to him, his heirs and assigns, for ever; and I also give to A my farm and manor of E." An estate for life only in the latter. Paice v. Abp. Canterbury, 14 Ves. 364.

Devise of "my copyhold estate at P, consisting of three tenements, and now under lease," &c. but not specifying for what interest, an estate for life only passes. Pettitward v. Prescott, 7 Ves. 541.

Devise after the death of the devisor's wife, if the devisee is heir, the wife takes for life by implication, otherwise not. Upton v. Ld. Ferrers, 5 Ves. 806.

Devise to trustees and their heirs in trust to receive and pay over rents and profits to A, a feme covert, for life for her separate use; and after her decease to convey to her daughters as tenants in common in tail; remainder over. A takes an equitable estate for life, and may, by lease and release, make a tenant to the trustee for an equitable reversion; each daughter takes a vested estate when she comes in case, subject to be divested as the number increases; the conveyance in execution of the trust need not wait the death of A. Personal estate not exempted from the debts, &c. by a charge upon the real. Cross-remainders implied. Burnaby v. Griffin, 3 Ves. 266.

Devise to E during his life only, and after the determination of that estate to the said E's lawful issue male, and the lawful issue male of such heirs, the eldest always of such sons of the said E to be preferred before the youngest according to seniority in age, and for want of such issue in E, remainder over. This gives E an estate for life only. Manderville v. Carrick, 3 Ridg. P. C. 352.

Devise of all the rest, residue, and remainder of estate, both real and personal, unto A, to be placed at interest until her age of twenty-one or day of marriage, and then the whole thereof, together with the interest accumulated thereon, to be paid to her, to and for her use during her natural life, and from and immediately after her decease, unto the heirs of her body lawfully begotten, equally to be divided between them, share and share alike; and in default of such issue, or of the death of A before her age of twenty-one or day of marriage, then unto her the testatrix's brother, is an estate for life in A. Jacobs v. Aytz, 4 Bro. C. C. 542.

Estate for life in real estates and in personality by implication. Ramsden v. Hassard, 3 Bro. C. C. 236.

Testator gave legacy to his son, an estate in fee to a nephew; then several parts of his freehold estates, and a future purchase of freehold to be made with part of his personal property; and all his leasehold to his wife for life, then to his son and his issue lawfully begotten or to be begotten, to be divided among them as he should think fit; if he die without issue, all, as well present freehold and leasehold, as the estates to be purchased, to be sold, the produce to go over; no part of his present freehold, or the estates to be purchased, to be sold during life of wife and son; all the rest, residue, and remainder of his property and effects, whatsoever and wheresoever, after paying debts, &c., to the wife. The son is tenant for life, and the devise is good; but estates not mentioned do not pass by it. Hockley v. Mawbey, 1 Ves. J. 143. S. C. 3 Bro. C. C. 82. Devise over.

Testator gave 500*l.* "to the sole uses of N, or of her children for ever." N took an interest for life in the 500*l.*, and it belonged to her children after her death. Newman v. Nightingale, 1 Cox. 341.

Bequest of 1000*l.* to testator's sister, and in case of her demise, 800*l.* to A, and the remaining 200*l.* to B the sister entitled for life, then to go in the proportions. Billings v. Sandom, 3 Bro. C. C. 293.

Testator gives freehold and leasehold estates to his heir at law for life, remainder to B for life, and to his first and other sons; remainder to S and W for their joint lives, and to the survivor of them, the survivor is only to take an estate for life in the freehold, though he takes the whole interest in the leaseholds. Arcs v. Melhuish, 1 Bro. C. C. 519.

Bequest to A, and his heirs male, equally to be divided among them, share and share alike, construed to A for life, remainder to his children equally. Wilson v. Vansittart, Amb. 562.

Devise to trustees of money to be laid out in land, and to be settled as counsel should advise, in trust for A, and the heirs male of his body, to take in succession and priority, and the interest of the money till laid out to be paid to A, his sons, and issue. A shall have but an estate for life, with remainder to the first and other sons in tail, &c. White v. Carter, Amb. 679; affirming 2 Eden, 366.

Bequest of money in the funds to A, in trust for B an infant, and for such younger son or sons as B shall have, equally to be divided between them; and in case there shall be but one younger son, then the whole to him. Held, that B took only a life interest, subject to which his younger children took the whole. Garden v. Patteney, 2 Eden. 323. S. C. Amb. 499.

B devised thus, "all my freehold estate of any nature or kind whatsoever, which at present is in my power to dispose of, I give to my wife." The question, whether the wife took an estate for life or in fee, was sent to B. R. Snelson v. Corbett, 3 Atk. 369.

Testator devised his estate to A in case his daughter should die leaving no heirs of her body: Held, a gift to the daughter for life, with contingent remainder to such heir of her body as should be living at the time of her death. Read v. Snell, 2 Atk. 646. IMPLICATION.

"Leaving" is a participle of the present tense, and relates to the time of the daughter's dying. S. C. Id.

No weight has been laid on the want of the words "for life," when the intention of the testator has otherwise appeared, especially in the case of a trust executory, for then a court of equity is bound to see a settlement made agreeable to the intention of the testator. S. C. 2 Atk. 648.

A gave B all his lands, tenements, and messuages whatsoever, after debts, legacies, and funerals paid. The debts being charged only contingently on the real, if the personal estate should be deficient: Held, that plaintiff took only a life estate. Merson v. Blackmore, 2 Atk. 341.

In devise to C for life; remainder to trustees during his life to preserve contingent remainders; remainder to the heirs of the body of C: Held, that C took only an estate for life, and that heirs of the body were to be construed words of purchase. Colson v. Colson, 2 Atk. 246. See 2 Eq. Ab. 318.

A bequest of an annual sum, to be raised for the support of the children of H, to be paid them from time to time as their necessities require without regard to their father or mother, cannot be confined to the minority of the children. Alexander v. M'Callock, 1 Cox. 391. ANNUITY.

A devises lands to his sister B and C, and their heirs and assigns, upon trust; that until his granddaughter D should marry or die, to receive the profits, and thereout to pay her 100*l.* a year for her maintenance; the residue to pay debts and legacies. After payment thereof, in trust for the said D, and upon further trust, that if she lived to marry a protestant of the church of England, and at the time of such marriage he of the age of twenty-one or upwards, or if under that age, such marriage be with the consent of the said B, then to convey, with all convenient speed, after such marriage, to the use of the said D for life, sans waste, voluntary waste in houses excepted; remainder to her husband for life; remainder to the issue of her body, with remainders over; and upon further trust, that if the said D die unmarried, then to the uses of B for life; remainder to the son of his other granddaughter E in tail; remainder to the defendant C, remainder to his first and other sons; remainder to A's right heirs; and upon further trust, that if D marry not according to the will, then upon such marriage to convey to trustees, as to one moiety to the use of D for life, then to trustees to preserve contingent remainders; remainder to her first and every other son, being a protestant, with remainders over; and as to the other moiety, to the son of his daughter E in like manner. A dies, D attains her full age; and upon a treaty of marriage with F, applies to B and C for a conveyance to herself for life; remainder to her intended husband for life; remainder to the issue of her body: B executes such conveyance, but C refuses; D suffers a recovery of the whole to the use of herself in fee, and then marries F, who made a considerable settlement upon her: she covenants to settle her estate upon husband and wife; remainder to first, &c. sons in tail; remainder to survivor of husband and wife in fee. They bring a bill to compel C to convey, &c.: decreed not an estate tail to D, but an estate for life sans waste, ut supra, as being the intent of A upon the will, with remainders over in strict settlement. Ld. Glenorchy v. Bosville, For. 4.

Devise to A for life without impeachment of waste, remainders to trustees to preserve, &c., remainder to heirs of the body of A. Held, that A is only tenant for life. Papillon v. Poyce, Fitzgibbon, 38.

One devises a third of all his estate whatsoever to his wife, and two thirds of all his real and personal estate to his son J and his heirs; the wife has but an estate for life in the third part of the real estate. Chester v. Painter, 2 P. W. 335.

One having a wife and four daughters, devises lands to one of his daughters after the death of his wife; this is a devise to the wife for life by implication, though the daughter was only one of the co-heirs. Hutton v. Simpson, 2 Vern. 723. Pre. Ch. 439. Gill, Eq. Rep. 115. 120.

Devise to A the testator's wife for life, and then to be at her disposal, provided it be to any of his children, gives an estate for life with a power to dispose of the fee. And where such devise, with an after-taken husband, did by lease and release and fine, convey the premises to a trustee, and his heir to the use of the wife for life, without impeachment of waste, remainder to her daughter by her first husband, and the heirs of her body; remainder to the son by the first husband and his heirs: this adjudged a good execution of the power. Tomlinson v. Dighton, 1 P. W. 149. S. C. Salk. 239. 10 Mod. 31. Com. Rep. 194. POWER, EXECUTION OF.

A devise of lands to the heir after the death of the wife, by necessary implication, gives an estate for life to the wife. Otherwise, where the devise is to a stranger. City of London v. Garraway, 2 Vern. 571. HEIR AT LAW.

A devise to J and his children, if he have children, they take with their father; but if he have none, it is an estate tail. A devise to a man and his children of his personal estate; a child born after the death of the testator, shall not take. A devise to two and their heirs of their bodies, it is a joint estate for life, and several inheritances; and so it is if there is a devise over; but if there is a devise over, and one of them dies without issue, a moiety shall go over to the remainder-man. A devise to the use of A, and for want of such issue to B. A has a son and a daughter, they shall take as persons described, but shall take only an estate for their lives. Cook v. Cook, 2 Vern. 545.

A devises lands to trustees to pay debts and legacies, and then to settle remainder on her son B and the heirs of his body, with remainders over, and directs that special care should be taken in the settlement, that it should never be in the power of her son to dock the entail. Decreed the son should be only tenant for life, without impeachment of waste, and should not have an estate tail conveyed to him. Leonard v. Sussex, 2 Vern. 526.

A devise to trustees and their heirs in trust for A for life, and to his first, &c. sons in tail, but if A dies without an heir male of his body begotten, then to go over. A is only tenant for life, and the words "if he dies without an heir male," &c. do not give him an estate tail by implication. Bampfild v. Popham, 2 Vern. 427. S. C. 1 P. W. 54. Salk. 236.

If lands are devised to one generally, he takes but an estate for life, unless it appear plainly the testator intended him a greater, or that he is like to be a loser, or his person chargeable. Fairfax v. Heron, Prec. Chan. 68.

Devise of lands to the heirs at law for twenty years after the death of the wife; this is an estate for life in the wife by implication, otherwise if the devise is to a stranger. Faulkner v. Faulkner, 1 Vern. 22. ESTATE BY IMPLICATION.

(e) Joint Tenancy.

Devise and bequest of leasehold, freehold and copyhold estates, to trustees, their heirs, executors, &c., upon trust to sell, and pay debts, &c.; and after payment thereof, to pay and apply the rents, &c. to A for life, and after his decease, devising and bequeathing to the heir or heirs at law of B, and the heirs, executors, &c. of such heir or heirs, to whom the trustees were directed to convey and assign accordingly. Co-heiresses of B being also the co-heiresses of the deviser, take, not as co-parceners by descent, but as joint tenants by purchase; and therefore subject to survivorship. Straime v. Burton, 15 Ves. 365. ESTATE BY PURCHASE.

Joint-tenancy under a bequest of personal property to more than one, without words of severance. Id. 371.

Heir, being also devisee, takes by purchase, not by descent, if the devised estate is not of the same nature. Id. ib. HEIR AT LAW; ESTATE BY PURCHASE.

Residue bequeathed to two, they take a joint interest. Agreement for severance as to the whole may be inferred from their conduct; dividing as the property was received. Crooke v. De Vandes, 11 Ves. 330.

Construction of will giving a vested interest, though subject to contingent charge, and creating a tenancy in common as to part of the property, and as to the residue a joint-tenancy, there being nothing to controul the legal effect of the words. Jackson v. Jackson, 7 Ves. 635; but on appeal it was held that though by residuary disposition to testator's two sons "and the survivor, their or his heirs, executors," &c., they took as joint-tenants the leasehold and personal estate embarked in trade, upon all the circumstances, the transactions for twelve years, as between themselves a severance was to be implied both as to the profits and the capital. S. C. 9 Ves. 691.

Legacy and residue bequeathed to two without words of severance, is a joint interest, and cannot be taken in common, under effect of previous disposition of the interest with words of severance, viz. to be equally divided. Crooks v. De Vande, 9 Ves. 197.

Notwithstanding the leaning of late to a tenancy in common, an interest given to two or more either by way of legacy or otherwise, is joint, unless there are words of severance, as "equally among," &c., or an inference of that sort arises in equity, from the nature of the transaction, as in partnerships, a joint mortgage, &c. Morley v. Bird, 3 Ves. 628.

Request to two, without words of severance, they take jointly. Id. ib.

A legacy given two or more persons without words of severance, makes a joint-tenancy, therefore his Honour determined, that where, in a will as to a residue, two thirds were given to and amongst the children of A and B; they took as tenants in common, but the remaining third being given to the children of C, they took as joint-tenants. Campbell v. Campbell, 3 Bro. C. C. 15.

Devise of the residue of personal estate to the wife for life; if she die without issue living at her death, to testator's two brothers, or if one of them shall be dead, to the survivors; they both died in the life of the wife; the legacy was vested in both as joint-tenants, and therefore goes to the representative of the survivor. Barnes v. Allen, 1 Bro. C. C. 181. INTEREST, VESTED.

"I give to my two sisters A and B the residue of my personal estate:" Held, joint-tenancy. Keys v. Luffkin, Dick. 392.

Devise to trustees, as soon as his three daughters attained their respective ages of twenty-one, to convey to them and the heirs of their bodies as joint-tenants; this not a joint estate, but to be construed, as it may be, so that the conveyance must be at twenty-one respectively, with cross remainders. Marryat v. Townly, 1 Ves. 102.

It has been held, where there has been a devise of an estate to A at the beginning, and to B at the end of a will, they shall take as joint-tenants. Ulrick v. Lichfield, 2 Atk. 373.

Devise of a residue of a personal estate to three, is a joint devise, and shall not survive. Webster v. Webster, 2 P. W. 347.

A devise of land to A & B, and the survivor of them and their heirs, equally to be divided betwixt them share and share alike; A & B are joint tenants for their lives, and have several inheritances. Barker v. Giles, 2 P. W. 280.

Devise to two, equally to be divided, and to the survivor of them; they are joint tenants. Clerk v. Clerk, 2 Vern. 323.

(f) Tenancy in common.

Bequest of an annuity to the children of A, in equal shares and proportions, to continue during their lives, and the life of the survivor of them: the children take as tenants in common, and there is no survivorship between them by implication; therefore the share of one dying goes to its representative. Jones v. Randall, 1 Jac. & W. 100.

Devise to A & B "between them." These words constitute a tenancy in common. Lushbrook v. Cock, 2 Mer. 70.

A devise, after the death of the survivor of testator's daughter, to all and every the child and children of his daughter, S S, who should be living at the time of her death, and to the heirs of such child or children for ever, equally, share and share alike; afterward revoked by a codicil reciting the devise, and in lieu of it, directing the trustees, upon the death of the survivor of his daughters, to convey the lands charged with 1000*l.* for a granddaughter, to the two sons of his daughter, S S, and their heirs; the 1000*l.* to be paid by the grandsons so soon as they became entitled to the possession of the estate; the grandsons take as tenants in common. Synge v. Hales, 2 Ball & B. 499.

Bequest in the form of a letter to the testator's mother and sisters, expressed thus: "to be divided among you:" a tenancy in common among those living at that time, and the shares of those who died in the testator's lifetime lapsed. Ackerman v. Burrows, 3 V. & B. 54.

Bequest to A & B, with direction that B shall be maintained, &c. during minority out of fund, and power to place B out apprentice: held, to create a tenancy in common. Gant v. Lawrence, Wightw. 395.

Devise to testator's wife for life, and after her decease, unto and among all and every their children in such manner, &c. as she should in her life or by will appoint; empowering her to sell and receive the interests for life, and appointing, after her decease, both principal and interest to and among their children in such proportions as aforesaid. All the children having died in life of mother, who died without appointment, were held entitled as tenants in common to several estates of inheritance. Casterton v. Sutherland, 9 Ves. 445.

Bequest to A for life, and after her decease to B & C in equal moieties, and in case of the decease of either in the life of A, the whole to the survivor of them living at her decease: B & C have vested interests as tenants in common, subject to be divested only upon the contingency expressed. Harrison v. Foreman, 5 Ves. 207. INTEREST, VESTED.

Bequests to be equally divided, share and share alike; they take in common and no survivorship. Bolger v. Mackell, 3 Ves. 510.

Words of survivorship in a will shall not defeat the effect of words importing a tenancy in common, but shall be referred to some time, as the death of the tenant for life, or even to the death of the testator, though a construction not to be adopted if there can be any other. Russell v. Long, 4 Ves. 551.

Legacy to A for life, and after her decease to her children; if she should have none, to B & C, share and share alike, or to the survivor; a vested interest in B & C, upon the death of the testator, as tenants in common; although she survived them, dying without children. Perry v. Woods, 3 Ves. 204. INTEREST, VESTED.

Gift of a share over to the children of my late cousins, W U, and J U, share and share alike, at their respective ages of twenty-one; that is a tenancy in common among those then living, and one of them dying in the life time of the testator, that share is lapsed. Martin v. Wilson, 3 Bro. C. C. 324. LAPSED LEGACY.

Legacy of 10,000*l.* to two sisters to be equally divided when they should arrive at twenty-one, is a tenancy in common; and one dying under twenty-one, her share shall go to her representative. Jolliffe v. East, 3 Bro. C. C. 25.

Gift of a particular fund for life, then to residuary legatees as such, then the residue given to them as tenants in common; the particular fund is part of the residue, and vests accordingly in them as tenants in common. Pitt v. Benyon, 1 Bro. C. C. 589.

Devise of the profits of land in trust for his six younger children, to be distributed in joint and equal proportions: held, a tenancy in common. Ettricks v. Ettricks, Ambli. 656.

Devise of lands to younger children equally, as tenants in common, with benefit of survivorship: held, to refer to a survivorship spoken of in the former part of the will, and therefore to be a tenancy in common, with a limitation to the survivors after the death of any before twenty-one without issue. Hawes

v. Hawes, 3 Atk. 524. 1 Ves. 13. 1 Wils. C. B. 165.

The court inclines against joint-tenancy, as an inconvenient estate; and so do courts of law, now, though formerly they favoured it. S. C.

In deeds, which receive their operation from the statute of uses, the words "equally to be divided" make a tenancy in common. Sed secus, in common law conveyances. In Rigden v. Vallier, 3 Atk. 731. 2 Ves. 252. Ld. Hardwicke said, that though deeds to uses must be construed like common law conveyances as to words of limitation, yet he saw no harm in construing them otherwise as to words of regulation and modification of an estate, as the words "equally to be divided," are.

Devise to trustees by sale or mortgage to pay debts, the remainder to go and be equally divided among three children, and the survivor of them and their heirs for ever, a tenancy in common. Stones v. Heathly, 1 Ves. 165.

Where testator devised to trustees in fee, in trust for his three sisters and their assigns, and as his said sisters should severally die, he gave the premises to their several heirs: Held, that the sisters should take as tenants in common, and not as joint-tenants. Sheppard v. Gibbons, 2 Atk. 441.

The words "share and share like," have been held for 200 years to be a tenancy in common. Heath v. Heath, 2 Atk. 122.

Will can never relate to a child who was not in esse till some years after testator's death. Id. Posthumous Child.

The word "respectively" will separate an estate, and make it a tenancy in common. Id.

Testator devised to A and B generally, and added, "my meaning is, that the rents of my houses should be equally shared between A and B:" Held, that they take as tenants in common, and not as joint-tenants. Prince v. Heylin, 1 Atk. 493.

A devise of a leasehold interest to A and her three sons, equally amongst them, creates a tenancy in common, though there is no mention of any division to be made. Warner v. Ilme, Prec. Chan. 491. S. C. Gilb. Eq. Rep. 146.

The words "equally divided between them," make a tenancy in common in a will, but not in a deed. Thrustout v. Peak, 8 Vin. Ab. tit. Devise, pl. 11.

Devise of a debt to two, share and share alike, equally to be divided between them, and if any of them die, then to the survivor, they are tenants in common, and not joint-tenants. Ld. Bindon v. El. Suffolk, 1 P. W. 96.

A, by will, devises lands to trustees and their heirs in trust, that the profits should be equally divided between his wife and daughter during the wife's life, and after her death, he devised the same to the use of his daughter in tail, with remainder; the daughter died during the mother's life. Decreed this to be a tenancy in common between the mother and daughter, and that during the mother's life, the daughter's moiety did not descend or result to the heir, but was an interest undisposed of, and in nature of a tenancy pur autre vie, and should go to the administrator of the daughter. Phillips v. Phillips, 2 Vern. 430. Prec. Ch. 167. 1 P. W. 34. S. C.

One assigns a term to trustees, in trust to permit himself to receive the profits during his life, and after his death, in trust to permit his two daughters B and C, the executors and administrators to receive the profits during the residue of the term, equally to be divided between them, they paying so much within two years to his other two daughters; B dies, C mortgages to D: Held, that B and C were tenants in common, and not joint-tenants by the intention of the father, which was to make distinct provisions for them. Hanell v. Hunt, Prec. Ch. 164.

A devise of a term to A, and B paying 25*l.* a year out of the rents to one during his life, viz. 12*l.* 10*s.* by each of them, is a tenancy in common. Kew v. Rouse, 1 Vern. 353.

Devise to A for life, the reversion to B and C, to be equally divided betwixt them; B and C tenants in common for life only. Peiton v. Banks, 1 Vern. 65.

A devise to two persons to be equally divided between them, makes it a tenancy in common. Thickness v. Vernon, 1 Vern. 32.

(a) Real and Copyhold.

A testator who died in 1818, after devising a freehold house to his wife and her heirs, devised the residue of his freehold estates, situate in four specified parishes, or elsewhere in the county of Cambridge to two trustees and their heirs, upon the trusts thereafter declared concerning the same, that is to say, upon trust, that they should sell his several copyholds in the parishes aforesaid, and after satisfying the costs of the sale out of the monies thence arising, should pay the residue to his executor, for the purpose of satisfying in the first place certain legacies; and he then devised all the residue of his real and personal estate to A B. The testator, besides freeholds and copyholds, situate in the four parishes, had freeholds not situate in the county of Cambridge, and copyholds not situate within the four parishes, and all the copyholds had been surrendered to the use of his will: Held, that the beneficial interest in all the freeholds, whether situate in the county of Cambridge or elsewhere, passed to the residuary devisee; that the legacies were a charge only on the copyholds situate in the four parishes; that no estate in those copyholds passed to the trustees, but only a power to sell; that any surplus of the monies arising from the sale which might remain after satisfying the legacies, passed by the residuary clause; that the copyhold not situate within the four parishes passed to residuary devisees. White v. Vitty, 2 Russ. 484. See this case further, 4 Russ. 584.

A testator devised "all my manors, messuages, lands, tenements and hereditaments, whether freehold, leasehold or copyhold, situate in the several parishes of M, C, I. and W, and also in the city of B, or elsewhere in the kingdom of England;" he had no lands in England, except in the places specified in the will, but he had a large estate in Wales, in the county of Carmarthen; quare, whether the devise passed Carmarthen estate? Okeden v. Clifden, 2 Russ. 309.

Devise of "all my freehold messuages, &c., the copyhold parts thereof having been duly surrendered to the uses of this my will," passes unsundered, as well as surrendered copyholds. Oxenforth v. Cawkwell, 2 S. & S. 558. COPYHOLD, SURRENDER OF.

By the custom of the manor of Shap, the legal interest in lands of customary tenure, parcel of the manor, is not devisable, but is transferred by a deed of bargain and sale, having the effect of a surrender, in which the operating words are "bargain, sell, and surrender," and on the presentment or production of which, admittance is granted to the alienee; but an equitable interest in such customary lands is capable of being passed by devise, without regard to the custom. A tenant of this manor who was seised of customary lands, conveyed them by deed of bargain, sale, and surrender to a trustee upon trust for such person as the tenant by any deed, instrument in writing, or by his last will or any codicil thereto, or any instrument in the nature of a last will or codicil, to be by him legally executed, should appoint or devise the same; and under the conveyance the trustee was admitted: held, that the equitable interest in the lands would not pass by an unattested codicil of the tenant. Willan v. Lancaster, 3 Russ. 108. CUSTOM OF MANOR.

A testator makes a general devise of all his lands in nine parishes; in five of them he had only lands in fee; in three others he had only lands over which he had a power of appointment; in the other he had lands in fee, and also lands over which his power extended. All the lands pass by his will, except the lands in the latter parish, which were subject to his power. Napier v. Napier, 1 Sim. 28. POWER, EX-CUTION OF.

Neither the words "I give and bequeath all my effects (after paying of every due demand)," though immediately preceded by directions touching the rents of a copyhold estate, nor the words "what title I have left to call my own," will include the equity of redemption of that copyhold. Henderson v. Farbridge, 1 Russ. 479.

Testator having surrendered some only of his copyhold to use of will, devised all his copyhold messuages, &c. whatsoever and wheresoever, and which he had surrendered to use of his will: held, that surrendered and unsundered passed equally. Strutt v. Finch, 2 S. & S. 229. COPYHOLD.

Under a general devise of all the rest, residue, and remainder of and in all and singular the property, estate and effects, which the testator should be possessed of or entitled to, or over which he should have a disposing power at his decease, of whatsoever kind, &c. the same might be: held, that the legal estate in mortgaged premises did not pass, but descended to the testator's heir at law. Innre. Horsfall, 1 McClel. & Y. 292. MORTGAGE.

The words "worldly estate," held to pass real and personal estate. Muddle v. Fry, 6 Mad. 270.

A devise of "all my real estate" will carry copyhold surrendered, and if no freehold, will for favoured objects carry copyhold not surrendered. Wentworth v. Cor, 6 Mad. 363. COPYHOLD.

On construction of devise, held that although words of devise would, standing alone, have been sufficient to have carried the legal estate in the mortgaged premises which may be so devised; yet being qualified by the subjection to the payment of debt, a purpose to which the money secured was alone applicable, and not the premises, it must be taken not to have been the intention of the testator that the legal estate therein should pass; and that therefore heir at law is a necessary party to reconveyance on paying off mortgage. Silvester v. Jayman, 10 Price, 78. MORTGAGE; PARTY; MORTGAGE, REDEMPTION OF; HEIR AT LAW.

An estate which the testator had contracted to sell, held to pass by a devise of all his real and personal estate to trustees, in trust to sell. Hall v. Wright, 1 Jac. & W. 494. ESTATE CONTRACTED TO BE SOLD.

Direction that all testator's children shall share equally in all his property, gives them the real estate in fee. Patton v. Randall, 1 Jac. & W. 189.

Devise of all lands do not pass land held in mortgage, as it continues personal estate, till final order of foreclosure; and devise of lands held in mortgage at time of will do not pass that land, if testator obtains final order of foreclosure before death. Thompson v. Grant, 4 Mad. 438. MORTGAGE.

J W, being seised and possessed of considerable freehold, copyhold, and leasehold estates in the county of H; and in possession, as mortgagee of certain leasehold houses at K, in the county of M; but having no other property in the said county of M, and having other estates vested in him as mortgagee, besides those at K, makes his will, devising "all his freehold, copyhold, and leasehold messuages, &c. in the county of H, and in the town of K," to A W for life, and after her death, "all and singular other his freehold, copyhold, and leasehold messuages," &c. in the counties of H and M, or elsewhere, to F W and A T for their joint lives, and after their several deceases, "all the said freehold, leasehold, and copyhold messuages," &c. unto and equally among their children; and gives to A W "all the residue of his real estate not before disposed of, and all other his estates and interests whatsoever, vested in him as mortgagee or trustee," &c. "and all the residue of his personal estate, ready money, and securities for money," &c. subject to the payment of debts and legacies: held, that the mortgaged premises at K passed under the devise of all the freehold, copyhold, and leasehold messuages, &c. in the county of H, and in the town of K. Woodhouse v. Meredith, 1 Mer. 450. MORTGAGE.

Bequest of "the whole of my property of whatever description, freehold, leasehold, &c. of which I may be possessed at death," held to pass real estate agreed to be purchased. Holmes v. Baker, 2 Mad. 462. LANDS AGREED TO BE PURCHASED.

Devise of copyhold estate by the description of copyhold ground-rent good. Walker v. Shore, 19 Ves. 387. COPYHOLD.

Construction of a residuary devise as including under the general words, "estate and effects," a copyhold, not surrendered in favour of a younger son, subject to debts, the will reciting that the eldest son was provided for, and no freehold estate. Pennington v. Pennington, 1 V. & B. 406. RESIDUE; COPYHOLD.

Devise of profits will pass land. Allan v. Backhouse, 2 V. & B. 74. affd. 1 Jac. 631. RENTS & PROFITS.

Under a devise of "all my real property," copyhold estate passed to the devisee and his heirs. Nicholls v. Butcher, 18 Ves. 193. COPYHOLD.

Devise by general words, viz. messuages, lands, tenements, and hereditaments, for payment of debts, will include copyholds, if required; and the want of a surrender will be supplied. Kidney v. Cousmaker, 12 Ves. 136. TRUST TO PAY DEBTS; COPYHOLD.

Copyholds not intended to be comprehended in a devise to the wife in general terms, real and personal estate, so as to entitle her to have the surrender supplied. Church v. Munday, 12 Ves. 426. COPYHOLD.

Decree upon the answer admitting a contract, and a letter offering to sell at a valuation; for a conveyance on payment of the purchase money into the bank by the plaintiff on a certain day in default of payment, the bill to be dismissed with costs. No binding contract until payment, the estate, therefore, did not pass by a previous devise, but descended to the heir. Ginsburgh v. Louther, 12 Ves. 107. PR. DECREE; CONDITION PRECEDENT; CONTRACT FOR PURCHASE.

By general devise, an estate in which deviser has acquired an equitable title passes. Broome v. Monck, 10 Ves. 605.

Devise of copyhold estates in general terms unrestrained, to a child, passes all copyholds surrendered and not surrendered to use of will. Blunt v. Clitherow, 10 Ves. 589. COPYHOLD.

Estate contracted for after general devise will pass by republication, and must be paid out of personal estate. Broome v. Monck, 10 Ves. 605. CONTRACT; REPUBLICATION.

Where a written agreement for the purchase of an estate has been executed, the purchaser has the estate in equity, and it will pass by his will which will not be revoked by the subsequent conveyance. Rose v. Cunningham, 11 Ves. 554.

Estate contracted for will pass by a subsequent devise of all lands, the devisor being equitable owner under the contract. Capel v. Girdler, 9 Ves. 510. LANDS AGREED TO BE PURCHASED.

Rule that trust estate will pass by a general devise is confined by objects appearing on will inconsistent with that intention. Exp. Morgan, 10 Ves. 101. TRUST.

Under general word "estate" in will, real estate passes unless restrained by apparent contrary intent. Woolam v. Kenworthy, 9 Ves. 137.

The word "estate" in a will, unless qualified, passes both real and personal estate. Barnes v. Patch, 8 Ves. 604.

Copyhold estates purchased and surrendered to uses declared or to be declared by will concerning the same, passed according to a will previous to the purchase, devising all copyholds generally, and therefore containing a description applicable to them. Att. Gen. v. Vigor, 8 Ves. 256.

A remote reversion in real estates and lands to be purchased and settled, will pass by general words in a will as "all and every other my lands, tenements, and hereditaments," though the uses are immediate. But the purchase being postponed to the death of the devisor, the reversion in the estates to be purchased and settled to the same uses subsequent to his death, not being an interest vested to him, did not pass; and though, upon the settlement, a power of appointment was implied, the will particularly executing express powers, did not amount to an execution of that implied power. Id. ib.

Lands originally held under old mortgages passed by a general disposition by will as the testator's estate though no release of the equity of redemption appeared. Id. ib.

Every gift of land, even a general residuary devise, is specific, and that only to which the party is entitled at the time can pass; in the case of personal property, what he has at his death will pass, and if the description is specific, it may operate as a direction to purchase. Namock v. Horton, 7 Ves. 399.

Estate held by copy of court roll, according to custom of manor, but in case of intestacy distributable as personal estate, and in other respects differing from copyhold; held to pass under a residuary bequest of personal estate, and not with copyhold messuages, &c. with limitations in strict settlement, upon whole will and circumstances. Watkins v. Lea, 6 Ves. 633. CUSTOMARY ESTATE.

Lands originally held under old mortgages, pass by general devise; though no release of equity of redemption appears. Att. Gen. v. Bowyer, 3 Ves. 714. See S. C. further, 5 Ves. 300. ADMON. OF ASSETS; MORTGAGE.

The legal estate in mortgaged premises did not pass by a general residuary devise by the mortgagee. Dk. Leeds v. Munday, 3 Ves. 348. MORTGAGE.

Devise of lands not in settlement will pass the reversion of the settled lands. Glover v. Spendlowe, 4 Bro. C. C. 337.

Personal estate to be laid out in land, but lent on mortgage instead, considered as land, having been always out in trustees, and the uses never united with the possession, and passed by such general words in will as would pass land, as "all my estates, &c. wherever and wheresoever." Rashleigh v. Master, 1 Ves. J. 201. S. C. 3 Bro. C. C. 99. MONEY DIRECTED TO BE LAID OUT; ADMON. OF ASSETS.

Testator gave to his executors "all his goods, estates, bonds, debts, to be sold," &c. The word "estates" will pass a copyhold, which was surrendered to the use of the will. Jongsma v. Jongsma, 1 Cox, 362. COPYHOLD.

Devise of "all I am worth" will pass real estate. Hurstep v. Bromman, 1 Bro. C. C. 437.

An equity of redemption in copyholds passes by will without surrender. Macnamara v. Jones, 1 Bro. C. C. 481. EQUITY OF REDEMPTION; COPYHOLD, SURRENDER TO USE OF WILL.

A, seised in fee, and in possession of several real estates, and of the reversion in fee of the manor of S, subject to the estate tail of three persons who were living, devises all his estates generally to trustees in trust to be sold, and to invest the money for benefit of younger children. This reversion falls in after the death of A; held that reversion passed by will, and was well vested in trustees for the benefit of the testator's younger children. Atkins v. Atkins, 3 Bro. P. C. 408. REVERSION.

Devise of the residue of real and personal estate to executors for A, till he attain twenty-one, and then the trust to cease, passes the whole beneficial estate to A. Peut v. Powell, Ambl. 387. S. C. 1 Eden, 479.

Whether by words "all the rest of my estate and fortune" in a will, copyhold estate as well as freehold passed; qu.? Dod v. Dod, Ambl. 275.

By a devise of land mortgaged in fee, the equity of redemption alone passes; if for years, the reversion and equity of reversion passes. Forrester v. Leigh, Ambl. 174. MORTGAGE.

One devises to J all his freehold, leasehold, and copyhold estates in E, and gave the rest of his estates, both freehold and leasehold, to M. He had freehold and leasehold in M, but no copyhold out of E. Held J took the fee in the freehold and copyhold, and the absolute property in the leasehold in E. Macree v. Tall, Ambl. 182.

The word "estate" in a will, without words to restrain the generality of the sense, will carry a fee. Id. ib.

Lands agreed to be purchased pass by general words in a will, such as "or elsewhere." Republication by a codicil. Potter v. Potter, 1 Ves. 437. S. C. 3 Atk. 719. and Ambl. 98. upon other points. LANDS AGREED TO BE PURCHASED.

It has been held that, where estate is mentioned generally, accompanied with personal things, it should be restrained to personal, but never where real estate is mentioned; for then the personal things mentioned shall be considered only as an enumeration of those specific things. Bailis v. Gale, 2 Ves. 51.

Devise of "all lands, messuages, &c." will pass copyholds, where the introductory words shew testator's intent to dispose of all his estate. Goodwyn v. Goodwyn, 1 Ves. 226. COPYHOLD.

Devise of profits is a devise of land. Johnson v. Arnold, 1 Ves. 171.

C gave all his messuages, lands, tenements, and hereditaments in A. and elsewhere, and all other his real estates to trustees for 500 years, and after the determination of the term he gave all the premises to his wife for life sans waste. All the estates having come originally from the wife, testator could not mean to sever the copyhold from the freehold; therefore, by the general words of the will, the copyhold passed. Carr v. Ellison, 3 Atk. 73. Vide Smith v. Baker, 1 Atk. 386. COPYHOLD.

By a devise of all lands and tenements, only freeholds will pass; yet, if he had nothing but copyholds, they shall pass; and leaseholds, if there are no other, will pass by these words. Exp. Caswell, 1 Atk. 560.

Whatever words there may be in a will relative to copyhold lands, they can have no effect if there were no surrender; for nothing can pass a legal estate, but what will pass it in law. Trodd v. Downs, 2 Atk. 304. S. C. 9 Mod. 292. COPYHOLD.

Copyhold surrendered to use of a will, will pass by a general devise of lands, notwithstanding there are freeholds. Tendril v. Smith, 2 Atk. 85. COPYHOLDS, SURRENDER TO USE OF WILL.

Trust of copyhold estate, and copyhold surrender to use of will, will pass by will untested. Tuffnell v. Page, Dick. 76.

"All my freehold lands in tenure of L, and the residue of my estate, consisting of ready money, plate, jewels, leases, judgments, mortgages, &c., or in any other thing whatsoever and wheresoever, I give to A, or her assigns for ever." The court will intend an intestacy in favour of the heir at law, unless there is a clear intention to pass the real estate. Timevell v. Perkins, 1 Atk. 102.

Devise of plate, jewels, linen, household goods, and coach and horses, will be confined to things of the same nature; and goldsmiths' notes, and bank-bills do not pass by those words. Id.

Where a man devises all his estate, real and personal, to a wife or child, and has no other real estate but the copyhold, it shall pass by those general words. Smith v. Baker, 3 Atk. 386. COPYHOLD.

If a testator, after devising all "his lands, tenements, and hereditaments," foreclose an equity of redemption of a mortgage in fee, such estate will not pass by these general words, because a foreclose is considered as a new purchase of the land. Castorne v. Scarfe, 1 Atk. 605. MORTGAGE, FORECLOSURE.

A testator's setting out in his will, to give and dispose of his worldly estate, is a strong proof that he intends to dispose of the inheritance of his lands, when there are sufficient words in the following parts of the will for that purpose; the words, estate at such a place, or in such a place, may carry a fee. The whole complexion of a will ought to be considered. Ibbetson v. Beckwith, Forres. 157. See vide Denn v. Gaskin, Cowp. 657.

Where there is a surrender of copyhold lands to the use of the will, they will not pass by a general devise of lands. Hawkins v. Leigh, 1 Atk. 387. See 1 P.W. 60. COPYHOLD.

If I devise all my lands and hereditaments in Dale, and have a manor in Dale, the manor, as it is an hereditament in Dale, will pass; but if I have the manor in Dale, and also land there, not parcel of the manor, it is a question whether the manor will pass by devise of all my lands. Hastewood v. Pope, 3 P.W. 322.

If I have a freehold and copyhold lands in Dale, and devise all my land and hereditaments in Dale to pay my debts, only my freehold shall pass: that be sufficient; secus, if I have surrendered the copyhold to the use of my will. Id. ib.

J, having lands in A and B, settles lands in A, to particular uses, remainder to his own right heirs; then devises all his lands in B, and elsewhere, not formerly settled: hereby the reversion of lands in A passes. Chester v. Chester, Fitz. 150. S. C. 3 P.W. 55.

Tenant in tail, with remainders in tail, the reversion in fee to tenant in tail, the land having been mortgaged for a term of years by donor, previous to those estates, and so every of them having an equity of redemption incident to it. Tenant in tail by will appoints the mortgage to be paid off, and then mortgaged term to be assigned to his mother, and by same will, (being seised in fee of other lands,) devises all lands to W and his heirs, by which reversion of mortgaged premises passes, on the estate tail and remainder in tail being spent: held, that the equity of redemption, which was incident to the reversion in fee of tenant in tail did not pass to mother by the will, and was therefore not severed from the reversion. Amhurst v. Litton, Fitz. 99. Affd. 5 Bro. P. C. 254.

REVERSION, SEVERANCE FROM.

"I devise all my land and estate in D to J;" decreed, a fee passes, these words charging not only the lands, but also the testator's interest in the land. Barry v. Edgeworth, 2 P.W. 523. ESTATE, FEE SIMPLE.

J S, after the devise of several parts of his real and personal estates to several persons, devises the interest and produce of the surplus of his real and personal estate to his grand-children, until their age of twenty-one; this will pass the absolute right and property of the real and personal estate to the grand-children after that age. Newland v. Shephard, 2 P.W. 194.

By a devise of a house, cum pertinentiis, only the garden and orchard will pass with it; but by a devise of a house with the land appertaining thereto, the land usually occupied therewith will pass. One devised that his cousin A should continue to live at his house, and be at the charge of keeping the house and the servants, and coach-horses, which the testator employed in ploughing the ground, and spend the corn arising therefrom, in the house; here the land enjoyed with the house shall pass to the cousin A. Blackburn v. Edgley, 1 P.W. 603.

A devise thus: "I make my niece G executrix of all my goods, lands, and chattels," and dies, not having any leasehold interest, yet her lands of inheritance pass not by these words. Piggott v. Penrice, Prec. Chanc. 471. ESTATE REAL.

A begins his will with disposing of all his worldly estate, and then wills that all his debts be first paid, and gives his wife a moiety of what is left, after his debts paid. The real estate is charged with the debts, and a fee in a moiety of the surplus of the real estate passes to the wife. Brachcroft v. Beachcroft, 2 Vern. 690. ESTATE, FEE SIMPLE.

A devises to his brother B, all his lands and hereditaments, and all his personal estate desiring him to pay his debts and legacies. A fee passes. Ackland v. Ackland, 2 Vern. 687. ESTATE, FEE SIMPLE.

A, having settled all his estates of inheritance upon his wife for life as a jointure, by will says, "all the rest and residue of my estate, chattels, real and personal, I give to my wife, who I make sole executrix:" held, that the reversion of the jointure lands did not pass by this devise, but the personal estate only. Markant v. Twisden, Gilb. Eq. Rep. 30. Ld. Keeper said, that this case differed from Murray v. Wise, 2 Vern. 564; and that no resolution was ever carried so far as to construe these words to pass a fee.

A articles to purchase lands in trust for B, and before any conveyance made, B by will directed all his freehold estate to be settled on C, and his first son, &c. The lands article for will pass by the will. Greenhill v. Greenhill, 2 Vern. 679. Prec. Ch. 320. S. C. LANDS AGREED TO BE PURCHASED.

A devise of lands, out of settlement, will pass as well those lands of which the testator was seised in fee at the time of making his will, as those which were comprised in a settlement made on his marriage, the particular uses of which were determined by his having no male issue. Visc. Falkland v. Lytton, 3 Bro. P. C. 24.

A, by virtue of several settlements, being tenant in tail after possibility of issue extinct, of some lands, remainder in fee, to trustees in trust for him and his heirs, and to some other lands being tenant for life, remainder to his first, &c. sons, remainder to trustees in fee, in trust for the right heirs of B, whose heir he was, and as to other lands being tenant in tail, remainder to the right heirs of his father; and having no issue, by will devised to his nephew all his lands, tenements, and hereditaments, out of settlement; decreed all the lands so settled to pass by this devise. Strode v. Russell, 2 Vern. 621. 3 Ch. Rep. 169. S. C.

Lands with a power of revocation, will not pass by a devise of lands out of settlement. Id. 624.

Mortgages in fee though forfeited, will not pass by a general devise, of "all my lands, tenements, and hereditaments;" nor will they pass by such a general devise, though the equity of redemption is afterwards foreclosed or released. Id. ib.

A devised a farm to B, for life, and after some legacies, devises all other his personal estate, lands, tenements, and hereditaments, not before devised, to C. The reversion of the farm passed by the general devise to C. Kingsman v. Kingsman, 2 Vern. 560. REVERSION.

A, seised in fee, devises blackacre to B for life, and devised to C, all his lands not before devised, to be sold. By this devise of all his lands, &c. the reversion of black acre was well devised to C. Rooke v. Rooke, 2 Vern. 461. Pre. Ch. 202, S. C. 1 Freem. 519.

One devises all his goods, chattels, and estate, whatsoever, on condition to pay his debts and legacies; these words pass his real estate, he having by will devised a considerable legacy to his eldest son, and other legacies and the surplus of his estate after his wife's death, to be equally divided between his four children. Lumley v. May, Prec. Chan. 37.

(b) Personal.

A testator, seised of estates in fee, and holding certain lands and tithes in the county of H, under church leases for lives, devised all his lands and hereditaments in the counties of H, and G, and all other his real estate to his daughter, and the heirs of her body, and for default of such issue, to F, and his heirs. The daughter at the testator's death, and ever afterwards, was of unsound mind. Her husband having taken out administration to the testator, with the will annexed, procured from time to time, renewals of the leases. She survived him as well as all the cestui que vies named in the testator's leases, and died without issue, and without having done any act to bar such interest as F had under the devise: held, that the leaseholds for lives passed by the will; and that F was entitled to the benefit of the subsisting leases, which had been obtained by way of renewal of the old leases. Fitzroy v. Howard, 3 Russ. 225.

Seemle, that by a devise of a W. I. plantation, the stock, implements, utensils, &c. upon it will pass. Lushington v. Sewell, 1 Sim. 435.

A policy of insurance for 3000*l.* on A's life was assigned to trustees, and, by a deed of even date, trusts were declared of it by the description of "the sum of 3000*l.* for which A's life was insured," and power was given to B, to dispose of it by will. B, after reciting the settlement, bequeathed 1000*l.*, part of the sum of 3000*l.* to A, and the remaining sum of 2000*l.* to C. At A's death, 9000*l.* was received under the policy: held that the whole fruits of the policy were subject to the trusts of the settlement, and passed by the bequests to A and C, in proportion to their legacies. Courtney v. Ferrers, 1 Sim. 137. BONUS; POLICY OF INSURANCE.

A, being possessed of a lease of manor lands and hereditaments for twenty-one years, granted by the warden of an hospital, assigned by his marriage settlement, the premises and all his interest, benefit, and advantage of a renewal therein, &c. to trustees upon trust, out of the rents and profits, to pay the rents, perform the covenants, raise a competent sum for renewing the lease from time to time as should be customary, and renew the lease accordingly, and subject thereto to pay the rents to A, during his life, and after his death to stand possessed of the leasehold premises, on certain trusts for the sons of the marriage, and on failure of those trusts for A absolutely. A, by his will devised his manor, hospital lands, and hereditaments, situate in, &c. held by lease from, &c. to the same persons who were trustees of his marriage settlement, with directions to perform the covenants in the new lease, or any leases hereafter to be procured, to collect out of the rents a competent sum for renewing the lease, and to renew the same from time to time. After the date of his will, A surrendered the existing lease, and obtained a renewed lease. Held, that this renewed lease passed by, and was subject to the trusts of this will. Colegrave v. Manby, 2 Russ. 238.

A testatrix gave the interest of the residue to her brother during life, and after his death she gave the residue to her executors in trust for four persons by name, and the survivors and survivor of them, to be paid to them respectively when they should attain twenty-one, with interest in the meantime; two of those four persons who died during the life of the brother, held that they did not take vested interests in any part of the residue, but that the whole of it belonged to the two survivors. During the lifetime of the testatrix's brother, one of the two survivors assigned all her furniture, plate, &c. and all other the estate and effects, of or to which she was then possessed or entitled, to trustees upon trust for her creditors; the assignment did not pass her contingent interest in the testatrix's residuary estate. Pope v. Whitcombe, 3 Russ. 124. INTEREST, VESTED.

A testatrix, who was entitled to a distributive share of the assets of an intestate, to whom, at her death, no administration had been taken out, bequeaths "all such sums of money as should be owing to her, at the time of her decease, from G B." These words will not pass her beneficial interest in a sum of money which was then due from G B to the estate of the intestate. Collins v. Doyle, 1 Russ. 135.

A testator, after expressing an intention to dispose of his whole estate, and giving legacies of 100*l.* to each of five persons, desires all his goods and moveable effects to be equally divided between them, and then bequeaths 20*l.* to a person whom he appoints executor; afterwards, by a codicil, he directs the money to be paid to those five persons in twelve months, and his utensils and goods to be given to them in one month after his decease. Held, that the words "goods and moveable effects," are to be limited to utensils and articles, ejusdem generis, and that the testator died intestate with respect to the beneficial interest in the general residue of his property. Sutton v. Sharp, 1 Russ. 146.

A bequest of "my furniture, plate, books, and live stock, or what else I may be possessed of at the time of my decease," will pass the general residuary estate, though followed by specific bequests and devises to the same person, and by gifts of pecuniary legacies to various other persons. Fleming v. Burrow, 1 Russ. 276.

A testator directs that his household furniture, &c., and utensils in and about his mansion house at H, should go with the mansion house, and that for that purpose his trustees should make an inventory of the furniture, &c., and utensils which should be found in and about his mansion house and premises at the time of his decease. These words do not pass farming utensils on lands at H, occupied by the testator, along with the mansion house. Fitzgerald v. Field, 1 Russ. 427.

Testator, after bequeathing to A and B legacies of stock, unequal in amount, and giving several legacies to public charities, requests the said A and B to be his executors, and gives to them as such one hundred guineas each: he then orders his books, jewels, plate, and household furniture to be sold, and after desiring mourning to be provided for his servants, and five guineas each to be given to several persons named in the will, and to his two executors for a ring as a token of remembrance, concludes his will in the following manner: "In case there is any money remaining, I should wish it to be given in private charity." Held, that the general residue of the testator's personal estate, consisting of a leasehold estate, money in the funds, and a balance in cash, was not comprehended in the residuary clause, which was confined to the residue of the produce of the articles which the testator directed to be sold. Ommaney v. Butcher, 1 Turn. & R. 260.

Testatrix, by her will, disposes of certain long annuities, and of a sum in cash, and then uses the following words; "I believe there will be sufficient money left to pay my funeral expenses." By a codicil to her will, the testatrix expresses herself thus: "If there is money left unemployed, I desire it may be given in charity." Held, that the general residue of the testatrix's personal estate, including a sum of 2500*l.* trust monies, in which she had a vested reversionary interest at the time of her death, subject to be devested by the appointment of her mother, passed under the words "money left unemployed," and was well given to charity. Id. 265.

Bequest of household furniture and other household effects in dwelling house and premises, comprises all property kept therein either for use or ornament of the same. Cole v. Fitzgerald, 1 S. & S. 189.

The words "securities for money," in a will, pass stock in public funds, unless force of expression is controlled by context. Quere as to bank stock? Besoby v. Pack, 1 S. & S. 500. STOCK.

General gift of income, arising from personal property, is equivalent to general gift of property itself, and it makes no difference whether it be given through trustee, or to legatee direct. Hay v. Swiney, 1 S. & S. 487.

Bequest, after the death of certain annuitants, of a sum set apart by the court for payment of them, or of such part of it as should not, by reason of their deaths, have been assigned or transferred. Held, that a sum which had been ordered to be transferred on the death of an annuitant, but had not been actually transferred, did not pass. Hooper v. Goodwin, 1 Jac. 375.

Seamble, bequest of "the manor and hospital lands which he held by lease," passes a renewed lease. Colegrave v. Manby, 6 Mad. 84.

Words of will were, "all my other effect I will to J, &c. to be sold for his benefit," held all residue of testator's property, including money, passed thereby to J. Hearne v. Wiggington, 6 Mad. 119.

Testator possessed of 5000*l.* three per cent. consols, bequeathed 2000*l.* thereof to trustees in trust, as to 1000*l.* for G, and as to 2000*l.* for B. Held that testator meant to give trustees 3000*l.* in trust. Bequest to them being mentioned only once, and the legacy of the 2000*l.* to B, being mentioned twice. Alford v. Green, 5 Mad. 92. WILL C. OR, MISTAKE.

On construction of will, held word "effects" coupled with context, operated as a bequest of the whole personal estate. Mitchell v. Mitchell, 5 Mad. 69.

Devise of real estate to M for life, and direction "that timber or wood which should be on his real estates, should from time to time be used for repairing the houses thereupon, or otherwise, for the benefit or advantage of his estate, and that the same should be sold, and the money arising therefrom should be applied," &c. Held devise to M carried the under-wood, and that trustees leaving sufficient timber for repairs, might cut all fit timber, except ornamental. Butler v. Borton, 5 Mad. 40. TIMBER.

Reasons for the rules on which a residuary bequest of personal estate, is extended to that which testator subsequently acquires. Bland v. Lamb, 2 J. & W. 405. RESIDUARY.

Very special words are required to confine a residuary bequest to property belonging to testator at date of his will. Id. ib.

Bequest of the balance in the hands of testator's agents at the time of his death, held to include a sum which he had by letter directed them to invest in the funds; but which was not invested till after his death. Hill v. Mason, 2 Jac. & W. 248.

Under a bequest of "all debts due, and owing to the testator at the time of his death," a bond conditioned for replacing a sum of stock sold by the testator, after the date of his will, and lent by him to the obligor, was held to pass; the day stipulated for the reinvestment being passed at the time of his death, therefore, not comprehended in the residuary devise, enumerating (among other things) "his government stocks and funds." Festington v. Tashon, 3 Mer. 434.

Legacies of 1000*l.* stock, held not to pass additional capital, given as bonus by bank under 56 G. 3. c. 96. subsequent to will, and before testator's death. Norris v. Harrison, 2 Mad. 268. BANK OF ENGLAND; BONUS; LEGACY.

J tenant for life, remainder, to W for life remainder to J in fee; during life of J, houses on estate were burnt down, and insurance money paid to J the insurer, and placed in funds in his name; J by will devised estate to R in fee, and his personal estate to W. W applied part of insurance money in repairing house on estate; insurance money unapplied remains in J's name, W by will stated the circumstances as to fund so standing in his brother's name, and bequeathed residue of his personal property. Held insurance money passed to R as devisee of J. Id. ib. INSURANCE MONEY.

Money at a banker's, held to pass under a bequest of all debts due to the testator at the time of his death. Deaquies v. Noble, 1 Mer. 541.

An unlimited gift of the produce of any thing, as the interest of stock, gives the principal also. Stretch v. Watkins, 1 Mad. 253.

Testator gives "all his stock, cattle, horses, and carriages" to his wife absolutely, and gives his farm "and stock, and crop thereof" to his said wife during widowhood. Held live stock upon the farm given to the wife during widowhood, passed to her absolutely under the former clause. Randall v. Russell, 3 Mer. 190. And see case of Hardman v. Johnson, id. 347.

Bequest to a woman of a fund, with the interest thereon, to be vested in trustees, the income arising therefrom to be for her sole use and benefit, vests the capital for her separate use. Adamson v. Armitage, 19 Ves. 416. S. C. Coop. 283. FEME COVERT.

Bequest of the produce of a fund, is a gift of that produce in perpetuity, and consequently of the fund itself, unless not the intention on the face of the will. Id. 418.

Bequest of "all the testator's money in the bank of England," held to pass stock in the funds, testator having never had any cash in the bank. Gallini v. Noble, 3 Mer. 691.

Bequest of leasehold premises, and all my estate, term, and interest therein, the interest acquired under a subsequent renewal of the lease does not pass. Slatter v. Norton, 16 Ves. 197. LEASE, RENEWAL OR.

Testatrix reciting that she was possessed of 12,000*l.* three per cent. consolidated bank annuities standing in her name, gave and bequeathed the same or so much of such bank annuities as should be standing in her name at her death. At the date of her will, and at her death she had near 15,000*l.* in that fund, besides other stock. The excess beyond the sum mentioned did not pass. Hotham v. Sutton, 15 Ves. 319.

A residuary bequest in general terms: Revocation by a codicil as to "plate, linen, household goods, and other effects," (money excepted.) The exception prevents the restrained construction in general, of the words, "other effects," viz. ejusdem generis. Stock, therefore, which does not pass under the word "money," was included with leasehold and all personal property, except money and bank notes. Id. 320.

Construction of an obscure will, 1st, That the income only, not the capital, was disposed of; 2ndly, That the disposition was in favour of the younger children, excluding the eldest. A legacy not as an independent bequest, with a time for payment, or distribution appointed afterwards, but the time annexed to the substance of the bequest; the interests do not vest before that period. Sansbury v. Read, 12 Ves. 75. WILL, C. OF, WHO TAKE; INTEREST VESTED.

The word "effects" in a will, restrained to articles ejusdem generis with those specified, though the consequence was a residuum undisposed of. Rawlings v. Jennings, 13 Ves. 39.

Testator gave all his waggon ways, rails, stiths, and all implements, utensils, and things at his death, used or employed, together with, or in or for the working, management, or employment of his collieries, and which may be deemed as of the nature of personal estate, in trust to be held or enjoyed with the collieries. Decree by Ld. Rosslyn that under this bequest, and upon the circumstances, money due from the fitters and others, and in the Tyne bank, coals at the pits and stiths, corn, hay, horses, timber, oil, candles, fire-engines, and other articles of stock in trade, passed. The decree affirmed upon a rehearing by Ld. Eldon, but with considerable doubt, was reversed by the House of Lords. Stuart v. Mary. Bute, 11 Ves. 657, reversing id. 3 Ves. 212.

"Goods and chattels" will pass all personal estate, but after furniture, &c. are restrained to articles ejusdem generis. Id. 666.

A silversmith bequeathing all his furniture, books, goods, and chattels, his stock in trade would not pass, though the plate in his house, as household furniture, would. Id. ib.

Contract for purchase generally; by a devise of real estate before the purchase is complete, the money will pass. Broome v. Monck, 10 Ves. 615. CONTRACT FOR PURCHASE.

Bequest of leaseholds for years determinable upon lives, for life, with remainder over, for all the residue of the testator's term and interest to come therein at his decease: the term expired in the life of the testator, who continued to hold, and paid half a year's rent before his death as tenant by the year; upon the general words unrestrained, comprising the interest from year to year, and the intention upon the whole will, a subsequent lease obtained by the executrix, the widow and tenant for life under the will, was held subject to the uses of the will, as the residue of the term at his death, if any, however short, would have been. James v. Dean, 11 Ves. 383. affil. 15 Ves. 236.

A renewed lease does not pass by a previous will bequeathing the lease or the premises held on lease. Id. 387.

Bequest of the debts that shall be due at the death of the testator, by mortgages, bonds, or open accounts from certain persons, extended from the explanation of a similar bequest, by another clause to debts of every description; therefore, including judgments. Stenhouse v. Mitchell, 11 Ves. 352.

Bequest of "all my property in A except" a particular chose in action described in the will: other chooses in action of testator found in A, do not pass, notwithstanding the exception. Fleming v. Brook, 1 Scho. & L. 318. CHOSE IN ACTION.

By a devise in general terms, a trust estate will pass, unless an intention to the contrary can be collected from expressions in the will or purposes or objects of the testator. Ld. Braybrooke v. Inskip, 8 Ves. 417. TRUST.

Devise of all freehold lands would include leases for lives, though the limitations are inapplicable. Watkins v. Lea, 6 Ves. 642. LEASE FOR LIVES.

Under residuary disposition by will to natural son, his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns for ever, to and for his and their own use and behoof, a trust estate did not pass. Exp. Brettell, 6 Ves. 576. BASTARD; TRUST.

General devise of all manors, messuages, lands, tenements and hereditaments in the county of Y. or elsewhere, with long limitations in strict settlement, and a residuary disposition of the personal estate also by very general words. The Ld. Ch. was clearly of opinion that two leasehold houses passed with the personal estate, and not under the devise of the land; but granted a case. Thompson v. Lawley, 5 Ves. 476.

A general devise by a trustee did not pass the trust estate. Att. Gen. v. Buller, 5 Ves. 339. TRUST.

Testator gave, devised and bequeathed all his messuages, lands, tenements, and hereditaments whatsoever and wheresoever, and all monies in the funds to trustees, their heirs, executors, administrators and assigns, according to the several and respective estates and interests therein, and declared the trust of the rents, issues, and profits, dividends, interest, and proceeds, subject to ground rents and other outgoings in respect of his said messuages, lands, &c.; the leasehold estates pass with the freehold upon the subsequent words. Hartley v. Hurle, 5 Ves. 540.

Stock included in a will under the word "securities," legacies being charged for which the securities properly so called were not sufficient. Dicks v. Lambert, 4 Ves. 725.

On construction of will, held that the capital of the residue passed by implication though the interest and dividends only were expressly given. Phillips v. Chamberlaine, 4 Ves. 51.

Testator gave all the residue of his personal estate to his wife, except such parts as should be in and about his house; which parts he gave to his son, and directed the household furniture to go as heir looms, and gave all arrears of rent which should be due to him at his death to his son; a bond to secure an old arrear of rent, and cash, both found in an iron chest, in which the steward kept the cash arising from the rents, belong to residuary legatee. Jones v. Ld. Sefton, 4 Ves. 166.

Under a bequest of the use of a house with all the furniture and stock, of carriages and horses, and other live and dead stock for life; plate passed; wine and books did not. Porter v. Tournay, 3 Ves. 311.

Testator gave 1000*l.* stock to a married woman for her separate use, and whenever she should die, to be absolutely in her own power to dispose of by will or writing purporting to be her will, to any person or persons, purpose or purposes she should then think proper; but in case of failure of any such disposition or appointment, to go over. This is not a power but an absolute gift, qualified only to exclude the husband upon the death of his wife, therefore it passed by general words in her will. Hales v. Margerum, 3 Ves. 299. POWER.

Testator devised all his manors, messuages, lands, tenements, tithes, and hereditaments, and all his real estate whatsoever, "except what is hereinafter mentioned and devised," to the use of all his children successively, in strict settlement; and gave two of them annuities which he charged upon a rectory held by him under a lease for lives, which he directed to be renewed, if those two children or either should be living at his death, and that their lives or that of the survivor should be inserted in the new lease, and the fine paid out of his personal estate. He gave part of his personal estate specifically, and directed the residue to be laid out in land to be settled to the same uses as his real estate; but afterwards by a testamentary paper unattested, he disposes of his personal estate otherwise. The heir contracted to sell the lease of the rectory, and upon a case directed to the court of K. B. on his bill for specific performance, the certificate was, that the lease did not pass by the will, but devolved on the heir as special occupant; but the 1d. Ch. considered that title too doubtful to be forced on a purchaser. An act of parliament was therefore obtained. Sheffield v. Ld. Mulgrave, 2 Ves. J. 525. VENDOR & P.; TITLE.

Testator devised freehold estate to his brother and his wife for their lives, remainder to A, his nephew, and the heirs male of his body; and for default of such issue to B in the same manner, remainder over; he gave so much of the same estate as was leasehold to his brother and his wife for so many years of the term as they or the survivor should live; and directed that after the decease of the survivor, the leasehold premises should, from time to time be held and enjoyed, and belong to the several persons in succession, who should for the time being, be entitled to the freehold as far as the rules of law would admit, and gave the same directions as to the furniture of the mansion-house. By codicil reciting that he had devised the freehold part after failure of issue male of A, to B in tail male, &c., he revoked those limitations, and after failure of issue male of A, devised to others, and repeated the disposition he had made of the leasehold and furniture. A takes the leasehold absolutely. Fordyce v. Ford, 2 Ves. J. 536.

Devise of lands, tenements, and hereditaments, subject to a term of eleven years, in trust, to receive the rents, issues, and profits, of the premises that from time to time should accrue and become due, and dispose, &c. An advowson in gross passes, and a sale of the next presentation within the term by direction, and for the benefit of the cestui que trust, was established. El. Albemarle v. Rogers, 2 Ves. J. 477. ADVOWSON.

Testatrix mortgagee of an estate, of which her brother was tenant for life, and having his bond for some arrears of interest, bequeathed to him the arrears of her mortgage on his estate; likewise a bond from him in her possession; half of the mortgage money was paid before the will; the principal mortgage money does not pass. Hamilton v. Lloyd, 2 Ves. J. 416.

Testator gave all his plate and linen in his house in S to his wife; he had but one set of plate and linen, which was usually removed with the family from house to house. The plate happened to be at B, the country house, at his death; yet it passed to the wife. Laud v. Devaynes, 4 Bro. C. C. 537. LEGACY, ADEMP-TION OF.

Goods removed for a necessary purpose, the legacy of them is not adeemed, as from fire; or sent to be repaired, &c. Id. ib.

Bequest of all my clothes and linen whatsoever, passes body linen only. Hunt v. Hort, 3 Bro. C. C. 311.

Testatrix directed all her estate to be turned into cash; if amounting to 20,000*l.* to go thus; if less, in similar proportions, then subject to some legacies, debts, &c.; the residue of her estate in sixteenths: Two to her mother for life, the others to different persons absolutely. She then made three residuary legatees.

Legacy decreed to fema covert: settlement directed. Green v. Scott, 1 Ves. J. 282.

Copyhold estate shall not pass by general description, where there is freehold to satisfy the words, though it had been supposed to be freehold; and the first devise was for payment of debts, and then given to a younger child, otherwise provided for. Lindopp v. Thorall, 3 Bro. C. C. 188. COPYHOLD.

"All my estates in law and equity" in a will, pass personal property to be laid out in land. Rashleigh v. Master, 1 Ves. J. 204. S. C. 3 Bro. C. C. 99. MONEY TO BE Laid OUT IN LAND.

Testator gave to his son "all sum and sums of money due to me, from him, on bond or bonds, or any other security." The son was indebted to testator by bond at the date of the will, and afterwards became indebted to him by another bond. The bequest does not include the subsequent bond. Smallman v. Gooden, 1 Cox, 329. DEBTOR & CREDITOR.

Testator gives a debt due from "I on bond, 300*l.* and upwards" to A, B, and C. The debt is 350*l.*, viz. 200*l.* by bond and 100*l.* by covenant, and 50*l.* held, that the three sums pass to A, B, and C. Williams v. Williams, 2 Bro. C. C. 87.

D, being possessed of 4000*l.* 4 per cent. bank annuities, by his will gave parts of it to a number of persons, he then made a codicil in which he said, "I find willed away only 5600*l.* 4 per cent. bank annuities, and I have there at present 6000*l.* I give the interest of the remaining 400*l.* to F." It appeared that he had disposed of only 3200*l.* of the stock by his will. F shall take the whole residue of the stock under the bequest in the codicil. Dunvers v. Manning, 1 Cox, 203. S. C. 2 Bro. C. C. 18.

Ornaments of the person do not pass by a bequest of a cabinet of curiosities, even though occasionally shown with it. Cavendish v. Cavendish, 1 Bro. C. C. 467.

Diamonds and pearls made up for wear, will not pass by a devise of a cabinet or collection of curiosities, consisting of coins, medals, gems, and oriental stones, and other valuable things; valuable things must mean things ejusdem generis. S. C. 1 Cox, 77.

Devise of a leasehold estate, held under a college; after the will made, the lease is renewed; this new lease does not pass by the will. Hone v. Melerstaff, 1 Bro. C. C. 261. LEASE, RENEWAL OF.

A will in those words, "I give all in S to R," does not pass a bond which happened to be at testator's house in S. Moore v. Moore, 1 Bro. C. C. 127.

Testator having tithes in fee, and likewise tithes by leases perpetually renewable, devised all his lands, tenements, and tithes to defendant; the leasehold tithes pass as well as the freehold. Turner v. Hustler, 1 Bro. C. C. 78.

Bequest of leasehold ground-rents passes not the reserved rent only, but the reversionary leasehold interest. Kaye v. Laron, 1 Bro. C. C. 76.

Devise of real estate and personal, to be laid out and settled, with directions to the trustees, out of the rents of residue of his personal estate to raise and pay any money they should think proper and convenient, not exceeding 3000*l.* for the advancement of the plaintiff in any business, art, or profession, or in any civil or military employment, held to be a gift of the money. Metcalf v. Wilmot, Amb. 704.

Bequest of all his pictures, &c. they being a good collection; after-purchased pictures shall pass. A bequest of any species of personal estate is considered as fluctuating till the death of testator, and the whole of that species he has at his death, passes. Dean and Chapter of Christchurch v. Barrow, Amb. 641.

Under a bequest of household furniture, plate in the house at testator's death, whether in common use or not, if suitable to the rank of the testator; pictures hung up, linen, and china, both useful and ornamental.

tal in the house, will pass; books in a library will not pass. Kelly v. Powlet, Amb. 605. S. C. 1 Dick. 559.

By devise of all testator's goods and chattels in and about his dwellinghouse and outhouses at A, at his death: Held that running horses passed. Cs. Gover v. El. Gover, 2 Eden, 201. S. C. Amb. 612.

Household furniture comprises every thing that contributes to the use or convenience of the householder, or ornament of the house. Kelly v. Powlet, Amb. 610. S. C. Dick. 559.

Devise of freehold and copyhold estate; part consisted of a brewhouse and malthouse, which was in lease, together with the plant and utensils. Held that the plant passed. Wood v. Gaynon, Amb. 395.

Devise of all testator's real estates wheresoever situate, lying, and being; held not to include leaseholds as well as freeholds. Whitaker v. Ambler, 1 Eden, 151.

One having freehold and leasehold estate in C, devises all his manors, lands, tenements, mines of coal and lead, to, &c. Held the leasehold as well as freehold passed. Louchter v. Cucendish, Amb. 356. S. C. 1 Eden, 99.

'Trust estate will pass by a general devise. Hackins v. Oben, 2 Ves. 559. TRUST.

Devise of surplus rents and profits carries a right of presentation. Sheppard v. Harborough, Amb. 167. ADVOWSON.

Arrears of annuity held to pass under a bequest of "all arrears of rent and interest due." Hele v. Gilbert, 2 Ves. 430.

China held to pass under a bequest of furniture. Id. ib.

Testator intending to dispose of all his personal estate, gives the residue in fifth shares, but appoints his brother "heir to whatever part of his estate should be unappropriated by his will;" one of the five shares lapsed in testator's lifetime: held, that the above was an ultimate general residuary clause, and comprized this as including not merely what was not mentioned, but every thing not effectually given. Jackson v. Kelly, 2 Ves. 285.

Plate passes under a bequest of "household goods." Stapleton v. Conway, 1 Ves. 427.

Devise of all lands and tenements in or near F, by a will attested by two witnesses, only where the testator had freehold, will not pass leasehold; contra, if he had only had leasehold. Chapman v. Hart, 1 Ves. 271. WILL, EXECUTION OF.

Bequest of goods on board a ship, is good, though they may have been afterwards removed, and were not on board at the testator's death. Id. ib. SPEC. LEGACY, ADEMPITION OF.

Neither choses in action or securities for money pass under a bequest of "goods and chattels." Id. ib.

What passes by devise of all goods and chattels in a house, not a bond or chose in action. Id. ib.

Bank notes pass as cash by bequest of "all that should be in his house at testator's death." Popham v. Ly. Aylesbury, Amb. 68. BANK NOTES.

Devise by an E. I. captain of all household furniture, linen, plate, and apparel whatsoever, includes only what is for domestic use, not what for trade or merchandize. Le Forrant v. Spencer, 1 Ves. 97.

Upon a bill filed to have an assignment of rents and profits of a leasehold estate vested in defendant, in trust for plaintiff, the court, under the circumstances, held, that a will in 1735, was sufficient to pass the trust of a lease in being, and the subsequent renewals in 1739. Carte v. Carte, Ridgw. 210. 3 Atk. 174. Amb. 28. LEASE, RENEWAL OF.

The word "advantages" is sufficient to take in all the benefits belonging to the trust of an estate for years, not the profits only, but the renewals, which are consequential. Id. 3 Atk. 178. LEASE, RENEWAL OF.

A library of books will not pass as furniture. Bridgman v. Dove, 3 Atk. 202.

Where current coin is curious, and kept with medals it will pass as such. S. C.

A devise of a lease, and of the right of renewal, carries both the lease and the right. Abney v. Miller, 2 Atk. 598.

Where testator says, "I give all my estate, right, and interest I shall have to come in a college lease at the time of my death," though renewed after the will, it passes notwithstanding. S. C. Id. 599.

W devised all his household goods, cattle, corn, hay, and implements of husbandry, and stock belonging to his house, messuage, farm, and premises, held by him on lease, to his wife for life: held, that a malt-house being included in the lease, the stock of that as well as the stock in husbandry, will pass by this bequest. Brooksbank v. Wentworth, 3 Atk. 64.

A testatrix says, "I give to B, &c. all my goods, wearing apparel, of what nature and kind soever, except my gold watch:" held that all her wearing apparel and ornaments of her person passed to the legatee, and any other household goods and furniture, but no other part of her estate. So if a man gives a legacy and then says, "I give all my goods," it will pass the residue, though the word "goods," in common parlance, means "goods only," and not the whole personal estate. The words "all my goods, wearing apparel," shall not be confined to wearing apparel only, but shall be construed "goods and wearing apparel." Crichton v. Symes, 3 Atk. 61.

A devised all his estates to B, and had only leaseholds: held, they shall pass. So, where a man having lands in fee, and for years, devised all his lands, the fee-simple only shall pass; but where he had a lease for years, and no fee-simple, the lease for years shall pass, for otherwise the will would be void, and the court directed a trial at law upon this issue: Whether the testator had both freehold and leasehold, and in the same parish? Knotsford v. Gardiner, 2 Atk. 451.

Testator says, as to the rest and residue of his lands, &c, his will, is, that the annual profits should be equally divided between A & C, and said nothing about the personal estate. By all the rules of grammar as well as law, the words "rest and residue" must relate to something that went before; and, where testator calls it by the name of real estate, can never be said to affect his personal. Beauclerk v. Mead, 2 Atk. 168.

Money will not pass by a devise of all goods and things of every kind when the devise has a money legacy at the outset of the will. Roberts v. Ruffin, 2 Atk. 112. WILL, WHAT INTEREST.

Though a debt devised amounts to a less sum than is stated in the will, yet the wrong description and falling short will not defeat the legacy, but shall be applied as far as it goes in the same manner as if there had been the whole sum mentioned in the will. Att. Gen. v. Pyle, 1 Atk. 435.

An advowson does not pass by the word "tenement." Kensley v. Langham, Forres. 146. note (c). ADVOWSON.

One devises the sum of 6000*l.* S. S. stock to J S, and the testator has but 5360*l.* No more than the 5360*l.* shall pass, and the rest of the testator's personal estate not be obliged to make it up 6000*l.* But it might be otherwise if the testator had no stock at all. Ashton v. Ashton, 3 P. W. 384. Ca temp. Tal. 152.

One has no land in A, but has tithes there, and devises all his land in A; the tithes as they are issuing out of the land, and part of the land, and part of the profits thereof, shall pass. Id. 386.

Where a guardian by his will remits to his ward whatever is due to him for his maintenance, it will include all demands for his education. Anstis v. Gaudy, 4 Bro. P. C. 313.

One, by will, gives all his household goods and implements of household. The malt, hops, beer, ale and other victuals in the house do not pass; but the clock, if not fixed to the house, shall pass, but not the guns or pistols, if used as arms in riding or shooting game. Slunning v. Style, 3 P. W. 334.

Testator gave the residue of his estate to the poor of the parish of K in L, but that parish was in N. It was set up by the next of kin, that testator did not imagine his residuum would exceed 10*l.*, and had so declared, whereas it amounted to near 1000*l.* The court thought parol evidence should be admitted to help out the description of the parish, but not as to the quantity of the thing given. Brown v. Langley, 2 Barn. 1818. PR. EVID. PANOR.

Devise of all my household goods and other goods, plate, &c. to A; the residue of my personal estate to B. The ready money and bonds do not pass by the words "goods," for then the bequest of the residue would be void. Woolcomb v. Woolcomb, 3 P. W. 112.

Where arrears of a debt are bequeathed, they are confined to those due at time of making will. Gen. v. Burg, 1 Eq. Ab. 201.

Where testator devised all his goods, chattels, household furniture, stuff, and all other things which should be in his house at time of his death: Held, a sum of money there did not pass. Trafford v. Bertrige, 1 Eq. Ab. 201.

One seised in fee, and possessed by lease for twenty-one years of lands in D, devises all his lands in D, whereof he is seised, possessed, or any ways interested in, to A for life; remainder to B in tail; remainder to C, with power to make a jointure; remainder to trustees to preserve contingent remainders, &c.: Decreed, the leasehold should pass as well as the freehold. Addis v. Clement, 2 P. W. 456.

Plate in common use passes by the devise of household goods, notwithstanding any parol proof that it was not intended to pass. Nicholls v. Osborn, 2 P. W. 421.

A devised to her daughter F, "my strong box, and whatsoever is in it, and all my chests, and cabinets, and whatsoever is in them." This strong box was fixed upon a frame containing several drawers, and in these drawers were found Bank notes, and other things of value. Held, that the frame and drawers did not pass by the devise of the strong box: but on an appeal, this decree was reversed. Id. Pagel v. Dk. Bridgewater, 3 Bro. P. C. 79.

One makes his will and says, "as to such estate as God hath blessed me with, I devise in manner following;" after which he gives part to J S, and his heirs, &c., and devises the rest of his estate to his wife in fee; this passes a trust estate. Marlow v. Smith, 2 P. W. 198.

Bequest of household goods extends to all household goods purchased afterwards, and that are in the house at the testator's death. Masters v. Masters, 1 P. W. 424.

One devises lands to his younger sons at twenty-four, and in the mean time the rents and profits of the premises to his eldest son, and dies; and the eldest son devises all those rents and profits of the premises to his younger brothers, but not to be paid to them until twenty-four, and dies, leaving his younger brothers under twenty-four; only the rents and profits accruing from the death of the elder brother, the testator, shall pass. Tissen v. Tissen, 1 P. W. 500.

One possessed of a term for years, devises all the profits thereof to S; only the profits accruing from the death of the testator shall pass. Id. 503.

Plate in common use in a family shall pass as household goods. Masters v. Masters, 1 P. W. 425.

Where the will is writ blindly and hardly legible, and the legacies in figures; court referred it to a master to examine what those legacies were, and the master to be assisted with such as understood the art of writing. Id. ib. PR. REF. TO MASTER.

A, by will, taking notice that his natural son J had disobliged him, declared thus: "I do hereby resolve not to give him more than 20*l.* per ann. for life." And he gave his estate to his legitimate son. Per cur., the words do not amount to a devise; and the bastard shall take nothing. Holder v. Holder, Vin. tit. Devise. (10 B.) pl. 8.

One devises to his son the furniture of his house at D., and orders goods to be carried from London to his house at D., and agrees with carriers for that purpose, but dies before the goods are removed to D. These goods shall not pass by the will as part of the furniture of the house at D. Beaufort v. Dundonald, 2 Vern. 739.

J, devises all his household goods and furniture which should be in his house at K. at his death to his wife, and afterwards going beyond sea, his steward gets the landlord of the house to accept a surrender of the house, and removes the goods to another house, and writes an account of this to J, who approves of it. The goods will not pass by the will to the wife; otherwise if they had been removed by fraud to defeat the legacy, or by any fortuitous act without the privity of the testator. Shaftsbury v. Shaftsbury, 2 Vern. 747.

One being on ship board, and entitled to part of a considerable leasehold estate by the death of his father, which he did not know he had a right to, makes his will at sea, and devises to his mother (if living) his rings, and makes A his executor, and devises to A his red box, and all things not before bequeathed. This shall not pass the leasehold interest, or what the testator did not know he was entitled to, but shall be restrained to things ejusdem generis. Cook v. Oakley, 1 P. W. 502.

Where 300*l.* or 400*l.* per ann. is directed to be purchased, the court will take it in the largest sense, and construe it to be 400*l.* per ann. Saule v. Saule, 1 P. W. 290. PR. CHAN. 421. GILB. REP. 105.

One devises all his freehold houses in A., and hath none but leasehold houses there; the leasehold shall pass. Secus, in a grant. Day v. Trig, 1 P. W. 286. WILL. MISTAKE IN.

Devise of all one's goods, passes a bond. Anon. 1 P. W. 267. BOND.

One devises to his wife all his personal estate at W. This is a specific legacy, and to be preferred to pecuniary legacies in case of deficiency of assets. All the testator's personal estate that was at W. at his death shall pass, though not there at the making of the will. Sayer v. Sayer, 2 Vern. 688. PREC. CH. 392. GILB. EQ. REP. 87. S. C. LEGACY, SPECIFIC.

What passes under words, "all his household goods." The words added thereto, "and whatever else legatee should think fit to accept of," were rejected in the construction of the will. Anon. 2 Eq. Ab. 322.

Plate shall pass by a devise of household goods. Tillot v. Compton, 2 Vern. 638.

A devises, that the furniture and pictures of his three houses in B., C., and D. should go along with the houses: adjudged the plate then at his three houses passed by this devise. Franklyn v. C. Burlington, 2 Vern. 512. PREC. CH. 251. S. C.

By a devise of all rings and household goods, plate used in the house does not pass. Jesson v. Essington, PREC. CHAN. 207.

A held a church lease, of which nine months had remained unexpired, &c. He made his will in sickness, and devised all his interest in such lease to B. A, recovering, renewed his lease, and republished his will. Resolved, the renewed lease passed by the republication. Ann. 2 Freem. 116. WILL, REPUBLICATION OF.

A devises 100*l.* to B, and by will released to B all debts and demands, and afterwards A lends B 100*l.*: whether this 100*l.* is released by the will? Bentham v. Alston, 2 Vern. 136. RELEASE.

A devises 1200*l.* to his wife, and gives her all the goods and chattels, plate, jewels, household stuff, and stock belonging to his house at N.; 400*l.* which the testator has in the house will not pass by these words. Ann. Prec. Chan. 8. S. C. nom. Saunders v. Earle, 2 Chan. Rep. 188.

Whether a release by will, of all debts, accounts, and demands, will transfer the property of goods which defendant then had in his hands, belonging to plaintiff's testator. Fish v. Jesson, 2 Vern. 111. RELEASE.

One seised in fee of land, limits a term to trustees for one hundred years, upon such trust as he by deed or will should appoint, and for want of such appointment to attend the inheritance; and afterwards, by a nuncupative will, gives all to J. S., and being a bastard, dies without issue: this will not pass the trust of the term. Thruston v. All. Gen., 1 Vern. 340. NUNCUPATIVE WILL.

A man seised in fee of divers lands, and having also lands mortgaged to him, devises all his lands to A and his heirs; the mortgaged lands did not pass. Wing v. Littleton, 1 Vern. 32. Vent. 351. 2 Cha. Ca. 51. S. C.

A bequeathed 1200*l.* to S, and by general words all his goods, chattels, and house-stuff, in and about his house. Money in the house will not pass to S, he having a money legacy. Sanders v. Earle, 2 Ch. Rep. 190.

(c) Property acquired after the Will.

A B bequeathed dividends of property in funds to C D for life, and directed, that after C D's decease, principal should be divided amongst his children, in manner after mentioned; she then gave children certain sums of money which would have exhausted whole of funded property at date of will, between that time and A B's death, that property greatly increased: held, executors entitled to surplus as undisposed of. Hynes v. Littleton, 1 S. & S. 496.

Testator gave to wife ready money, &c. which he should have in house at time of death: he gave specifically to others his exchequer bills, stock, &c. Becoming insane, 3000*l.* paid into his house was laid out in stock and exchequer bills: specific legacies of exchequer bills, &c. entitled. Brown v. Groombridge, 4 Mad. 498.

Testator by his will devises all his freehold and copyhold manors, &c., and real estate whatever, upon certain trusts; and gives to the same trustees, a sum of 35,000*l.* to lay out in the purchase of lands, to be settled upon the same trusts. He afterwards contracts for the purchase of several estates; and by a codicil, specifying some of the estates which he had so contracted to purchase, devises them to the same trustees, upon the trusts of the will; and directs that the purchase monies shall be taken as part of the 35,000*l.*, confirming his will in all other respects. The codicil amounts to a republication of the will, so as to pass not only the estates therein specified, but all the estates contracted to be purchased between the dates of the will and codicil. Hulme v. Hengate, 1 Mer. 285. WILL, REPUBLICATION OF.

Codicil, with three witnesses, though relating only to personal estate, expressing no intention as to republication of will, is a republication; and therefore will containing a general devise, lands purchased in the interval, pass. Pigott v. Waller, 7 Ves. 98.

The rule, that after-purchased lands do not pass by a devise, does not arise from the word "having" in the statute of wills, but from the difference between the Roman testament or wills of personal estate, and a devise by the law of England, which is an appointment of the person to take the specific estate in nature of a conveyance, though fluctuating till death. Brydges v. Dr. Chudor, 2 Ves. J. 427.

Lands purchased after a general devise, pass under it, republication being implied from a codicil concerning personalty, referring to the will, directed to be taken as part of it, and attested by three witnesses. Barnes v. Crowe, 1 Ves. J. 486. 4 Bro. C. C. 2.

Devise of personal estate, and of rents and profits of real, in trust to accumulate, and to be laid out in land, and to be conveyed with the real to the youngest, or only son of the trustee at twenty-one: held, a vested interest by executory devise in an only surviving son, and not to wait till the death of the father, but liable to be divested by birth of another son. The trustee survived his son several years, and received the rent, and profits till his death, but never laid them out in land as directed; those accrued after the son made his will, held to be an equitable interest in land, and therefore to pass by it. Perry v. Phillips, 1 Ves. J. 251. INTEREST, VESTED.

One by will, reciting he was seised of a copyhold, devises all his real estate; not being seised of any copyholds, but being seised of freehold estates at the time, he afterwards bought a copyhold: held, it did not pass. Warde v. Warde, Amb. 299.

One articles to buy certain lands; he thereby becomes seised thereof in equity; but where A devised all his real and personal estate, and afterwards articulated to purchase lands and then died, the heir at law was held to be entitled to this estate, as not passing by the will; secus, had the articles for the purchase been before the will; for then the estate would have passed. Langford v. Pitt, 2 P. W. 629. LAND ACQUIRED TO BE BUGHT.

A devises his library of books, now in the custody of B, to a college, and afterwards buys more books, which he places in the same library, and gives 4000*l.* more to increase their library, after-bought books shall pass. All. Souls' Coll. v. Coddington, 1 P. W. 597.

A codicil, which concerns only personal legacies, will not amount to a republication of the will, so as to pass lands purchased after the making of the will. Strode v. Russel, 2 Vern. 625. 3 Ch. Rep. 169. S. C. WILL, REPUBLICATION OF.

B devised to his wife in these words:—"I do hereby give, devise, and bequeath unto my well-beloved wife Frances, all such sum and sums of money as now is, or hereafter shall grow due to me from their majesties, for my own and servant's service, either by sea or land; as also, all such sum and sums of money, lands, tenements, goods, chattels, and estate whatever, wherewith, at the time of my decease, I shall be possessed or invested, or which shall then, or of right doth appertain unto me. And I do hereby nominate and appoint her, the said Frances, to be the whole and sole executrix of this my last will and testament." The testator, had no real estate at the time of making this will; but having about nine years afterwards received part of his wife's fortune, he therewith purchased lands of about 200*l.* per annum. There having been no republication of the will after this purchase, held, that the lands did not pass, but descend to the testator's brother as heir at law. Bunker v. Cook, 3 Bro. P. C. 19.

A devises to B, all his goods and furniture in his house, except his pictures, which he gives to C; pictures in boxes, as well as what were hung up in the house, will pass to C; and so will pictures bought after making the will. Gaure v. Gaure, 2 Vern. 538.

If A articles to purchase lands, but before the conveyance devises all his land to be sold to pay debts and legacies, the lands will pass, though he was not seised at the making of his will, neither did he republish it. So, if A devises all his lands for payment of his debts, and then purchases land, equity will decree a sale of that land, though there were no precedent articles. Prideaux v. Gibbon, 2 Ch. Ca. 144. So, if A buys copyhold lands, and dies before admittance, having first devised all his copyholds to T S, the copyhold lands contracted for will pass by the will, or in any case if there are articles for a purchase, and the purchaser makes his will and dies before conveyance, the lands shall pass in equity. Davie v. Beulsham, 1 Ch. Ca. 39.

5. What Quantity and Quality of Interest.

Bequest of 40*l.* per annum to A for life, and after her decease to B, or his heirs: Held, that "or" must be construed distinctively, and that therefore B did not take an absolute interest in the annuity. Clouston v. Doe, 2 Sim. 225.

A feme covert having power to dispose by will of personal property, and of a real estate at N, by her will, after reciting the power, gave several pecuniary legacies, and then gave to her husband her fields and house at N., likewise the remainder of her personally, and all she might die possessed of, after payment of her debts, legacies, and funeral and testamentary expenses: Held, that the husband took a life estate only in the realty, notwithstanding the gift to him of all the testatrix might die possessed of. Monk v. Mauley, 1 Sim. 286.

A testator gave all his real and personal estate to trustees in trust, as to one moiety for A for life, remainder to her children, and as to the other moiety for B and her children, in like manner. By a codicil, he declared that his estates should not be divided equally between A and B, but in proportion to the number of their children, and he left A and B jointly his residuary legacies. By another codicil, in order to prevent disputes, he gave one of his estates to A and her heirs, and the other to B and her heirs; the number of their children nearly equalizing the value of the two estates. In a subsequent codicil, he mentioned that he had bequeathed the first estate to A and her children, and the second to B and her children: Held, that A and B were entitled to these estates for their lives only, with remainders to their children, and that they were not entitled to the personal estate absolutely, but for their lives only, with remainders to their children, and in shares proportioned to the number of their children. Lushington v. Sewell, 1 Sim. 435.

By a marriage settlement, a sum of 4000*l.* was to go after the decease of the husband and the wife, and the husband's father, and subject to the father's power of appointment to the children of the marriage equally, and the real estates of the wife were charged with a sum of 8000*l.*, which was to be divided among the children in such shares and manners as she should appoint. The wife, by her will, appointed 100*l.* to the eldest son of the marriage, and the remaining 7900*l.* to the other children of the marriage, directing the shares to vest in sons on their attaining twenty-one, and in daughters on their attaining that age or marriage with their father's consent; she likewise created a further charge, in order that such younger child's share of the 8000*l.* might be augmented to 5000*l.*, and by the same instrument, she in exercise of a power of appointment, which she had under the will of C, appointed C's residuary property to the first and other sons of the marriage successively who should attain twenty-one, and if there were no such sons, to the daughters of the marriage who should attain twenty-one. Afterwards by a codicil, she directed that the same fortune should be given to any child or children of whom she might be delivered, as was given by her will to each of her daughters, and that if no son of the marriage should live to attain twenty-one, or be married, each of her daughters should be entitled to have for fortune 10,000*l.*, to be paid in the manner and at the times mentioned in her marriage settlement or will respecting the fortunes of her daughters. The wife died in the husband's lifetime, leaving a son and three daughters her surviving; and in the events which happened, two daughters, the only surviving children of the marriage, became entitled under the settlement to the 1000*l.* and under their mother's appointment to the residuary property of C: Held, that they were entitled to receive 10,000*l.* exclusive of, and in addition to their shares of the 1000*l.* and of the residuary property of C. White v. Kearney, 3 Russ. 208.

A testator beginning his will by expressing an intention to give the bulk of his property to two of his sisters, gave them only a life interest in the greater part of it, and after giving legacies to others of his sisters; he expressed his wish that A, and the testator's servant B should be his executors; and that B should live with his two sisters, and take care of them and their property; and by a codicil, he directed that the interest of 300*l.* should be paid to B half yearly, as wages for taking care of his two sisters, and that after the death of B and his two sisters, the 500*l.* should be paid to P: Held, that the legacy given to B by the codicil was not a legacy given for her care and trouble, so as to convert her into a trustee of the residue for the next of kin, but that A and B, in their character of executors, took the residue beneficially: that after the death of the two sisters, though the services for which the legacy was given as wages, would no longer be performed, B would still be entitled to the interest of the 300*l.* during her life. Duncan v. Thorne, 3 Russ. 235. EXORS. BENEFICIALLY INTERESTED.

Devise of a freehold estate to the testator's illegitimate son W, to have and to hold during the term of his natural life, and in case he have issue, then it is my will they should jointly inherit the same after his decease. In a subsequent part of the will, the testator devised and bequeathed the test and residue of his effects real and personal, not theretofore disposed of, to his said son, but in case my son W dies without issue, then it is my will that the whole of my property be ascertained, and after bequeathing certain legacies and annuities, the test and residue of my property, together with the before-mentioned annuities as they drop off, I give in equal proportions to A and B: Held, that the illegitimate son took an estate tail in the real estate, and an absolute interest in the personalty. Ward v. Peril, 1 Y. & J. 512.

A testator bequeaths a sum of stock to each of five nephews and nieces, or to their respective child or children; should any die without child, such share to revert to the residuary legatee; each of the nephews and nieces who survive, the testator takes his or her legacy of stock absolutely. Montagu v. Nucella, 1 Russ. 165.

The same testator appoints as a residuary legatee E P M, his child or children; in case of his death without any such, the residuary interest to vest in the other five nephews and nieces then alive, share and share alike, and as before to each of their respective child or children, and in case of either of their deaths without any such issue, then his or her share to be divided amongst the survivors; E P M, having survived, the testator takes the residue absolutely. Id. ib.

A testatrix devises leaseholds to A, subject to the yearly sum of 12*l.* for the sole use of Mrs. B, to be paid her half yearly; and this annuity was payable on the 27th of January and 27th of July; many years afterwards, A devises to R all his lands, (in which these leaseholds were included) paying Mrs. B 12*l.* per annum, by half yearly payments, to be made on the 27th of January and the 27th of July; Mrs. B is entitled under A's will to a second annuity, distinct from, and in addition to the annuity given her by the will of the testatrix. Bartlett v. Gillard, 3 Russ. 149.

Bequest of personal estate in trust to invest it in stock to accumulate, and to transfer the fund to A at twenty-one. Power for the trustees to lend 10,000*l.* to B, so long as he carried on the business of banker at H; B is not entitled to retain the 10,000*l.* after A attains twenty-one, though he continue banker at H. Brown v. Sinsome, 1 McClel. & Y. 427.

Testator gave son one-fourth of personal estate absolutely, but by codicil directed that son's share should be only for life of himself and wife, provided they had no issue, and that at their death it should fall into residue; held, son did not take absolutely, but subject to executory bequest over in case there was no issue of himself and wife living at death of survivor. Rackstraw v. Fife, 1 S. & S. 604. EXECUTORY DEVISE; LIMITATION OR.

Testator directed interest of sum of money to be paid to his sisters, during their lives, in equal proportions, and at their death, gave to their children the inheritance their mothers derived from his estate, and desired that his sisters should be residuary legatees in proportions already mentioned; held, that sisters were entitled absolutely to residue, and that their children took no interest. Grassick v. Groomond, 1 S. & S. 517.

A testator directs, that W F shall, with a capital taken out of his assets, continue his the testator's business; that he shall bind D G apprentice to himself; that he shall take D G into partnership at the end of his apprenticeship, or so soon after as he shall think him capable; and that D G shall have one-third of the profits of the business; D G is not entitled to claim any share of the profits which are made before he is admitted into partnership. Gorden v. Rutheford, 1 Turn. & R. 373.

Gift by will to A, to be paid to him at twenty-one, with a bequest over, in the event of dying under that age, or afterwards without heirs, and intestate; held an absolute interest in A, on his attaining twenty-one. Cuthbert v. Purrier, 1 Jac. 415.

Direction for payment of residue to E to be applied by her at her discretion, for or towards the education of her son, and that she should not be liable to account to him or any other person for the disposal or application of it; the residue being considerable, held, that E was entitled to it, subject to the application of so much as the court might think fit to the education of the son during his minority. Hanley v. Gilbert, 1 Jac. 364.

Bequest of household goods, &c. after payment of debts, &c. to testator's wife for her life or widowhood with power to her to sell same as she should think proper for her own benefit, and the maintenance of the testator's nephew, &c. during their minority, with a bequest over, upon the death or second marriage of the wife, of the same or so much as should then remain to such nephew, &c.; held, that widow was entitled to residue for her life or widowhood, with power to apply any part of the capital for her own benefit, proper maintenance of nephew, &c. during minorities, and that on death or marriage of widow, remainder of capital unapplied was well limited over. Surman v. Surman, 5 Mad. 123.

Legacies to A, and "to the heirs of his body;" to B, "to be secured to her and the heirs of her body;" to T, and "to her issue," are absolute legacies; but legacies to T, and "to her heirs, (say children,)" give S only a life interest. Crawford v. Trotter, 4 Mad. 367.

Bequest of personal estate being in trust, to pay the interest to M, the testator's widow, during her life, and on her death "to pay and divide the trust-moneys unto and equally between his daughters H and A, for their own use and benefit absolutely, and in case of the death of them, H and A, or either of them, leaving a child or children living," to apply the interest for the maintenance of the children till twenty-one, then to divide the trust-money among them, expressing that the testator's intention was, that the children of his daughters should be entitled to the same shares to which their mother would be entitled if then living, with an ultimate trust in case of the death of H and A, without leaving issue living at their respective death, or of all their children dying minors; on surviving the tenant for life, H and A become entitled to the absolute interest. Galland v. Leonard, 1 Swan, 161.

A testator having brothers and sisters, and several nephews and nieces, and having given a legacy to one of his brothers, directed his residuary estate to be invested in government security, the interest to be paid for the maintenance of M, as long as she lived single and without a child; and at the death the money to come to his brother's and sister's children; M, although married, and having a child, is entitled to the interest for life, not to the principal. Bird v. Hudson, 2 Swan, 342.

Bequest of interest of residue of personal estate, after payment of debts, &c. to A for life, and after her decease to C; passes an absolute interest to C, subject to prior life interest of A. Clough v. Wynne, 2 Mad. 188.

Testator directs 20,000*l.* which he has in the three per cents. to be firmly fixed there, to remain during the life of his wife for her to receive the interest, and after her death, to be in the same manner firmly fixed on the infant W C, "to be so secured that he may only receive the interest during his life, and after his decease, to the heir male of his body, and so on in succession to the heir at law, male or female;" with a direction that the principal sum is never to be broken into, but the interest only to be received; "his intent being that there should always be the interest to support the name of Cobb as a private gentleman." Though the intention be manifest to give only a life interest to W C, yet there being nothing to shew that the word "heir male" was not used in a strict technical sense: Held, that W C took the absolute interest, the words being such as would create an estate tail of freehold property; secus, if the words "for life" had been added to the words "heir male," in which case the latter words might have been construed to be a mere designation personal: Held, the declaration that the principal stock should not be broken into, not sufficient to turn the heir into a tenant for life, being like an attempt at perpetual restraint of alienation, which in the case of land would not prevent the creation of an estate tail. Britton v. Twining, 3 Mer. 176.

Bequest of personal property in trust for A, (a married woman), for her separate use; with a power of disposing by will, (except to particular persons). "And in case she dies without a will, I give all that may remain at her decease to B," followed by a gift of "all the rest and residue" to A, who is appointed executrix. A takes the absolute interest in the property, not a power of disposing merely. And the gift to B, of "all that may remain at her decease," is void for uncertainty. Bull v. Kingston, 1 Mer. 314.

WILL, UNCERTAINTY.

Devise to devisor's wife of all his real and personal estates for her life, "after her" to A and his male issue: "for want of male issue after him," to B and his male issue: "for want of male issue," to two others and their male issue. An absolute interest in A as to the personal estate. Dunn v. Penny, 19 Ves. 545. S. C. 1 Mer. 20.

Bequest of personal property to a man and his issue is an absolute interest, but a limitation over for want of issue living at his death is good. Id. 547.

Devise to A for life, remainder to trustees to preserve contingent remainders; remainder to the heirs of his body, with remainders over for life, and in tail male, declaring that the respective devises to A, &c., "and to their respective heirs male," are on condition of taking the testator's name; the residue of the personal property bequeathed to A, on attaining the age of twenty-four, to go over if he died under twenty-four, without leaving any child or children living at or born in due time after his death. Codicil giving an after purchased leasehold for years, for such estate and estates, and in such manner and form as the real estates are devised by the will, and with, under, and subject to the like limitations, trusts, conditions, &c. A takes an estate tail in the freehold, and the absolute interest in the leasehold estates. Brouncker v. Bagot, 19 Ves. 574. S. C. 1 Mer. 271. ESTATE TAIL.

Legacy in trust to be laid out in stock the dividends as they come due to A for life, and after his decease, to pay the principal according to her appointment by will or otherwise, with power to her to purchase with it an annuity, with the approbation of the trustees, but not to sell it. A has an absolute power of disposition, and her will was held a sufficient indication of her intention to take the whole, making a formal appointment or writing unnecessary. Irwin v. Farrar, 19 Ves. 86. POWER, EXECUTION OF.

Devise to the use of the testator's second son A for life, without impeachment of waste, and from and after his decease, to the heirs of his body, to take as tenants in common, and not as joint-tenants; and in case of his decease without issue, to the testator's eldest son B, his heirs, &c.; and in case both sons should die before twenty-one, over: Held, an estate tail in the land, and absolute interest in personally bequeathed with it. Beunitt v. El. Tankerville, 19 Ves. 170. ESTATE TAIL.

Residuary trust by will to apply the rents and profits for and during his life, and afterwards for the heirs of his body if any, and in default of such issue, over, is an estate tail in the real estate, and the absolute interest in the personal. Elton v. Eason, 19 Ves. 73. ESTATE TAIL.

Indefinite bequest of the dividends, gives the absolute property of stock. Page v. Leapingwell, 18 Ves. 463.

Testator gave legacies with maintenance to his two illegitimate children, naming them, by C B, and to all the other children he might have by her, 6000*l.* each, and after other bequests, the residue among his said children. By codicil he directed maintenance of another child born since, also interlining his name with those of the other children, in the first part of the will only. That child entitled only to maintenance and a share of the residue, not the legacy of 6000*l.* Arnold v. Preston, 18 Ves. 288. BASTARD.

Residuary bequest in trust for the use and benefit of A, and in case of her death, to be equally divided between the children of B. Payment decreed to the executor of A as having taken the absolute interest. Ominanney v. Bevan, 18 Ves. 291.

Under a devise of the entire residue, real and personal to A B and C, (children of the testator), and all their younger children, their heirs, executors, &c. for ever; A B and C to receive the yearly interest for their respective lives, of such part thereof as were intended for their respective younger children; and in case of the death of A B and C, the share of any of them so dying, to go to his or her younger children, and in case of the death of A B and C, or any of them, without leaving younger children, the share of such child so dying, to go to the survivors and their younger children, with powers of appointment amongst their respective younger children, and in case of the death of any of the younger grand children before twenty-one, or days of marriage, the shares of such to go to the brethren of the child so dying. At the time of the will, and of the testator's death, A had one younger child, B several, C none; each had several since: on bill by after-born grandchildren, held: First, that the residue was divisible into three parts, the yearly interest of each to go to A B and C, for their respective lives. Second, that after-born grandchildren were entitled, subject to the power of appointment in their parents. Third, that the share of a younger child under twenty-one, and unmarried, goes over to the brothers and sisters of such child. Fourth, that the share of A B or C, dying without leaving younger children, goes over to the survivors for the same estate as their own original shares. Crone v. Odell, 1 Ball & B. 449. 450. 3 Dow. 61. WILL, CONSTRUCTION OF, WHO TAKE; INTEREST, VESTED.

Devise and bequest of real and personal estate in trust, to pay the rents, dividends, &c. to the separate use of a married woman for life, and after her decease to convey, &c., according to her appointment by deed or will, with a limitation over in case of her death; in the life of a testatrix or in default of appointment. Absolute property, notwithstanding the said indication of an intention, that the estate should remain in the trustee for her life, with powers inconsistent in a degree with the supposition of her having or being able to acquire the absolute interest. Barford v. Street, 16 Ves. 135.

Devise in strict settlement, with power to the tenants for life to jointure, on condition that two thirds of the portion should, upon such marriage, be settled; one third upon the eldest son of the marriage, and one other third upon the younger children. Upon the intention that the settlement should be conformable to the limitations of the real estate, a trust for the father for life was established, and the interest of the eldest son was not to be divested, except by his death under twenty-one, without issue male. Buwell v. Crutchley, 15 Ves. 544.

Trust by will as to the residue of real and personal estate, for a nephew and his heirs, to pay him the interest for life, with power to the trustees, in case they should see it would be for his benefit, to advance him, when it may be in their power, any part of the principal for his advancement in life, that they will not withhold such assistance as they may deem necessary; but, in case no part should be advanced, the residue to be divided among the nephew's issue; with a limitation over, if he should leave no issue. The nephew is entitled, not to the absolute property, but for life only; and no advancement having been made, an inquiry was directed, whether his circumstances required advancement. Robinson v. Cleator, 15 Ves. 526. ADVANCEMENT.

Legacy to A, but if the executor, after-named, shall think it more for his advantage to have it placed out, and to pay him the interest for life as they, in their discretion, shall think fit, empowering them accordingly, and directing that, after his decease, the said sum should be divided among his children, and for default of children, over. One of the executors being dead, and the other having renounced, the legacy was held to be absolute in the legatee, who had taken the benefit of an insolvent act. Keeble v. Burton, 14 Ves. 434.

Devise after limitation in strict settlement in default of such issue, then to the testator's next heir a law, is a limitation of the reversion, not a contingent remainder to the heir at the time of failure of issue, as a purchaser. O'Keefe v. Jones, 13 Ves. 412. HEIR AT LAW.

Bequest of all money, stock, &c. and all other personal estate to the sole use of the testator's wife for life, to be at her full, free, and absolute disposal during her life, without being liable to any account, and after her decease certain articles specified, and 500*l.* according to her appointment by will, in default of appointment to fall into the residue which was disposed of. An interest for life only, with a limited power of disposition. Bradly v. Westcott, 13 Ves. 445. ESTATE FOR LIFE.

Bequest to A for such purposes as he shall think fit is for his own benefit. Paice v. Archbp. of Canterbury, 14 Ves. 370.

Bequest to the testator's wife of 60*l.* a year for life, and the sum of 300*l.* to be disposed of as she thinks proper, to be paid after her death, and a leasehold house and furniture for life; an absolute interest in the 300*l.* transmissible to the administrator; not a mere power of appointment. Will not construed by reference to a settlement, the provisions differing in some respect, though a substitution was intended. Hixon v. Oliver, 13 Ves. 108.

Bequest to the testator's wife of 200*l.* per year, being part of the monies I now have in bank security, entirely for her own use and disposal, together with all his household furniture and effects, interests for life being expressly given to other persons, an absolute interest to the wife in bank stock sufficient to produce 200*l.* a year, not a mere annuity for her life. Rawlings v. Jennings, 13 Ves. 39.

Legacy to A for life, then to her children for maintenance, and to be equally divided among them on their arriving at twenty-one, followed by a legacy to B, "on the same conditions on his attaining the age of twenty-one." The legacy to B construed in the same manner as the other, viz. for life only, &c. Longdon v. Simson, 12 Ves. 295. ESTATE FOR LIFE.

Testator devised a copyhold estate to his wife upon trust to sell and invest the money in the funds; and gave and bequeathed the interest and dividends to her use. He also gave and bequeathed to her all his effects whatsoever and wheresoever for her maintenance, upon full trust and confidence in her justice and equity, that at her decease she would make a proper distribution of what effects might be left in money, goods, or otherwise, to his children, accounting what they had already received in money or effects part of their shares. The widow's executrix held entitled to the produce of the copyhold estate for life only, with a resulting trust as to the capital for the heir. The widow entitled to the absolute interest in the personal estate. Wilson v. Major, 11 Ves. 205. TRUST, RESULTING; HEIR AT LAW.

Legacy of stock in trust for the use, exclusive right, and property of A, but should she happen to die, then in that case, among her children; another legacy of stock to A, to be paid her as soon as possible, or in the event of her death, among her children; another legacy of stock to B, and in case of her death, among her children; all these legacies held absolute in the respective mothers. Webster v. Hall, 8 Ves. 410.

Devise to A, an infant, for life, and his first and other sons in strict settlement, with remainders for similar estates; the will farther directed, "during the minority of the A family," an accumulation of the rents to be laid out in a purchase, until the minor arrives at the full age of twenty-five years," and then "the heir to take full possession of this estate." A being residuary legatee, is entitled absolutely to the accumulation. Ringley v. Broadhead, 8 Ves. 415.

Bequest to two persons or their children, held to give children an interest by way of substitution only: not concurrent. Crooke v. De l'andes, 9 Ves. 197.

Investment of stock directed in trust to pay the dividends to testator's son for life, and after his death to transfer part of the capital according to his appointment, gives an interest for life only, with a power. Nannock v. Horton, 7 Ves. 391.

General residuary bequest, including a leasehold farm, with the stock, to be converted into money, as soon as conveniently, may be upon trust to pay the interest, &c. for life, and as to the capital for the children. The stock considerably increased between the death in April and the sale at Michaelmas, it was decreed that the conversion was in a reasonable time, and the party entitled for life should have interest from the conversion, and as to the premises, that from a defect of title could not be sold, that being for the interest of all that they should not be sold, a value should be set upon them, to carry interest at 4 per cent. from the death. Gibson v. Bott, 7 Ves. 89.

ACCRETION OF FUND; INTEREST WHEN PAYABLE.

Bequest of annuity of 200*l.* for use of A and her children, to be paid out of general effects, until it is convenient to executors to invest 5000*l.* in funds, in lieu thereof, for her and their use, and to longest liver, subject to an equal division of the interest while more than one alive: held an annuity, and not an absolute legacy. Innes v. Mitchell, 6 Ves. 464. Aff'd 9 Ves. 212.

Testator gave to his wife the third part of all his property, that should become due to him after his decease; then, after giving some legacies, he gave all the residue of his estate, in general words, subject to the payment of all his debts, funeral expences, and legacies, upon trust to collect the same. The wife entitled to a third of the personal estate, subject to the debts, but not to the legacies. Reed v. Addington, 4 Ves. 575. 576.

Testator gave certain leasehold houses in trust for A, absolutely for her separate use, and other leasehold houses in trust for B for her separate use, for her life, and after her decease for her children; if none, to fall into the residue, and he gave the residue in trust for A and B, to be divided between them, share and share alike, and to be paid and applied in like manner, for their use and benefit, as the rents and profits of the leasehold premises herein-before settled upon them, and their receipts to be a sufficient discharge; the reference in the residuary clause is not to the interests of A and B in the houses, but to the provision that they shall take for their separate use; therefore, they take the residue absolutely. Stanley v. Baker, 4 Ves. 732.

RESIDUE.

Testator gave the interest and produce of the residue to his two sisters, for their lives, and after their decease, the principal to be paid to their children, share and share alike, but whichever died before the other, then the share to be paid to her to be paid to her children in equal proportions; but if she should leave no children, then the interest and produce to be paid to the survivor for her life, as aforesaid; one sister died without leaving children, the survivor is entitled to the interest for life, and the principal is vested in all her children. Taylor v. Langford, 3 Ves. 117.

INTEREST VESTED.

A devised to his wife the dividends of 4000*l.* bank stock for life, and on her decease to be transferred, and the produce thereof, 500*l.* he gave to the plaintiff, the other to be divided among the defendants; the plaintiff is entitled only to 500*l.* not to 500*l.* stock. Longdale v. Bovey, 2 Anst. 570.

Testator devised a freehold estate to his wife for her life, and then directed that she should dispose of the same amongst the testator's children, by her at her decease as she should think proper. The wife made no disposition of the estate. The children took no interest in the estate under the will. Crossling v. Crossling, 2 Cox. 396. POWER, EXECUTION OF.

Testator gave the interest of the four per cent. bank annuities then standing in his name, together with the interest of a sum of money, then at his banker's, which he directed to be invested in the same stock, to his wife, with a power of disposing of one-third thereof, after her decease, "And as to the rest and residue of his estate," after payment of the said bequest to his wife, viz. two-thirds of the property he should die possessed of, he gave the same as follows: First, to the children of A 60*l.* of the four per cent. consols, also to the eldest of such children 30*l.* per annum for life, and to his lawful heir payable out of the interest. He then made a similar bequest in favour of the children of B, and he appointed his second wife and C to be executors of his will, and declared his intention "if the residue of his said property after payment of the children of B was not sufficient to pay the specified annuities of 30*l.* the residue should be equally divided as above specified." The money at his banker's having been invested in the four per cents., the whole of that sum was 5306*l.* Held, first, that the children of A and B respectively were entitled only to 60*l.* stock, and that the residue of the fund after satisfying the two sums of 60*l.* and the two annuities of 30*l.* was undisposed of; 2dly, that the testator leaving by his will professed to dispose of the whole of the property, although (according to the aforesaid construction he had not in fact done so), yet this was not sufficient to exclude the executors from taking beneficially as such; and thirdly, that the interest given to the wife in one-third, or the residue, did not prevent her taking her share of the remaining two-thirds under the statute of distributions. Oldham v. Carleton, 2 Cox. 399.

Bequest to the use and behoof of A, and in case of her decease to the use and behoof of her children, share and share alike: Held, a life interest only in A. The capital to her children after her decease. Ld. Douglas v. Chalmer, 2 Ves. J. 509.

Bond to pay an annuity till a legacy recited to have been bequeathed by the last will of obligor to obligee, should be paid. By a previous will he had given a legacy; but that was revoked by a subsequent will, and a les legacy given, payable six months after testator's death, "over and above the annuity which I have secured to him for his life." The annuity and bond were assigned by the obligee as some provision for his mother "to be received by her during the life of the obligors fully and beneficially, as it could have been by the obligee." The bond and assignment were put into the possession of the testator, and continued so till his death. The legatee is entitled to the legacy with interest, if not paid at the time; and also to the annuity for his life in trust for his mother. Crabbe v. Murray, 1 Ves. J. 555.

Where money is given to be laid out in land for a place of retirement for testator's sister, to be for ever entailed on her issue, the husband of one of the daughter's of the sister entitled as tenant by the curtesy to one-third. Dixon v. Hay, 3 Bro. C. C. 404. HUSB. & WIFE; TENANT BY CURTESY.

Testator devised, that in case of failure of issue descending from himself and his wife, a trustee and his heirs should stand seized of freehold lands, for the use and benefit of W and his children, share and share alike, at his disposal. B W died in testator's lifetime: Held, that the children of B W took the entire interest in the lands as tenants in common. Hayes v. Ward, 2 Ridg. P. C. 85.

Interest of a son given to A for life at his death, to devolve to their of his body with remainder over, vests the principal sum absolutely in A. Robinson v. Fitzherbert, 2 B. C. C. 127. INTEREST VESTED.

Testator gave his whole property to his wife, making no express provision for his daughter; "but in case of death happening to his wife, desired his executors to take care of the whole for his daughter." The wife shall have the whole for life only, with remainder absolutely to his daughter. Wall v. Bushby, 1 Bro. C. C. 489.

Testator made his will, and gave to his daughter 100*l.* a year, long annuities; he then gave to the plaintiff 50*l.*, long annuities, and to J 50*l.*, long annuities. These legacies shall be 50*l.* a-year annuities. Stafford v. Horton, 1 Bro. C. C. 482.

S gave 5000*l.* to purchase stock, the interest to M for life; then to W for life; at his decease to testator's godson S; and at his death to be divided among his brothers equally. S was dead at the time of the will made. A son of W born after testator's death, who would have been a brother of S had he lived, shall take a share in the 5000*l.* The testator also by codicil gave 4000*l.* to L for life, and in case he had no children to revert to W's children. A daughter of W who was alive at the time of the codicil being made, but died before W was held to have a vested interest, transmissible to her representative. Devisme v. Melo, 1 Bro. C. C. 537. INTEREST VESTED.

A gift of personality to trustees to pay the interest to A, with a power to dispose of the fund by will as he pleased, and without any other words of limitations are absolute gift of the principal. Elton v. Sheppard, 1 Bro. C. C. 532.

Bequest of 3000*l.* to A to dispose of by will. Held an absolute interest in A. Maskelyne v. Maskelyne, Ambl. 750.

Legacy to trustees to be put out upon security, the interests to be paid to A, and in case she marry or die, the interest to be paid to B, in trust for her till she come to the age of twenty-one years: Held that B was absolutely entitled to the legacy. Hale v. Beck, 2 Eden, 229.

Bequest of personal to one for life, and if he has no heirs, over. Held, he took an absolute interest. Boden v. Watson, Ambl. 398. LIMITATION OF PERSONAL.

Testator having by his will made his daughter tenant for life of his general real estates, and of lands to be purchased, both with his personal estates, and with the profits arising from sale of timber, devises his collieries, &c. upon trust to dispose and convey the same in such manner as she, whether sole or covert should direct or appoint, and in default of appointment to apply the money produced by the collieries, after paying the expences, to the same uses as the residue of his personal estate; the testator then after declaring that, though his meaning was to give his daughter the absolute disposal of the said collieries, &c. to prevent the expence and trouble that must attend the management of affairs of such a nature, under the direction of the court of chancery, requested her to direct the money arising therefrom, to be applied in such manner as he had directed the same in default of appointment: Held, that from the general frame and intent of the will, the daughter had not the absolute disposal of this property, but that her interest was confined to a disposition by sale. Fl. Bute v. Cartwright, 2 Eden, 88.

Devise of real and personal estate in trust for A, for life, afterwards for B for life, and afterwards for the heirs of his body, afterwards for the other sons of A, successively in tail, taking testator's name then to the daughters in tail, for want of such issue to convey to C in fee; B is entitled to a conveyance in tail of the real, and to the absolute property of the personal; the intent being at least doubtful, the legal operation of the words cannot be taken away, and as to the personal, it vested absolutely by such limitation, whether so intended or not. Carth v. Baldwin, 2 Ves. 646.

B by the fourth clause of his will, says, "that my eldest son and his issue, &c. shall, after my death, have all my whole estate, real and personal, except still what I have given to my wife, and shall give by other dispositions to her," &c. : Held that the exception takes out of this residuary devise, only the interest given to the wife, and not the things themselves. The directing the trustees to dispose of all his real and personal estate, does not import to sell, but to manage it to the best advantage for the family. Sheffield v. Ld. Orrery, 3 Atk. 287.

T, by will, appointed the interest that should be made of his personal estate, to be paid to his father for life, then to his mother for life; and he gave the residue of his personal estate to his brother and sisters, and to A and B, sisters of his late wife, share and share alike; and then said, "in case of the death of any of them before me, or the survivor of my father and mother, then the share of the deceased to go among the survivors." The brother died in testator's life-time; but after the will was made, the sisters (in the life-time of testator's mother, who survived her husband, and then died) and A and B claimed the residue of the personal estate: Held that they were entitled, as the only surviving legatees, not only to their own original shares, but to all accumulations. Pain v. Benson, 3 C. C. 478. See Wardle v. Churchill, 3 Bro. C. C. 465.

A gave 1000*l.* among four persons, as tenants in common, and directed if one of them die before twenty-one or marriage, it shall survive to the other; if one dies, and three are living, the share of that one so dying will survive to the other three; but if a second dies, nothing will survive but his original share, for the accruing share was a new legacy, and there is no survivorship. Id. 80.

A devise to A, and to such uses as he should appoint, was good before the statute of uses, for when he appoints, the cestui que trust is in by the feoffor, and not by the appointor. Cook v. Duckenfield, 2 Atk. 568.

Testator devising an estate to persons whom he names trustees for such purposes, as they or the major part of them shall think fit, gives no benefit to them; but is an authority only by appointing a quorum out of them. Id. ib. TRUSTEES.

Where testator bequeathed to his wife, all his household goods, furniture, plate, linen, and china in his house at E., or to the said house belonging, and also the said house, gardens, field, and land thereto belonging, so long as she continued his widow and no longer; and he likewise gave her his jewels, &c. Held that the household, goods, furniture, plate, linen, and china, were put under the same restriction as the house itself; but that the jewels, &c. were the wife's absolute property. Richards v. Baker, 2 Atk. 321. S. C. 9 Mod. 325.

The putting limiting words in the first or last part of a sentence, makes no difference as to the construction. S. C. Id.

A testator may give one thing to a person for life, together with an absolute property in another, unless the latter should be appurtenant to the thing before given. S. C. Id.

If estate be given to father for the benefit of his children at twenty-one, and he has no children, the father takes absolutely. Salt v. Chambers, 9 Mod. 260.

F by will gave to R legacy of 1000*l.* to be put out at interest till twenty-one, and in case of death before then to go to M his daughter, but if R lived to attain the age of twenty-one, then 500*l.* part of 1000*l.* to go to M, and be paid her when R should arrive at that age. M died before that time. Held M took a vested interest. Wingfield v. Newton, 9 Mod. 428. VESTED INTEREST.

If legacy be given to B payable two years after death of testator. B takes a vested interest though he die before that time. Sheldon v. Sheldon, 9 Mod. 211. INTEREST, VESTED.

N devises to his wife all his estate, leases and interest in his house in A, and all the goods and furniture therein at the time of his death, and also all his plate, jewels, &c. but desired her at or before her death to give such leases, &c. unto such of his own relations as she should think most deserving. The wife did not give at or before her death the goods in the said house, or her husband's jewels to his relations. Held that the wife only took beneficially during her life, and that so much of the household goods in A, not disposed of by her according to the power given her by the will of N, in case the same remains in specie, or the value thereof, ought to be divided equally among such of the relations as were his next of kin at the time of his death. Harding v. Glyn, 1 Atk. 469.

A gives by a codicil to B during her natural life, his house in G with all the household goods found therein at the time of his decease. The word "with" so conjoins the house and goods that the devisee can have no larger interest in the one than in the other. Lake v. Bennett, 1 Atk. 470.

A devises several leasehold estates to two trustees in trust if his granddaughter married without their consent to convey the premises to two other trustees in trust for her separate use during her life, and after her death for the use and benefit of her issue. Though she has no children by the first husband whom she married without the consent of the first trustees, she has only a right for her life, for the issue of any husband are provided for by this settlement. Champion v. Pickers, 1 Atk. 472. CONDITION OR CONSENT.

A devise of the rents and profits of an estate to the husband for life, without impeachment of waste, shall not only be considered as annual profits, but will empower him to cut timber. Parridge v. Pawlet, 1 Atk. 467. WASTE.

I devise 100*l.* per annum to my son A and his wife for their respective lives, 60*l.* whereof is to be paid to the wife for the support of herself and daughter, the remaining 40*l.* to my son. If son dies, the wife shall have the whole 100*l.* per annum. Cowper v. Scott, 3 P. W. 121.

A devise that if cestui que vie of church lease which the testator had should die, the testator's executors should purchase the premises for the life of J, the testator's kinsman; but if such purchase could not be made, then the surplus of his personal estate, to go to another: whether J takes any interest by the will; quare? Stephens v. Stephen 2 P. W. 323.

If testator devise lands in trust to his nephew A and niece B, and the children of the said B by her husband, to receive the profits when they come of age, and also bequeaths them money at the age of twenty-one; B having but one child at that time and afterwards makes a codicil confirming those bequests, all the children of B take as tenant in common, and have an immediate vested right in the moiety. Bateman v. Rouch, 9 Mod. 104.

A, seised of an estate of 600*l.* per annum, devises 300*l.* per annum to an infant, whose father was his heir at law, and the other 300*l.* per annum he devises to the father for his care in looking after the son's estate till he should come to the age of twenty-one. The father dies, leaving the son six years of age, having, by his will, devised this 300*l.* to his wife, and desired her to save what she could out of it for a portion for his daughter, and appointed her guardian of his son. This 300*l.* per annum does not determine by the father's death, but the wife shall have it till the son arrives to the age of twenty-one. Anon. Prec. Chan. 597.

One, having a wife and three daughters, devises 900*l.* to his three daughters equally, payable at their respective ages of twenty-one or marriage, and if all die before their legacies were payable, then the whole to the mother. If two of the daughters die before their shares become due, the surviving daughter is entitled to the whole. Scott v. Burgeinan, 2 P. W. 68.

One devises personal estate to his son, and if his son died within age and without issue, then the personal estate to go to the testator's brother. The son shall have the produce of the personal estate, and only the capital, in case of the infant's death, &c., shall go to the brother. Tissen v. Tissen, 1 P. W. 50*u*.

F, having an estate which came to her ex parte materna, on her marriage conveyed the same to trustees to such uses as she should direct, with remainder to her own right heirs. By will, she directed the estate to be sold, the money to be laid out in the funds, and the trustees to permit the husband to receive the interest for life; then, after the deduction of 3500*l.* to uses which vested in the plaintiff A, and after payment of 1000*l.* to G to pay the residue of the purchase money to the three defendants, H; by codicil, he gave the plaintiff, her husband, a power of appointing the 3500*l.* in case A should marry without his consent. G died, living the testatrix before the codicil made, but F, in the codicil, took no notice thereof. 1st, The 1000*l.* is real, not personal, and shall not go to the executors of G, (though given to her executors), nor to the personal representative of the testatrix, nor yet to the residuary legatee of the purchase money, but to the heir at law ex parte materna (the side from which the estate came); 2d, the 3500*l.* is vested in A, and the trustees having laid out a larger sum by 17*l.*, with intent to appropriate, it is well appropriated; and A having married once with her father's consent, his power is gone, and he consenting to give up his life interest, it was decreed to be paid to the trustees on her marriage settlement. Hillson v. Hammond, 3 Bro. C. C. 128. WILL. C. OF, WHO TAKE.

A makes a lease to B (his wife's nephew) for twenty-one years, for payment of his debts and legacies, and at the same time by will, taking notice of the said lease, devises the lands, after the expiration of the said lease, to C, his nephew and heir, and makes B executor. A lives twelve years, and pays all his debts himself, and the personal estate was sufficient for the legacies. C brings his bill to have the lease delivered up, the trusts being performed; but dismissed, the reversion only after the expiration of the term being devised to him. Bushnell v. Parsons, Prec. Chan. 218.

A devised his estate to his wife, she maintaining his four younger children; but if she married, she was to enjoy but one half, and the younger children were to have the remainder. The wife did maintain the children, and did not marry. Held, that she was entitled to the whole estate so devised. Scogrove v. Eustace, 3 Bro. P. C. 11.

A devises to his nephew 5*l.* per annum, (without saying to his executors or administrators) to be paid him during his, the testator's, wife's life, whom he made executrix, on condition that he demeaned himself civilly to her. By his death, the 5*l.* per annum is determined. Neal v. Hanbury, Prec. Chan. 173.

G devised several legacies, and charged them upon his lands, which he also charged with the payment of his debts, and made L executrix, but did not give her his personal estate in express words, though it was in proof he declared she should have it. Per cur. as the lands are expressly charged with the payment of the debts and legacies, L shall have the personal estate exempt, and if she should be sued for any debts, she may be reimbursed out of the lands. Ly. Gainsborough's case, 2 Freem. 188.

Devise of 100*l.* to A and B, viz., 50*l.* to A, and 50*l.* to B, payable at such a time, and if either die before the time, then the 100*l.* to the survivor. The whole 100*l.* decreed to the survivor, notwithstanding the severing clause, which holds only in case both live to the time of payment. Sevelling v. Green, Prec. Chan. 37.

One devises lands to trustees and their heirs, in trust to receive the rents until his son shall come to twenty-one, and to pay one-third thereof to the testator's wife in lieu of dower, and out of the other two-thirds to raise portions for his daughters, and devises all to his son William, when twenty-one, in tail, remainder to B and C. The wife dies. The son dies before twenty-one, and without issue. Resolved, the wife's interest determined by her death, and her third shall not go to the executors until her son would have attained twenty-one: resolved, the remainder over to A, B, and C, are good, though the son died before twenty-one. resolved, the daughter's portion being raised, the residue of the term shall go to the heir as an interest undisposed of by the will; but it will vest in the heir as a chattel, and, on his death, go to his executor until testator's son should have come to twenty-one. Level v. Needham, 2 Vern. 138.

One devises to two of his sisters 400*l.* a-piece, and to his third sister what his executors should think fit. The court decreed the third sister should have 400*l.* also, and be made equal to her two other sisters, if the estate would hold out. Wareham v. Brown, 2 Vern. 153.

Devise of land to A for sixty years, if he so long live, and, from and after the death of A, to his eldest son B in tail. Whether this be a vested or contingent remainder? Beverley v. Beverley, 2 Vern. 131.

Legacies given to A, B, and C, and the wife of C, equally to be divided amongst them. C and his wife shall have but one-third. Bricker v. Whitley, 1 Vern. 233.

A, having debts due to him by bond, and being possessed of a term for years, gave one moiety of his personal estate to his wife, and several legacies to other persons, and the residue to S. The wife shall have one complete moiety, if the other is sufficient to pay the debts, and she shall have a moiety of the lease. Lee v. Hale, 1 Ch. Ca. 16. 2 Freem. 157.

Testator gave a copyhold estate to trustees for his wife, until the leases to which it was subject expired, and directed that then it should be sold, and the proceeds invested for the benefit of his children, but if his wife should die before the leases expired, that it should be immediately sold, and the proceeds disposed of as before. The wife survived the children, but died before the leases expired. The surviving trustee, who claimed the estate for his own benefit, was decreed to surrender it to the administrator of the children, but without prejudice to the rights of the customary heirs of either the testator or the children, if any such heirs were in existence. Burton v. Holtall, 2 Sim. 24.

By Mr. and Mrs. P's marriage settlement, estates in K, and other counties, the lady's property, were settled on her for life, remainder to Mr. P for life, if he should so appoint, remainder to their children, remainder as Mrs. P, by deed, under her hand and seal attested, &c. or by her will signed and published, in the presence of three witnesses should appoint; remainder to Mrs. P in fee, with a power of sale, and directions for reinvesting the proceeds in other estates, and in the usual security in the interim, and that upon the reinvestment, the uses of the settlement should cease as to the sold estates. Mrs. P, by deed, not attested as to her signature (at the foot of which she had written without date, directions for her burial,) appointed the estates after her decease, to her husband for life, and in default of children, to him in fee, and she revoked a prior deed of appointment. The estates were afterwards sold and the proceeds invested in securities, but were never reinvested in lands, although their liability to be so was recognized by the parties. There was no issue of the marriage. Mrs. P survived her husband, and applied part of the proceeds to her own use. At her death she was seised (exclusive of the settled property,) of a mansion house, buildings, &c. opposite to it, let to tenants, and was possessed of some personal estate, no part of which was in the name of a trustee. She devised the mansion house, with its appurtenances, all other her real estates to C, and bequeathed all her personal estate, whether in the name of herself or of any trustee, subject expressly to her debts and legacies to other persons. After her death, the deed of appointment was found in her house, with the title deeds of the mansion house, but the revoked deeds could not be found. Her debts and legacies greatly exceeded her assets: held, that the former deed was not a testamentary instrument, and that Mrs. P's receiving part of the proceeds of the settled estate was not an entry or claim within the 54 G. 3. c. 168, but that the statute remedied the defects of attestation; that the remaining proceeds remained as real estate, but did not pass either to the devisee, or the residuary legatees in the will; that Mr. P's co-heirs in gavelkind were not entitled to any part, but that the whole belonged to his heir at law, under the appointment. Hougham v. Sandys, 2 Sim. 95. SETTLEMENT C. OF.

A testator directs the residue of his property to be divided into eight equal shares, and disposed of "as follows among the children of B;" he then gives two shares to each of the two daughters, and one share to each of the three sons of A B, making together only seven shares: held, that the whole residue is devisable amongst the children of A B, in seven parts, each daughter taking two of those seventh parts, and each son one. Berkley v. Pulling, 1 Russ. 496.

A testator bequeaths to "his only son, 60l. a year for ever, also to provide for the two daughters of H F, and the remainder of his property to the two children of S A:" held that under these words the two daughters of H F, do not take any benefit. Abraham v. Alman, 1 Russ. 509.

Under a bequest of a residuary fund to the testator's first and second cousins, and the children of his kinsman, George Charge, which children were first cousins of the testator, twice removed, all persons related to the testator in the degree of second cousins are entitled. Charge v. Goodger, 3 Russ. 140.

Bequest to the children of A, described spinster, and nothing on the face of the will, shewing that illegitimate children were intended. Inquiry whether she left illegitimate children refused. Osmond v. Tindall, 5 Ves. 584. BASTARD; INQUIRY.

Legacy of 600l. to F, and at her death to two daughters in equal shares, and at their death to their children; one daughter having died without issue: held, that children of other, did not take her share. Tuniere v. Pearkes, 2 S. & S. 383.

Bequest to testatrix's daughter for life, and after her death as she should appoint, and in default of appointment to testatrix's next of kin, to be considered as a vested interest from testatrix's death, except as to any after-born child of daughter. The daughter having died without any child, and without executing any appointment; held that the persons who would be next of kin at testatrix's death, if her daughter had then been without children, were entitled. Bird v. Wood, 2 S. & S. 400.

Testator bequeathed to his wife the use of his furniture &c. which he desired might be distributed amongst his children, when the youngest attained twenty-one, at her and his executor's discretion, such part to be reserved for her use as might be deemed reasonable, and at her death to be distributed as above directed: held that those children who died before the youngest attained the age of twenty-one, did not take vested interest. Ford v. Rawlins, 1 S. & S. 328. VESTED INTERESTS.

A testator bequeaths the residuo of his property to his nephews and nieces on their respectively attaining twenty-five, with a direction that his trustees shall, in the mean time, apply the profits to their maintenance; but in case of the death of them unmarried, and without issue, he gives the shares of those so dying unto the survivors equally, to be paid at the same time with their original shares; first a nephew, and then a niece die, under twenty-five, unmarried, and without issue; the whole residuo is devisable among the survivors who attain the specified age, and the niece does not, upon the death of the nephew, acquire, under the clause of survivorship, a vested interest in her proportional part of his share. Barker v. Lee, 1 Turn. & R. 413.

Testatrix bequeathed one moiety of the residue of her personal estate to her daughter H for her separate use during the joint lives of her and her husband, and if she survived, to her absolutely; if not, to her children who should attain twenty-one; and she bequeathed the other moiety for the benefit of her daughter M and her children, with bequest over if she died without children, to H and her children in like manner as the first moiety. By codicil she bequeathed the whole residue, if both her daughters died without leaving a child who should attain twenty-one, to A. Both the daughters died without issue, but H survived her husband: held, nevertheless, that A was entitled to the residue. Hopkins v. Towle, 1 S. & S. 377.

A testator gives a sum of stock to trustees, which they are to stand possessed of upon trust for D G until he shall attain the age of twenty-five years, and are to transfer to him when they, in their discretion, shall think proper; he likewise directs that, if D G dies without lawful issue before receiving the bequest, the stock shall sink into the residue of his the testator's estate; and he bequeaths the residue to W F: while D G is under twenty-five years of age, and has not had the stock transferred to him, neither he nor W F is entitled to receive the accruing dividends; but these dividends must accumulate to accompany the capital in its final destination. Gordon v. Rutherford, 1 Turn. & R. 373. INTERMEDIATE PROFIT.

Legacy in trust for the children of A to be equally divided between them with benefit of survivorship, and a provision for maintenance out of the interest:

A having no children at the death of the testator, held, that afterborn children would take, and that the interest, till the birth of a child, fell into the residue. Harris v. Lloyd, 1 Turn. & R. 310. POSTHUMOUS CHILD; INTERMEDIATE PROFITS.

Illegitimate children not entitled under the description of children in a will, the intention not being sufficiently apparent upon the face of the will. Id. BASTARD.

Testator directed interest of sum of money to be paid to his sisters during their lives in equal proportions; and at their death gave to their children the inheritance their mothers derived from his estate, and desired that his sisters should be residuary legatees in proportions already mentioned: Held, that sisters were entitled absolutely to residue, and that their children took no interest. Grassick v. Drummond, 1 S. & S. 517.

Testator after giving some legacies, directs payment to be made to his devisees as under, and then mentions certain persons and the sums to be paid them, and gives residue to all his devisees above mentioned in proportion to their legacies. Every one of legatees is entitled to share of residue. Cope v. Banning, 1 S. & S. 534.

Gift to such of the children of A, B, and C as should be living at the testatrix's death, or the issue of such of them as should be married, in equal shares. The word "or" construed to mean "and," and the children and grandchildren held to be equally entitled. Horridge v. Ferguson, 1 Jac. 583.

Under an executory devise of a residue of real and personal estate, the intermediate rents and profits of the real estates pass as well as the interest of the personality. Genery v. Fitzgerulld, 1 Jac. 468. EXECUTORY DEVISE; INTERMEDIATE PROFITS.

After an annuity for life to father of part of dividends, and remainder as to whole dividends subject to father's annuity; gift to children when they attained twenty-one, is gift to all living when eldest attains twenty-one. Curtis v. Curtis, 6 Mad. 14.

Bequest to A for life, and after death to divide it in portions for children as she should please. And in case of A's death before testator, to be divided equally. Held, children living at A's death were only objects of power, and as such entitled to share lapsed by death of a child to whom it had been appointed. Kennedy v. Kingston, 2 J. & W. 431. LAPSED LEGACY.

An illegitimate child may take by particular description before its birth. Darson v. Darson, 6 Mad. 292. BASTARD.

Testator gives the residue, to be divided among his sister's death, amongst his nephews and nieces, and by a codicil gives to a great-niece, whom he calls his niece, 500*l.* over and above her share after the decease of his sister, in the body of his will treated of more at large: Held, that none of the great-nephews or nieces were entitled to share in the residue. Shelley v. Bryer, 1 Jac. 206.

Bequest to A for life, remainder to his children; but if he shall die without children living at his death, to B for life; remainder to her children; and if she shall die without children living at her death, then to her executors, administrators and assigns. By a codicil, the same is given over "after the decease of the before-mentioned persons in my will, A and his heirs for ever, and B and her heirs for ever." The meaning of the word "heirs" in the codicil not to be confined to children from comparison with the will, and the bequest over, therefore, too remote. Griffiths v. Grieve, 1 Jac. & W. 31. LIMIT. OVER TOO REMOTE.

Gift of real and personal estate, after a life interest to the testator's widow, to trustees, to be converted into money, and divided among several persons named, and the survivor or survivors of them. Those only are entitled who survive the widow. Haghton v. Whitgreave, 1 Jac. & W. 146.

Devise of real estate, to be sold after the death of tenant for life, and bequest of specific sums out of the produce to several grandchildren and a child, and of the residue to other children, to be respectively paid at twenty-one or marriage. "But if any of my said children or grandchildren should happen to die before the time of such legacy becoming due and payable, then I give and bequeath the share or part of such child or children or grandchildren so dying, unto and among those that shall be then living, share and share alike. Two of the children died before the testator; their shares are to be divided among the other children and grandchildren equally. Another child and a grandchild having survived the testator and attained twenty-one, died before the tenant for life; their shares transmissible to their representatives: no implication that the survivorship was to take place amongst the children and grandchildren distinctly from the inequality of legacies, or from the bequest to each class being made by distinct clauses. Walker v. Main, 1 Jac. & W. 1. SERVIVORSHIP.

The word "relations," construed by reference to the statute of distribution. Brandon v. Brandon, 3 Swan. 319. DISTRIBUTION.

Bequest of 300*l.* stock to W, the testator's son by a first marriage (his second wife and a son by her being living), the interest to be appropriated to his maintenance, under the direction of trustees, till he attained twenty-four, and of the residue of the testator's personal estate (the interest being given to his wife during her widowhood), after her decease or marriage, "unto any child or children I may have by my wife, to be equally divided between them that attain the age of twenty-one years, the survivor of my children to possess what is here bequeathed to the other, but should not either of my children attain the age of twenty-one years, or live to possess what is here bequeathed to them, I then bequeath to the children of the testator's sister the 300*l.* stock;" the son by the second marriage dying in the life of the testator, and there being no other issue of that marriage, W is entitled to the stock and to the residue. Hill v. Smith, 1 Swan. 195.

Devise of estate to A, subject to payment of 500*l.* to M, with interest on her marriage or attaining twenty-one; but if she dies before twenty-one or marriage, and there be no children born of B, then the 500*l.* to revert to A: M died before twenty-one, unmarried: held, that children borne of B, after death of M, entitled. Hutchinson v. Jones, 2 Mad. 124.

Legacy "to the children of the late C K who shall be living at the testator's decease; C K being dead at the date of the will, leaving illegitimate children (of whom three were living at the death of the testator), and not having, at the date of the will, nor having ever had, any legitimate children, the three illegitimate children were held to be entitled. Id. Woodhouselee v. Dalrymple, 2 Mer. 419. BASTARDS.

Children, by implication from will and codicil, the latter saying, that in case tenant for life had no children, gift over, held entitled to legacy. Exp. Rogers, 2 Mad. 449.

Bequest to executors of 4000*l.* in trust to pay one half of the interest to A, and the other half to B, during their lives; "and as their lives drop and expire, I direct that the principal and interest be reserved and equally divided among their children, when they shall severally attain twenty-one." A died without issue; the entire principal vests in the children of B, on their severally attaining twenty-one. Smith v. Streetfield, 1 Mer. 358.

Under a bequest by unmarried man "to my children, &c. each;" parol evidence allowed to show who testator considered in character of children, and they having obtained a name by reputation admitted to take as a class, though illegitimate and not named in will. Beachcroft v. Beachcroft, 1 Mad. 430. BASTARD; EVID.

Bequest "to each and every the child and children of my brother and sisters which shall be living at the time of my death; but, if any child or children of my said brother and sisters shall happen to die in my lifetime, and leave issue, then the legacy or legacies hereby intended for such child or children so dying, shall be for his, her, or their issue." The issue take only by substitution; therefore, only the issue of such children as were living at the date of the will, are entitled in the event of the death of their respective parents during the testator's lifetime. Christopherson v. Naylor, 1 Mer. 320.

Gift of residue "to be divided among legatees in proportion to the legacies bequeathed by this my will;" restricted, upon construction of the whole will, to general pecuniary legatees, in exclusion of legacies payable out of a specific fund in futuro, and of legacies given by codicil. Henwood v. Overend, 1 Mer. 23.

The word "relations or near relations," from their indefinite extent confined to the next of kin under the statute of distributions. Smith v. Campbell, 19 Ves. 403.

Testator devised freehold fee-simple estates in possession to all and every the child and children of his daughter, S M, for life: and after the decease of such child and children, to the lawful issue of such child and children to hold to such issue, his, her, and their heirs, as tenants in common; and in default of such issue, over to other persons; S M had nine children, four born in the testator's life, and five after his decease: held, that all the nine took under this devise as tenants in common in tail, with cross remainders. Mogg v. Mogg, 1 Mer. 651.

Testator devised freehold fee-simple estates to trustees during the life of his son, J, upon certain trusts, remainder to his son's children and their issue, in the same words as in the above devise to his daughter's children, and in default of such issues, to all and every the child and children of his daughter S, &c. (in the same words as before): Held that only six of the nine children of S, took under this devise: namely, five who were born, and one who was en ventre at the death of J. Id. 655. INFANT EN VENTRE SA MERE.

Testator devised freehold fee-simple estates to his widow for life, and after her decease, to the same uses as in the devise last stated: Held that all the nine children of S took under this devise, all being born in the widow's life. Id. ib.

Legacy "to my namesake Thomas, the second son of my brother John," there being no son named Thomas, established in the favour of the second son William, as an erroneous description, not a condition. Stockdale v. Bushby, 19 Ves. 381. S. C. Coop. 229. MISTAKE.

Under a devise in trust to settle on the devisors' children in equal shares and proportions undivided for and during their respective lives, with remainder to their issue, severally and respectively in tail general, with cross remainders over, there being two daughters, cross remainders, not only among the several children of each, but also as between the two families. Horne v. Barton, 19 Ves. 398. S. C. Coop. 257.

Implication of cross-remainders under a direction in default of such issue to go over. Id. ib.

Upon the construction of a will, the gift of the residue after a life interest to the testator's next of kin, held to mean next of kin at the death of the wife, and not those living at the testator's death, they having express bequests under the will. Miller v. Eaton, Coop. 272.

Bequest by a testator in India "to my nearest surviving relations in my native country, Ireland," confined to brothers and sisters living in Ireland or elsewhere: the addition of a mistaken description, viz. of the place of residence, not vitiating a gift to persons otherwise sufficiently described. Nephews and nieces included. Smith v. Campbell, 19 Ves. 400.

Residuary disposition to the children of the testator's brothers and sisters as aforesaid, (named previously as legatees) who shall be living at his decease, at twenty-five, equally; but in case of the decease of any of the aforesaid brothers and sisters having issue, then the child or children to have the same share as if the parent had been living at his decease, with maintenance and survivorship in case of the death of any unmarried and without issue. The first clear designation of nephews and nieces, living at his death, as the sole objects of his bounty, not altered or controuled by the subsequent designation of the brothers and sisters, admitting questions of doubtful construction, as to after-born children. Barker v. Lea, 3 V. & B. 113.

Devise of estate to A for life, then to testator's nephews, &c. and to the children of them that should be then dead. Issue of nephews who died in testator's lifetime, not entitled. Thornhill v. Thornhill, 4 Mad. 377.

Where a testator interlined his will to except the plaintiff, who was named a legatee under it with others, and also made a codicil expressly excluding him, but afterwards obliterated the codicil without doing the same with the interlineation of the will, the court admitted the plaintiff to an equal interest with the other parties taking under the will, considering the inference as certain that the testator so intended. Uttersen v. Uttersen, Coop. 60. S. C. 3 Ves. & B. 122. WILL, REVOC. OF.

Construction of a will and settlement, as not comprehending great grandchildren under the description of children and grandchildren. El. Orford v. Churchill, 3 V. & B. 50.

Under a devise by a married man, having no legitimate children, "to the children which I may have by A, and living at my decease;" natural children, who had acquired the reputation of being his children by her before the date of the will, entitled, as upon the whole will intended, and sufficiently described; rejecting as a description of the devisees, passages in a written book, unattested, of which probate was admitted under a reference in the will to "the observations and directions," which "I shall leave in a written book;" whether, if there were also legitimate children by the same mother, they could take together under the same description, and whether future illegitimate children can take under any description in a will, qu? Wilkinson v. Adam, 1 V. & B. 422. Affd. 12 Pri. 470. BASTARD.

Illegitimate child cannot take by the description of child of his reputed father, until he has acquired the reputation of being such child. Id. 452. Id.

"Child," &c. prima facie, means legitimate. Id. 462.

Although the operation of a bequest of a residue by a father to his two children, to be equally divided between them, and if they should die without issue, or before twenty-one, to go over, would be to give vested legacies to be devolved only on the deaths of both children under twenty-one, and without issue; and the representative of one of the children dying under twenty-one, and without issue, would be entitled, till the happening of that event; yet the intention that the surviving child should take the whole, sufficiently appearing on the will, controls the effect of the bequest to the deceased child, and the survivor held to be entitled to the residue, subject to the event on which the whole was given over. Beauman v. Stock; Blake v. Foster, 2 Ball & B. 406.

Legacy to the three children of A, the sum of 600*l.* each; four children, all born before the date of the will, entitled to 600*l.* Carvey v. Hibbert, 19 Ves. 125.

Under a devise of the entire residue, real and personal to A, B, and C, (children of the testator,) and all their younger children, their heirs, executor, &c. for ever; A, B, and C to receive the yearly interest for their respective lives of such part thereof as were intended for their respective younger children; and in case of the death of A, B, and C, the share of any of them so dying, to go to his or her younger children; and in case of the death of A, B, and C, or any of them, without leaving younger children, the share of such child so dying, to go to the survivor and their younger children, with power of appointment amongst their respective younger children; and in case of the death of any of the younger grand-children before twenty-one or days of marriage, the shares of such to go to the brethren of the child so dying. At the time of the will, and of the testator's death, A had one younger child; B, several; C, none; each had several since: on bill by after-born grand-children, held, 1st. That the residue was divisible into three parts, the yearly interest of each to go to A, B, and C, for their respective lives; 2dly. That after-born grand-children were entitled subject to the power of appointment to their parents; 3dly. That the share of a younger child dying under twenty-one and unmarried, goes over to the brothers and sisters of such child; 4thly. That the share of A, B, and C, dying without leaving younger children, goes over to the survivors for the same estate as their own original shares; 5thly. That a younger grand-child dying in the lifetime of its parent, under twenty-one and unmarried, had not a vested interest in its share, transmissible to its representatives. Croft v. Odell, 1 Ball & B. 449, 450. Affd. 3 Dow, 61. WILL., C. OF, WHAT INTEREST; INTEREST VESTED.

Proviso that if any of the tenants for life, in a devise and executory trust to convey in strict settlement, shall become possessed of the family estate, the devise or limitation directed, shall thereupon cease and become void and not take effect; and the persons next in remainder under the said limitations or directions, thereupon become entitled to the possession. Stanley v. Stanley, 16 Ves. 491.

Devise in remainder to the said T B for life, and after his decease to the said T B, the son of my nephew S, and his heirs; a nephew of the same name T B, not being before mentioned, and in every other instance the devisee being pointed out by reference and particular description of the degree of relationship, the great nephew held to be intended in both limitations. Chambers v. Brailsford, 18 Ves. 368. Affd. 19 Ves. 652.

Bequest of accumulated fund from real and personal estate, when the legatee attains twenty-one, upon his death, under that age a resulting trust for the respective representatives. Id. ib.

Rents and profits under a trust to accumulate, being in the event not disposed of, belong to the heir at law. Stanley v. Stanley, 16 Ves. 491. INTERMEDIATE PROFITS; HEIR AT LAW.

Residuary bequest cancelled by striking through with a pencil all the general description, with notes in pencil in the margin, indicating alteration, and a different disposition of certain articles, a resulting trust for the next of kin. Mence v. Mence, 18 Ves. 348. NEXT OF KIN; TRUST RESULTING.

Word "relations" in a will, means "next of kin." Bequest of residue to testator's wife for life, with a direction to dispose of the residue amongst his relations, in such manner as she should think fit; appointment to relations, not being next of kin, void, and the residue decreed to be distributed amongst those who were next of kin to the testator at the time of his death. Pope v. Whitcombe, 3 Mer. 689. RE-LATIONS.

A bequest to Roman Catholic bishops and their successors, is void, no such characters being known to the laws of Ireland; but where they are particularly named, though so described, the bequest is good, for their joint lives, subject to the controul of the court of chancery. Att. Gen. v. Power, 1 Ball & B. 145. ROMAN CATHOLIC BISHOP.

Trust by will to pay the income to the testator's wife for life, enjoining her to co-operate with his trustees in carrying his wishes into execution, and directing her, with the advice and assistance of his trustees, to lay out one moiety in promoting charitable purposes, as well of a public as a private nature, and more especially in relieving such distressed persons, either the widow or children of poor clergymen or otherwise, as his wife shall judge most worthy and deserving objects, giving a preference always to poor relations. The object is, charity in general with a preference, but not confined to poor relations; the distribution to be at the discretion of the wife, with the advice and assistance, not subject to the controul of, the trustees. Waldo v. Caley, 16 Ves. 206.

Testator gave all his estate and effects to two persons, their heirs, executors, &c. upon trust in the first place to pay, and charged and chargeable with, all his debts and funeral expences, and the legacies after given. Those persons, whether they could claim in their individual characters or not, being afterwards appointed executors held entitled to the residue undisposed of, (including a legacy to a charity, void by the stat. 9 G. 2. c. 36.), for their own benefit, against the claim of the next of kin; the whole property being personal. Dawson v. Clark, 15 Ves. 409. Affd. 18 Ves. 247. RESIDUE; EXORS. BENEFICIALLY INTERESTED.

Devise to the devisor's sister A then unmarried, for life, with remainder to her first and other sons in tail male; to her daughters in tail, as tenants in common; to his sister B then married, for life, and to her first and other sons in tail; remainder to the first and nearest of his kindred, being male and of his name and blood, that shall be living at the determination of the estates before devised, and to the heirs of his body: A person claiming under the last limitation must be of the name, as well as the blood; and the qualification as to the name, is not satisfied by having the name, taken by the King's licence, previous to the determination of the preceding estates. Leigh v. Leigh, 15 Ves. 92.

Trust of real and personal estate by will, to apply rents and dividends for maintenance of all and every the children of the testator's daughters (except the eldest son), share and share alike; until the youngest of his said grandchildren should attain twenty-one; and in case of the death of any of his said grandchildren, before the youngest shall be twenty-one, having a child or children, such child, &c. to receive the parent's share; and when the youngest of his said grandchildren living shall have attained twenty-one, one equal share of the capital, real and personal, to the use of such of his said grandchildren as shall then be living, and the children of his said grandchildren in case of the death of any, leaving such issue, to have the share the parent would have been entitled to, if living at the time of distribution; and to the heirs, executors, &c. of such his said grandchildren and great grandchildren. The division is to be among all the grandchildren living, when the youngest attains twenty-one, including those born since the testator's death, and the children of those deceased; but the representatives of grandchildren dead, not leaving children, are not entitled. Hughes v. Hughes, 14 Ves. 286. S. C. 3 Bro. C. C. 352. 434.

Bequest to the children of A who should be living at the testator's decease, equally with survivorship in case of death without leaving issue; if leaving issue, the issue to have the parent's share. The survivorship cannot be restrained to the period of the testator's death, as upon the construction the clause would be repugnant. Shergold v. Bome, 13 Ves. 370. SURVIVORSHIP.

Bequest of the dividends of stock, in trust for the testator's nephew, son of his youngest brother B for life; unless under will he should become entitled to the testator's real estate in America, devised to B and his first and other sons in strict settlement, in remainder after similar estates to the testator's next brother A, and his issue male; and in that event, and so from time to time afterwards, or if any future possessor should bar the entail by recovery or other means, as to the capital for such person as shall be heir apparent, or expectant next to the person then in possession, or if he should have joined in barring the entail, for the person next in succession to him. After the death of A, the title of his eldest son to the estate, being in consequence of the American revolution confiscated in 1779, upon the death of the son of B, the second son of A, his eldest son having no issue, was held entitled to the dividends of the stock, while his elder brother should have no issue male. Penn v. Barclay, 14 Ves. 122.

Under a general bequest to servants, a coachman (provided with the carriage and horses by a job-master, according to the usual course of that business,) not entitled. Chilcot v. Bromley, 12 Ves. 114.

Under a residuary bequest to the next of kin in equal degree, brothers entitled, excluding nephews and nieces. Wimbles v. Pitcher, 12 Ves. 433.

Construction of a will, giving the real and personal estate to the testator's son, his heirs, executors, &c., when he shall attain twenty-one, or marry before that age with consent; in case of his marriage under that age without consent, the real estate to be conveyed to him and his children in strict settlement; remainder to the daughters, and a subsequent limitation of the personal estate to the daughters, in case the son should not attain twenty-one, or marry before that age with consent: Held, that the son having married under twenty-one without consent, attaining that age became absolutely entitled to the personal estate. Austen v. Hulsey, 1 Ves. 125.

Construction of an obscure will; first, that the income only, not the capital, was disposed of; secondly, that the disposition was in favour of the younger children, excluding the eldest. A legacy, not as an independent bequest, with a time for payment or distribution, appointed afterwards, but the time annexed to the substance of the bequest, the interests do not vest before that period. Sansbury v. Read, 12 Ves. 75. WILL, C. OF, WHAT PARTS; INTEREST, VESTED.

The word "issue" unconfined by indication of intention, includes all descendants. Intention necessary to restrain it to children; grandchildren therefore entitled with children, per capita. Legh v. Norbury, 13 Ves. 340.

Legacy to A, "and failing him by decease before me, to his heirs." A dies before the testator, having made a will containing a residuary bequest: the legacy belongs to the next of kin of A living at the time of the testator's death. Vaux v. Henderson, 1 Jac. & W. 308.

Devise, in default of issue male of A, to the first daughter living at the death of the testator who should attain twenty-five for life, with remainder to her first and other sons in tail male; remainders over, subject to a trust for debts and accumulation of the surplus rents and profits, until a son or daughter should first come to the actual possession of the estates, or receipt of the rents after that period, such person to take the surplus rents, and the surplus of the accumulation, after payment of the debts, to be paid to such person or persons who by the limitation should first come to the actual possession of the estates or receipt of the rents and profits. A daughter living at the death of the testator, and having attained twenty-five, entitled to possession of the estate and to the accumulated fund. Barker v. Barker, 12 Ves. 409.

Portions by settlements, for the children living at the death of the survivor of the parents, with a proviso that advancements should be in satisfaction, unless the contrary is declared; the father by will, desiring the settlement may be punctually complied with, made a residuary disposition of real and personal estates among the younger children, directing, that what they may have received in his life shall be brought into the account, so as to make them all equal. Construction upon the whole, that advancement in marriage or otherwise, though not the grammatical construction, is within the proviso; and equality being the object, an arrangement was made upon that principle. One of the younger children having become the eldest, and therefore owner of the estate between the death of parents, after advances received in satisfaction of the portion in the former character, is to be considered a younger child in the account. Leake v. Leake, 10 Ves. 477. YOUNGER CHILDREN.

Trust by will as to a moiety of the share of the testator's married daughter A, for her separate use, to the end, and that it may not be subject to the controul, &c. of B, her present husband, or any other husband, remainder to her husband B for life, remainder for all the children of A, and in case there shall not be any children of A, or all shall die before twenty-one, for the survivor of B and A his wife, his or her executors, &c. and as to a moiety of each of the shares of each of his two unmarried daughters, upon the like trusts, and under the like restrictions as described concerning the share of A so, and in such manner as that the same may be secured for the benefit of his said daughters and their children, and not to be subject or liable to the controul of any husband they may happen to marry; one of the unmarried daughters having married, and died without issue, her husband surviving is not entitled to any interest in the moiety, of the subject of the trust created by the will. Judd v. Wyatt, 11 Ves. 483.

Residue bequeathed to A and all the other children hereafter to be born of B, at their respective ages of twenty-one; those born after one attains that age are excluded. Gilbert v. Boorman, 11 Ves. 238.

Bequest of stock, &c. and interest and dividends to accrue to testator's two great nieces, equally to be divided and to be assigned, transferred, &c. to them, when and as they should respectively attain twenty-one, with limitations of their respective shares on the event of death under twenty-one, to their respective children; survivorship in case of no children, and a direction that the executors should, during the respective minorities of the legatees, receive the dividends, interest, &c. and that so much as should be necessary should be applied for maintenance, &c. and the residue accumulate for their benefits respectively, until they should respectively become entitled to their respective parts. The surplus interest held to go with the principal upon the death of one under twenty-one without children. Sison v. Shaw, 9 Ves. 285.

Testatrix bequeathed to her sister B for life, declaring that it was her absolute desire that B bequeathed to those of her own family what she has power to dispose of, provided they behave well to her; B, by her will, declared she meant to make no disposition of her sister's property; it was held a trust for next of kin of B. Cruwys v. Colman, 9 Ves. 319.

Bequest to "relations," confined to next of kin according to statute of distributions. Id. 323. RELATIONS.

Though upon bequests to "relations," with a power of selection, the party may go beyond those included in statute of distributions; the contrary is adhered to whenever the execution devolves on the court. Id. 324. RELATIONS.

Bequest to testator's relations, with power of selection is, if that power is not exercised, a trust for next of kin at death of party who had the power. Id. 325.

Bequest of one-fourth to the children of A, and one other fourth among children of B: held distributable per capita. Ly. Lincoln v. Pellam, 10 Ves. 167. DISTRIBUTION.

Bequest to children of A, born or to be born, as many as there might be, at twenty-one or marriage, with survivorship, and a limitation over on death of all, &c.: held vested in those living when one is entitled to the exclusion of those born afterwards. Whitbread v. Ld. St. John, 10 Ves. 152. INTEREST VESTED.

Construction of will, that under bequest to the children of A, a second son of three at the death of testator and the tenant for life, who became the eldest before the age of twenty-one, till which he was subject to survivorship, was upon his will, not entitled. Bowles v. Bowles, 10 Ves. 177.

Under a disposition by will to A's and B's families, the children are entitled, exclusive of their parents, and per capita. Barnes v. Patch, 8 Ves. 604.

Legacy to executor to be distributed amongst the poor relations of testator. A relation who was poor at the time of testator's death, but became rich before distribution, not entitled. Poor relation dying before distribution, his claim not transmissible to his personal representative. Where a person has a power of distribution among poor relations, he may distribute amongst all poor relations, however remote; but where the court is called on to distribute, in failure of the person so empowered, it will confine itself to relations within the statute of distributions. Mahon v. Savage, 1 Scho. & L. 111. POOR RELATIVES.

Bequest to such of the children of A, as B shall by will direct, and in default of such direction, among the children, share and share alike; B's disposition by will in favour of the children living at her death, established against the claim of one born afterwards under the general words. Paul v. Compton, 8 Ves. 375. POWER, EXECUTION OF.

Bequest to the children of A, vested at the age of twenty-one, therefore those born after one has attained that age are excluded. Id. 380.

Bequest to A for his second daughter, that he shall have born, for her education, till she shall attain the age of twenty-one, and after she shall attain the age of twenty-one to her and her heirs, she being christened Z; and in default of such issue over, another bequest to A till the said second daughter shall attain twenty-one, and after she shall attain twenty-one to her heirs. Both held vested in second daughter; the third child, christened Z, though she died under twenty-one. Lane v. Goudge, 9 Ves. 225. INTEREST VESTED.

Bequest to testator's wife, if living at his decease, provided she continued his widow; but if she should die before his decease, or afterwards marry, then and in either case to his father, "if he shall be living at the time of my decease, or of such marriage as aforesaid, and in case he shall not be then living, I give and bequeath the same to my brother." The father survived the testator, but died before marriage of widow; upon marriage the brother was entitled. Pyle v. Price, 6 Ves. 779. LEGACY, CONDITIONAL.

Residuary bequest to the testator's daughter for life, and to her children at their ages of twenty-one, and after the decease of his daughter and of her children under that age, to go and be distributed among his relations in due course of administration. Great-nephews and great-nieces, the next of kin of the testator, at the death of the daughter, entitled against the claim of the personal representatives of the daughter the sole next of kin, at the death of the testator, and of the representatives of nephews and nieces, who died in her life, insisting that she was excluded by the will. Jones v. Colebeck, 8 Ves. 38.

Though the word "issue" will comprehend all descendants, upon construction of this will it was confined to "children." Sibley v. Perry, 7 Ves. 522.

Under residuary bequest to legatees, in proportion to their legacies, all legatees, pecuniary and specific, even of things, &c. not expressly or by implication excluded, were held entitled; so annuitants, if they had not been excluded, on construction of whole will. Nannock v. Horton, 7 Ves. 391. LEGACIES, SPECIFIC.

Bequest to executors in trust, that they shall pay, &c. unto and amongst the testator's two brothers and his sisters, or their children, in such shares, &c. as the trustees or the major part of them, or the survivor, his executors, &c. shall think fit. All the children living at the death of the testator held entitled with the parents, per capita, the court not having a discretion. Langmore v. Broom, 7 Ves. 124.

Bequest to particular description of persons at a particular time, vests in persons answering the description at that time exclusively. Godfrey v. Davis, 6 Ves. 43.

A bequest to all and every the child and children of A, includes every child born before the period of distribution; which in this case was the attainment of twenty-one by the eldest, the marriage of daughter, or death of child under twenty-one, leaving issue. Upon the general rule, a child by subsequent marriage was included, notwithstanding strong implication in favour of children of prior marriage. Barrington v. Tristram, 6 Ves. 345.

Devise in trust to dispose of the premises unto and amongst the devisee's four children in such manner, shares, &c. as he shall by deed or will appoint; one dying in the life of his father before appointment, was held entitled to a fourth, the father after that child's death having appointed three-fourths to his three surviving children respectively. Reade v. Reade, 5 Ves. 744. This decision, as far as it leaves one-fourth to the deceased child, is questioned by Lord Eldon. Butcher v. Butcher, 1 Ves. & B. 192. POWER.

The testator having given his wife the option to occupy his house at a certain rent, and if she should choose to do so, declared she should have the use of the furniture; by codicil revoking the bequest of an annuity to her, gave her a legacy to provide furniture in case she should not choose to occupy his house, or for any other purpose she should think proper. She occupied the house and furniture till her death, and her executor was held entitled to her legacy. Isherwood v. Payne, 5 Ves. 677.

Devise of real estate with the residue of the personal estate upon long limitations in strict settlement, including persons unborn, a subsequent direction that none of the devisees shall take or come into possession before the age of twenty-five, was held confined to the actual possession, and not to operate by way of revocation; and therefore upon the death of the first tenant for life under twenty-five, the accumulation belonged to his personal representative. Montgomery v. Woodley, 5 Ves. 522. INTERMEDIATE PROFITS.

The testator bequeathed a legacy to his daughter to be paid within twelve months after his decease; but if she should marry A, then he revoked the legacy. She remained unmarried, till about fourteen months after the testator's death, and then married A. They obtained a decree for the legacy. Osborn v. Brown, 5 Ves. 527. CONDON., BREACH OF.

Legacy for a mourning ring to each of the testator's relations, by blood or marriage, confined to the statute of distributions, and those who have married persons entitled under it. Devisme v. Mellish, 5 Ves. 529.

An illegitimate child not entitled to share under a devise to children generally, notwithstanding a strong implication upon the will in favour of that child. Cartwright v. Faudry, 5 Ves. 530. BASTARD.

Under a disposition by will to the children of A & B, payable at twenty-one or marriage, with a limitation over; upon failure of issue in the lives of A & B, it was held, that all the children without restriction were entitled; and an appointment being directed and the interest ordered to be paid to those who had attained twenty-one; children born afterwards, though entitled to a share of the capital, were not allowed to claim the by-gone interest. Mills v. Norris, 5 Ves. 335.

Testator bequeathed 5000*l.* in trust for his daughter A for life, and after her decease for such child or children as she shall leave at her decease, in such shares as she should think proper; and in case she shall die leaving no child, which was the event, then as to 1000*l.* for her executors, administrators, or assigns; and as to the remaining 4000*l.* in trust for such person or persons "as shall be my heir or heirs at law." The 4000*l.* vested in A, and the other two daughters of the testator, being his co-heiresses at law, and next of kin at his death. If that union of characters had not occurred; quare, Whether the next of kin could not claim; and supposing the heirs intended, what description of heirs? Holloway v. Holloway, 5 Ves. 395.

Devise of real estates to trustees and their heirs, upon trust to convey upon certain trusts, and subject thereto to several natural sons successively in strict settlement. The testator also gave the residue of his personal estate upon trust to be laid out in land to be settled to the same uses, &c. A codicil, revoking so much of the will as directed the settlement of his said estate upon his sons, and varying the order of limitations to his heirs, was considered as confined to that object, operating by way of substitution only, not as a revocation of the devise, and therefore extending to the estates to be purchased with the personal estate. Ld. Carrington v. Payne, 5 Ves. 404.

Under a residuary disposition to the testator's right heirs, on the part of his mother, his sister, and a nephew by a deceased sister, where held entitled against remoter relations, claiming on the ground of an express provision, by an annuity for the separate use of the sister. Forster v. Sierra, 4 Ves. 766. RESIDUE.

Testator bequeathed a leasehold estate after an estate for life to his nephew, A, and the heirs male of his body, lawfully begotten, and in default of such heirs to one of the sons of his nephew, B, as A shall direct by a conveyance in his life, or by his last will. Another leasehold estate he bequeathed to A upon trust, subject to certain charges, to employ the remainder of the rent to such children of B as A shall think most deserving, and that will make the best use of it; or to the children of his nephew C, if any such there are or shall be. A dying in the testator's life, the bequest of the latter estate was established in favour of all the children; quare as to the former? Brown v. Higgs, 4 Ves. 708. Affd. 5 Ves. 495.

Testator by a will unattested, after, among others, charitable legacies to be distributed by his executor, gave the remainder and residue of his estate, if any, and effects of what nature soever and wheresoever, which he should be seized or possessed of, &c. to next of kin or heir at law, whom I appoint my executor, after debts, &c. paid. He left one brother, and by deceased brother's a niece and several nephews, one of whom was heir at law; distribution decreed according to the statute. Lowndes v. Stone, 4 Ves. 649. DISTRIBUTION.

Trust by will for all the children of A, when and as they shall severally attain sixteen, with a direction for a maintenance of those who, after the eldest attain sixteen, were excluded; maintenance was directed without regard to the father's ability. Hoste v. Pratt, 3 Ves. 730. MAINTENANCE; POSTHUMOUS CHILD.

Under devise of personal residue to relations in such proportion as testator had given other part of his fortune, pecuniary legatees only are entitled, and not a devisee of real estate. Adair v. Maitland, 7 Bro. P.C. 587. S.C. 3 Ves. 231.

Bequest to relations does not include those by marriage. Id. ib.

Bequest to the youngest child of A, if she should have any child or children within a certain period; if no child or children within that period, over: her eldest child being the only one within that period, is entitled. Emery v. Maitland, 3 Ves. 232.

Money bequeathed to be laid out in land to be settled upon the testator's nephew A, for life, remainder to the wife of A for life, with remainders in tail to the sons and daughters of A, by such wife. A was not married till after the death of the testator; held to extend to a second wife. Peppin v. Beckford, 3 Ves. 570.

Testatrix by codicil gave to A, the legacy given by her will to the children of B, "as I know not whether any of them are alive, and if they are well provided for, though they are living." B is entitled; the construction being that if they are living, they are well provided for. Att. Gen. v. Ward, 3 Ves. 327.

Devise to A and his wife for life, and after the death of the survivor, upon trust to sell and apply the produce to and among all and every the same child or children of A by his said wife, and their representatives equally; the fund belongs to the children surviving the testator, but the issue of a daughter who died in the life of A are entitled as representatives against the claim of their father as administrator. Horsepool v. Watson, 3 Ves. 383.

Upon a legacy to the issue of A, all descendants are entitled, and take per capita as joint tenants. Devenport v. Hanbury, 3 Ves. 257. DISTRIBUTION.

A testator gave a legacy to "every of the sons and daughters of his late cousin." His cousin left one legitimate daughter, and one son and one daughter illegitimate; the latter are not entitled under the will, nor is evidence admissible of the intention of the testator. Hart v. Durand, 3 Anst. 684. BASTARD.

Legacy to A for life, and to her children at her decease, vests in all the children as they come in esse; but upon the circumstances of this case it vested in those living at the death of the mother only. Spencer v. Bullock, 2 Ves. J. 687.

Three annuities for a term of years bequeathed in trust for three children, A, B, and C, respectively for life; in case of the death of either leaving any child or children, his or her annuity to be equally divided between such child or children, share and share alike; in case of the death of either without issue, his or her annuity to go to the survivor or survivors of them equally, share and share alike, with a limitation over in case of the deaths of all without issue as aforesaid; A died without issue; A's annuity went to B and C, subject to the contingent limitation over; and upon B's death, leaving children, belongs in moieties absolutely to his administrator and C. Vanderghucht v. Blake, 2 Ves. J. 533.

Devise to the heir at law and his issue male in strict settlement, remainder in trust to be sold, and the money to be distributed among certain persons, or the survivors or survivor of them, and that the share of one should, previous to her marriage, be settled upon her for life, and after her death, upon her issue, in default of issue upon her right heirs; the produce of the sale is to be considered as personal estate, and vests in the survivors at the death of the tenant for life, without issue male. A settlement in trust for the husband for life, then for the wife for life, then for the children as they should appoint; in default of appointment equally; if no children according to their joint appointment; in default thereof, to the husband, his executors, &c. is a sufficient execution of the direction in the will. Brograve v. Winder, 2 Ves. J. 634. LANDS DEVISED TO BE SOLD.

Devise subject to a term of 100 years to A, in strict settlement, remainder to B in strict settlement, and after other limitations in tail, remainder upon trust to be sold, the trust of the term was to raise 4000*l.* to be applied, first, to debts, legacies, &c. The rents, profits, and emoluments arising, growing, or received, from the estate, real and personal, to be applied to debts and legacies, and afterwards to be an aggregate fund, and attend the inheritance; the interest of the 4000*l.* to be paid out of the rents and profits of the estates in the term; the rents and profits to accumulate till one of the devisees should attain twenty-one, then to be paid to him. By codicil, the testator reciting the trust to sell, bequeathed part of the produce, and gave all the residue, and all the residue of his personal estate not disposed of by his will, to his legatees; the residue of the money raised under the term, and of the personal estate, is to attend the inheritance, and the interest is payable to the tenant for life, the principal to the first tenant in tail. Sheldon v. Burnes, 2 Ves. 444.

Lands devised to be sold, the produce to be applied as after-mentioned; if no disposition is made, the heir shall take. Id. 447. RESIDUARY TRUST; HEIR AT LAW; LAND DEVISED FOR SALE.

E compounded with his creditors; his widow, by her will, left a fund to pay the residue of the debts to the compounding creditors, "or their personal representatives;" the administratrix of a deceased creditor is entitled beneficially to his bequest, and not the next of kin, nor residuary legatee of the creditor. Evans v. Charles, 1 Anst. 128. ADMON. OF ASSETS.

Legacy to A and B, the children of C equally; they take per capita; legacy to the descendants of A and B equally; all descendants (children and grandchildren) take per capita. Butler v. Stratton, 3 Bro. C. C. 367. DISTRIBUTION.

Testator gave his estate to trustees, to apply the profits for the use of the child with which his wife was then pregnant, during infancy, and at twenty-five to the child in fee; but in case the child should die before twenty-five, without issue, remainder over; the child was stillborn. Afterwards testator made a codicil affirming his will, and died without issue. Forty-three weeks after his death, his widow was brought to bed of a son; this son cannot take the estate, though found to be legitimate, but it shall go to the devisees over. Foster v. Cook, 3 Bro. C. C. 347.

Legacies in trust for grandchildren then in existence by name, to sons at twenty-three, daughters at twenty-one; mesne interest for education; surplus to accumulate with survivorship; residue for all the grandchildren generally for their benefit "as aforesaid." By codicil a fund set apart to pay life annuities: grandchildren born after testator's death, not entitled to a share of the residue into which the fund under the codicil falls, after the purpose answered. Hill v. Chapman, 1 Ves. J. 405. RESIDUE.

Testator bequeathed to his wife the lease of his house and all the furniture, &c. therein for life, the interest of all money he should die possessed of, then half of the debts due to him at his death, one excepted, which he directed debtor to retain as long as he pleased, paying the interest to her, to be disposed of as she thought fit; in case the interest of the money he should die worth, should not be sufficient for her maintenance, executors to allow part of principal out of the debts, except that before excepted, to make her life easy and comfortable; after her death, the interest of all money remaining to his sister; after her death to her daughter, all sums remaining for ever; if they die before his wife, one half of all sums remaining to be disposed of as his wife should think fit, the other to A. Upon bill by testator's niece against executors of the wife, the niece held entitled to all beyond the debts, and a moiety of all debts but that excepted; the other moiety to wife's executors, who being also executors of testator, were decreed to take out of wife's share, a sum advanced under their power. Collett v. Lawrence, 1 Ves. J. 268.

Some effect must be given to every part of the will. Id. ib.

A legacy of a sum to be divided among children. All those born before the time of division take. Pulford v. Hunter, 3 Bro. C. C. 416.

Annuity bequeathed to testator's brother for life, remainder to his children by his present wife; at the date of the will E and his wife were dead, and their children had other legacies under it, and testator had only one brother having a wife and children, whom he had been in the habit of calling his children. Held, to be entitled upon these circumstances. Parsons v. Parsons, 1 Ves. J. 266. MISTAKE.

Bequest of a residue to all the children of A, the daughter's shares to be paid at twenty-one, or marriage; the sons at twenty-one, or to be sooner advanced for their benefit, with survivorship and interest for maintenance. The fund shall be devisable, when the eldest attains twenty-one, and the division shall be among those then in esse. Andrews v. Partington, 3 Bro. C. C. 401.

Testator gave a residue to trustees to pay the interest to four persons for life, and after decease of the survivors then to divide the principal among their children; two died; the interest shall be paid to the other two. Though the words "share and share alike" in a will, generally create a tenancy in common; they cannot do so where there is an express joint-tenancy. Armstrong v. Eldridge, 3 Bro. C. C. 215.

The testator gave the residue to his relations named in the will. He made a codicil which he directed to be taken as part of his will, and a second, by which he gave legacies, but gave no such direction in this codicil; there were legacies given to two of his relations, they shall take shares of the residue. Sherer v. Bishop, 4 Bro. C. C. 55.

Bequest of residue to certain persons, and if they should die in the lifetime of the testatrix to their legal representatives. One died; his next of kin shall take the share of the residue; not his executor beneficially, or his residuary legatees. Bridge v. Abbott, 3 Bro. C. C. 224.

Gift of a residue to be divided among persons related to the testator; confined to relations within the statute of distributions. Rayner v. Mowbray, 3 Bro. C. C. 234.

Testator ordered the interest of the residue to be paid to his sisters for life, and in case any of them should die leaving issue, then to transfer the principal of the residuum to the children of the sister so dying at twenty-one; one of the sisters died in the life of the testator; her children shall take her share. Rheeder v. Ower, 3 Bro. C. C. 240.

Testator ordered real estate to be sold, and the residue to be laid out in the funds, to remain for ten years, and at the end thereof, gave the same to his next of kin. Although the expression "next of kin" means generally those who are so at a testator's death, yet here, upon the intention, the period of vesting was held to be at the expiration of the ten years. The testator therefore, having but one brother who was next of kin, (at his death) but who died within the ten years; so much as was produced by the real estate, was held to belong to the heir at law of the testator, so much as was personal going to the representatives of the brother. Spink v. Lewis, 3 Bro. C. C. 355.

Bequest of stock to trustees in trust after the death of A, to transfer the same to and amongst all and every the nephews and nieces that should be then living; to wit, the said J B or her children, and the said P B or his children, and D L or his children, and P L or his children; under this bequest a nephew not expressly named, is not entitled to any share; and the fund is equally divisible amongst such nephews and nieces, and their children, as were living at the time of the death of A. Eggar v. Brooke, 2 Cox, 213.

Gift to A and his issue, to be divided among them as he thinks fit; the issue have an interest in all events, and A has no authority but as to the proportions. If no appointment, equally. Where to be divided among issue, the proportions must not be illusory. Issue will extend to any remote degree, as a description of objects of the power of A, to distribute among them as he thinks fit; but they must all be in existence during her life. Hockley v. Maubly, 1 Ves. J. 150. POWER OF APPOINTMENT, EXECUTION OF.

Legacy to the seventh or youngest child of A. A had six children at the testator's death, and had another who died at the age of two months; afterwards the plaintiff was born, and was the seventh child living, but the eighth in order of birth; other children were born afterwards. Under these circumstances the youngest child is entitled to the legacy, and not the plaintiff. West v. Lal. Primate of Ireland, 2 Cox, 258. S. C. 3 Bro. C. C. 148.

Gift by will to the children of a deceased sister, is a gift to those who were living at the death of the testator. Finer v. Francis, 2 Cox, 190. S. C. 2 Bro. C. C. 658.

Gift of residue to be divided amongst next of kin share and share alike, shall be divided among surviving brothers nephews and nieces, (representing deceased brothers and sisters) per capita, not per stirpes, sed qu. Phillips v. Garth, 3 Bro. C. C. 64. DISTRIBUTION.

F having an estate which came to her ex parte materna, on her marriage conveyed the same to trustees to such uses as she should direct, with remainder to her own right heirs by will; she directed the estate to be sold, the money to be laid out in the funds, and the trustees to permit the husband to receive the interest for life, then after the deduction of 3500*l.* to uses, which vested in the plaintiff A, and after payment of 1000*l.* to G, to pay the residue of the purchase money to the defendant H; by codicil, she gave the plaintiff, her husband, a power of appointing the 3500*l.* in case A should marry without his consent; G died, living the testatrix, before the codicil made, but F in the codicil took no notice thereof. First, the 1000*l.* is real, not personal, and shall not go to the executors of G, (though given to her executors); nor to the personal representative of the testatrix, nor yet to the residuary legatee of the purchase money, but to the heir at law, ex parte materna, the side from which the estate came. Second, the 3500*l.* is vested in A, and the trustees having laid out a large sum by 17*l.* with intent to appropriate; it is well appropriated, and A having married once with her father's consent, his power is gone, and he consenting to give up his life interest, it was decreed to be paid to the trustees in her marriage settlement. Hutcheson v. Hammond, 3 Bro. C. C. 128. WILL, C. OF WHAT INTEREST.

Testator bequeathed the residue of his personal estate as follows: "As to the residue of my fortune, I will and desire that the descendants or representatives of each of my first cousins deceased, partake in equal shares and proportions with my first cousins now alive: the residue is devisable per stirpes amongst the first cousins who were living at the testator's death, and such of the descendants of his first cousins who died before him, as where next of kin of the deceased first cousins, and living at the time of the death of the testator. Humphreys v. Humphreys, 2 Cox, 187.

A devised to B for life, remainder to his first and other sons in tail male, remainder over, in trust to convey the premises, or any part thereof, to such child or children of testator's daughter, and her then husband, other than and except their eldest son for the time being, and the issue male or female of such child or children (except as before excepted), for such estates, and in such shares, and subject to such limitations as she, by deed or will, should appoint; and for want of appointment by her, or for so much as shall not have been appointed by her, then, as her husband should, by deed or will appoint; and for want of such appointment, or for so much, &c. then as their eldest son for the time being shall appoint. The husband by his will (his wife having died without appointing) appointed to his younger sons, by name in tail, with cross remainders in tail; and if all his said younger sons should die without issue, then to his daughters. He died, leaving his sons the appointees, still younger sons; afterwards one of them became the only surviving son, the rest being dead without issue; and then the trust estate vested in possession by the death of B, without issue male. The daughters of the appointor claimed the estate, considering the appointment to their surviving brother as defeated, by his being, as they said, an eldest son for the time being, and so excluded by the will of A, and the other brothers, the appointees, being dead without issue. But it was decreed by Lifford, C. that the appointment to him continued undisturbed, that "time being" meant the time of the appointment being made; that the appointees were as if named in the will of A, and that the daughters could only claim under the appointment of their father, who limited it to them in the event of all his sons, the appointees, dying without issue, which did not happen. Jones v. Cope, Vern. & Scriv. 29. POWER, EXECUTION OF.

E by deed conveyed several sums of money secured by mortgages amounting to 60,000*l.* to trustees in trust to be laid out in the purchase of lands to the use of himself for life, remainder as to sums to the amount of 28,000*l.* to his wife for life, remainder to his son R for life, with several remainders over, remainder to J in fee; and as to sums amounting to 23,000*l.* to R for life, with several intermediate remainders, remainder to J in fee; and as to one particular mortgage of 8500*l.* and some leasehold estates to secure annuities, the surplus to R with power of revocation. By his will he gave these leasehold estates and the mortgage for 8500*l.* together with another mortgage of 6700*l.* in trust to secure the annuities, the surplus, interest or rents of the lands purchased to be paid to R for life, and to be settled in the same manner as his other estates: 1st, These mortgages are to be considered as real estate: 2ndly, It being uncertain which of the limitations they were to follow, they are disposed of and passed to R as heir at law, and from him to his general devisee, F, who having died intestate as to the real estate, they go to the heir at law, D. Leslie v. Dk. Devonshire, 2 Bro. C. C. 189.

Testator directed the residue of his estate to be parted to "his next relations as sisters, nephews, and nieces." Testator left his three sisters, A, B, and C, and D the only child of a deceased sister, and L, the only child of a deceased brother, his next of kin; but at the time of his death his sister A had two children living. The residue must go according to the statute of distribution. Stamp v. Cooke, 1 Cox, 234.

A bequest of a residue to be divided equally "amongst all the children of my late cousin E, and my cousin P and their lawful representatives," is a bequest to the children of E and to P himself, and not to the children of P. Lugar v. Harman, 1 Cox, 250. S. C. 2 Bro. C. C. 85.

A, by will gave to the two daughters of S the sum of 10*l.* each. B by will gave 82*l.* short annuities, in trust to pay the same to and between the two daughters of S in equal shares and proportions; and if either of them should die before the expiration of the term for which the annuities were to run, then to pay the whole to the survivor; but if both should die before that time, then the same was to fall into the residue of the personal estate. At the time when both these wills were made, S had three daughters. Under the first will the three daughters all take 10*l.* each, and under the second the three shall take the short annuities equally, with survivorship amongst them all. Stebbing v. Walkey, 1 Cox, 250. S. C. 2 Bro. C. C. 85.

The description of children of A does not extend to a child in ventre sa mere. Pearson v. Carnet, 2 Bro. C. C. 38. S. C. Prec. Chan. 201. S. C. id. 226. INFANT IN VENTRE SA MERE.

Legacies to first and second cousin includes first cousins once removed, and a grand-niece being more distant. Mayott v. Mayott, 2 Bro. C. C. 125.

Infant en ventre shall not take under a bequest to the children of A living at the death of testator. Cooper v. Forbes, 2 Bro. C. C. 63. sed quare. INFANT EN VENTRE.

Testator gave 1000*l.* to D; but if D should not be alive, and there be certain intelligence thereof, the testator willed that the same should be divided between A and B. D appeared to have been alive at the time of the will, but died in the lifetime of the testator. A and B are entitled to the 1000*l.* Perry v. Boodle, 1 Cox, 183. Lapsed Legacy.

Testator bequeathed 500*l.* to each of the daughters of C, if both or either of them should survive D. At the date of the will, and the death of the testator, C had three daughters, all of whom survived D, the three daughters are entitled to 500*l.* each. Scott v. Fenwick, 1 Cox, 79.

Devise to trustees to invest in stock and pay dividends to testator's son for life; and after his decease, to his eldest son and his heirs for ever; and in case of their death without issue, to his (testator's) nearest relation, and the nearest relations of such nearest relation for ever: 1st, This is a double contingency, and the event of the son dying without issue is good; 2nd, it goes to the person who was nearest relation at the time, the half-sister: though there was living representatives of a person as near, viz. a half-brother. Marsh v. Marsh, 1 Bro. C. C. 293. LIMITATION.

Inter alia, five sixteenth parts of residue were bequeathed to trustees to pay the same to testator's daughter R at twenty-eight, or marriage with consent; and in case any of the children should die before their shares became due, the share to go to the rest of the testator's children and their issue per stirpes. The testator left five children. R married without consent, had one child, since dead, and another who was before the court, and died under twenty-eight: Held, the portion never vested in her, that four parts of it belonged to the testator's surviving children, and that one moiety of the remaining part belonged to the surviving child of R, the other belonging to the father of the deceased child of R as its representative. Hemmings v. Munkley, 1 Bro. C. C. 304.

A devised the whole of his fortune equally to be divided between any second or younger sons of his brother S, and his sister T. The sister has one younger son, but the brother has none: Held, that the younger son of the sister was entitled to the whole. Wicker v. Mitford, 3 Bro. P. C. 442.

Bequest to two daughters; if one should die without issue, to the survivor and her issue; the married daughter died leaving issue; then the unmarried daughter died; it shall go to the issue of the married daughters. Harman v. Dickenson, 1 Bro. C. C. 91.

Where a testator manifests a clear intention to give a benefit to certain objects in an event which happens, the legatees shall not be deprived of it, although a circumstance inadvertently coupled with it in the language used does not literally take place. Therefore, under a bequest of equal sums for the benefit of each of two grand-daughters, A and B, for life, and their children respectively; but if either died without issue, her share to go to the children of the surviving grand-daughter. A marries and dies leaving children in the lifetime of B. Then B dies unmarried: Held, that A's children took each of their shares, though their mother did not actually survive B. Id. ib.

Bequest of stock to executors for the use of F and A, or the longer liver, the dividends to be paid to their order during the lives of either of them, and then to the issue of A, if any; if not, the stock to be transferred in trust for J till he comes of age. J attained twenty-one, and died; then E; and last A, without issue: the representative of J held entitled to the fund, and that the trust, during minority, was only a mode of convenience. Atkinson v. Parr, 1 Bro. C. C. 92.

A legacy of personal estate to testator's wife for life, and after her decease to the testator's relations who shall be then alive, confined to relations within the statute of distribution. Green v. Howard, 1 Bro. C. C. 31.

Bequest of residue to a brother in trust to dispose of among such of testator's relations, and in such manner, &c. as he shall think fit, without regard to the legacies before given: Held, the power extended to the relations at large, and not confined to next of kin. Supple v. Lawson, Amb. 729.

A bequeathed to four nieces, C, D, E, and F; and on death of any, the whole bequest should go to survivor or survivors; but if any died having child, then her share should go to such child; if all died without issue, then to B. C married, and had issue G and H, who died in life of mother, H having issue L and M; C, D, E and F die in succession. F being last surviving: Held, that L and M were entitled to the whole bequest. Pitt v. Harbin, Loff. 19.

Where a man gives, his estate to his wife so long as she shall remain unmarried, but if she marries, then to his daughter; and in case the daughter should die without leaving issue, then to J. The daughter died without issue in the mother's lifetime, who still remained a widow: Held, that the testator's interest belonged to J upon the death of the daughter without issue then living. Gordon v. Adolphus, 3 Bro. P. C. 306.

One gave legacies to each of his younger children, payable at twenty-one, and the residue of his personal estate to his eldest son at twenty-one; and if he die before twenty-one, then to his younger children in succession; and if any of his younger children should die before twenty-one, their respective legacies to go equally to all the survivors; and if all his children should die before twenty-one, then the whole to go to a charity. One of the younger sons died under twenty-one; the other children attained twenty-one: Held, the eldest son should take his legacy equally with the other younger children. Hiern v. Ley, Ambl. 669.

A gives all his personal estate to trustees in trust, to pay interest to wife during widowhood, but on her second marriage to pay her an annuity of 110*l.* for life, and in that case he gave residue to P, but made no disposition of it in case wife remained a widow; wife remained widow. Representatives of son who died after twenty-one, in mother's life-time: held entitled to residue. Jeffreys v. Reynolds, 6 Bro. P.C. 398. Affirming 2 Eden, 365. RESIDUE.

Bequest to his mother's "poor relations," construed relations who are poor and objects of charity. Brunsdon v. Woolredge, Ambl. 507. S. C. Dick. 380.

Bequest to the most necessitous of my relations shall go according to the statute of distributions. Widmore v. Woodruffe, Ambl. 636. S. C. 1 Bro. C. C. 13.

A, by his will, gives the residue of his estate to three of his children, share and share alike, as tenants in common, and not as joint-tenants. But by a codicil, he revoked his daughter N from being one of his residuary legatees, and in lieu thereof, gave her a pecuniary legacy. This third shall go to the testator's next of kin, and does not belong to the two other residuary legatees, as such. Chestyn v. Cresswell, 3 Bro. P. C. 246. RESIDUE; ADMINISTRATION OF ASSETS.

Legacy to children of A, lawfully begotten, or to be begotten, extends only to those born in testator's life-time. Sprackling v. Rainer, Dick. 344.

Under a devise to the descendants of F T, in a certain district, grandchildren and great grandchildren take per capita. Crosley v. Clare, 3 Swan. 320. DISTRIBUTION.

The word "heirs," in a will, construed "children" to take a legacy. Loveday v. Hopkins, Ambl. 273.

Where the word "relations" is used, the court has no other rule to go by but the statute of distributions. Crosley v. Clare, Ambl. 397.

Where devise is to the stock or family, the court confines it to the head of the family. Id. ib.

One devises to his son, J, in tail, remainder to his daughter, P, in tail, remainder to his daughter, E, in tail, remainder to her son, N, and his heirs, on condition that he pay 100*l.* to the eldest sister, the plaintiff's mother, at or soon after his being in possession; and for non-payment, the estate should be to the plaintiff's mother: J, P, and E are dead; the plaintiff's mother died, and afterwards the remainder in fee came to N: held, the representative of the mother was entitled to the 100*l.* Embrey v. Martin, Ambl. 230. S. C. 1 Ken. 77.

Bequest to the two servants that should live with testatrix at her death; she had three at that time, and all of them were held entitled. Sleece v. Therington, 2 Ves. 560.

Bequest to "near relations," means those within the statute of distributions. Whithorne v. Harris, 2 Ves. 527.

Bequest to his wife for life, and after her death to his and her poorest relations: held only those who were nearest of kin were entitled. Isaac v. Defries, Ambl. 595.

J, seized in fee of land, devised the same to his wife for life, and after her decease, to R and the heirs of his body, and for want of such issue, to be sold, and divided among his relations according to the statute of distributions: held, that the wife being no relation, the next of kin shall take the whole in exclusion of her, both by the words of the will, and the intent of the testator. So where A gave the residue of his personal estate to trustees to permit his wife to receive the produce for her life, and after her decease, to such of his relations as would have been entitled under the statute of distributions in case he had died intestate, the wife is not to be considered as a relation. Worsley v. Johnson, 3 Atk. 768. ILLEGITIMACY.

Relation, in dictionaries, signifies consanguineus and affinis, but a wife is no relation either by blood or by affinity; and of a wife, Calvin, in his Lexicon, says, non affinis est, sed causa affinitatis; affinis est ab eodem stipite. The statute of distributions means kindred by blood only; but the stat. 21 H. 8. c. 5. s. 3. distinguishes more clearly between a wife and the next of kin than the statute of distributions; the word "my" relations, means exactly the same as "my own" relations. Id. 761.

Testator reciting his intention to dispose of all his property, and that his daughter was likely to die (of a violent distemper), left his wife, if she died, the revenue and dividends of such property; but if his daughter lived, directed that his wife should only have her dower, giving the residue and dividends to that daughter: if she died without children, testator gave his brother "all that should be left;" the daughter survived the testator, but died of the same illness without issue: held, that the mother was still entitled for life, and that the words "what should be left," constituted a good residuary bequest to the brother. Duhamel v. Ardoin, 2 Ves. 162.

Testatrix gives, by her will, legacies to all her nephews and nieces, except those thereinafter named; she desires her executors to look upon all incumbrances, &c. in her own hand as parts or a codicil to her will, and bequeaths by will her residue to the children of her sisters, E, J, &c. By a codicil she gives legacies to some other nephews and nieces: held, that the children of E, J, &c., the residuary legatees under the will, were excluded from the legacies, but that the legatees under the codicil were not, and were entitled to both. Fuller v. Hooper, 2 Ves. 242.

A bequeaths 1000*l.* to such children as his daughter should leave at her death; B, her husband, receives it, and by his will reciting that A had promised to give it rather differently, but that he, B, was, nevertheless, desirous to make good A's intent and will, bequeaths it equally between his sons, C & D; D alone survives his mother: held, that C's representatives were not entitled, and that A's will would have prevailed even if B had intended to make a variation. East v. Cook, 2 Ves. 30.

Question as to whether a bastard could take under the denomination in a will of "eldest son" by way of descriptio personae, the testatrix knowing of his existence, and believing that there was no lawful issue. Baker v. Baker, 2 Ves. 167. BASTARD.

Bequest to younger children of testator's son, to be paid at twenty-one: Held vested in those born at the time the testator's death. Morsey v. Chaloner, 2 Ves. 83. INTEREST VESTED.

Devise on condition that the land should go over to another if he did not give a release in three months after testator's death, dying in the testator's lifetime, the devisee over shall take instead of heir at law; this being a conditional limitation, and not a strict condition. Avelyn v. Ward, 1 Ves. 420. LIMITATION CONDITIONAL.

"Such of my nearest relations as my executors shall think the greatest objects of charity:" Held to extend only to such as would take under the statute of distributions. Edge v. Salisbury, Ambl. 70. S. C. 1 Ves. 230.

Devise of real and personal estate in trust for the nearest relation "of the Pyots," the latter held to be "nomen collectivum," and descriptive of that particular stock, and that this mixed fund should not go to the heir at law of that name. A change of the name of Pyot by marriage, held not to exclude. Pyot v. Pyot, 1 Ves. 335.

Bequest to such of nearest relations as A should think poor and objects of charity, confined to those within the statute of distributions under A's advice. Goodinge v. Goodinge, 2 Ves. 231.

Devise to his nearest poor relations; parol evidence admitted to shew that testator knew he had such in S, but no farther; not to prove declarations or instructions whom he meant by written words of the will. Id. ib. PR. EVIDENCE, PAROL.

Grandchildren and great grandchildren included by the term "issue," and the words "children" following it, explained as meaning issue, likewise. Wyth v. Blackman, 1 Ves. 196.

Furniture, &c. at H, bequeathed for the use of those who should enjoy the estate, to be taken care of, and delivered by executors, and to remain at H as if in his own possession, vests in the first tenant for life. Id. 197. LIMIT OF PERSONAL.

Devise that the household stuff at H should remain there for use of those who should enjoy the estate by a settlement, to be taken care of and delivered by executor, &c.; they go to the representative of the first taker who was tenant for life, and were not to be sold as heirlooms with the house, although no tenancy in tail vested. Id. 202. LIMIT OF PERSONAL.

Bequest of 3000*l.* to Jane, the wife of C, for the use of her younger children, to be distributed as she should appoint; in default equally. All Jane's children by C being born at the time of the will and death of the testator, it was held vested as a present legacy to them, subject to variation as between them, but not to extend to her children by a future marriage. The period of vesting being as above; one who was a younger child at the testator's death, and became an elder afterwards, was held entitled. Coleman v. Seymour, 1 Ves. 209. INTEREST VESTED; YOUNGER CHILDREN.

Legacy of 300*l.* to Elizabeth, to be paid at twenty-one or marriage; but if she died before, then to the younger children of Francis; F having died unmarried, under twenty-one: Held to vest in such of the younger children as were living at that time. Ellison v. Airey, 1 Ves. 111.

Where in a will a wife not included in the word relations, according to the statute of distribution. Davies v. Baile, 1 Ves. 84.

Bequest of 5000*l.* out of an estate, equally to testator's children, with remainder in the same estate to his first and other sons: the eldest son shall have a share. Inledon v. Northcote, 3 Atk. 438.

H, by a French will, as to the rest of his goods whether in France or in England, named for his only and universal heiresses, S, his sister, for one-third; and M, his sister, for another third; and as to the remaining third, he willed S should enjoy the interest thereof for her life, and after death, the capital should be inherited by the children of I, his brother; and that his testament may be well executed, he appointed L, of London, merchant, his executor, giving him, in that quality, as full power as could be given to a testamentary executor. S dying in the testator's lifetime, his surviving sisters and next of kin brought their bill to have what was devised to her, distributed. L C. quasi executor insisted he was entitled to it, (S being dead in the testator's lifetime) as a lapsed legacy: Held, that the executor being a trustee only, it must be divided according to the statute of distributions, viz. two-thirds to testator's two sisters, and the remaining third of this third to S, the only child of testator's brother. Androuin v. Poilbanc, 3 Atk. 299. LEGACY LAPSED.

W, devised his lands to his wife for life, and after her decease to D, his wife's niece, and then said "Item, I give the use of 500*l.* stock for her natural life, but after her decease I give the 500*l.* among my wife's brothers and sisters;" held the wife and not the niece is entitled to the 500*l.* stock for life, for it is not necessary the word Item should be construed as, independent of the preceding clause, and the wife is the person the testator naturally meant by the word "her," and is also the person the testator was principally taking care of. Castledon v. Turner, 3 Atk. 257. Tomkins v. Tomkins, cited 2 Ves. 564. Sleech v. Thornington, 2 Ves. 564. Stebbing v. Watkey, 2 Bro. C. C. 85.

A gave B his brother, the interest of 1500*l.* for life, and the principal, after his decease, among the younger sons and daughters of B, but if he should leave daughters only, then to be paid to them at twenty-one. B, had two daughters, one of whom married, and died in B's lifetime: held, that her husband is not entitled to her share as her administrator. Billingsley v. Wills, 3 Atk. 219.

Undisposed residue shall go to executors, though they are legatees, where testatrix has always declared next of kin shall have nothing. Brasbridge v. Woodruffe, 2 Atk. 69. EXECUTORS BENEFICIALLY INTERESTED.

R L, devises to R M, eldest son of his nephew, R M, and the first heirs male of his body, and the heirs male of his body, and in default of such issue to the second son of the said R M, and the heirs male of his body and their issues, remainder over, &c. These words, "the second son of the said R M," do not mean the second son of the devisee, but John, the second son of the testator's nephew R M. Minshull v. Minshull, 1 Atk. 411.

A devises to his grandchildren, B, C, and D, 1000*l.* each, the interest to their use, and if any dies, to the survivors or survivor, share and share alike, the interest to be paid to their father, to their use. B dies an infant; then C dies. The share which C took by the death of B shall not survive to D, but go to the father, administrator of C. Rudge v. Barker, Forres. 124.

J S gave "all his real and personal estate" to trustees on certain trusts, remainder "to such of his relations on his mother's side who were most deserving, and in such manner as they should think fit," and for such charitable uses and purposes as they should also think most proper and convenient: held, per M R, that the limitation over of the personal estate was good, and his honour (deciding by the known rule of equity) directed that one half of the said estates should go to the testator's relations on his mother's side, and the other half to charitable uses; his honour could not judge of the merits of the testator's relations, nor prefer the one to the other, but he should exclude those beyond the third degree: held also, that the representatives of those relations who died in testator's life-time, could have no claim. Doyley v. Att. Gen. 4 Vin. 485, pl. 16.

H, devises three fourths of his personal estate to his three sons, equally to be divided between them; and the other fourth to them, in trust for his two daughters; the interest to be paid them respectively, during their natural lives, and afterwards to their, or either of their child, or children; and for default of such issue, to his three sons, equally to be divided between them; one of his daughters leaves a son, under whom the plaintiff claims, and the other dies without issue. The moiety of the sister who died without issue, shall not go to the three brothers, but to the representative of the nephew. Stephens v. Ilide, Forres. 27.

A devise to relations is to be confined to such as would take by the statute of distributions, but their shares may not be the same as under that statute. Thomas v. Hale, Forbes, 251.

A, by will, declares his intention to dispose of his household goods by his codicil; &c. and devises the residue of his personal estate not disposed of nor reserved to be disposed of, by his codicil to his wife. Afterwards the testator makes a codicil, and does not dispose of his household goods thereby; the household goods shall not go to the residuary legatee, but according to the statute of distributions. Davers v. Dawes, 3 P. W. 40.

Testator having real estates in A and B, and a mortgage in C, and a statute extended in D, devises all his credits and mortgages to his executors, and then devises all his real estate whatsoever, in A B C and D, to S for life, and after his decease to his heirs and their heirs for ever: held, that mortgage in C, and extent in D, went to executors. Davis v. Gibbs, Fitzgib. 116. S. C. 3 P. W. 26. Mos. 269.

Lands were devised in trust, to maintain an infant till twenty-three, and then to convey them to him, and if he die before, to convey them to another. The infant is not entitled till twenty-three, and as the estate is not devised over, if he dies under, the surplus profits will go to testator's heir. Tilly v. Simpson, Mos. 241. INTERMEDIATE PROFIT.

One has two sons A and B, and three daughters, and devises his lands to be sold, to pay his debts, and as to the monies arising by sale after debts paid, he gives 200*l.* thereout, to his eldest son A, at twenty-one, the residue to his four younger children equally. A, the eldest dies before twenty-one, this 200*l.* shall go to the heir of the testator. Cruse v. Barley, 3 P. W. 19.

One having had five children A, B, C, D, and E; B is dead, leaving several children, and by will the testator devises the residue of his personal estate to his son A, and to B's children, and to his daughter C, and D's children, and to his daughter E; D is living and has children. Decreed, the children of B, and the children of D, shall take per capita, and not per stirpes, as if all named. Blackler v. Webb, 2 P. W. 383. DISTRIBUTION.

One seised in fee, as heir of the mother's mother, devises the land to trustees in fee, in trust to pay several annuities, and the residue to go to the testator's right heirs on his mother's side for ever; the heirs of the mother's mother's side, entitled to the estate and surplus of the profits, after the annuities paid. Harris v. Bp. Lincoln, 2 P. W. 135.

Two schools in the same town, one a free school, and the other a charity school for boys and girls; A devises 500*l.* to the charity school; though both be charity schools, yet only the charity school for boys and girls shall take. Att. Gen. v. Wyllson, 1 P. W. 674.

One devises his freehold estate to trustees and their heirs, in trust to convey the premises to A for life, remainder to his first, &c. son in tail male successively, remainder to his daughters in tail general; and if A should die without issue, then the premises to be settled on B, C, D, and E, to each one-fourth in fee; and in case any of the four remaining persons die without issue, the trustees to convey such fourth part in fee to the respective heirs of the persons so dying; one of the persons so dying without issue, her fourth in equity belongs to her brother as her heir. Blackborne v. Edglen, 1 P. W. 606.

Devise of a trust to all his daughters or their children, living at the testator's son's death; some of the daughters were living at the son's death, and had children, and others of the daughters were dead, leaving children. Decreed, all the children as well of the living daughters as of the dead should take. Richardson v. Sprung, 1 P. W. 434.

One devises 3000*l.* to all the natural children of his son by J S; the bastards born after making the will shall not take; nay the child in ventre sa mere shall not take; and, though in the principal case the money was paid by the executors, as the testator by deed should appoint, and the testator afterwards made the deed of appointment; the deed of appointment referring to the will, was held as part of the will. Metham v. Deron, 1 P. W. 529. See 8 Price, 22. BASTARD IN VENTRE SA MERE.

Legatee's name very falsely spelt, referred to a master to see who was intended. Masters v. Masters, 1 P. W. 425. PR. REFERENCE TO MASTER.

Devise to A and his issue, remainder to B and his issue, remainder to the heirs of A; A dies without issue in the life of the testator; B dies in the life of the testator, leaving issue, who is also the heir of A. The issue shall not take an estate tail as issue of B, nor the remainder in fee as heir of A. Goodright v. Wright, 1 P. W. 397. Lapsed Devise.

Devise to A for life, remainder to B for life, remainder to the right heirs of A, and A dies in the testator's life-time, his right heirs shall never take. Id. ib.

A devises lands, in trust, after debts paid, to convey the premises to the heirs male of the body of B; the testator's great-grandfather C, is the heir male of the body of B; but not heir general, there being a daughter of an elder brother who is heir general; decreed trustees to convey to C. Neurcomen v. Barkham, 2 Vern. 729. Prec. Chan. 442. 461. S. C. Gilb. Eq. Rep. 116.

One devises the surplus of his estate to his children and grandchildren; a grandchild in ventre sa mere, at the testator's death shall not take; secus, had it been to the children and grandchildren living at his death. Northey v. Stranger, 1 P. W. 342. Pre. Cha. 470. Gilb. Eq. Rep. 136. S. C. INFANT IN VENTRE.

One devises the surplus of his personal estate to the children, of A and B; neither of them has a child at the making of the will, or the death of testator; the devise is executory, and shall extend to any children that A and B shall afterwards have; and the children of each shall take per capita, and not per stirpes. Weld v. Badbury, 2 Vern. 705. POSTUMOUS CHILD; DISTRIBUTION.

Devise to the heirs male of S begotten; S having a son, and the testator taking notice that S was then living, a sufficient description of the testator's meaning, and such son shall take, though strictly speaking he be not heir. Darbishon v. Beaumont, 1 P. W. 229. Fortesc. 18.

A devises in trust for his daughter for life, remainder to the second son of her body in tail male, and so to every younger son, with remainders over. There were two sons, B and C; B died, and, after his death, C was born. C, though an only son, shall take, he being the second son in order of birth, and, as the will is worded, not to be excluded. Trafford v. Ash-ton, 2 Vern. 660.

A devise of a year's wages to such of his servants as shall be living with him at his death, does not include stewards of courts, or such as are not obliged to spend their whole time with their master; but it shall not be restrained to such servants only as lived in the testator's house, or had diet from him. Townshend v. Windham, 2 Vern. 546.

Parol evidence admitted to ascertain the person the testator intended should take a legacy. Hodgson v. Hitch, Prec. Chan. 229. PR. EVID. PAROL.

A, by will, gives 300*l.* to B, and declares her will and desire that he give the 300*l.* to his daughter at his death, or sooner if there be occasion for her advancement. B dies eight days before A; and the daughter dies at sixteen, unmarried. The 300*l.* decreed to the administrator of the daughter. Eales v. England, 2 Vern. 466. Pre. Ch. 200. S. C.

A devises to B and C, his wife's children, as he called them, (not owning them to be his) ten shillings a-piece, and no more, and gave the children that he owned considerable legacies. B and C shall come in for a share of the undisposed surplus, for the words of exclusion must be taken strictly. Vachell v. Jefferys, Pre. Ch. 170. DISTRIBUTION.

A, by deed on his marriage, settled his estate upon the issue of the marriage, remainder to his own right heirs, and if he should die without issue male, and leave one daughter, then the lands to be charged with 3000*l.* for her at twenty-one, and 150*l.* yearly maintenance in the mean time. A, having then no issue, by his will devised thus: "And whereas, by the settlement made on my wife, I have reserved the inheritance of my lands in myself after the estate tail therein is spent, now in case I die without issue, or that such issue shall die without issue of his, her, or their body, or that the estate tail limited by that settlement shall determine, I give all my said manors to my kinsman B, and to his first and other sons in tail male; remainder to C in fee." A had afterwards a daughter. Held, that this daughter was entitled under the will to the whole estate as tenant in tail, and that B took nothing. Cornwall v. Williams, Colles' P. C. 117. WILL, C. OF, WHAT ESTATE.

One devises, if his son die before twenty-one, or without issue, that the land shall go to the son dies before twenty-one, but he has issue. J shall have the land. Bp. of Oxon v. Lighton, 2 Vern. 377.

One devises to A 500*l.*, and to S 500*l.*, and so to five others the like sum; "and if any to whom I have given any money legacy happen to die, then his or her legacy, and also the residue of my personal estate, to go to such of them as shall be then living." Decreed, it should be taken to be living at the death of the testator, and not at any time after, so that the death of any of the legatees after would not carry it to the survivors. Trotter v. Williams, Pre. Cha. 78.

Where a person may take by the name of heir, though not heir-general. Starling v. Etrick, Pre. Ch. 54. WORDS OF PURCHASE, HEIR.

A devised an estate to J and his heirs, upon trust that he should convey it to such of the relations of the testator as he should think best, and most reputable for his family. A died without issue, and the heir at law, testator's brother, preferred a bill against defendant, praying to have the estate conveyed to him. Evidence was admitted of testator's dislike to plaintiff; but if the trustee would give him the estate, plaintiff was not disabled to take it. Clarke v. Turner, 2 Freem. 198.

A, by will, gives his daughter 400*l.*, and devises lands to her until his son B should pay her this 400*l.* She marries C, whose father covenants to settle lands of 100*l.* per annum, and B, her brother, covenants to pay the 400*l.* to the husband; and upon payment, the lands devised to the daughter were to be discharged of this 400*l.* The husband dies. Decreed, the 400*l.* belongs to the wife, and not to the executor of the husband. Howman v. Corie, 2 Vern. 190. HUSB. & WIFE; CHOOSE IN ACTION.

Devises a legacy of 1500*l.* to A, payable at his age of twenty-one, and if A die before, then to B. A dies in the lifetime of the testator, yet B shall have the legacy. Miller v. Warren, 2 Vern. 207. Sed quere note there, id.

A devises 20*l.* a-piece to all the children of his sister B. A child born after making of will, and before testator's death, shall take. Garbrand v. Mayot, 2 Vern. 105. 2 Freem. 105. S. C.

Money bequeathed to A for life, and if she died in the life of her husband, to go to the children of her sister B, in such shares as A should advise. Some of the children of B died, leaving issue, and then A dies in the life of her husband, making no appointment. Decreed, the money to be distributed among the children of B, and their representatives per stirpes, and not per capita. Crook v. Brunking, 2 Vern. 50. DISTRIBUTION.

Lands are limited to the second son in fee, provided that, if the eldest son die without issue, the second son should, within six months after such death of the eldest son, pay 1500*l.* to the sister, or in default thereof, the lands should go to the sister and her heirs. The eldest son dies without issue: the sister dies within the six months; her heir, and not her executor, shall have the benefit of this devise over. Winchelsea v. Wentworth, 1 Vern. 402.

A devises the surplus of his estate to his two nephews, equally to be divided between them, and appoints his executors to lay out for their benefit. One of them died in the testator's lifetime. The whole decreed to the survivor, not to the executors, the testator not intending them any benefit. Cock v. Hurrish, 1 Vern. 425. SURVIVORSHIP.

A gives 800*l.* to his executors, on trust to pay annuities to B and C for their lives, exceeding the interest of the 800*l.*, and gives the surplus of his estate to D and E. The annuitants being dead, the 800*l.* shall go to the residuary legatees, and not to the executors. Id. ib.

A, a copyholder, devised his lands to S, (a stranger) for twenty years after the death of his wife, to raise portions for his younger children. Per Id. Ch. where such a devise is made to the heir, there an estate shall arise to the wife by implication; but where it is devised to a stranger, (as in this case,) there in the meantime it shall descend to the heir. Faulkner v. Faulkner, 1 Vern. 22. A stranger is but fidei commissarius, quoad the profits of that part of the real estate which are devised from him. Gilb. Ch. Rep. 270. INTERMEDIATE PROFITS.

A man makes his brother executor, and gives him all his real and personal estate, and afterwards marrying, by a codicil makes his wife executrix: she shall have the personal estate, and not the brother. Wilkinson v. Wilkinson, 1 Vern. 23.

A, by will, directs 1000*l.* to be laid out in her funeral, and raised out of her plate and jewels, and then gives the rest of her goods and chattels to her executors; and in another clause, gives her executors 1000*l.* a-piece for their trouble; and after debts and legacies paid, gives all the rest of her personal estate to the children of B: decreed, the whole surplus to the children. Fane v. Fane, 1 Vern. 30. EXORS. BENEFICIALLY INTERESTED.

Legacy to A at twenty-one, and if he die before twenty-one, to B; B dies, then A dies before twenty-one. The administrator of B takes. Anon. 2 Vent. 347. INTEREST VESTED.

An infant in ventre sa mere, under a devise to heirs of the body of the devisor, begotten, and to be begotten, cannot take by purchase the legal fee, the terms of description not amounting to a legal designation of him; but is entitled in equity, by virtue of the apparent intention, to the trust of a term attendant on the inheritance, though merged at law. Nurse v. Yerrworth, 3 Swan. 608. MERGER OF TERM; INFANT IN VENTRE SA MERE.

If A gives 40*l.* to his cousin S, to be disposed of as testator should by a private note against him, and dies without making any appointment, this is a good bequest to S. Lambert v. Bainton, 1 Ch. Ca. 198.

A devised 600*l.* a-piece to his two daughters, and the residue of his personal estate to his son, and if either of his children died during their minority, the survivors to be heirs to the deceased by equal portions; the son died, and one sister brought a bill against the executors and the other sister, to have her own 600*l.* and one half of her brother's personal estate, which was decreed, upon her giving security to pay back her own 600*l.* in case she died during her minority. Pate v. Hutton, 1 Ch. Ca. 199. LEGACY; CONTINGENT; SECURITY.

If A gives 40*l.* to S, to be disposed of as A, by private note should acquaint him, and A dies without making any appointment; this is a good bequest to S. Martin v. Clark, 2 Ch. Ca. 198.

If money is bequeathed to younger children, where there are several daughters, and a son, who by birth is the youngest, but heir to a fair inheritance, he shall not be considered as a younger child to take the legacy. Bretton v. Bretton, 3 Ch. Rep. 1. S. P. Mead v. Cave, 1 Ch. Rep. 224. YOUNGER CHILDREN.

7. Words Precatory, &c.

A testator having given an annuity to one of his next of kin, and expressed a reason for giving nothing to the others, gave the residuo of his property to his wife, recommending to her, and not doubting that she would consider his near relations, as he would have done if he had survived her: held, that there was no trust for the next of kin, but that the wife took the residuo absolutely. Salé v. Moore, 1 Sim. 534. TRUST.

Testator, after giving his real and personal estates to his wife in fee, said, that he had so given the same to her unfettered and unlimited, in full confidence that in her future disposition thereof, she would distinguish the heirs of his late father, by devising the whole of his estate, together and entire, to such of his father's heirs as she might think best deserved her preference: held, that no trust was created. Meredith v. Heneage, 1 Sim. 542. TRUST.

Testator gave to his wife all his personal estate, relying, that if she should marry again, she would secure whatever she should possess under his will, for her separate use; and he recommended her to give by her will, what he should die possessed of under his will, to certain persons named: held, that wife's executor was trustee for whole property possessed by her under the will for those persons named. Horwood v. West, 1 N. & S. 387. TRUST.

A recommendation by a testator to his son, to continue his nephews in the occupation of their farms, as heretofore, and so long as they continue to manage the same in a good and husband-like manner, and to duly pay their rents, is imperative. Tibbits v. Tibbits, 1 Jac. 317. TRUST.

A testator leaving to his son and heir his real estates, and the residuo of his personality, with a recommendation to continue his nephews as tenants on an estate settled on the son; the latter decreed to elect, either to continue them as tenants or to make them a compensation for the value of the tenancy out of the property given him by the testator. Id. ib. ELECTION.

Bequest to A B, "trusting she would use it," to indefinite purposes, creates no trust for those purposes. Curtis v. Rippon, 5 Mad. 434. TRUST.

Bequest in will, will raise a trust, if the objects and property are described with such certainty that the court can execute it; but otherwise the devise takes absolutely. Eade v. Eade, 5 Mad. 119. TRUST.

Gift of residuo of testator's personal estate, to trustees for perpetual endowment and maintenance of school, would be valid; but if testator goes on to "recommend" trustees to collect residuo, and purchase freehold lands, &c., it comes within the stat. 9 G. 2. c. 36. Kirkbank v. Hudson, 7 Price, 212. CHARITABLE USES; MORTMAIN.

"I give to A 500*l.*, and it is my will and desire, that A may dispose of the same amongst her relations, as she by will may think proper." Held, a trust for the relations of A, and the 500*l.* well bequeathed by the will of A to her sister and her sister's children, though made without reference to the will of the first testator. Forbes v. Ball, 3 Mer. 437. TRUST; PERFORMANCE OF.

Devising to a son, recommending him to continue his cousins, A and B, in the occupation of their respective farms in the county of W, as heretofore, and so long as they continue to manage the same in a good and husband-like manner, and to duly pay their rents. A trust for the cousins, who had been tenants at will, and the son being the heir was put to his election. As to the effect of election against the will, whether compensation or forfeiture; Qu.? Tibbits v. Tibbits, 19 Ves. 656. TRUST; ELECTION; HEIR AT LAW.

Recommendation in a will, where the object and subject are certain, amounts to trust. Id. 664. TRUST.

No trust under words of recommendation and confidence applied to an uncertain subject; as what shall be left after the death of a person to whom the property is given in the first instance. Id. ib.

Words of entreaty in will, held to raise a trust on construction. Prevost v. Clarke, 2 Mad. 458. TRUST.

Codicil requiring and entreating the executor, who was also the residuary legatee, by will or deed, to settle and secure 500*l.*, to be paid at his decease; the testator declaring, that he had omitted to express it in his will, not doubting that the executor will readily comply with the bequest; a trust, by way of legacy out of the assets; not a condition imposed independent of them. Taylor v. George, 2 V. & B. 378.

Devise to A, and her heirs for ever, "in the fullest confidence that after her decease she will devise the property to my family," being restrained to an estate for life by decree at the Rolls, the devisee was enjoined from cutting timber pending an appeal. Wright v. Atkins, 1 V. & B. 313. See also 19 Ves. 299. 17 Ves. 255. Cooper, 111. 1 Turn. & R. 143. INJUNCTION AGAINST WASTE; TENANT FOR LIFE.

Devise to a nephew in fee, not doubting, in case he should have no child, but that he will dispose and give my said real estate to the female descendants of my sister, in such part or parts and manner as he shall think fit, in preference to any descendant on his own female line. A trust in the event described for the sister's children. Parsons v. Barker, 18 Ves. 476. TRUST.

Precatory words held imperative where the object and subject are certain. Dashwood v. Peyton, 18 Ves. 41. TRUST.

Devise and bequest of real and leasehold estates to the devisor's widow and her heirs for ever, in fullest confidence that after her decease she will devise the property to my family. Held, an estate for life only, with remainder in trust for the devisor's heir, as persona designata. Wright v. Atkins, 17 Ves. 255; affirmed, 19 Ves. 299. Bequest to A for life, with power on her marriage to appoint the interest to her husband for life, and a recommendation to dispose of the principal after her own death, and the determination of the preceding trusts, among the children of A; the recommendation being held an absolute trust, it is a vested interest in all the children; subject to be divested by appointment, and there being no appointment, children born after the death of the testator and those who died in the life of A, are entitled, with the interest. *Malim v. Whether a testator uses terms expressive of his desire, hope, request, &c. or words of command, direction, &c. it is the same thing; in either case he intimates or expresses what his will is, and that ought to be observed, and to prevail. El. Bute v. Stuart, 1 Bro. P. C. 485.

A devise of lands for ever, conveys an estate in fee, and is not affected by subsequent words requesting the devisee, "in case of failure of issue of his said body," to give the estate to another. Bland v. Bland, 9 Mod. 478.

It seems that any words of a testator intimating a request, wish, desire, recommendation, &c. are sufficient to create a trust; provided there be certainty of the gift and of the object to be benefited thereby. Harding v. Glyn, 1 Atk. 469. n. 1.

If A devise all her personal estate to B, to be disposed of as B shall think fit, and add by parol, "you may if you please, give 100l. to my niece;" B, on a bill, in the answer to which the parol declaration is admitted, shall be decreed to pay the 100l. to the niece. Nab v. Nab, 10 Mod. 404. TRUST.

The words "I desire" or "I will," in a will, amount to an express devise. If a devise is to A for life, directing him at his death to give it to B, that amounts to a devise of the use of it only to A for life, remainder to B. Eeles v. England, 2 Vern. 467. Pre. Ch. 200. S. C.

Devise to wife "in confidence" that she will leave, &c. to his son, not relievable. Cary, 22.

XVI. CODICIL.

See also VIII. 3.

Testator devised his estates at S and H to trustees in trust, if there should be only one son of D, who should attain twenty-one, for that son, and in case there should be two or more such sons, interest for the second of them, and gave all the residue of his estates to trustees in trust to sell. He afterwards erased, and by codicil declared that he intended to erase the direction to sell only. He then gave all his estates to the son of D, who should first attain twenty-one, and change his name to E. D, at death of testator had a son, who was still an infant, and afterwards had another son: held, that codicil revoked the devise of the S and H estates, and also the devise of the residue of the estates to the trustees, and that D's eldest son took under this codicil an immediate vested interest, both in the estates of which the testator was seized at the date of his will, and those he afterwards purchased, and consequently was entitled to the rents during his infancy. Duffield v. Elwes, 2 S & S. 544. WILL, REVOCATION OF; WILL, CONSTRUCTION OF; VESTED INTEREST.

Codicil ratifying the will, does not set up an adeemed legacy. Monck v. Id. Monck, 1 Ball & B. 298. LEGACY, ADEMPTION OF.

All codicils are part of the will; therefore a codicil merely for a particular purpose, as to change an executor, and confirming the will in all other respects, does not revive a part of the will revoked by a former codicil. Crosbie v. Macdonald, 4 Ves. 610. WILL.

Two inconsistent wills; a codicil referring to the first by date as the last will, cancels the intermediate will, and evidence of mistake cannot be admitted. Id. ib.

Testator devised all his real estate to his sister for life, remainder to her children, as she should appoint, for want of appointment to all her children, and their heirs as tenants in common. His sister having two daughters, by codicil, declared to be a codicil to his will not then at hand, he gave one of them an annuity; and directing his annuities to be paid out of his three per cent. stock, he charged them on his real estate, in case of a deficiency, and directing the residue of his personal estate to be invested in freehold lands and hereditaments, he recommended to his sister to settle and convey, or join with her husband in settling and conveying all his estates and property which she might derive from him after his decease, to the use of her two daughters for life in such parts, shares, and proportions as she should approve, with remainder to their respective issue, and cross remainders, and the usual powers and clauses in strict settlement. The testator's sister died in his life; and her two daughters were his co-heiresses. Some real estates were purchased between the executing of the will and codicil. As to the real estate the will is not revoked, but is republished by the codicil; and the two nieces are entitled to all the real estates and to those directed to be purchased, as tenants in common in fee. Maggison v. Mann, 2 Ves. J. 630. WILL, C. OF; WILL, REVOC. OF; WILL, REPUBLICATION OF.

Where testator by will devised residue to daughters as tenants in common, and afterwards made a codicil for an express purpose, but referring the residue to daughters, omitting words of confidence, the codicil was construed by will, and they take as tenants in common. Matheus v. Bowman, 3 Anst. 727. WILL, C. OF.

Codicil considered as part of the will, and intent drawn from the whole. Hill v. Chapman, 1 Ves. J. 407. WILL, C. OF.

A gives by will to B, 500l. and by codicil, an an-nity, and by another codicil in these words, "I add this codicil to my will, I give to B. 1000*l.*," held B. was entitled to both sums. Hodson v. Hallett, 10ff. 122. WILL, C. OF; LEGACY, ACCUMULATIVE.

Codicil does not operate as a republication of a will unless it is annexed to it, of the contents shew the intention. Att. Gen. v. Downing, Ambl. 573. WILL, REPUBLICATION OF.

Bequest of personality by will dated prior to 9 G. 2. c. 36, to be laid out in lands for a charity. It is afterwards confirmed by a codicil dated after the statute; the codicil operates as a new will and the devise is void. Att. Gen. v. Hewitwell, Ambl. 451. MORTMAIN.

Every codicil properly attested, is a republication of the will. Gibson v. Rogers, Ambl. 97. S. C. 1 Ves. 485. 4 Ves. 288. WILL, REPUBLICATION OF.

A devise of lands to trustees, who are afterwards changed by a codicil, is not revoked by the codicil; but the new trustees shall stand seised upon the trusts of the will, although the word "heirs" is made use of in the codicil. *Acherly v. #### YOUNGER CHILDREN.

A son who, when he attained twenty-one, was a younger child, but by the subsequent death of his elder brother, in the lifetime of his parents, becomes an eldest son before the time fixed for the payment of the younger children's portions, is entitled to his share of portions which would otherwise vest in the younger sons at twenty-one, and is not payable till after the death of the parents, unless there is enough in the settlements by which the portions were provided, to shew that the character of younger child was to be ascertained by reference to the time when the portions vested, and not to the time when they became payable. Windham v. Graham, Russ. 331. SETTLEMENT, C. OF.

A, being possessed of freehold and copyhold estate, the latter of which could not be devised, but by conveyance to a trustee and declaring uses, by will devised to his younger son, all his messuages, lands, and tenements at A, and also all that his messuage and tenement at S, in the occupation and tenure of J, as farmer thereof, &c. Held that the copyhold lands did not pass by the devise, the testator not having observed the formalities necessary for the passing thereof, and that the court would not supply a surrender or put the heir to election, though the devise was to a younger child. Hodgson v. Morent, 9 Price, 556. WILL, C. OF; COPYHOLD, DEFECTIVE SURRENDER OF; HEIR AT LAW; ELECTION.

Under a will directing the transfer of stock among all the children of the testatrix's daughter, except an eldest son, younger son having become the eldest living by the death of his elder brother, who survived the testatrix, is not entitled to a share, although an estate limited to his elder brother did not descend to him. Mutheys v. Paul, 3 Swan. 328. WILL, C. OF.

Every one but the heir is a younger child in equity. Younger children are those who do not take the estate. The character of younger child must continue until the time of payment. Savage v. Carroll, 1 Ball & B. 278.

Surrender supplied for younger children; the heir having a provision under the will, without regard to the amount. Garn v. Garn, 16 Ves. 268. COPYHOLD, DEFECTIVE SURRENDER OF.

Portions by settlements for younger children living at the death of the survivor of the parents, with a proviso that advancements should be in satisfaction, unless the contrary is declared. The father by will desiring the settlement may be punctually complied with, made a residuary disposition of real and personal estates, among the younger children, directing that what they may have received in his life shall be brought into the account so as to make them all equal; construction upon the whole, that advancement in marriage or otherwise, though not the grammatical construction, is within the proviso; and equality being the object, an arrangement was made upon that principle; one of the younger children having become the eldest, and therefore owner of the estate, between the death of the parents, after advances received in satisfaction of the portion in the former character, is to be considered a younger child in the account. Leake v. Leake, 10 Ves. 477. WILL, C. OF.

On construction of will, held that under a bequest to the younger children of A, an only surviving younger child was upon the whole will entitled; and the second having become the eldest, was excluded. Iy. Lincoln v. Pelham, 10 Ves. 166. WILL, C. OF.

A daughter, though eldest, held a younger child to take a legacy by description. Pearson v. Garnet, 2 Bro. C. C. 38. S. C. Prec. Chan. 201. See S. C. id. 226.

Under a power to appoint a sum of money among children, but that the eldest son, or the son possessing the estate, shall have no part of the money, a younger son becoming an eldest, is excluded, though mentioned by name in the execution of the power whilst he was a younger son. Broadmead v. Wood, 1 Bro. C. C. 77. SETTLE. C. OF.

Younger child is never considered as an eldest, but between parent and children, or one in loco parentis, not in the case of a provision by a stranger. Hall v. Hewer, Ambli. 203.

Grandmother, under a power, creates by deed a term, to commence after her death, for raising money for younger children, as their father should appoint; if no appointment, equally; if but one besides the eldest, then to that one; if none, except the eldest, then to him; if no eldest son, then to her own executors. At the date of the deed there was one grandson and one grand-daughter. The father afterwards had another son, and died without appointment; the eldest son having died under age: held, that the whole sum belonged to the daughter, and that the younger son having thus become an eldest son, was excluded; eldest son unprovided for, considered as a younger. Ld. Teynham v. Webb, 2 Ves. 198. DEED, C. OF; INTEREST, VESTED.

Younger son becoming an eldest, entitled to take eo nomine. Bridgewater v. Egerton, 2 Ves. 122.

Second born son may take under a limitation "to the first son," he being so at the time. Lomax v. Hobnden, 1 Ves. 290.

Bequest of 3000*l.* to Jane, the wife of C, for the use of her younger children, to be distributed as she should appoint, in default, equally. All Jane's children by C, being born at the time of the will, and death of the testator, it was held vested as a present legacy to them; subject to variation as between them, but not to extend to the children by a future marriage. The period of vesting being at the death of one who was a younger child at the testator's death, and became an eldest afterwards, was held entitled. Coleman v. Seymour, 1 Ves. 209. WILL, C. OF, WHO TAKE; INTEREST, VESTED.

An elder daughter, where there is a son, is accounted a younger child in a court of equity. Hewage v. Hunloke, 2 Atk. 456. SETTLE.; MISTAKE.

A voluntary deed executed in favour of children, without a power of revocation, is not revoked by a subsequent will. Batton v. Bolton, 3 Swan. 414. VOLUNTARY DEED, REVOCATION OF.

A voluntary deed in favour of younger children, though retained in the possession of the grantor, and afterwards destroyed by him, established against legatees. Sear v. Ashwell, 3 Swan. 411. Id.

Where there is a sum of money provided for younger children, one of the younger becomes eldest, he shall have no part of this money; but where the money was, by a private act of parliament, to be appointed among A, B, and C, (naming them,) and A afterwards becomes eldest, he is capable of an appointment in his favour. Jermyn v. Fellows, Forres. 93.

Where, by mistake, term to raise portions for younger children; was created in deed after limitation in tail to first son, court rectified it in favour of the younger children. Halfpenny v. Udale, 9 Mod. 56. MISTAKE; SETTLEMENT.

The eldest daughter, where there is a son, or where the estate by a settlement goes all to a remainder-man, is a younger child in equity. Beale v. Beale, 1 P. W. 244.

A made a voluntary settlement of lands, (subject to an annuity of 100*l.* to his youngest son) in trust for his eldest son and his heirs, which settlement did not contain any power of revocation; the eldest son being dead, the father made another voluntary settlement of the same lands to the use of himself for life, remainder to his youngest son for life, remainder to trustees to preserve, &c. remainder to first and other sons of youngest son in tail. The first deed came into the hands of the eldest son's heir, and the other to the second son, who brought a bill to set aside the first. Both sons having been otherwise provided for, it was held, that though both deeds were voluntary, yet the consideration of being a younger child, was not sufficient to set aside the first deed. Claverling v. Claverling, 7 Bro. P. C. 410. VOLUNTARY CONVEYANCE.

A B, a widower, settles lands to raise 100*l.* a year for his eldest son, and 100*l.* a piece for his younger children, and afterwards he marries again and has children by his second wife: decreed, the children by the second wife, were equally entitled with the other younger children: though the portions of the younger children were by the settlement, to be paid according to their seniority, yet in case of a deficiency, they shall be paid in average. The portions of the younger children, who died in the life of their father, not to be raised in favour of the administrators; otherwise, if any of the daughters had married in the lifetime of their father and afterwards died. Brathwaite v. Brathwaite, 1 Vern. 334. SETTLE. C. OF, WHO TAKE.

If money is bequeathed to younger children, where there are several daughters, and a son, who by birth is the youngest, but he is not in his inheritance, he shall not be considered as a younger child to take the legacy. Bratton v. Bratton, 3 Ch. Rep. 1, S. P. Mead v. Case, 1 Ch. Rep. 224. WILL, C. OF, WHO TAKE.

ACCIDENT.

If, after a contract for sale of an estate, before the title is accepted, the title deeds be destroyed by fire, this court will not compel the specific performance of the contract, unless the vendor can furnish the purchaser with the means of showing what were the contents of the destroyed deeds, and of proving that such deeds were duly executed and delivered. Bryant v. Busk, 4 Russ. 1. VEND. & PURCH., TITLE.

ACCOUNT.

If letters of administration are granted to an infant, under which he receives and disposes of the assets of the intestate, an account cannot be directed in respect of his receipts during infancy. Hindmarsh v. Southgate, 3 Russ. 324. INFANT; EXOR.

When, in consequence of a mistaken construction of a doubtful instrument, the rents of a charity estate have been for a series of years applied by a corporation to public purposes not warranted by the nature of the charity, the corporation will not be charged for such misapplication. The court will not compel a corporation to produce their title deeds, and will not direct an inquiry as to the property which they possess applicable to general corporate purposes, in order to ascertain whether there is any fund which can be applied in making good a breach of trust committed by them in the management of charity funds. Att. Gen. v. Corp. of Exeter, 3 Russ. 395. CORPORATION; CHARITY.

A had long employed B as his steward, professional advisor, and general confidential agent: disputes having arisen between them, an agreement was entered into between B and a clergyman acting on behalf of A, by which a gross sum was to be paid to B in lieu of all his claims, but no accounts or vouchers were rendered or produced by A, nor any bill of costs delivered. That agreement will not protect B from rendering an account to his principal. Jenkins v. Gould, 3 Russ. 385.

Disputes existing between A and his solicitor, receiver, and confidential agent, B, which involved long and intricate matters of account; an authority was given by A to a third person to settle any account in which he (A) had an interest, and to compromise any claims which he might have. Such an authority will not empower that third person to make an agreement, without the production or examination of any account, that a gross sum shall be paid to B in lieu of all his demands on it. Id. ib.

A, a second incumbrancer on an estate in Jamaica, filed a bill to have the produce of the estate applied in satisfaction of the incumbrance. A receiver was appointed, who was ordered to pay to B, the first incumbrancer, the interest on her charge out of the first proceeds, and to consign the produce to R for sale. On making a consignment, the bill of lading was sent to be delivered to R, on his paying B's interest. Afterwards, by order of R, the consignments were made to other merchants, who paid B her interest for several years, but then ceased to do so. Upon a bill by her for an account of the consignments, and payment of her interest, charging collusion between the receiver and consignees, a demurrer for want of equity was overruled. Fitzgerald v. Stewart, 2 Sim. 333.

A plaintiff who complains of a piracy of his work, has no remedy in equity, unless he establish a title to an injunction, and then the account will follow. Baily v. Taylor, 1 Russ. & M. 73. COPYRIGHT; PR. INJUNC.

A decree on a bill for an account was made in 1720. The account before the master was referred to arbitration, 1734. In 1738, 5,369l. 16s. 1d. was awarded to A, the plaintiff, and the award made a decree of the court, which was affirmed upon appeal in 1739. In 1741, A filed a bill in the nature of a bill of amendment and revivor, against the representative of the defendant in the former suit; and in 1747, he filed an amended bill, praying, in default of personal estate, a foreclosure of a mortgage admitted to be in existence, and the application of the principal and interest due thereon in satisfaction of his demands. In 1771 (after various amendments and bills of revivor) the representatives of A filed a bill against the representative of the original defendant, stating causes for the delay in the prosecution of the suit, praying an account of the rents of the mortgaged premises: the defendant put in two answers, which were reported insufficient, refusing the discovery. In 1785, a bill of revivor and amended bill was filed, stating that a deed had been made by collusion between the representative of the mortgagee and J B, the heir of the mortgagor, charging that the deed was a fraud upon the plaintiff, and a devastavit of the assets: and praying that the estates of the first representative of the mortgagee devised by him for the payment of his debts might be sold; and praying also an account of the real and personal estate. The defendant admitted the fraud charged as to the deed, and contended that the plaintiff must first have recourse to the mortgaged lands. Nine bills were filed between 1795 and 1804. In 1808 a decree was pronounced, directing accounts of the real and personal assets of the original defendant and his first representative. In 1810, the sum of 28,657l. was reported due to the plaintiffs, and that the personal estate consisted partly of a mortgage, which came into the hands of the representative, who had received of the rents and profits sufficient to answer the demand. To this report exceptions were filed. In 1811, the cause came on to be heard upon the report, exceptions, and merits; when it was referred to the master to enquire under what title the representative of the original defendant entered into the lands in question; and he reported that he entered as mortgagee. Exceptions were filed to this report, principally on the ground that the deeds of supposed mortgage were in fact deeds of trust, executed to secure the lands against the claims of adverse creditors; and also that there were unsatisfied judgments prior to the plaintiff's claim. By a decree upon further directions the exceptions were allowed, and the account directed to be taken excluding the alleged mortgage; and as against J B, the bill was dismissed. Upon appeal, this judgment was affirmed. Quære, whether J B, against whom the bill was dismissed, ought not to have been brought before the house as a party to the appeal? Kelly v. Bateman, 1 Bligh, N. S. 237.

By statute 59 Geo. 3. c. 3. navy agents are entitled to make the usual charge for passing accounts before that act; and to charge commission on the full amount of pay, without being limited to the money passing through their hands: the defendants having received a sum as returned premiums, without bringing it to account for many years, alleging, that they waited the final adjustment of average; it was referred to the master to enquire whether they were entitled to retain it, according to the custom of merchants. Drury v. Atkins, 1 Tam. 75. PRIN. & AGENT.

The court sitting in bankruptcy, has no jurisdiction to order the personal representative of a deceased assignee to account for the personal estate of the bankrupt in his hands. Exp. Crowe, 1 Mont. & M. 281. The Ld. Ch. thought, that an admission of assets on the part of the representative would make no difference. EXORS. ADMISSION OF ASSETS.

Demurrer to a bill for a general account, and for an injunction to restrain the defendant from taking out execution on a judgment recovered by him in an action at law, was allowed, because the bill did not establish a case of account on its own statement, and it was too late for the plaintiff to set up the interference of the court, after having suffered the action to be tried at nisi prius. Moss v. Lane, 10 Price, 502. PR. DEMURRER.

Where an estate has been devised to a person, who has since died, the executor is not to be taken of the personal estate of the deceased, but the vendor shall have a bill to compel him to account for the personal estate well and exactly. Topham v. Constantine, 1 Tam. 135. PRIN. & AGENT; FIDUCIARY; LIEN.

Accounts may be ordered on an acquiescence of five years, if circumstances pointing to show fraud are then discovered. President, &c. of Orphan Board v. Renen, 1 Knapp, 100.

The master of a vessel in the South Sea whale fishery agrees on behalf of the owners, that each of the crew shall have a specified share of the profits of the voyage. Before the return of the vessel, the owners sell a quarter of the cargo. The custom of the trade is for the cooper to estimate the quantity of oil; this was done, and the plaintiff settled accordingly: Held that the owners had no right to sell part of the cargo; but the plaintiff having settled could not then come for relief to equity. Cockle v. Whiting, 1 Tam. 55. ACQUIESCENCE.

Accounts having been settled, and a release executed, in order to avoid the latter, and obtain an account in this court, the plaintiff must establish either fraud or surprise. In order to induce the court to give a decree to surcharge and falsify, some one mistake must be shewn. If an error is detected, and settled before the institution of a suit, it is not a foundation for a decree to surcharge and falsify. Davies v. Spurling, 1 Tam. 199 S. C. 1 Russ. & M. 64.

An executor or trustee, is not to be allowed, without question, the amount of bills of costs which he has paid bond fide to the solicitor to the trust; and the master, without regularly taxing the bills, will moderate their amount. *Johnson v. ## ACQUIESCENCE.

Consent of counsel is to be given upon their own conception of the authenticity of their instructions, and if given is binding on the clients. Mole v. Smith, 1 J. & W. 673. BARRISTER.

F C tenant for life, with a power of leasing for thirty-one years, demises, in 1749, for three lives to his attorney; M C, his son tenant in tail, four years afterwards, in consideration of 20l. executes an agreement, which was endorsed on the part of the lease in the attorney's hands, to confirm the demise, and renew for a further term of three lives. Eleven years after this, M C dies, and the articles are then registered. The last of the three lives died in 1817, and the representative of the attorney, files a bill for the specific performance of the son's agreement. Held that the case was too suspicious to come within the principle of specific performance, and the length of time elapsed under circumstances which did not imply acquiescence. Blakeney v. Baggott, 1 Dow, N. S. 405. LENGTH OF TIME; AGREEMENT, SPEC. PERF.

Master of vessel in South Sea whale fishery, agrees on behalf of owners, that each of crew shall have a specified share of profits of voyage, before return of vessel; owners sell a quarter of cargo. The custom of trade is for cooper to estimate quantity of oil; this was done, and plaintiff settled accordingly: Held that owners had no right to sell part of cargo; but the plaintiff having settled, could not then come for relief to equity. Cockle v. Whiting, 1 Tam. 55. ACCOUNT.

A agreed to lend B 600l. navy stock: he sold the stock for 522l. which was paid to B; a bond was drawn to repay "the sum of 522l., (being the produce of 600l. navy five per cents., or such other sum as would replace the stock) with lawful interest." B, on discharging the bond, refused to replace stock; A received the money and gave up the bond: Held that after having received the money, he could not come into equity for relief. Barnham v. Munn, 1 Taml. 86. BOND.

A party is bound by the consent of his counsel given in court, though they had no instructions to consent, if they were at the time apprised of all those facts of which the knowledge was essential to the proper exercise of their discretion; but he will be released from an order made by such consent, if they gave that consent in ignorance of material circumstances. Furnival v. Bogle, 4 Russ. 142. BARRETER; SOLICITOR AND CLIENT.

How far a party will be affected by the remissness of his solicitor, in not immediately objecting to an order made by the consent of counsel in court, when neither the party nor solicitor was present, and instructions to consent had not been given by either. Id. ib.

ACTION AT LAW.

To an action of debt or covenant, heir may plead riens per descent. 1 W. 4. c. 47. s. 7.

Action of debt or covenant may lie against heir, in respect of land descended, though he sells estate before action brought. Id. s. 6. And it may be maintained against devisee, where no heir. Id. s. 4. HEIR AT LAW; DEVISEE.

ADMINISTRATION PENDENTE LITE.

Decree of foreclosure against an administrator pendente lite, plaintiff knowing limited character in which administrator represented mortgagor, and that there were persons claiming the beneficial title to estate, not parties to suit, merely forecloses administrator pendente lite. Sale directed by decree of foreclosure to be made in a month, on the consent of administrator pendente lite, not binding on persons beneficially entitled to the estate, not parties in the suit. Ellis v. Deane, 1 Beat. 5. PR. DECREE.

See as to administrator pendente lite generally. Id. ib.

ADMISSIONS.

A plaintiff is not entitled to the production of a letter admitted by the defendant to be in his possession, but which the defendant states was written by him to his solicitor, and directed the solicitor to take the opinion of counsel upon the question in dispute between the parties. Vent v. Pacey, 4 Russ. 193. PROFESSIONAL CONFIDENCE; PR. PRODUCTION OF DEEDS.

AGREEMENT.

Agreements may be made by guardian of infants, or committees of lunatic, with approbation of court, signified on the petition. 1 W. 4. c. 65. s. 26. GUARD. & WARD; LUNATIC.

Where a feme covert, having separate property, joins in a security for money advanced to her husband the court acts upon it, not as an agreement to charge her separate property, but as an equitable appointment under the settlement, to be satisfied from the rents and profits of that property, and not by sale or mortgage. Field v. Sowley, 4 Russ. 112. POWER, EXECUTION OF.

The court will not interfere to set aside an agreement, merely on the ground of inadequacy of consideration, nor on account of the distress of the plaintiff, where no advantage had been taken of his situation. Purdie v. Millett, 1 Taml. 31.

If an agreement be in part unperformed, the principle of a court of equity, is in compensation, not forfeiture. Page v. Brown, 4 Russ. 6.

F C, tenant for life, with a power of leasing for thirty-one years, demises in 1749, for three lives to his attorney. M C, his son tenant in tail, four years afterwards, in consideration of 20l. executes an agreement, which was endorsed on the part of the lease in the attorney's hands, to confirm the demise, and renew for a further term of three lives. Eleven years after this F C dies, and the articles are then registered. The last of the three lives died in 1817, and the representative of the attorney files a bill for a specific performance of the son's agreement. Held, that the case was too suspicious to come within the principle of specific performance, and the length of time elapsed under circumstances which did not imply acquiescence. Blakeney v. Baggott, 1 Dow, N. S. 405. ACQUISITION; LENGTH OF TIME.

A person who had entered into an agreement for the purchase of land, which was formerly part of the glebe of a rectory, and had been before sold for the redemption of the land-tax, is not bound to complete the purchase, when it appears that, upon the prior sale for the redemption of the land tax, the rector was himself the actual purchaser in the name of his curate. Grover v. Hagell, 3 Russ. 428. VENDOR & PURCH.; LAND TAX, REDEMP. OF.

An infant cannot sustain a suit for the specific performance of a contract, because the remedy is not mutual. Flight v. Holland, 4 Russ. 298. INFANT.

Where an agreement expressly refers to a plan, as an existing document forming a term in the contract, parol evidence is admissible for the purpose of identifying the plan; but unless the evidence of identity is clear and satisfactory, specific performance of such an agreement will be enforced. Hodges v. Horsfall, 1 Russ. & M. 116.

Fellotes v. Ld. Gwydir, 1 Sim. 63. affd. 1 Russ. & M. 83.

A court of equity will not entertain a bill for the specific performance of an agreement, to pay in a certain event, which has happened, an annual sum by quarterly instalments. Brough v. Oddy, 1 Russ. & M. 65.

If A, for valuable consideration, undertakes to surrender a copyhold to B, and B, on borrowing money from C, enters into a written agreement with C, that he, B, will surrender the same copyhold to C, by way of mortgage security. A is not justified in refusing to surrender the copyhold to B, because he, A, has received notice from C of the agreement between him and B. The surrender by A, does not prejudice, but promotes the agreement. Walford, 4 Russ. 372.

Where A agrees to mortgage of leaseholds, and not to mortgage of freehold, and afterwards called for a bill for specific performance, or a bill for specific performance was denied, as to the defendant. Bass v. Choleys, 1 Russ. & M. 116.

A, having purchased land, in the title to the investigation of C and D, solicitors, in partnership, upon whose advice the purchase was completed. D was a trustee to invest her dowry in the conveyance. A died, and his devisee sold the property to D. On a bill for specific performance by the vendor, it was held that a solicitor who has been employed to advise on a title, could not, on purchasing the property himself, set up an objection which he did not think important when advising his principal. Rever v. Simpson, 1 Tam. 69. VENDOR & PURCHASER; SOLICITOR & CLIENT.

A husband having been found guilty for an assault upon his wife, the court recommended an accommodation: the counsel of the parties thereupon signed a memorandum of an agreement that the husband would allow the wife 50*l.* a year, and the court, referring to the agreement, imposed merely a nominal fine. Upon a bill for a specific performance, it was decided that the defendant must disprove that his counsel had authority to sign the agreement, and that in the absence of evidence to the contrary, the court will presume that he had such authority, and, therefore decreed a performance. Elworthy v. Bird, 1 Tam. 40. BARRISTER; PRINCIPAL & AGENT.

The agent of the Albion insurance company had an office in Glasgow, at which J. P. and others the owners of a steam-vessel effected an insurance, receiving from the company's agent a contract, importing generally that a policy corresponding with the memorandum would be prepared at the office in London, and delivered to the assured of their order "on the third Monday in the ensuing month or on any subsequent day." The policy that was sent down, and which was never shewn to or demanded by the assured, contained a clause that it "should be suspended and remain out of force during the time the steamboat might be at sea." At the end of the year, the policy was renewed through the agent at Glasgow, who delivered to the assured a memorandum, signed by the company's secretary in London, signifying that the above policy had been renewed, but no notice of the exception was ever communicated to the assured. The vessel was shortly afterwards destroyed by fire on her passage from Liverpool to Dublin. Held, that the memorandum was the contract of the party, which had not been fulfilled by the company, who were therefore liable for damages; that the act 6 Geo. 1. c. 18. (repealed, see 6 Geo. 4. c. 91.) so far as it declares all policies executed by six persons, other than the London insurance and Royal Exchange assurances, to be absolutely void, does not extend to Scotland; that a contract so entered into was a Scotch and not an English contract. Pattison v. Mills, 2 Bl. N. S. 519. INSURANCE; SCOTLAND.

Two parties treating for a lease, agreed that the amount of rent should be fixed by two arbitrators, with power to call in an umpire, whose decision, with that of one of the arbitrators, should determine the rent. The umpire being chosen, he and the arbitrator for the lessee fixed the rent. The former stating as the ground of his decision, that the lessee had agreed with the arbitrators to lay out a large sum upon the premises, but which agreement the lessor had no power to enforce. The arbitrator made his valuation at the instigation of the lessee's wife. Held, reversing a decision of the court of chancery in Ireland, that under these circumstances a specific performance ought not to be granted. Sir Arthur Chichester v. McIntyre, 1 Dow. N. S. 460. AWARD.

AGREEMENT.

A testator gave his property after the death of his wife to trustees in trust to pay the interest and profits to his two daughters J. & E. to their separate use, with a direction to pay to and apply for the benefit of A, the son of E, 200*l.* annually, when he attained the age of twenty-one years, and before that period such part of the 200*l.* bequeathed to him as might be judged proper. He then gave his daughters power to dispose of the principal by will to their children or grandchildren respectively, except that proportion of the principal given to E, and from which the interest is to arise to my grandson, viz. "4000*l.*, which sum shall be my grandson's property;" and in case either of the daughters died without issue, he limited her share of the fund over to the other daughter, her children or grandchildren. A having attained twenty-one and died in his mother's life-time: Held that the annuity ceased upon his death, and that the 4000*l.* never vested in him. Livesey v. Livesey, 3 Russ. 287. S. C. in part reversed. Id. 542. WILL. C. OF; INTEREST VESTED.

It was not necessary under the 17 Geo. 3. c. 36. that the memorial of an annuity should contain the christian names of the attesting witnesses at full length; and the memorial is sufficient if it states them as they appear signed to the attestation of the deed. Philippis v. Const, 3 Russ. 267.

Where an annuity is granted for a term of years to be paid half-yearly, and at the same time promissory notes are given by the grantee for the payment of each half-year's annuity when it becomes due, and it appears that the several half-yearly payments will repay the purchase money with interest, exceeding the rate of five per cent., the transaction is usurious. Fereday v. Wightwick, 1 Russ. & M. 45. USURY.

Annuity for years originating in an agreement for a loan, and producing more than a return of the principal and five per cent. interest, is usurious. Fereday v. Wightwick, 1829. 1 Tam. 250. USURY.

ARBITRATOR, &c.

In a suit instituted to enforce a pecuniary demand against the real and personal estate of testator, an order was made by consent, referring all matters in difference between the parties in the cause to arbitration, and the arbitrators made an award ordering the executors to pay a certain sum to the complainants, in full satisfaction of all their demands on him and his testator, but directing that certain other defendants, who under the testator's will took interest in his real estate, should be at liberty to prosecute their claims against the testator's estate, in like manner as if no order of reference had been made; the award was held not to be final, and was therefore set aside. Turner v. Turner, 3 Russ. 494.

An award is invalid if one of the parties to the reference dies before it is made, unless the representatives of the parties are included in the submission.—President and Members of the Orphan Board v. Van Reenen, 1 Knapp. 100.

Two parties treating for a lease, agreed that the amount of rent should be fixed by two arbitrators, with power to call in an umpire, whose decision, with that of one of the arbitrators, should determine the rent. The umpire being chosen, he and the arbitrator for the lessee fixed the rent. The former stating as the ground of his decision, that the lessee had agreed with the arbitrators to lay out a large sum upon the premises, but which agreement the lessor had no power to enforce. The arbitrator too made his valuation at the instigation of the lessee's wife. Held, reversing a decision of the court of chancery in Ireland, that under these circumstances, a specific performance ought not to be granted. Chichester v. McIntyre, 1 Dow. N. S. 460. AGREEMENT, SPEC. PERF.

ATTAINDER.

In the policies effected by the Amicable Society, there is no exception as to death by the hands of justic person insuring his life in that office, afterwards suffered death for a criminal offence the policy

BAILLÉ.

Warehousemen being private agents, and not holding goods as the possessors of a public bonded warehouse, cannot maintain a bill of interpleader, but where goods are deposited in a public bonded warehouse, a bill of interpleader may be maintained against contending claimants. *Cooper v. BANK OF ENGLAND

Where transfers directed to be made, who to be named. 1 W 4 c 60. s. 32 STOCK, TRANSFER OF, PR. ORDER.

BANKRUPTCY

A commission issued under the stat. 6 G 4 c 16, was ordered to be superseded on the ground that no trading, subsequently to the 1st of September 1825 on which day that act came into operation, had been proved. 1 ip Bitten, 1 Mont & M. 287

Fixed costs upon a judgment as in case of a non suit under a rule of court, do not constitute a good petitioning creditor's debt such costs not being recoverable by action at law, but only by attachment, in the nature of an execution. 1 ip Stevenson, 1 Mont & M. 262

Where a commission had issued against three persons, and it was afterwards discovered that one of them was an uncertificated bankrupt, the commission was ordered to be wholly superseded. Quere whether a joint commission, in which its execution can be rendered valid as to the remaining partners, after a supersederas as to the partner against whom it is invalid. 1 ip Wray, 1 Mont & M. 195.

Where bankrupts were described as 'late of Kent Road, in the county of Surrey, merchants, dealers and chapmen,' and it appeared that they had withdrawn from that business some time previously, and had subsequently engaged in farming, upon distinct farms, and each on his separate account, the description was considered insufficient, and the commission superseded. 1 ip Day, 1 Mont & M. 208

A commission sealed, but not opened, was superseded at the instance of the petitioning creditor without serving the bankrupt, or shewing that he could not be found all his rights whether by action or petition being reserved in the order. 1 ip Patten, 1 Mont & M. 211

The Ld. Ch. said he thought it proper to vary the rule laid down in Exp. Lorth, 1 Mont & M. 10

Where after a commission had been opened, the clerk of the solicitor, supposing the name of the bankrupt to have been spelt wrong, altered it, the Ld. Ch. refused to allow the commission to be amended, but directed it to be superseded. Exp. Stammeis, 1 Mont & M. 290.

Where a commission issued on the petition of four partners, and one of them died before the date of the fiat and of the commission, it was superseded, with liberty to the surviving partners to lodge new docket papers, and issue another commission. Exp Wakefield, 1 Mont & M. 291

A commission was issued against two partners, subsequently a commission was issued against one of them, and three other persons, this latter commission was then superseded as to the partner who was included in the first commission without prejudice as to the other three bankrupts. The assignees under the second commission sold an estate belonging to one of the three partners, the purchaser objected, that the second commission was altogether void, but the court held otherwise, and made a decree for specific performance. Burt v. v. Carl 11 Iml. 113

A creditor is not a competent witness to support a commission of bankrupt, but where the witness has been asked whether he was a creditor, and replied that he was not, and did not intend to prefer any claim, it was held, that the subsequent discovery of his being in fact a creditor, was not sufficient ground for a supersederas. Semble, that all objections to the competency of a witness must be taken before the commissioners. 1 ip Hills, 1 Mont & M. 272.

The court will not assume that commissioners are likely to exceed their authority, or fail in the discharge of their duty. Where a mortgagee of the bankrupt's property who was summoned to attend and produce to the commissioners the mortgage deed petitioned that they might be restrained from requiring the production of the security the petition was dismissed with costs, as being premature. 1 ip Beeton, 1 Mont & M. 244

All documents required to be produced, should be described in the body of the summons, previously to its being signed by the commissioners. 1 ip Lloyd, 1 Mont & M. 270

A solicitor summoned as a witness under the stat. 6 G 4 c 16 s. 33, 34 to produce a mortgage deed of the bankrupt's property deposited with him by his client, the mortgagee refused to produce the deed, and was committed by them for not answering satisfactorily held, that the warrant was defective in form as it appeared that the summons was to produce and not to answer. Id. 269.

A bankrupt, under examination, being asked whether the statements contained in a paper produced and shewn to him were true statements, demurred to the question, on the ground that an answer to it might subject him to a criminal prosecution, and was committed for not answering held, that in absence of authority to show that commissioners may dispense with the general rule of law, that no person can be compelled to criminate himself, the bankrupt was entitled to demur, and was accordingly discharged. 1 ip Auby, 1 Mont & M. 212.

A bankrupt cannot claim an allowance before a final dividend has been made. Exp. Surridge, 1 Mont & M. 287.

Where an equitable mortgagee applies for leave to bid at the sale of the mortgaged premises, the practice is for him to pay the costs of the application. 1 ip Robinson, 1 Mont & M. 261. MORTGAGE, & MORTGAGE, LEVYING MORTGAGES, PR. COSTS.

To a bill by the assignee of a bankrupt, against a removed assignee for an account, a plea that the suit was not instituted with the consent of the creditors, at a meeting pursuant to the 11 & 12 Geo. 3. c. 8 s. 58.

was allowed. Stokes v. Dery, 1 Beat. 152. PL. PLA.

There may be a distinction between an assignee commencing an original suit, and continuing one commenced by the bankrupt. Id. 166.

Where at the election of assignees, the major part of the creditors, in value, were excluded from voting by a vast crowd in the room, and without any blame being imputable to any one, a new choice was directed to be made. Exp. Dechapeaurouge, 1 Mont. & M. 174.

The assignees, after the trial of an action brought by them, in which they failed to prove a sufficient trading to support the commission, and after various other acts by them, presented a petition, praying that the commission might be superseded, and that the costs and expences incurred might be paid by the petitioning creditors: Held, that the petitioning creditors could not then be held responsible. Exp. Paul, 1 Mont. & M. 185.

The rejection by the commissioners of an assignee is not final: an appeal lies from their decision to the chancellor. Exp. Candy, 1 Mont. & M. 197.

A, the proprietor of several shares in a mine, having been declared a bankrupt, B, (a solicitor) and C were chosen assignees, and immediately relinquished all interest of the bankrupt. A new company was subsequently formed, and B became a shareholder. The lord chancellor held, that assignees may be justified in declining to continue works in a mine which do not appear likely to prove immediately beneficial to the bankrupt's estates, but that, however pure their motives, they cannot be permitted, either directly or indirectly, to become the purchasers of any part of the property; and that an assignee is not entitled to act as solicitor to the commission, it being contrary to reason and principle that the same person should fill two offices, one of which is in its nature responsible to the other. He directed a renewed commission to issue; the discharge of B & C; a choice of new assignees, at which B & C should be restrained from voting; and that B should be considered as a trustee for the benefit of the creditors. Exp. Badcock, 1 Mont. & M. 231.

That an assignee may, under some circumstances, be permitted to bid at the sale of the bankrupt's estate. See Exp. Morland, 1 Mont. & M. 76.

Under the stat. 6 Geo. 4. c. 16. s. 79. estates of which a bankrupt is seised as a mere trustee, do not become vested in his assignees. A petition to compel them to join in a conveyance of part of the trust property was dismissed with costs. Exp. Gennys, 1 Mont. & M. 258.

Creditors are not entitled to apply in the first instance to the court for a copy of the assignees' accounts. They are entitled under 6 Geo. 4. c. 16. s. 101. to inspect the accounts, and for that purpose, application should be made to the commissioners. Exp. Granger, 1 Mont. & M. 289.

A demurrer to a bill by the assignees of a bankrupt, because it did not state that it had been filed with consent of the creditors as required by the stat. 6 Geo. 4. c. 16, was overruled; the act merely intended to make assignees responsible as trustees, and the creditors, if they institute any suit, must obtain the consent directed by the act. James v. Yates, 1 Mt. & J. 373. STAT. C. OF PL. & EQUITY.

A business, the property of which was carried on with his capital, and for his profit, by B his agent, in the name of the latter, at A's salary. A having become bankrupt, B filed his bill stating that by reason of the use of his name, he had become liable to a heavy amount for the concern, which was insolvent; notwithstanding the bankruptcy of A, and praying for an injunction to restrain the assignees from in any way intermeddling with the concern: Held, that B had a lien on the business, to the extent of his liabilities, and an injunction was granted. Farrcroft v. Wood, 4 Russ. 487. LIEN; PRINCIPAL & AGENT.

A bankrupt, after the issuing of the commission and appointment of assignees, transferred French stock, his property, to his wife, who afterwards transferred it to her three sisters. Under a settlement, the wife had a power of appointment over a sum of money in the funds in England, which she exercised by will in favour of one of the sisters, and died in her husband's lifetime. The sister, who resided in France, took out administration with the will annexed. An injunction was granted to restrain the trustees, in whom this fund was vested, from transferring it, on the ground that if the French stock should be proved to have been the property of the bankrupt, the assignees would have a claim upon the assets of the wife. Stead v. Clay, 4 Russ. 550. HUSB. & WIFE; PR. INJUNC. AGAINST TRANSFER OF SECURITIES.

A man, whose wife was entitled to a sum of money after the death of A, becomes bankrupt and obtains his certificate. A dies, and soon afterwards his wife, to whom the husband takes out administration: Held that the husband had, by the marriage, an incipient right to the chose in action, which would become vested in the wife, if she survived A. This she did, and the husband had therefore a right at the time of his bankruptcy, and his assignees were entitled. Ripley v. Woods, 2 Sim. 165.

The husband of a woman having a vested interest in possession in a legacy, becomes bankrupt, a bill is filed by his assignees for payment of the legacy: the bankrupt soon after dies, and that fact is pleaded. Held that the widow was entitled to the legacy, the assignment of the husband being subject to the wife's right of survivorship. The fact of the bill having been filed before the husband's death, did not affect the question. Pierce v. Thornley, 2 Sim. 167. HUSB. & WIFE; CHOSE IN ACTION.

Husband and wife made a post-nuptial settlement of monies due to the wife, which, when paid, were invested in the names of trustees. The husband, having committed an act of bankruptcy prior to the settlement, was afterwards declared a bankrupt, and the bargain and sale was executed previously to the new bankrupt act, 6 G. 4. c. 16. coming into operation. Held, that the 73d section of that act (which, to enable the voluntary deed of a bankrupt to be set aside, requires, that at the time of his conveying he should have been insolvent) had no retrospect to this case; but that the law in force, at the time of the bargain and sale should regulate its operations; and, therefore, that the assignees were entitled to the fund. Wombwell v. Laver, 2 Sim. 360. STAT. C. OF PL. & EQUITY.

The wife of a bankrupt was entitled, under the will of her grandmother, to a moiety of certain public funds, on the death of her mother. Her husband became bankrupt, then the wife died, then the mother died. On a bill filed by the assignees of the bankrupt against the executrix of the grandmother, and the administrator of the wife of the bankrupt: Held, that the bankrupt having survived his wife, the assignees became beneficially entitled. Harper v. Ravenhill, 1 Tam. 144. HUSB. & WIFE; CHOSE IN ACTION.

The assignment of a policy of insurance upon a life does not take it out of the controul of the assignor if the insurers have no notice of the assignment. Williams v. Thorpe, 2 Sim. 257.

A assigned a leasehold messuage and furniture to B upon trust for his own use during life, and after his decease for the use of C, his wife for life, and after the death of the survivor for the use of D, their daughter. After the death of A, C married E, who took possession of the property and held it until his bankruptcy; some time previous to which, he had procured B to assign to him the house and furniture, by a deed containing false recitals, and which proved to be a breach of trust, E during his possession, had sold part of the furniture, and replaced it by purchasing new, and at the time of his bankruptcy about one moiety of the original furniture of A, remained in the house: Held, upon the petition of C and D, that the furniture was not in the disposition of the bankrupt E, and that his assignees must be restrained from selling the same, reserving the question, whether the right of the petitioners extended to the furniture purchased since the original settlement. Exp. Horwood, 1 Mont. & M. 169.

By the terms of an agreement between F and Co. and S and Co., their bankers, the latter were at liberty to discount so many of the indorsed bills of exchange remaining in their hands as should be necessary to meet such acceptances of F and Co. as were in the course of immediate payment at the house of S and Co. To cover some such, F and Co. remitted an indorsed bill of exchange; the acceptances were however dishonoured by S and Co., who soon afterwards stopped payment. They then procured the bill to be accepted, and made an entry in their books of having discounted it. A commission of bankrupt having issued against S and Co.: Held, that by the terms of the agreement, the permission to discount being limited to the purpose for which the bill was remitted, S and Co. ought not to have received or discounted the bill without executing the trust reposed in them; and it must, therefore, be delivered up to F and Co. by the assignees. Exp. Frere, 1 Mont. & M. 263.

A person engaged upon an annual salary, as traveller, is within the meaning of the statute 6 G. 4. c. 16. s. 48. which authorizes the commissioners to award to "any servant or clerk," six months' wages, if due to him from the bankrupt. Exp. Neal, 1 Mont. & M. 194.

A employed B and C as his stock-brokers, and, for the purpose of more convenient transfer, allowed certain stock belonging to him to stand in the name of B alone; B sold it without the consent of A, and paid the produce into the partnership funds of B and C, who afterwards became bankrupts. The commissioners refused to allow proof to be made against the separate estate of B, but the Vice Chancellor held, that A was entitled to prove against the joint or separate estate as he might think fit. Exp. Turner, 1 Mont. & M. 255.

A covenanted in 1772, by his marriage settlement, for the payment of 2000*l.* in case his wife or any issue of the marriage survived him. In 1803, a commission of bankrupt issued against A, under which dividends had been paid, and under a renewed commission, which issued in 1828, a final dividend was advertised: Held by the Ld. Ch. reversing the decision of the Vice Ch. that the 6 G. 4. c. 16. s. 56. is retrospective in its operation; and that, although the contingency upon which the debt attached, happened before the 1st of September, 1825, when the act came into operation, yet the 56th section applies to commissions then in existence, as well as to those which have issued subsequently; and therefore the 2000*l.* was proveable under the commission. Exp. Grundy, 1 Mont. & M. 293.

A surety under an annuity deed, redeeming the annuity subsequent to the legacy of the grantor of the annuity, is entitled to the benefit of the grantee's proof under the grantor's commission, and to proceed by action against the grantor, who had obtained his certificate, for the arrears of the annuity, subsequent to the commission. Watkins v. Flannagan, 3 Russ. 421. PRINC. & AGENT.

Where a party has presented a petition seeking relief and benefit under a commission, in respect of a particular transaction, he will be restrained from putting in issue the validity of the commission in an action brought against him by the assignees, in respect of the same transaction. Exp. Anderton, 1 Mont. & M. 177.

A proved a debt of 424*l.* against the separate estate of B, and died before B had obtained his certificate, having bequeathed to him 200*l.* A's executor afterwards received a dividend under the commission upon the whole sum proved. Ordered, that the proof of A be reduced to 224*l.* and that his executor refund the excess of dividend. Exp. Man, 1 Mont. & M. 210.

Under a commission a dividend was declared, and repeatedly advertised to be paid to the creditors. The payments were made by checks drawn upon the bankers duly appointed under the commission. Subsequently to the appointed day, the bankers, in whose hands a sum remained applicable to the payment of the dividends of creditors who had neglected to apply, stopped payment, and afterwards became bankrupt: Held, that an order of dividend is a separation from the bulk of the estate of the sum to be divided, and that the unpaid dividends were lying at the bankers, at the risk of the creditors entitled to divide it. Exp. Powell, 1 Mont. & M. 283. LACIES; INVESTMENT.

A certificate of conformity obtained under a commission of bankrupt in England, is a bar to an action by a creditor at Calcutta, for a debt contracted by the bankrupt there, before his bankruptcy, although the creditor had no notice of the commission in England, and was resident at Calcutta. Edwards v. Ronalds, 1 Knapp. 259. FOREIGN MATTERS, &c.

The right to refer a petition for impertinence is not waived, by the circumstance of the respondent having on a former occasion taken and succeeded in a formal objection. Exp. Cunningham, 1 Mont. & M. 193.

Under the statute 6 G. 4. c. 16. s. 14., a creditor who has proved to the amount of 20*l.*, if dissatisfied with the taxation of the commissioner, "may have the costs and bills settled by a master in chancery:" held, that a petition to the court for an order of reference is necessary, and that without it the masters have no authority to retax. Exp. Hickman, 1 Mont. & M. 282.

A petition to compel the payment of costs previously ordered, which stated at considerable length the original petition, and various additional allegations, and was supported by three affidavits in the same words, was held irrelevant. Exp. Hinton, 1 Mont. & M. 207.

A joint petition by three creditors for an order to prove three distinct debts, was held to be multifarious. The claims of the different persons cannot be united in one petition. Exp. Sayers, 1 Mont. & M. 280.

A petition presented by the bankrupt in person, and which he appears in person to support, is not within the order of the 12th August, 1809. In mre. Bruce, 4 Russ. 223. GENERAL ORDER, C. OF.

The court, sitting in bankruptcy, has no jurisdiction to order the personal representative of a deceased assignee to account for the personal estate of the bankrupt in his hands. Exp. Crane, 1 Mont. & M. 281. The Vice Chancellor thought, that an admission of assets on the part of the representative, would make no difference. EXORS; ADMINSN. OF ASSETS; ACCOUNT.

TESTER.

Personal estate not disposed of by a will drawn by the confidential counsel, (the sole executor), without informing the testator of the legal effect of the will; held to be a trust for the next of kin. Segrave v. Kirwan, 1 Beat. 157. ERROR. BENEFICIALLY INTERESTED; FRAUD. CONFESSION; PRINC. & AGENT.

Consent of counsel is to be given upon their own conception of the authenticity of their instructions, and, if given, is binding on the client. Mole v. Smith, 1 Jac. & W. 673. ACQUITTANCE

Two counsel appearing for the same party by different attorneys, petition to stand over to signify the return of the attorney by affidavit. Butt v. Smith v. Clapam, cited 1 Vic. & W. 673 (a). SOL. & CLIENT.

The probable absence of counsel is a sufficient ground for postponing the trial of an issue. Dean v. Lyle, 1 Jac. & W. 225. PR. POSTPONING TRIAL

A party is bound by the consent of his counsel given in court though they had no instructions to consent, if they were at the time apprised of all those facts of which the knowledge was essential to the proper exercise of their discretion but he will be relieved from an order made by such consent, if they give that consent in ignorance of material circumstances. How far a party will be affected by the omission of his solicitor, in not immediately objecting to an order made by consent of counsel in court, when neither the party nor his solicitor was present, and instructions to consent had not been given by either. Turner v. B., 4 Russ. 112. CONSENT SOL. & CLIENT

A husband having been found guilty for an assault upon his wife, the court recommended an accommodation the counsel of the parties thereupon signed a memorandum of an agreement that the husband would allow the wife 50*l.* a year, and the court according to the agreement, imposed merely a nominal fine. Upon a bill for a specific performance it was decided that the defendant must disprove that his counsel had authority to sign the agreement, and that in the absence of evidence to the contrary the court will presume that he had such authority and therefore decreed specific performance. Ilumth v. Bird, 11 Muir. 40. PRINC. & AGENT, SPEC. PERFORM.

Contract for sale of an existing, and a reversion in land not specifically performed without a production of the titles of the lessors. The objection not waived by a premature conditional approbation of the title, by the purchaser's counsel but the expense incurred in making out the title before this objection was taken, repaid. Devell v. Ed Bilton, 18 Ves. 505. SOL. PRINC. & WARR.

Approbation of counsel not a waiver of all reasonable objections to the title. Id 514. WARR.

A cross bill will be taken off the file, if filed with out a certificate by counsel. If the certificate of counsel has been subpoenaed, but the plaintiff has not filed the necessary affidavit, no subpoena to answer can issue. The same engrossment may be replied on the file, when the certificate of counsel has been subpoenaed. Fillett v. Millett, 1 Hog. 125. PR. CROSS BILL, PR. SIGN. OF COUNSEL.

BASTARD.

A testator devised his real and personal property to trustees, upon trust for his children of M D, whom he described by their respective names, together with every other child of the body of M D alive at my decease, or born within nine months afterwards, share and share alike. M D had two other children born after the date of the will, but before the date of a codicil to it, and these as well as the four previously born were all illegitimate. The children born after the date of the will are not entitled to any share of the property. Mortimer v. West, 3 Russ. 370. WILL, C. OF, WHO ENTITLED, POSTHUMOUS CHILDREN.

A testator devised certain property to his wife for life, and after her death to A L who then lived with him, for life, provided she so long continued single and unmarried. Then he devised part of his estate (except what he had given to his wife and A L) to trustees for thirty one years, upon certain trusts, and after the expiration of such term, to the children which he might have by A L, and living at his death, or born six months after, and in default of such children, to his nephew. The wife died, and the testator published his will after her death. Held, by the judges and house of lords, that the children of A L who had previously acquired the character of reputed children of the testator by A L, took an estate in the lands devised. William v. Adams, 12 Price, 478. WILL, C. OF, WHO ENTIT.

BILL OF EXCHANGE.

Seemle where the parties intended that a promissory note should be joint and several, but through ignorance, it is expressed to be joint only, a court of equity will relieve as well against the surety as the principal. But where a joint promissory note, signed "J & J. J P, surety" was given to a creditor of the firm of J & J, and J P died J and J E being both alive, one of whom afterwards became bankrupt, and the other in solvent. Held, that the promissory note could not be considered as several against J P, the surety. Rauston v. Parr, 3 Russ. 424. But reversed id. 539. MISPR.

A bequest of a cabinet with whatever it contains, "except money," will pass a promissory note payable to the testatrix, of a date anterior to the will, and which, at her death, was found in the cabinet. Reed v. Stenut, 4 Russ. 69. WILL, C. OF WHAT PASSIBLE

BOND.

A agreed to lend B 600*l.* navy stock, he sold the stock for 522*l.* which he paid to B, a bond was drawn to repay the sum of 522*l.* (being the produce of 600*l.* navy 5 per cents, or such other sum as would replace the stock) with lawful interest. B, on discharging, the bond refused to replace the stock, A received the money, and gave up the bond. Held, that after having received the money, he could not come to equity for relief. Barrham v. Munro, 1 Lam. 86.

In a court of equity a debt secured by bond may be carried beyond the penalty of the bond, if the debtor has, by injunction, restrained the creditor from proceeding at law, and there has been no misconduct on the part of the creditor. Grant v. Grant, 3 Russ. 598. INJUNCTION BOND PENALTY, EQUITABLE REMEDY ENTAILED BY ACT OF COURT.

A bond was given by the father of an illegitimate child to her intended husband, in contemplation of their intended marriage, in the penal sum of 2000*l.* and interest. It was recited in the condition, that, in consideration of the intended marriage, the obligor had proposed to the obligee to surrender certain copyhold property, then let on lease at a rent of 50*l.* per annum, to the uses thereinafter mentioned and if such surrender should not be so made within eighteen months after the marriage, the husband and wife, or the survivor, should receive, after the death of the obligor, 1000*l.*; and he was, in the meantime, to pay the husband and wife, 50*l.* a year for the interest thereof, until the said principal sum should be fully discharged, the condition was to the effect of the recital, and that if the estate should be so settled in substance, to the use of the husband and wife for life, remainder to the survivor, remainder to their issue, and if the 1000*l.* and interest should be paid, or if the obligor should make such surrender in his lifetime, and pay the arrears of interest up to the time of the surrender, the obligation to be void. The obligor died without making the surrender, having regularly paid the 50/ per annum, and by his will, he devised the copyhold estate to his daughter, the wife of the obligee. Held, that the bond was not forfeited by reason of the breach of the condition, that it, was merely an agreement to settle the land, and as such satisfied by the devise, although absolute, to the wife, and that it was an agreement of which equity would enforce the specific performance, the penalty being only meant to secure the settlement according to the condition. Time for the performance of the condition is not of the essence of the contract. The obligor held to have no power to elect either to pay the money, or settle the land. Reper v. Batholomew, 12 Price, 756.

CHARITY.

Act, 1 W. 4. c. 60 as to transfer of estates, &c extends to petitions in charity. 1 W. 4. c. 60 s. 21

New trustees, when to be appointed in cases of charities. 1 W. 4. c. 60. s. 22. TRUSTEES.

A Scotchman, by a will in the English form, made in England, gave residue of his personal estate to trustees of whom some, but not all, were resident in Scotland, upon trust to lay out the same in the purchase of lands or rents of inheritance sufficient for the intent expressed in an instrument in that date with his will, and by that instrument he directed the trustees of his will to pay the same annually to certain other trustees who at all times were to be persons residing within twenty miles of Montrose, to be by them applied to the relief of indigent ladies in Montrose, or within twenty miles of that town. Held that the bequest was void, under the mortmain act. Mt. Gen. v. Mill, 3 Russ. 328. LORDS: MACKENZIE, & SCOTLAND.

A schoolhouse, built prior to the 9 G. 2. c. 50. on waste of a minor, given by the lord for that purpose, and paid for by subscriptions, from the lord of the manor and other parishioners, and never subsequently used other than as a public schoolhouse, is so dedicated to charity and in mortmain, that a bequest for the purpose of repairing and enlarging it, and of providing a salary for a schoolmaster is a valid legacy. Deane v. Deane, 4 Russ. 342.

Deeds, trust a corporation to grant a new lease according to a covenant for perpetual renewal, though the whole of the reserved rent had been for many years applied uniformly to one charitable purpose. Goss v. The Aldermen of Grantham, 3 Russ. 261. CHARITIES.

Provision for giving instruction in writing and arithmetic, introduced into a scheme for the administration and management of a free grammar school. Mt. Gen. v. Habeshaw's Corp., 3 Russ. 330. S. P. Mt. Gen. v. Drue, id. 534. note.

When a testator directs a sum to be laid out in building a church, the bequest is void, the rule of construction being that a direction to build, includes a direction to purchase land for the purpose of building, unless the testator distinctly refers to land already in mortmain. Pitchard v. Ashburn, 3 Russ. 456. WILL, C. OR.

Upon an information to set aside a lease for ninety-nine years of a charity lands, the defendants the lessors set up a title adverse to the lease, upon the merits, it was held there was no ground for the defence, but the court was of opinion, that if the merits had been otherwise, the defendants were estopped, and could not dispute the title while they retained the possession. A husbandry lease of charity lands for ninety-nine years at an uniform rent, cannot be supported. Mt. Gen. v. Hotham, 3 Russ. 415.

When, in consequence of a mistaken construction of a doubtful instrument the rents of a charity estate have been for a series of years applied by a corporation to public purposes, not warranted by the nature of the charity the corporation will not be charged for such misapplication. The court will not compel a corporation to produce their title deeds, and will not direct an inquiry as to the party which the rents are applicable to, general corporate purposes, in order to ascertain whether the estate is any fund which can be applied in making good a breach of trust committed by them in the management of charity funds.

" Corp of Luton, 3 Russ. 395. CORPORA-TION. ACCOUNT.

In the reign of Hen. 7. lands were given to the corporation of Exeter and their successors, for the relief and relief of the poor citizens and inhabitants of Exeter, who are heavily burthened by fees farm rents of that city, and other impositions and tallages, the rents ought to be applied for the relief of the poor inhabitants of Exeter not receiving parish relief. It is no excuse administration of such a charity to apply the rents to the payment of fees farm rents due from the city regarding the fee farm, maintaining the prisoners, and other similar public purposes. Mt. Gen. v. Corp. of Luton, 3 Russ. 395.

Where a testator, who has given his personal estate to charitable uses, contracts to sell real estates, but the sale is not completed in his life time, his lien upon the estate for the amount of the purchase money is an interest in land within the statute of mortmain, and the purchase money will not pass by his will to a charity. Harrison v. Harrison, 1 Russ. & M. 71.

A. by deed in 1616, conveyed to certain persons certain premises, which were then let for 150/ per annum. By another deed of the same date, reciting a devise to relieve the mystery of mercers it was declared, that the grant of the premises, and the rent of 150/ was made as to the premises, and the rent reserved, and all future rents and profits that the grantees should receive and pay the monies arising therefrom to the warden of the mystery of mercers and their successors, who should dispose of the monies to the uses therein mentioned. The schedule annexed, enumerated various charitable donations, amounting to 149/ 11s. The estate subsequently produced 1000/ per annum, of which the company applied 521/ according to the trusts, and the remainder to their own use. Held by the court below, and upon appeal, that the company were trustees of the rents and augmented rents, and that the surplus was applicable to the same purposes as directed by the deed, without prejudice to the question, how far they were entitled to share in the other rents, with reference to their share of the original rent of 150/. The Mystery of Mercers v. Atk., 2 Bliq. N. S. 165.

Whenever a charitable object fails, from whatever cause, the crown has a right to interfere, and signify to what charitable purpose the fund shall be applied. Simon v. Bailor, 1 Fam. 14. S. P. Danger v. Drue, id. 32.

The court will not administer the funds of a foreign charity. Charitable funds in Ireland are administered by certain commissioners, appointed by the Irish act, 40 G. 3. c. 75. Collyer v. Burnett, 1 Taml. 79.

The mayor, bailiffs, and burgesses of Berwick-upon-Tweed, in consideration of 50*l.* left by will, for the erecting and maintaining of a house of correction there, by feoffment, dated 20th May, 1653, conveyed the moiety of a property there to the churchwardens and overseers for the erecting and maintaining of a house of correction within the borough, and for maintaining and ordering the poor therein for ever, and all other sturdy and idle persons coming and being therein, and for the getting them and every of them to work. By another feoffment of the same date, in consideration of 350*l.* owing by them to the poor, the mayor, &c. conveyed the other moiety and some other lands, for the like purposes: held, that this town never having at this time raised poor rates, under the act of Elizabeth; these were gifts in aid of the poor-rates. As to a part of the land, the rents of which had been duly applied down to the eighteenth century, when their application ceased for the use of the poor, and was wholly carried to the corporate chest. The court being satisfied upon the evidence, it was intended to be comprised in the second feoffment; the court declared it to be a fund of the charity, and that the rents should be accounted for from 1823, when the same were claimed for the use of the poor, and the rents thereof were also declared to be applicable in aid of the poor-rates. The costs of the relators to be taxed as between party and party, and paid by the mayor, bailiffs, and burgesses. The extra costs of the relators to come out of the fund. All. Gen. v. Corp. of Berwick-upon-Tweed, 1 Taml. 239.

COMPENSATION.

Compensation claimed by the person disappointed by the devise, refused by the court; but they ordered a competent part of the fund in court to be retained, and set apart to answer the eventual claim of the parties. Bartholomew v. Bartholomew, and Butler v. Bartholomew, 12 Price, 833.

CONDITION.

A testator gave to his daughter a legacy of 10,000*l.*, payable, and to be paid unto her in manner following, viz.: a sum of 5000*l.* upon her marriage under twenty-one with the consent of his trustees, and the sum of 5000*l.* within two years afterwards. The daughter married under twenty-one, without consent of the trustees, and her first husband dying, she married a second husband at the distance of thirty years from her first marriage. Quia, on such second marriage, she became entitled to the 10,000*l.* Chafford v. Beaumont, 4 Russ. 325. Will. C. or.

CONVEYANCE.

A merchant being advised, by certain persons in this country, to secure money, to adjust claims, and do some other business, money being wanted by the firm here, of which he was partner, their attorneys deposit the deeds with the Life Insurance Company, to secure 12000*l.*, and covenant that he shall execute the mortgage; this 12000*l.* was also secured by the bonds of sureties, in sums corresponding to the shares of the partners. The power of attorney was not a sufficient authority; but the merchant, on his return to this country, having written a letter to the Life Insurance Company, requesting the loan of 6000*l.* "to be secured on his Essex property, which you now hold, in addition to the 12000*l.* already advanced," and professing his readiness to execute the mortgage deed; held, that this was a confirmation of the security. Manning v. Bury, 1 Taml. 147.

CONTRIBUTION.

Testatrix contracted with A for the sale of an estate for 1000*l.* She, by will, directed the executor to complete it, and pay plaintiff the 1000*l.*, and devised other estates to A and her executor, who compromised, for 500*l.* each, a claim set up after her death, impeaching the title to her estates, the executor becoming, by the compromise, owner of the contracted estate, and A owner of the other estates. Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to the 1000*l.* from the executor without contributing to the payment of the 500*l.* for the compromise, which must fall on the residuary estate devised to the executor, the compromise being a device between A and the executor to avoid the consequence of A becoming owner of the contracted estate. Mark v. Willington, 1 Beat. 128.

COPYHOLD.

Admittance to copyhold by infants, femes covert, and lunatics, how to be taken. 1 W. 4. c. 65. s. 3.

A testator, being absolute owner of some copyholds of which he had been admitted tenant, and having the legal fee of other copyholds holden of the same manor to which he had not been admitted, but subject to trusts under which he was in equity only tenant for life, with remainder to his son in tail, remainder to himself in fee, surrendered, to the use of his will, all his copyholds holden of that manor, or which he was seised of, or entitled to, in possession, reversion, remainder, or expectancy: he was subsequently admitted tenant of all the copyholds which were subject to the trust, except the moiety of one tenement, and afterwards made a will, devising all his hereditaments, freehold and copyhold, in possession, reversion, remainder, or expectancy, to trustees and their heirs, upon trust for his son for life, with remainder over. Held, that the surrender and the will passed both the legal and beneficial interest in all the copyholds upon which the surrender operated, including those of which the deviser was in equity only tenant for life, and that the son was bound to elect whether he would give effect to this general devise, or would insist upon the benefit of the equitable estate tail, which he took under the old trusts to which some of the copyholds were subject. Abdy v. Gordon, 3 Russ. 278. Will. C. or, WHAT PASSES; HEIR AT LAW; ELECTION.

Where a customary tenement is freehold, and the lord, being only tenant for life of the manor, purchases the fee of the customary tenement, the seignory is suspended during the life of the lord, but revives at his death, and the customary tenement descends to his heir. Where the custom of a manor requires a bargain and sale, as well as a surrender and admittance, to pass the customary tenement, the freehold is in the tenant, and not in the lord. Bingham v. Woodgate, 1 Russ. & M. 32.

A lord of a customary manor for life only, purchased a tenement in the manor in fee, by conveyance and surrender; the mode of transmission of lands in the manor, was by conveyance and surrender. The lord died, leaving only a daughter. The manor, by the settlement under which he held it for life, was limited, in default of sons, in remainder to his brother, and the manor went over to the brother. Held, that the usual mode of passing estates being by common law conveyance, the freehold was in the tenant. Held, that on the death of the lord, the tenement descended to his daughter, his heiress at law. S. C. 1 Taml. 183.

COPYRIGHT.

A plaintiff who complains of a piracy of his work, has no remedy in equity, unless he establish a title to an injunction, and then the account will follow. Baily v. Taylor, 1 Russ. & M. 73. PR. INJUNC.; ACCOUNT.

CORPORATION.

When, in consequence of a mistaken construction of a doubtful instrument, the rents of a charity estate have been for a series of years applied by a corporation to public purposes not warranted by the nature of the charity, the corporation will not be charged for such misapplication. The court will not compel a corporation to produce their title deeds, and will not direct an inquiry as to the property which they possess applicable to general corporate purposes, in order to ascertain whether there is any fund which can be applied in making good a breach of trust committed by them in the management of charity funds. Att. Gen. v. Corp. of Exeter, 3 Russ. 395. ACCOUNT; CHARITY.

At a meeting held to appoint a successor to an office in a charity, after a candidate has been elected, and a minute of his election has been entered by the clerk, it is competent for the majority of the electors, before the meeting is dissolved, to reverse their vote, rescind the minute of election, and postpone the election to a subsequent day, provided, in so doing, they act bona fide, and with a view to the welfare of the charity. Att. Gen. v. Matthew, 3 Russ. 500.

COVENANTS.

As to frauds committed on covenants by wills. 1 W. 4. c. 47. s. 2.

A, being tenant for life of certain premises, with a power of limiting a jointure to his wife, a settlement is executed on his marriage, by which he devises the lands, of which he was tenant for life, to trustees for a term of ninety-nine years, on trust to secure the payment of a yearly sum to his wife, as pin-money, during the coverture, and he limits a jointure to her after his death; the same parties on the same day execute another instrument by which A covenants not to sell or incumber the lands comprised in the term, and it is declared that if he shall at any time sell or incumber them, or attempt so to do, the trustees of the term shall receive the rents and profits, and apply them as they may think fit for the maintenance and support of A, or his wife, or children, or issue; the covenant and this proviso are fraudulent, and void as against a subsequent incumbrancer of A's life estate. Phipps v. Ennismore, 4 Russ. 131. DEBTOR & CRED., FRAUD ON; ESTATE FOR LIFE.

The assignee of a lease for lives, which contained a covenant for renewal upon the dropping of any life, provided application were made within six months, having omitted, upon the death of one of the cetui que vie, to apply for a renewal within the six months, filed his bill praying relief, upon the ground that he did not within the six months know that the person was dead, or that the deceased person was one of the cetui que vie named in the lease. The bill was dismissed with costs, because the plaintiff might have known the facts if he had used reasonable diligence and acted with ordinary prudence. Harries v. Bryant, 4 Russ. 89. LACHES; PERF. CY PRES.

DEATH.

Where there was a decree with costs against three persons, and during the progress of the taxation one of them died, it was held the master was regular in proceeding with the taxation, and making his certificate, notwithstanding the two survivors objected that the suit was abated. Meredith v. Hughes, 3 Y. & J. 188. PR. COSTS, TAXATION.

DEBT.

In taking an account of the pecuniary transactions between an attorney and his client, the production of a bond entered into by the latter is not sufficient evidence of a debt to that amount, and actual payment must be proved. Leues v. Morgan, 3 Y. & J. 230. SOLICITOR & CLIENT; PR. EVID. WHAT SUFFICIENT.

DEBTOR AND CREDITOR.

See as to traders, 1 W. 4. c. 47.

A, being tenant for life of certain premises, with a power of limiting a jointure to his wife, a settlement, is executed on his marriage, by which he devises the lands of which he was tenant for life, to trustees, for a term of ninety-nine years, on trust to secure the payment of a yearly sum to his wife as pin-money, during the coverture, and he limits a jointure to her after his death, the same parties, on the same day, execute another instrument by which A covenants not to sell or incumber the lands comprised in the term, and it is declared that if he shall at any time sell or incumber them, or attempt so to do, the trustees of the term shall receive the rents and profits and apply them as they may think fit for the maintenance and support of A or his wife, or children or issue; the covenant and this proviso are fraudulent; and void as against a subsequent incumbrancer of A's life estate. Phipps v. Ennismore, 4 Russ. 131. COVENANT, VALIDITY OF; ESTATE FOR LIFE.

The plaintiff joined the testator as surety in a bond, which he paid after the death of the testator, taking an assignment of the bond; he was only a simple contract creditor of the testator. David, 4 Russ. 277. PRIN. & SURETY.

The rules of court do not require a creditor in all cases to institute suits against third persons, not connected with his demand, to oblige them to concur in making a good title. Fisher v. Barry, 1 Beat. 143.

An application by creditors whose debts, secured by a trust deed, had been established by decree of the court of chancery in England, to appoint a receiver over the trust estates in possession of defendant the debtor, refused; it being doubtful as the record was framed, whether at the hearing of the cause, the plaintiffs would be entitled to a decree. For the record to carry the English decree into execution, was so imperfectly framed, that the defendant, by joining issue on the original record, would be at liberty to impeach the securities so established, which he could not do on a bill filed solely and exclusively to aid the execution of the English decree. Houlditch v. Ld. Donegal, 1 Beat. 146. PR. DECREE; PR. RECEIVER.

DECISIONS OVERRULED, &c.

Willis v. Evans, 2 Ball & B. 225. is not to be followed. Fitzpatrick v. Power, 1 Hlg. 24.

DEEDS.

Defendant refusing to execute deed, court may do it for him. 1 W. 4. c. 36. rule 15.

An instrument executed by foreigners in a foreign country, must on a demurrer be construed according to the obvious imports of its terms, unless there are allegations in the bill that according to the law of the country, in which it was executed, the true construction of it is different. The King of Spain v. Machado, 4 Russ. 225. FOREIGN MATTERS.

In the policies effected by the Amicable Society, there is no exception as to death by the hands of justice; a person insuring his life in that office, afterwards suffered death for a criminal offence: the policy was not thereby avoided. *Bolland v. Cross remainders cannot be implied in a deed, and are not created as to accruing shares by a limitation of the entire estate, to an only surviving child and his issue, or by a gift over of the entire estate in remainder after the failure of all issue, or by an express creation of cross remainders, as to the original shares. Edwards v. Alliston, 4 Russ. 78. REMAINDERS, CROSS.

Where the answer of a defendant insists that a covenant was inserted without his knowledge or consent in a deed executed by him, and that the deed was not read over to him, and that the covenant is a fraud upon him, such deed cannot be proved in voce against him as an executor, but it may be so proved as against another defendant whose answer does not impeach the validity of the covenant. Barfield v. Kelly, 4 Russ. 355. EXECUTOR; EXHIBIT.

The court refused to set aside a voluntary deed, executed by an old man in his own favour of a person who had attended him as a surgeon, and had been occasionally assisted by him respecting the management of his property, and received the dividends of some stock for him, it appearing that there was no undue influence, and that the deed was explained to the grantor by his solicitor. Pratt v. Simmons, 4 Russ. 25.

DOWER.

An injunction to restrain a widow from proceeding at law to enforce her dower out of lands of inheritance, purchased from her husband during marriage, refused; the purchaser having "through negligence, neither insisted on having a fine, nor used common diligence to ascertain and preserve evidence that a jointure had been settled on her; but the widow having in her answer to the original bill, admitted that her husband, previous to marriage, had executed an instrument settling an annuity of 150*l.* on her, in case she survived him, together with a bond collateral, but of which she knew not the contents, restrained from proceeding to execute her writ of dower, till after she had answered the amended bill." She is not, as a condition connected with the order, entitled to a receiver, which would be an equitable execution; neither is she entitled to her costs at law. Power v. Sheil, 1 Beat. 48. VENDOR AND PURCH.

The claim to dower is extinct on the death of the widow White v. Panther, 1 Knapp, 276.

I conveys by bargain and sale the advowson of a rectory to J F, the incumbent being then to the knowledge of both parties at the point of death, but it did not appear that either party had any particular clerk in view for the next presentation or that the clerk afterwards presented knew any thing of the transaction. Held (reversing decisions of the court of great sessions of Chester in 1 of the court of K B) that this was not simony, so as to nullify the bishop's rejection of the clerk Lee v. R. of Chester 1 Dow, N S 416

INJUNCTION.

A party who had commenced proceedings by ejectment, before he got notice of the appointment of a receiver over the land, need not make any application to the court until he is ready to execute his habeas corpus Unwin v. Smeeth 1 Hor 99.

RELIEF.

A, being tenant for life of a leasehold for years, with remainder to B after devising one estate to B in fee bequeathed to him the leasehold in his life with remainder over and gave him all the residue of his real and personal property, B took possession of the residuary estate suffered a recovery of the lands devised to him in fee, acted as the absolute owner of the leasehold estate and outlived the term which the lease was granted, having previously acquired new interest in the devised premises. Held that B elected to take under the will, and was bound to give effect to the devise of the leasehold in favour of the remainder man Giddings v. Giddings, 3 Russ. 241. IRIST

WILL.

D having an estate for life in lands, assigned them, together with certain furniture to trustees for ninety nine years in trust to pay to the appellant 5000l a year, and to his creditors, parties to the assignment, five per cent. upon their respective debts the creditors generally executed the assignment, by which they covenanted not to sue the appellant, but P and B having obtained judgment, sued out a writ of habeas corpus under which the sheriff seized the goods of D, but refused to sell in consequence of a claim by the trustees, P and B then filed a creditor's bill in chancery in Ireland, stating these facts, and setting forth in part, the deed of trust and assignment as it appeared in the registry, but alleging that they were ignorant of the trusts, prayed that the defendants might set forth the deed, and that the creditors might have power to elect, to take the benefit of the deed, or otherwise that it might be declared fraudulent and void as to them, and that a receiver might be appointed. After the bill was filed, two of the trustees died and new ones were appointed. D and the surviving trustee put in their answers. In 1824, P and B filed a supplemental bill, setting forth the deed, and stating that under it, D was entitled to a rent charge, issuing out of the lands, and that they had sued out an elegit against D for 1000l directed to the sheriff of R who returned that D and his trustee was seized of a freehold rent, issuing out of lands in the county of R, one moiety of which he had delivered to P and B to hold till they had levied the damages maked upon the writ they claimed by this bill to be entitled either to a moiety of the lands, or of the rent charge, or to have satisfaction of their judgment out of the amount payable to D under the trusts of the deed. The lords held (confirming the judgment of the master of the rolls the lords commissioners and the lord chancellor) that certain orders appointing a receiver and restoring the surviving trustee from paying the annuities to D, were properly made also that the defects in the sheriff's return to the elegit were immaterial as no return was necessary, and that the serving out of the writ was sufficient ground for the equity and further that one elegit is sufficient although the rent be payable out of lands in three counties Id. Dill v. Haslett, 2 Bligh, N S 241 IRIST

The statute of 25 Geo. 2. c. 6. does not extend to wills of personal estate only, and a legacy to a person who is an attesting witness to such a will is not void. Emanuel v. Constable, 3 Russ. 436. WILL, C. OF, WHO MAY MAKE; PR. EVID. WITNESS, COMPETENCY; LEGACY; STAT. C. OF.

A gift of real estate to A for life, with remainder to her children as tenants in common; and in case A should die without leaving lawful issue, then with remainder over, is a gift to A for life, with remainder to her children for life, with remainder to A in tail. Parr v. Swindels, 4 Russ. 283. WILL, C. OF.

A gift of personal estate to the wife for life, with a direction that after her death one moiety thereof shall be at her entire disposal, either by will or otherwise, amounts only to an estate for life in the wife, with a power of appointment. The sale by the widow of a sum of three per cent. stock which constituted nearly the whole of the residue, and the investment of the proceeds in the purchase of long annuities in her own name, does not amount to an exercise of her power. Reith v. Seymour, 4 Russ. 262. WILL, C. OF, WHAT ESTATE; POWER TO APPOINT; POWER, EXECUTION OF.

A, being tenant for life of certain premises, with a power of limiting a jointure to his wife, a settlement is executed on his marriage by which he demises the lands of which he was tenant for life to trustees for a term of ninety-nine years, on trust to secure the payment of a yearly sum to his wife as pin money during the coverture, and he limits a jointure to her after his death. The same parties on the same day executed another instrument, by which A covenants not to sell or incumber the lands comprised in the term, and it is declared that if he shall at any time sell or incumber them, or attempt so to do, the trustees of the term shall receive the rents and profits, and apply them as they may think fit for the maintenance and support of A, or his wife or children, or issue: the covenant and this provision are fraudulent and void as against a subsequent incumbrancer of A's estate. *Phipps v. A tenant for life of a leasehold estate, which is held with a tenant-right of renewal, is not bound to renew. Capel v. West, 5 Russ. 500. LEASE, RENEWAL OF.

A testator gives an annuity and pecuniary legacies, and then devises the real, residue and remainder of his freehold, copyhold and leasehold estates to trustees for the use and benefit of his children. The annuity and pecuniary legacies given prior to the devise are well charged upon the freehold and copyhold, and leasehold estates. Cole v. Turner, 4 Russ. 376. WILL, C. OF.

A gift to A and B, "whom I appoint my executors, of all that I possess in any way belonging to me, by them freely to be possessed of or enjoyed, whatever nature or manner it may be," will pass the fee simple of real estate. Thomas v. Phelps, 4 Russ. 348. WILL, C. OF, WHAT ESTATE.

Devise of the residue of realty and personally to testator's two sons as joint tenants. They for twenty years after the father's death carried on the business of farmers with such estates, and kept the monies arising therefrom in one common stock, and with part of such monies purchased other estates in the name of one of them, but never in any manner entered into any agreement respecting such farming business, or ever accounted with each other: Held, that as to the leasehold and personal estate, which passed by the will of the father, the two sons remained joint tenants; but that as to all the after-purchased estates, they were tenants in common. Morris v. Barrett, 3 Y. & J. 384. ESTATE, JOINT TENANCY; WILL, C. OF, WHAT ESTATE.

Devise to trustees to sell for payment of testator's debts, and subject thereto to A for life, sans waste, remainder to his first and other sons in tail. The trustees sold timber on the estates, and applied the proceeds in payment of the debts: Held, that A was entitled to have the amount raised by sale of part of the estate, and paid to him. Davies v. Westcomb, 2 Sim. 425. TENANT FOR LIFE & REMAINDER-MAN.

Devise of lands, subject to 1000*l*. to be raised for the testator's daughters, to an annuity of 37*l*. 10*s*. to his widow, and to all such incumbrances as might happen to be thereon, does not exempt the personal estate from the payment of a mortgage thereon. Phillips v. Parker, 1 Tam. 136. WILL, C. OF.

EXECUTORS.

One of several executors receiving part of the personal estate, which he hands to his co-executor, who wastes the estate, still remains personally liable; but because he happens to be executor he is not liable for monies which he received for the purchase of a freehold estate of the testator, and which he received as the agent of another person empowered by the will to sell it, to whom he had paid over the amount; but is perfectly justified in so paying it over. Davies v. Spurling, 1 Tam. 199.

Devise to trustees and their heirs during the life of A in trust for A, and after his decease, to B in fee. The trustees recover, in his life-time, damages for breach of covenants in a lease granted by the testatrix, and still subsisting. A dies. The damages belong to her estate. *Noble v. Kirran, 1 Beat. 157. PRINC. & AGENT; BARRISTER; FRAUD, CONCEALMENT.

Debt to the crown, levied out of lands mortgaged by debtor subsequent to becoming indebted to the crown. Held, that all the estates of which he was seised whilst a crown officer, must, according to their rateable value be contributory with the mortgaged premises to pay the debt; excepting, however, lands purchased under degree of foreclosure against debtor, the purchaser not having notice of the crown debt, and having got in an old judgment against the ancestor of the debtor. The court would itself be the agent of a fraud, if it displaced a title given by itself, where the proceedings were in all respects conformable to the rules and established law of the court, the purchaser paying his money into court, and the conveyance made under its sanction, and every thing transacted, not only with regularity, but optima fide by the purchaser. But although all the estates are thus contributory, in case of the mortgagee, yet, as between the debtor's eldest son deriving under settlement, and purchasers from the son, the contributory fund must be so marshalled, as to make the son's remaining property first applicable, and if that be insufficient, the portion of the last purchaser must be applied, before that of any prior purchaser. *Hartly v. An executor who is employed by his co-executor as his agent, to sell an estate, which, under the will of the testator the co-executor alone had power to sell, and who hands over the price of the estate to his co-executor, is not accountable for the misapplication of that price by the executor, because he had no legal right to retain it, although by the will of the testator the price of the estate, when sold, was to be considered as part of his personal estate. Davies v. Spurling, 1 Russ. & M. 64.

A testatrix appointed A B to be her executor, to see that her will was put in force. The executor is a trustee for the next of kin. Craddon v. Fairand, 4 Russ. 87.

An agent named executor, is not entitled to charge commission on business done subsequently to the testator's death. Sheriff v. Aze, 4 Russ. 33. PRINC. & AGENT; ACCOUNT, ALLOWANCES.

By a marriage settlement, stock, the property of the husband, was settled in trust for the separate use of the wife during her life, and after her death, for the husband if he survived her, but if he died in her lifetime, then for such persons as he should by deed or will appoint, and in default of appointment, for his executors and administrators; the husband died in the wife's lifetime, having appointed an executrix, but without exercising his power: Held, that the executrix was not entitled to the stock beneficially, but that it was to be administered by her as part of his general personal estate. Collier v. Squire, 3 Russ. 467. WILL; C. OF.

The husband by his will bequeathed as follows:—"And unto my wife (who I make full and wholly executrix) I give my house, with all my household furniture, as also all my plate, linen, china, books, linen and every other article belonging to me both in and out of my house, and which may not be herein mentioned, she being subject to the payment of all my just debts, funeral and testamentary expences:" Held, that the beneficial interest in the settled stock did not pass to the wife. Collier v. Squire, 3 Russ. 467. WILL, C. OF.

An executor or trustee is not to be allowed, without question, the amount of bills of costs, which he has paid bond fide to the solicitor to the trust; and the master, without regularly taxing the bills, will moderate their amount. Johnson v. Telford, 3 Russ. 477. ACCOUNT, ALLOWANCE; PR. COSTS.

If an executor acting bond fide, and under a conviction, that the assets are amply sufficient for the payment of the testator's debts, permits specific legatees to retain or possess themselves of the articles bequeathed to them; he will be answerable for the value of those articles with interest at four per cent. if there should ultimately be a deficiency of assets, although the deficiency should be occasioned by subsequent events which he had no reason to anticipate, and the court will direct an account to be taken of the value of the property, so possessed by the legatees, and interest to be computed, unless it is certain that the assets will ultimately be sufficient to pay all the creditors. Spode v. Smith, 3 Russ. 511.

Where a bill was filed against the devisee of the lease, praying that the lease might be declared void, and the defendant insisted that if the lease was set aside, the plaintiffs ought to repay the monies expended by his deviser, in the improvement of the premises; the executor of the deviser who had assented to the devise of the lease, was not a necessary party to the suit. Malpas v. Ackland, 3 Russ. 273. PL. PARTIES.

A testator gave his property after the death of his wife to trustees on trust to pay the interest and profits to his two daughters J and E to their separate use, with a direction to pay to and apply for the benefit of A, the son of F, 200*l.* annually, when he attained the age of twenty-one years, and before that period, such part of the 200*l.* bequeathed to him as might be judged proper; he then gave his daughters power to dispose of the principal by will, to their children or grandchildren respectively, "except that proportion of principal given to E, and from which the interest is to arise to my grandson, namely, 4000*l.* which sum shall be my grandson's property;" and in case either of the daughters died without issue, he limited her share of the fund over to the other daughter, her children, or grandchildren. The executrix having in mistake made payment to A, in respect of his annuity, for two years before he attained twenty-one, was entitled to retain them out of the future payments of the annuity. An order authorizing her to retain them, and made upon petition after the decree had been passed and entered as regular. Livesey v. Livesey, 3 Russ. 287. S. C. in part reversed, id. 542. ### EXECUTORY DEVISE.

Devise to A and B and their heirs, to sell and dispose at their discretion of all the testator's right in S, belonging to the manor of M, and all his right in M, if an act should pass for inclosing the same within twenty years, to pay the proceeds to the several persons therein mentioned. An inclosure act passed within the twenty years, and various allotments were made in respect of the testator's estates: Held, that the devise was in the nature of an executory devise to take effect on the passing of the act. And the decree declared the parties claiming under the devise, to be entitled to one-fourth part of the monies produced from the sale of the allotments in S, in respect of the testator's messuage and lands in S, and to the whole of the monies produced by the sale of the allotments in respect

EXTENT.

Debt to the crown, levied out of lands mortgaged by debtor subsequent to becoming indebted to the crown: Held, that all the estates of which he was seized whilst a crown officer, must, according to their rateable value, be contributory with the mortgaged premises, to pay the debt; excepting, however, lands purchased under decree of foreclosure against debtor; the purchaser not having notice of the crown debt, and having got in an old judgment against the ancestor of the debtor: the court would itself be the agent of a fraud, if it displaced a title given by itself, where the proceedings were in all respects conformable to the rules and established law of the court: the purchaser paying his money into court, and the conveyance made under its sanction, and every thing transacted, not only with regularity, but optima fide by the purchaser. But although all the estates are thus contributory, in ease of the mortgages, yet, as between the debtor's eldest son deriving under settlement, and purchasers from the son, the contributory fund must be so marshalled, as to make the son's remaining property first applicable, and if that be insufficient, the portion of the last purchaser must be applied, before that of any prior purchaser. *Harley v. The twentieth order does not apply to the case of an answer filed before the first day of October term, 1828. Harris v. Harris, 2 Sim 431. PR BILL AMENDMENT OF

When bill is filed, a second amendment cannot take place, without a special motion, under the General Order, April 3 1828. Larson v. Dye. Barnes v. Wilson, 1 Russ & M 1. PR AMENDMENT

The sixteenth of the new orders extends to the production of books and papers under orders or decrees made before the date of the new orders. The master is to exercise the discretion given him by the sixteenth order, to determine what books or papers shall be produced though the order or decree under which he is proceeding requires the parties to produce on oath all books and papers. In re of Parry of Unionsant, 1 Russ & M 25. PR PRODUCTION OF DEEDS.

Under the eighteenth of the new orders publication may be enforced on affidavit, without notice. Brown v. 1 Russ & M 77. PR LVID ENLARGING PUBLICATION

Agreement may be made by guardian of infants, or committees of lunatic, with approbation of court, signified by the petition. 1 W. 4 c. 65 s. 26. LUNATIC AGREEMENT

Where prisoner is lunatic, &c., though no commission has issued, court may appoint a guardian to answer, and discharge defendant from his contempt. 1 W. 4. c. 36 rule 9. PR PRISONER.

HILIR AT LAW.

To an action of debt or covenant, heir may plead non per decept. 1 W. 4. c. 47 s. 7.

Action of debt or covenant may be against heir in respect of lands descended, though he sells estate before action brought. Id. s. 6. And it may be maintained against devisee where no heir. Id. s. 4. ACTION AT LAW, DEVISEE.

Where heir of surviving trustee of real estate not known, or refusing to act, a person appointed to convey. 1 W. 4. c. 60. s. 8. TRUSTEE.

Heir of vendor or nominal purchaser, where to be deemed trustee after decree for specific performance. 1 W. 4. c. 60. s. 16. Ward v. 1 Russ & M 25. TRUSTEE.

Where heiress to convey is feme covert, her husband deemed a trustee. 1 W. 4. c. 60. s. 19. Husb. & Wife, TRUSTEE.

A testator being absolute owner of some copyholds, of which he had been admitted tenant, and having the legal fee of other copyholds holden of the same manor, to which he had not been admitted, but subject to trusts under which he was, in equity only, tenant for life, with remainder to his son in tail, remainder to himself in fee, surrendered to the use of his will all his copyholds holden of that manor, or which he was seized of, or entitled to, in possession, reversion, remainder, or expectancy; he was subsequently admitted tenant of all the copyhold which were subject to the trust, except the moiety of one tenement, and afterwards made a will devising all his hereditaments, freehold and copyhold, in possession, reversion, remainder, or expectancy, to trustees and their heirs, upon trust for his son for life, with remainder over. Held that the surrender and the will passed both the legal and beneficial interest in all the copyholds upon which the surrender operated, including those of which the deviser was in equity only tenant for life, and that the son was bound to elect whether he would give effect to this general devise, or would insist upon the benefit of the equitable estate tail, which he took under the old trusts, to which some of the copyholds were subject. Abdy v. Gordon, 3 Russ. 278. WILL, C. OF, WHAT PASSES; COPYHOLD, SURRENDER OF.

The heir of the mortgagee to whom the legal estate in the mortgaged premises had descended, is a necessary party to a bill of foreclosure, filed by the executor of the mortgagee. Scott v. Nicoll, 3 Russ. 476. MORTGAGE, FORECLOSURE OF; PL. PARTY; MORTGAGOR. & MORTGEE.

The rule that the purchaser of a reversion must prove that he gave a full price, has so long been considered settled that it can be altered only by the court of appeal. Hinckman v. Smith, 3 Russ. 433. PR. EVID. ONUS PROBANDI.

If an heir at law, alleging insanity in a deviser, file his bill against the devisee, and he fail in the issue devisavit vel non, he shall pay the costs of the issue, but not the costs of the suit, unless he might have asserted his claim by ejectment, and then his suit will be deemed vexatious, and he will be ordered to pay the costs of it. Scarfe v. Scarfe, 4 Russ. 309. PR. COSTS; PR. ISSUE DEVISAVIT VEL NON.

Heir at law, on being served with subpoena sci. fa. may show cause by motion why decree in original cause should not be revived against him. Cox v. Macnamara, 1 Hog. 12. PR. MOTION.

Where a pecuniary legacy is given by a testator to his heir, the word is to be understood in its legal and ordinary sense, unless controuled by the context of the will, and the heir at law will take the legacy, and not the next of kin. In such a case it makes no difference that there are three co-heirs. Mounsey v. Blamires, 4 Russ. 384. WILL, C. OF, WHO TAKE; NEXT OF KIN.

A Scotch heritable bond, though containing a personal obligation, carries with it the personal right, as being jus nobilitatis, and descends to the heir, and will not pass by an English will. Jerningham v. Herbert, 1 Taml. 103. WILL, C. OF, WHAT PASSES.

An heir at law questioning the sanity of his ancestor, is entitled to an issue devisavit vel non, and if he fails, will not be compelled to pay costs, if the incumbances justified him in trying the issue; but costs will not be allowed him. Smith v. Dearmer, 3 Y. & J. 278. PR. COSTS; PR. ISSUE DEVISAVIT VEL NON.

In a creditor's suit for the sale of the real estate, where there was no personalty, and the executors refused to prove the will, it was decided that the heir at law must be a party to the administration, with the will annexed, obtained in order to show a deficiency of assets. Fordham v. Fordham, 1 Taml. 1. PL. PARTY.

If an estate be conveyed away in the lifetime of the party to whom it belonged, and he dies within forty days from the execution of the conveyance, his heir may recover it from the purchaser. Under such circumstances he cannot have the estate restored without refunding the price paid for it. But where the price has been paid to other persons, the purchaser cannot call upon the heir to repay it, but must recover it as he can from those to whom it has been given by the deceased. Marett v. Jones, 1 Knapp, 663. VEND. & PURCH.

The infant heir and only son of an intestate, was joined with his infant sisters in a bill against the widow and administratrix of the intestate for an account of his real and personal estate, and for a guardian and maintenance: held, that the interests in the real and personal estate were distinct from each other, and a demurrer for multifariousness allowed. *Dunn v. ## HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE.

A bequest of household furniture and other household effects, in a dwelling house and premises, comprises all the property placed there, either for ornament or for use, or consumption in it. Cole v. Fitzgerald, 3 Russ. 301. WILL, C. OF, WHAT PASSES.

HUSBAND AND WIFE.

By sect. 19, where feme covert is executrix, husband shall be deemed a trustee within 1 W. 4. c. 60. TRUSTEE; EXECUTOR.

Wife may be admitted to copyhold by attorney, 1 W. 4. c. 65. s. 3.; and may apply by petition on order to surrender and renew leases. Id. s. 12. Where she is trustee or mortgagee within 1 W. 4. c. 60. husband shall be deemed mortgagor or trustee, 1 W. 4. c. 60. s. 19.

Where heiress to convey is feme covert, her husband deemed a trustee. 1 W. 4. c. 60. s. 19. TRUSTEE; HEIR.

Deeds of separation, in 1817, between husband and wife, who were to continue to live together, on condition that if dispute arose again, a separation should take place. Disputes continuing, a deed in 1818 is executed, providing for an immediate separation, the husband continuing to live in the wife's house, dining and visiting with her, but without cohabitation as man and wife. The husband files a bill in the chancery of Ireland to set aside the deeds, chiefly on the ground that they were against public policy, and the deed of 1817 is declared null and void, but without prejudice to the claims of a child of the marriage, thereunder. As to the deed of 1818, the bill was retained for twelve months, with liberty for the parties to proceed at law, of which no advantage was taken. The husband appeals against this decree to the house of lords. The judgment below was affirmed, and an order made for enlarging the time for retaining the bill, so as to enable the parties still to proceed at law if they thought fit. Lord Eldon considered the question of public policy, and as such, resting on the same grounds both at law and in equity; but that the opinion of a court of law ought to be taken in the first instance, and the case be put into such a shape and form that it might be brought before the house by writ of error. That the deed of 1817 (against the decree declaring which void, there was no appeal) could not be for a moment sustained. That the circumstances under which the parties lived together, after the execution of the deed of 1818, put an end to it also; but still that the question ought to be tried at law. The lord chancellor was decidedly against both deeds. Marq. Westmeath v. March. Westmeath, 1 Dow, N. S. 519. PUBLIC POLICY.

The wife of a bankrupt was entitled under the will of his grandmother, to a moiety of certain public funds, on the death of her mother. Her husband became bankrupt; then the wife died; then the mother died.

On a bill filed by the assignees of the bankrupt against the executrix of the grandmother, and the administrator of the wife of the bankrupt held, that the bankrupt having survived his wife, the assignees became beneficially entitled. Haiper v. Ratenhill, 1 Lam. 144. BANKRUPT. ASSIGNING WHAT PASSES.

A bankrupt, after the issuing of the commission and appointment of the assignees, transferred French stock, his property, to his wife, who afterwards transferred it to her three sisters. Under a settlement, the wife had a power of appointment over a sum of money in the funds in England, which she exercised by will in favour of one of the sisters, and died in her husband's lifetime. The sister, who resided in France, took out administration with the will annexed. An injunction was granted to restrain the trustees, in whom this fund was vested, from transferring it, on the ground, that if the French stock should be proved to have been the property of the bankrupt, the assignees would have a claim upon the assets of the wife. Stead v. Clay, 4 Russ. 550.

A man whose wife was entitled to a sum of money after the death of A, becomes bankrupt and obtains his certificate. A, dies, and soon afterwards his wife, to whom the husband takes out administration, is held, that the husband had, by the marriage, the beneficial right to the chose in action which had become vested in the wife, if she died before he did, and the husband had therefore the right at the time of his bankruptcy and his assignees were entitled. Ryle v. H. ds, 2 Sim. 165.

The husband of a woman having a vested interest in possession in a legacy, becomes bankrupt and a bill is filed by his assignees for payment of the legacy. The bankrupt soon after dies, and that fact is pleaded and held, that the widow was entitled to the legacy, the assignment of the husband being subject to the wife's right of survivorship. The fact of the bill having been filed before the husband's death, did not affect the question. Purice v. Thonell, 2 Sim. 167. BANKRUPT. ASSIGNMENT.

A feme covert, described as such in the will of the testator, may, during the coverture, execute by deed a power of disposition given her by the will over real and personal estate. Douglas v. Limpron, 4 Russ. 334. POWER, EXECUTION OF.

The husband's costs of making a settlement on a female ward, who had been married without consent, were allowed, he having no property, and there being no circumstances of aggravated misconduct on his part. Anon 4 Russ. 473. PR. LEND IN COURT, MARRIAGE OF WARD OF COURT, PR. COSTS, WHAT FUND.

When motion is made on behalf of married woman, and no person is named in notice as her next friend, her solicitor will be responsible for costs if awarded against her. Coz v. M. Namara, 1 Hog. 78. PR. COSTS, SOLICITOR AND CLIENT, PR. PROCHAIN AMT.

Where a feme covert having separate property, joins in a security for money advanced to her husband the court acts upon it, not as in respect to charge her separate property, but as an equitable appointment it under the settlement, to be satisfied from the rents and profits of that property, and not by sale or mortgage. The death of the husband after the filing of the bill, and before the hearing, makes no difference. If the feme covert insist upon the exercise of undue influence by the husband she must prove it, and it is not for the plaintiff to prove a negative. Fild v. Selt 4 Russ. 112. PR. SETTLEMENT AND REVIVAL, ONUS PROBANDI, UNDER INFLUENCE.

Where the husband incurs a liability under 1 G. 4 c. 76 s. 23 the court has no discretion to mitigate the penalty, but is bound to settle and secure all property present and future of the wife, for the benefit of herself or the issue of the marriage. Att. Gen. v. Mullay, 4 Russ. 329. STAT. OF SETTLEMENT.

A feme covert tenant in tail in remainder of money to be laid out in land by agreement with the tenant for life, and on a private examination under the 7 G. 4. c. 45 consented to the payment of a proportion of the money to her husband, and the order was made accordingly. In re Sillit, 3 Russ. 369. MONEY TO BE Laid OUT IN LAND, STAT., C. 45.

INDICTMENT.

A defendant's answer will be taken off the file for the purposes of an indictment for perjury, when the preparatory steps have been taken, and the time of trial is near at hand. Curtis v. —, 1 Hog. 132. PR. TAKING PLEADINGS OFF FILE.

An affidavit will be taken off the file for the purposes of an indictment for perjury when the preparatory steps have been taken, and the time of trial is near at hand. The affidavit to support the motion should not enter into the merits of the indictment. Swift v. Quinlan, 1 Hog. 132. PR. TAKING PLEADINGS OFF THE FILE.

T B, entitled under one will to an estate tail, expectant on the death of two elder brothers without issue or recovery suffered, and entitled under another will to an estate for life, with a remote remainder in tail, proposes to covenant that on his marriage with L C a ward of court, in case either of the limitations in his favour in the wills shall take effect, he will charge the estate to which he shall become entitled with an addition of 8000*l.* to the fortune of the younger children. The master to whom the proposal is submitted settles the covenant in the marriage articles with words of inheritance not occurring in the proposal, viz.: "that in case he shall become seised of, or entitled to all or any of the manors, hereditaments, or estates devised by such wills, or by either of them, or of any other lands, &c., for any estate of inheritance in possession or otherwise, capable of being settled or bound in law or equity," he will charge the estate as aforesaid; and this is approved by the court. T B becomes entitled in possession to the life estate only, and on claim by a younger child that the 8000*l.* should be declared to be a charge on the life estate, and reference to a master, he reports that the limitations under which T B covenanted to charge the estates with the 8000*l.* never took place. The report confirmed by decretal order of the court below, and the judgment affirmed by the lords. Willis v. Robertson, 1 Dow, N. S. 469.

The testamentary guardian of an infant sold part of his estates for the redemption of the land tax: the vendee paid the purchase money to the agent of the vendor, who was also agent for the vendee, and the conveyance was executed; but the agent did not pay the money into the bank, as required by the act 38 G. 3. c. 60. The purchaser entered and continued in possession for many years, paying the land-tax. Nearly twenty years after, attaining his age, the heir-at-law brought an ejectment against the purchaser, to restrain which, and obtain a confirmation of the contract, the purchaser filed his bill. The court dismissed the bill without costs. Hicks v. Morant, 3 Y. & J. 200. LAND TAX.

A contracted to sell a freehold estate to B, and by will gave the purchase money to trustees for certain purposes; and if the contract should not be completed, he devised the estate to the trustees for the same purpose. A died, leaving a son, who died leaving an only daughter, an infant. Held, that she was not a trustee within the stat. 6 G. 4. c. 74. In mrs. Moody, 1 Taml. 4. STAT. C. OF.

The court will not usually make a reference with respect to the maintenance of an infant retrospectively.

Simon v. Barber, 1 Taml. 22. PR. REFERENCE TO MASTER.

The fortune of an infant ward, a married woman, taken out of court under an order obtained on an affidavit that she was adult: ordered, on summary application by petition, to be replaced by the person who made the affidavit, and also by the solicitor concerned in the application, who had in his possession proceedings which showed the infancy, and might have guarded the court against the surprise. Barrington v. Grogan, 1 Beat. 199.

INVESTMENT.

Money belonging to infant mortgagee, to be paid into bank. 1 W. 4. c. 60. s. 14. INFANT.

Under a commission, a dividend was declared, and repeatedly advertised to be paid to the creditors; the payments were made by checks, drawn upon the bankers duly appointed under the commission. Subsequently to the appointed day, the bankers, in whose hands a sum remained applicable to the payment of the dividends of creditors who had neglected to apply, stopped payment, and afterwards became bankrupt: held, that an order of dividend is a separation from the bulk of the estate of the sum to be divided, and that the unpaid dividends were lying at the bankers at the risk of the creditors entitled to divide it. Exp. Powell, 1 Mont. & M. 283. LACHES; DIVIDENDS.

A testator gave the residue of his personal estate to trustees, directing them to convert it into money, and invest the proceeds in government or real security, of which they were to stand possessed, upon trust for A during her life, and after her death for B. The trustees permitted a share which the testator had in an Indian loan, bearing interest at 10*l.* per cent. to remain for several years on that security, during which time they paid to A the interest at 10*l.* per cent. which it yielded annually, and the loan being afterwards paid off, they invested the money in the 3 per cents. at a time when the funds were so low, that the amount of stock purchased was considerably greater than if the conversion had taken place at the end of a year from the testator's death: held, that the tenant for life was not entitled to the actual interest which the money yielded, while it remained on the Indian security, but only to the dividends of so much 3 per cent. stock as would have been purchased with it at the end of a year from the testator's death. That the trustees ought to be charged with the whole of the stock actually purchased, and all the sums actually received in respect of the Indian rate of interest, and that they ought to be allowed, in their discharge as payments to the tenant for life, not the sums which they had, in fact, paid her, but only a sum equal to what she would have received for dividends, if the money had been transferred from the Indian security, and invested in the 5 per cent. stock, at the end of a year from the testator's death. Dimes v. Scott, 4 Russ. 195. WILL, C. OF; TRUSTEES, LIABILITY OF; INTEREST, RATE OF.

A receiver, appointed by the court, is not answerable for a loss of monies by the failure of a banker, if they are not mixed with his own monies, and are bona fide deposited for security only, under circumstances in which they could not have been properly paid into court. Salway v. Salway, 4 Russ. 60. PR. RECEIVER, LIABILITY OF.

The money belonging to a minor will not be allowed to remain out at interest on the security of a judgment. Knox v. Knox, 1 Hog. 117.

Trustees having contracted to purchase land, sell out stock, and deposit the produce at a banker's.

when the purchase seems to be near completion; they are not liable to make good the money if the bankers fail. France v. Woods, 1 Tam. 172. TRUSTEES, LIABILITY.

INSOLVENTS.

Costs of contempt are within provision of insolvent acts, 1 W. 4. c. 36. rule 1. PR. CONTEMPT; PR. COSTS.

An application by the plaintiff at the hearing, to dismiss the bill without costs, the defendant having become insolvent after the bill filed, refused. As the plaintiff, when he discovered the insolvency, instead of applying to dismiss the bill without costs, filed a supplemental bill, still seeking relief against the defendant personally, thereby adopting and continuing the original suit. Such an application at the hearing was quite irregular: it ought to have been the subject of special application on notice. Draught v. Robinson, 1 Beat. 87. PR. BILL; DISMISSAL.

Where, on marriage, interest of a sum secured by mortgage is settled on husband for life, remainder to wife for life, and he is afterwards discharged as an insolvent, it is competent for him, notwithstanding his insolvency, to file a bill with his wife to foreclose mortgage, in order to have the trust and secured. Horan v. Wooloughan, 1 Beat. 1. PR. PARTIES.

Where, after bill of foreclosure, plaintiff became insolvent, the costs of assignee afterwards made defendant, must be paid by plaintiff; he cannot throw costs on mortgagee. Id. ib.

The equity of redemption of a leasehold for years, with a covenant for perpetual renewal, is not an interest in real estate within the meaning of the 53 G. 3. c. 102. s. 19. The trustee of an insolvent is not bound under that section to dispose of such an equity of redemption by public auction. In a suit by the assignee of an insolvent, to impeach a sale which a former assignee had made of an equity of redemption; the insolvent is not rendered a competent witness for the plaintiff, by releasing his interest in the residue of his estate. Waldron v. Howell, 3 Russ. 376. STAT., C. OF.

INSURANCE.

The agent of the Albion Insurance Company had an office in Glasgow, at which J P and others, the owners of a steam vessel, effected an insurance, receiving from the company's agent a contract, importing generally that a policy, corresponding with the memorandum, would be prepared at the office in London, and delivered to the assured, or their order, "on the third Monday in the ensuing month, or on any subsequent day." The policy that was sent down, and which was never shewn to or demanded by the assured, contained a clause that it "should be suspended, and remain out of force, during the time the steam-boat might be at sea." At the end of the year the policy was renewed through the agent at Glasgow, who delivered to the assured a memorandum, signed by the company's secretary in London, signifying that the above policy had been renewed, but no notice of the exception was ever communicated to the assured. The vessel was shortly afterwards destroyed by fire on her passage from Liverpool to Dublin: held, that the memorandum was the contract of the parties, which had not been fulfilled by the company, who were therefore liable for damages; that the act 6 G. 1. c. 18., repealed, see 6 Geo. 4. c. 91. so far as it declares all policies executed by six persons, other than the London Insurance and Royal Exchange Assurances, to be absolutely void, does not extend to Scotland: that a contract so entered into was a Scotch, and not an English contract. Pattison v. Mills, 2 Bligh, N. S. 519.; SCOTLAND; AGREEMENT, SPEC. PER.

In the policies effected by the Amicable Society, there is no exception as to death by the hands of justice; a person insuring his life in that office, afterwards suffered death for a criminal offence, the policy was not thereby avoided. Bolland v. Disney, 3 Russ. 351. DEEDS, C. OF; FORTUITURE; AT-TAINER.

INTEREST, PECUNIARY.

A claim made in Demerara, for a sum of money. Holland currency held to mean the currency of the colony, which is generally called Holland currency. Hugenholz v. Watson, 1 Knapp, 170.

No larger sum can be recovered by way of interest on a mortgage in one of our colonies where the Dutch law is retained (Demerara) than a sum equal to the principal. Shand v. Brereton, 1 Knapp, 162.

A purchaser of a reversion must pay interest on his purchase-money from the time of his purchase. Tre-Jasie v. Lt. Clinton, 2 Sim. 359. VEND. & PURCH.

Interest is not allowed on a judgment, except under special circumstances, and where there is no imputation on the creditor; where, therefore, the propriety of the conduct of the latter throughout the transactions between the parties was questionable: interest was refused. Leaves v. Morgan, 3 Y. & J. 394. JUDGM.

In a court of equity, a debt secured by bond may be carried beyond the penalty of the bond, if the debtor has by injunction restrained the creditor from proceeding at law; and there has been no misconduct on the part of the creditor. Grant v. Grant, 3 Russ. 698. BOND, PENALTY; EQUITABLE RELIEF PREVENTED BY ACT OF COURT.

A purchaser who has not been in possession, is bound to pay interest on the purchase money, and take the rents and profits only from the time when a good title was first shown; and not from the time fixed by the agreement for the completion of the purchase. Jones v. Mudd, 4 Russ. 118. VEND. & PURCH.

A contract of purchase contained a stipulation, that if, by reason of any unforeseen or unavoidable obstacles, the conveyance could not be perfected for execution before the day fixed for the completion of the purchase, the purchaser should, from that day, pay interest at 5 per cent. on his purchase money, and be entitled to the rents and profits of the premises; the vendor did not show a good title till long after the specified day: held, that he was not entitled to interest, except from the time when a good title was first shown. Monk v. Huskisson, 4 Russ. 121. (n.) Id.

A testator gave the residue of his personal estate to trustees, directing them to convert it into money, and invest the proceeds in government or real security, of which they were to stand possessed, upon trust for A, during her life, and after her death for B. The trustees permitted a share, which the testator had in an Indian loan, bearing interest at 101. per cent., to remain for several years before the death of A, during which time they paid to A the interest at 101. per cent., which it yielded annually; B, however, being afterwards paid off, they invested the money in the 3 per cents. at a time when the funds were so low, that the amount of stock purchased was considerably greater than if the conversion had taken place at the end of a year from the testator's death: held, that the tenant for life was not entitled to the actual interest which the money yielded, while it remained on the Indian security; but only to the dividends of so much 3 per cent. stock as would have been purchased with it, at the end of a year from the testator's death. That the trustees ought to be charged with the whole of the stock actually purchased, and all the sums actually received in respect of the Indian rate of interest, and that they ought to be allowed in their discharge as payments to the tenant for life, not the sums which they had in fact paid her, but only a sum equal to what she would have received for dividends if the money had been transferred from the Indian security, and invested in the 5 per cent. stock at the end of a year from the testator's death. *Dimes v. ### INTERESTS IN PROPERTY.

A testator gave his property, after the death of his wife, to trustees, on trust to pay the interests and profits to his two daughters, J. and E., to their separate use, with a direction to pay to, and apply for the benefit of A, the son of E, 200*l.* annually, when he attained the age of twenty-one years; and before that period, such part of the 200*l.* bequeathed to him as might be judged proper; he then gave his daughters power to dispose of the principal by will to their children or grand-children respectively, "except that proportion of the principal given to E, and from which the interest is to arise to my grand-son on 4000*l.*, which sum shall be my grandson's property;" and in case either of the daughters died without issue, he limited her share of the fund over to the other daughter, her children, or grand-children. A, having attained twenty-one, and died in his mother's lifetime, held, that the annuities ceased upon his death, and that the 4000*l.* never vested in him. Livesey v. Lirsey, 3 Russ. 287. S. C. in part reversed, id. 542. WILL., C. OF; ANNUITY.

A testator gave to his wife an annuity, and 100*l.* a year for each of his three children during their minority, and from and after the decease or marriage of his wife, then the 300*l.* to be divided amongst his said children; and subject thereto he bequeathed his leasehold and personalty unto three children, and the survivors and survivor of them. One died under twenty-one: held, that he took a vested interest at the death of the testator. Buss v. Russell, 1 Taml. 18. WILL., C. OF, WHAT INTEREST.

JUDGMENT.

Judgment not docketed, having no preference against heirs, executors, or administrators. London v. Ferguson, 3 Russ. 349. PRIORITY OF SECURITY.

Interest is not allowed on a judgment, except under special circumstances, and where there is no imputation on the creditor; where, therefore, the propriety of the conduct of the latter throughout the transactions between the parties was questionable, interest was refused. Lewis v. Morgan, 3 Y. & J. 394. INTEREST, WHEN.

The Irish courts may be ancillary to the court of chancery in England, in carrying into execution its decree; but it must be so on a bill properly constructed, so as to shew that the justice of the decree in the other jurisdiction, has been eluded by the defendants. A bill may be so framed, as to require that this court should appoint a receiver over estates, which the English decree charged; but the order must be founded on that decree, and very specially framed, and the appointment must direct the receiver to account before the master in England, the original jurisdiction. Houlditch v. Ld. Donagall, 1 Beat. 151.

Baker*, 1 Mont. & M. 279. VICE CHANCELLOR; REHEARING.

The court will not allow a person to bring an action at law for damage for an improper arrest under an attachment, but will refer it to the master to inquire what compensation he ought to receive. Batchelor v. Blake, 1 Hog. 98. PR. INJURY.

If court has once acquired jurisdiction over party in cause, he may be served effectually with any order, &c. in cause, in any part of the world. Anon. 1 Hog. 1.

The court will protect the property of a supposed lunatic, in the interval between the presenting of a petition for a commission of lunacy and the finding of the jury; but it will at the same time take care, that ample means for resisting the commission be furnished to those who act in the inquiry on the alleged lunatic's behalf. In re. Holmes, 4 Russ. 186. LUNATIC'S ESTATE.

Where a tribunal determines in a matter not within its jurisdiction, the decision is a nullity. Att. Gen. v. Hotham, 3 Russ. 415.

LACHES.

Under a commission a dividend was declared, and repeatedly advertised to be paid to the creditors. The payments were made by checks drawn upon the bankers duly appointed under the commission. Subsequently to the appointed day, the bankers, in whose hands a sum remained applicable to the payment of the dividends of creditors who had neglected to apply, stopped payment, and afterwards became bankrupt. Held, that an order of dividend is a separation from the bulk of the estate of the sum to be divided, and that the unpaid dividends were lying at the bankers at the risk of the creditors entitled to divide. Exp. Powell, 1 Mont. & M. 283. INDEMNITY; DIVIDEND.

The assignee of a lease for lives, which contained a covenant for renewal upon the dropping of any life, provided application were made within six months, having omitted upon the death of one of the cestuique vie to apply for a renewal within the six months, filed his bill praying for relief upon the ground, that he did not within the six months know that the person was dead, or that the deceased person was one of the cestuique vie named in the lease. The bill was dismissed with costs, because the plaintiff might have known the facts if he had used reasonable diligence, and acted with ordinary prudence. Harries v. Bryant, 4 Russ. 89. COVNT., BREACH OF, RELIEF AGAINST; PERF. CY PRES.

LAND TAX.

Testamentary guardian of infant sold part of his estates for redemption of land-tax. Vendee paid purchase-money to agent of vendor, who was also agent for vendee, and conveyance was executed; but agent did not pay money into bank as required by 38 G. 3. c. 60. Purchaser entered and continued in possession for many years paying land-tax. Nearly twenty years after, attaining his age, heir at law brought ejectment against purchaser. Bill by purchaser to restrain which and obtain confirmation of contract, was dismissed without costs. Hicks v. Morant, 3 Y. & J. 286. INFANT.

A person who had entered into an agreement for the purchase of land, which was formerly part of the glebe of a rectory, and had been before sold for the redemption of the land-tax, is not bound to complete his purchase, where it appears that upon the prior sale for the redemption of the land-tax, the rector was himself the actual purchaser in the name of his curate. Grover v. Hugell, 3 Russ. 428. VEND. & PURCH.; AGREEMENT, SPEC. PERF.

LANDLORD AND TENANT.

Irish tenantry act, 11 Anne 3. unaltered by 1 W. 4. c. 65. See i. s. 22. LEASE, RENEWAL OF.

Equity does not connect the tenant's right under the statute, to redeem premises evicted for non-payment of rent, with any extrinsic matter, so as to make the tenant pay compensation, as a condition connected with his relief; therefore on a bill by a tenant to redeem premises evicted for non-payment of rent, relief granted, although he had committed breaches of covenant. Swanton v. Biggs, 1 Beat. 170.

A tenant will not be allowed to break up ancient meadow or pasture, though the land is mossy and requires tillage. Martin v. Coggan, 1 Hlog. 120. WASTE.

There cannot be a reletting of lands by the master, until the person declared tenant at the original letting is attached for not taking out his lease, and the letting set aside. Cole v. Moncks, and Moncks v. Moncks, 1 Hlog. 128. PR. REVOG. BEFORE MASTER.

This court will not make any abatement of rent of tenant of minor who holds for lives renewable for ever. Hamilton v. Hamilton, 1 Hlog. 71.

If receiver or those concerned for minor, offer any reasonable opposition to tenant who applies for an abatement of rent, they will be compelled to answer petition of tenant, and court will judge of abatement of rent. Anon. 1 Hlog. 68.

By an indenture a farm was demised at a yearly rent, with a covenant by the tenant, that if, during the last three years of the term, he should sow more than seventy acres of clover in one year, he should pay an additional rent of 10*l.* a year for every acre above seventy for the remainder of the term: Held, that the additional rent was in the nature of stipulated damages, entitling the plaintiff to a discovery in aid of an action at law; and a plea that the discovery would subject the defendant to penalties, was overruled. Jones v. Green, 3 Y. & J. 298. PR. DISCOVERY TENDING TO CRIMINATE; STIPULATED DAMAGES.

In a lease the lessor covenanted, at any time, upon request of the lessee, to cause any quantity of square oak wood to be set out within some part of the lands, that should be wanted for the benefit of the lessee, and to be used in the buildings intended to be made on the demised premises. And the lessee covenanted to pay and allow to the lessor interest for the total amount or value thereof, after the rate of 4*l.* for the value of every 100*l.* and so in proportion for a greater or less quantity. On a bill by the assignees of the lease, for an account of what was due to the defendant in respect of the breach of that covenant, and for an injunction to restrain proceedings in ejectment for the recovery of the premises, on the ground of a breach of covenant; a general demurrer for want of equity was overruled. Pearson v. Haghton, 3 Y. & J. 413.

A mortgagee has no right to the rents of the mortgaged premises which have been paid into court by a receiver appointed in a suit for establishing the will of the mortgagor, notwithstanding that after the appointment of a receiver he gave notice to the tenants to pay the rents to him. He ought to have followed up that notice by moving to discharge the receiver. Thomas v. Brigstocke, 4 Russ. 65. PR. RECEIVER; LIEN ON FUND IN COURT; MORTGAGOR & MORTGEE.

Upon an information to set aside a lease for ninety-nine years of charity lands, the defendants the lessees set up a title adverse to the lease; upon the merits it was held that there was no ground for the defence; but the court was of opinion that if the merits had been otherwise, the defendants were estopped and could not dispute the title, while they retained the possession. Att. Gen. v. Iotham, 3 Russ. 415.

Payments agreed to be made by the actual occupier of the soil, under a licence to dig earth and make bricks, are in the nature of rent; and as such, a mortgagee of the premises is entitled, after notice, to all rent in arrear at the time of such notice, as well as all that may afterwards become due. Exp. Hankey, 1 Mont. & M. 247. MORTGAGE & MORTGEE.

LEASE.

How such fines to be raised and reimbursed. Id. ss. 8, 14.

Refusal by such persons to pay, no forfeiture of estate. Id. s. 9.

Irish tenancy act, 11 Anne c. 3, unaltered by 1 W. 4. c. 65. See id. s. 22. IRISH TENANCY ACT.

T H by his will devised certain freehold and leasehold property to a trustee upon trust to permit his son T E H to receive the rents during his life, subject to the payment of rents and performance of the covenants reserved and contained by and in the present and future leases whereby the leasehold premises were and should be held, and also all taxes, fines and expenses attending the same; remainder upon trust for the sons of T E H in fee, as tenants in common. The tenant for life became bankrupt, and afterwards died. His assignees received a sum of 2000*l.* subsequent to the bankruptcy for rents. Held, that these rents were liable to the fines for renewal. Hutkes v. Burrow, 1 Tamil. 264.

A tenant for life of a leasehold estate, which is held with a tenant-right of renewal, is not bound to renew. Capel v. Wood, 4 Russ. 500. ESTATE; TENANCY FOR LIFE.

Every presumption is to be made to support a right of renewal, where from leases for twenty-one years at a small rent and fine, certain of the tithes of a parish had been regularly granted by the respective bishops of Ely, who were impropriate rectors of the parish, to the vicars for the time being. Att. Gen. v. Bp. Ely, 4 Russ. 102.

If a tenant for life of an under-lease for eighteen years, granted by a person who himself holds the premises so under-let along with other property under a lease for twenty-one years, purchases the interest of his immediate lessor, and obtains from the superior lessor a renewal of the lease thus purchased; the renewed lease is subject, so far as regards the premises which were comprised in the under-lease, to the same trusts as would have affected the under-lease if it had not been merged or had not expired by the effluxion of time. The same rule holds, though the lease at the time of the purchase was vested in a trustee upon trusts, under which he could not have granted a renewal of the under-lease, and though the tenant for life outlived by twenty-five years the time at which the under-lease would have expired by effluxion of time. Giddings v. Giddings, 3 Russ. 241. TRUST; MERGER.

Decree against a corporation to grant a new lease according to a covenant for perpetual renewal, though the whole of the reserved rent had been for many years applied uniformly to one charitable purpose. Gosna v. Alderman of Grantham, 3 Russ. 261. CHARITY.

LEGACY.

A testatrix, by her will, gave to A 50*l.* a month or life, "in lieu of him giving up all the other notes and claims;" and, by a codicil, she gave him "3*l.* a month" for life; and directed all other things to be paid and done as the will ordered. Held, that A was entitled to both the monthly payments for his life. Lord v. Sutcliffe, 2 Sim. 278. EXONS.

A testator bequeathed the lease and good-will of a public-house, with the stock therein, to J M, in consideration of his paying all the testator's debts, and appointed him residuary legatee and executor. J M proved the will, and entered and carried on business in the house. He afterwards filed a bill, praying, as the debts far exceeded the value of the personal assets, that the deficiency might be raised rateably out of the different freeholds devised: but held, that he having accepted the bequest, must be bound by the condition annexed, and pay the debts. Messenger v. Andrews, 4 Russ. 478. WILL, C. OF.

A codicil does not revoke or alter a will to a greater extent than was intended. A testator, by his will, gave certain legacies, exclusively charged on real estate. By a codicil, after reciting so much of the will as related to those legacies, he revoked that part of his will, and in lieu of the legacies therein given, gave smaller ones. The object of the codicil being only to alter the amount of the legacies, held, that it could not extend to charge the personal estate, and not being attested by three witnesses, could not alter the legacies charged on the real estate. Kirke v. Kirke, 4 Russ. 435. WILL, C. OF.

Equal sums given to the same person by a will and codicil, held, from the character and objects of the latter, to be substitutional, and not accumulative, although the legacy given by the codicil was only conditional. Fraser v. Byng, 1 Russ. & M. 90.

The intention of a testator that his gift should not vest in the legatee until it should be actually remitted to him, will prevail when clearly expressed, provided the remittance be not delayed by negligence or inevitable accident. Law v. Thompson, 4 Russ. 92.

Whether the donatio mortis causa being of a mortgage debt, a gift of the same sum, with the same remainder over in a subsequent codicil, is to be considered a satisfaction? Hambrooke v. Simmonds, 4 Russ. 25.

The statute of the 25th G. 2. c. 6. does not extend to wills of personal estate only; and a legacy to a person who is an attesting witness to such a will, is not void. Emanuel v. Constable, 3 Russ. 436. WILL, C. OF, WHO MAY TAKE; PR. EVID. WITNESS ATTESTING; ESTATE, PERSONAL; STAT. C. OF.

Construction of a will; as to the question whether the proceeds of real estate were made the pecuniary fund for the payment of certain legacies. Rickets v. Ladley, 3 Russ. 418. WILL, C. OF.

A testator gave his property, after the death of his wife, to trustees, on trust to pay the interest and profits to his two daughters, J and E, to their separate use, with a direction to pay to, and apply for the benefit of A, the son of E, 200*l.* annually, when he attained the age of twenty-one years, and before that period, such part of the 200*l.* bequeathed to him as might be judged proper: he then gave his daughters power to dispose of the principal by will to their children or grandchildren respectively, "except that proportion of principal given to E, and from which the interest is to arise, to my grandson, viz., 4000*l.*, which sum shall be my grandson's property:" and in case either of the daughters died without issue, he limited her share of the fund over to the other daughter, her children, or grandchildren. Held, that A was not entitled to the annuity till he attained twenty-one, nor to the 4000*l.* till the death of his mother. Livesey v. Livesey, 3 Russ. 287. S. C. in part reversed, id. 542. WILL, C. OF.

A legacy was given to the separate use of a married woman during the joint lives of her and her husband, and in case she survived him, to her absolutely; but if she did not survive him, to such persons as she should by will appoint, and in default of appointment, to her next of kin exclusive of her husband. She died in the lifetime of her husband and the testator. Held, that the legacy lapsed. Baker v. Hanbury, 3 Russ. 340. WILL, C. OF.

LEGACY DUTY.

When a legacy is not paid at the time appointed by the testator, legacy duty is payable not merely on the capital sum bequeathed, but on the aggregate amount of capital and interest which is ultimately received by the legatee. Thomas v. Montgomery, 3 Russ. 502.

Where a testator gives annuities, and directs them to be paid without any deduction whatsoever, and where from the nature of the property out of which the annuities are to be paid, there could be no deduction except in respect of the legacy duty, there the annuities shall be paid clear of legacy duty. Smith v. Anderson, 4 Russ. 352. WILL, C. OF.

LEGATEE.

The infant heir and only son of an intestate was joined with his infant sisters, in a bill against the widow and administratrix of the intestate, for an account of his real and personal estate, and for a guardian and maintenance: Held, that the interests in the real and personal estate were distinct from each other, and a demurrer for multifariousness allowed. Dunn v. Dunn, 2 Sim. 329. S. P. Maud v. Acklom, 2 Sim. 331. PL. BILL, MULTIFARIOUSNESS; PL. PARTIES; HEIR AT LAW.

If the vendor of an estate, the contract for which was not completed in the lifetime of the testator, who was the purchaser, is afterwards paid the purchase money out of the personal assets, the simple contract creditors of the testator shall stand in the place of the vendor, with respect to his lien on the estate. Qu. if a pecuniary legatee would be entitled to the same benefit against the devisee? Selby v. Selby, 4 Russ. 336. EXORS.; ASSETS, MARSHALLING; VEND. & PURCH.; DEVISEE.

LENGTH OF TIME.

F C tenant for life, with a power of leasing for thirty-one years, demises, in 1749, for three lives to his attorney. M C his son, tenant in tail four years, afterwards, in consideration of 20l. executes an agreement, which was endorsed on the part of the lease in the attorney's hands, to confirm the demise, and renew for a further term of three lives; eleven years after this, F C dies, and the articles are then registered. The last of the three lives died in 1817, and the representative of the attorney filed a bill for a specific performance of the son's agreement: Held that the case was too suspicious to come within the principle of specific performance, and the length of time elapsed under circumstances which did not imply acquiescence. Blakeway v. Baggett, 1 Dow, N. S. 405. ACQUIESCENCE; AGREEMENT, SPEC. PERF.

Although it is a settled rule that a court of equity will not compel a defendant to make a discovery which will subject him to pains and penalties, yet if between the filing and hearing of the plea, the time for suing for the penalties expires, the plea will be overruled. Corp. of Trinity House v. Burge, 2 Sim. 411. PENALTIES; PL. ANSWER; DISCOVERY TENDING TO CRIMINATE.

LIEN.

A recovery by A, tenant for life, and B, remainderman in tail; afterwards, by deeds of lease and release, the uses declared to A for life, remainder to B for life, remainder to his first and other sons in tail male; the deeds not registered for several years afterwards; in the interval, judgments recovered against B: Held, that the non-registry of the deeds was immaterial, and that the persons who so recovered judgments against B, did not thereby acquire a lien or charge on the settled estate against the issue, deriving under the settlement. Burke v. O'Malley, 1 Beat. 96. DEEDS, REGISTRY OF.

Where a lease of mines is taken by six persons for the purpose of working them in partnership, and the managing partner becomes in the course of such management, indebted to the concern, his interest in the partnership is in the first place applicable to satisfy his debt to the concern. Fereday v. Wightwick, 1 Russ. & M. 45. PARTNERSHIP.

A mortgagee has no title to the rents of the mortgaged premises, which have been paid into court by a receiver appointed in a suit for establishing the will of the mortgagor, notwithstanding that after the appointment of a receiver, he gave notice to the tenants to pay the rents to him. He ought to have followed up that notice by moving to discharge the receiver. Thomas v. Brigstocke, 4 Russ. 65. MORTGOR. & MORTGEE; PR. RECEIVER; LANDLORD & TEN.; ATTORNEY OF RENT.

A business, the property of A, was carried on with his capital and for his profit, and by B his agent in the name of the latter, at a fixed salary. A having become bankrupt, B filed his bill, stating that by reason of the use of his name, he had become liable to a heavy amount for the concern, which was insolvent notwithstanding the bankruptcy of A, and praying for injunction to restrain the assignees from in any way intermeddling with the concern: Held, that B had a lien on the business to the extent of his liabilities, and an injunction was granted. Fovercroft v. Wood, 4 Russ. 467. BANKCY. ASSIGNMENT, WHAT PASSES; PRIN. & AGENT.

LIMITATIONS.

A testator having bequeathed a yearly sum to a person for life, gave the annuity upon the death of the annuitant, to the eldest surviving son of A, and failing the male issue of A, to the daughters of A living at the demise of such male issue: at the death of the annuitant, A had no son living, but had two daughters: Held that the gift to the daughters of A was not too remote, and that they were entitled to the annuity. The same testator gave the residue to his widow during her life, and at her demise to the eldest surviving son of A, upon his attaining twenty-five, (the trustees being directed to apply the interest to his use till he attained that age) or failing such male issue, to the daughters of A living at the demise of the last of such male issue, the only son of A died under twenty-five in the lifetime of the widow, leaving two daughters of A him surviving: Held that if there had been any son of A living at the death of the widow, he would have taken a vested interest in the residue, though he had not then attained the age of twenty-five. That the gift over of the residue to the daughters of A, was not too remote, and that in the events which happened, they, upon the death of the widow, became entitled to the residue. Murray v. Addenbrook, 4 Russ. 407.

If the interest of an unborn child of a person in being, does not vest when such unborn child attains twenty-one, the gift is too remote and void, and the limitations over are void also. Palmer v. Holford, 4 Russ. 403.

A limitation to an unborn child for life is not good, unless the remainder vests in interest at the same time. A testatrix after expressing her desire that certain stock should remain in the three per cent. for ever, bequeathed the dividends to her seven children for their lives, with survivorship among them, and directed that after the decease of all of them, their children should succeed to the annuity of their deceased parent, and that after the decease of the seven children's children, the dividends of the stock should devolve in annuities upon the lawful heirs of the testatrix: Held that all the gifts were void except the life interest given to the seven children. Hayes v. Hayes, 4 Russ. 311.

The court will protect the property of a supposed lunatic, in the interval between the presenting of a petition for a commission of lunacy, and the finding of the jury, but it will at the same time take care that ample means for resisting the commission be furnished to those who act in the inquiry in the alleged lunatic's behalf. In re Holmes, 4 Russ. 186. JURISDICTION, LUNACY.

A degree of imbecility, below what would be sufficient to justify a finding of lunacy under a commission, de lunatico, &c., will be sufficient to enable a court of equity to set aside a deed, if it appears that undue advantage has been taken of that weakness, such as it is, to obtain the execution of the deed. Blachford v. Christian, 1 Knapp, 73.

A committee should have the previous sanction of the court for not passing his accounts annually. Anon. 1 Russ. & M. 113.

A committee of the person and estate of a lunatic appointed without a reference, where the property was small. Exp. Farrow, 1 Russ. & M. 112.

Under a commission of lunacy, the jury found "that the party is not a lunatic, but that partly from paralysis, and partly from old age, his memory is so much impaired, as to render him incompetent to the management of his affairs, and consequently of unsound mind, and that he has been so for the term of two years last passed." The inquisition was quashed, and a new commission was ordered to issue. In re Holmes, 4 Russ. 182.

MARRIAGE.

In May, 1816, a marriage was performed between M and G, by a minister in Scotland, upon production of a certificate of a proclamation of banns, which proclamation, it turned out, could not have been made; but it was proved, that according to the practice in Scotland at the time, banns were scarcely ever proclaimed when such certificates were given. A book, kept by the minister who performed the ceremony (he having afterwards become an incompetent witness), in which the marriage was entered, was proved by his wife and daughter, who also proved the performance of the ceremony. M, who afterwards married another husband, upon a suit to establish the first marriage, admitted the ceremony, but denied consummation. It was in evidence that she acknowledged herself married subsequent to the ceremony. It was also proved, that G was in the habit of recognizing M as the wife of J (the second husband.) Two years after the marriage of J and M, and their cohabitation, G raised an action in the commissaries' court, against the declaration of marriage and adherence. There was issue of the marriage between M and J, but neither the children nor J were made parties. Held, (reversing the judgment below) that if a celebration took place between M and G, it was to be presumed, under the circumstances stated, that there was no real consent to marry. Whether the second husband and children should be parties; Quære? Assuming the marriage to be regular, previous and subsequent conduct of the parties is admissible evidence upon the question of consent. Macneill v. Macgregor, 1 Bligh, N. S. 293.

MERGER.

If a tenant for life of an under lease for eighteen years, granted by a person, who himself holds the premises so underlet along with other property, under a lease for twenty-one years, purchases the interest of his immediate lessor, and obtains from the superior lessor, a renewal of the lease thus purchased, the renewed lease is subject, so far as regards the premises which were comprised in the under-lease, to the same trusts as would have affected the under-lease, if it had not been merged, or had not expired by the effluxion of time. The same rule holds, though the lease at the time of the purchase was vested in a trustee upon trusts, under which he could not have granted a renewal of the under-lease, and though the tenant for life outlived, by twenty-six years, the time at which the under-lease would have expired by effluxion of time. Giddings v. Giddings, 3 Russ. 241. LEASE, RENEWAL OF TRUST.

MINES.

Where a lease of mines is taken by six persons, for the purpose of working them in partnership, and the managing partner becomes in the course of such management indebted to the concern; his interest in the partnership is in the first place applicable to satisfy his debt to the concern. Fereday v. Wightwick, 1 Russ. & M. 145.

Mines are, for many purposes, partnership property; they are liable to the debts of the partnership, and debts to the co-partnership; and notwithstanding the bankruptcy of a partner indebted to the co-partnership, the accounts are to be taken beyond the time of the bankruptcy, and up to the time of the sale of the debts of the partnership are first to be satisfied, and out of the bankrupt's share, repayment is to be made to the co-partnership of what is due to it from him. S. C. 1 Taml. 250. PARTNERSHIP.

MISTAKE.

Semble, where the parties intended that a promissory note should be joint and several, but through ignorance it is expressed to be joint only, a court of equity will relieve as well against the surety as the principal; but where a joint promissory note signed, "J and J E: J P surety," was given to a creditor of the firm of J E; and J P, died, J and J E being both alive, one of whom afterwards became bankrupt, and the other insolvent: Held that the promissory note could not be considered as several against J P the surety. Rawstone v. Parr, 3 Russ. 424; but reversed, id. 539. BILL OF EXCHANGE.

In contemplation of marriage between A and B, settlements were made of real estate belonging to B, the intended wife, and of personality belonging to A, the intended husband, upon uses and trusts, which after the solemnization of the marriage were to arise for the benefit of the husband and wife, and their issue; the marriage ceremony was performed, and the parties lived together as husband and wife; but after the lapse of more than a year, and before the parties had any children, the marriage was discovered to be void, and they executed deeds purporting to revoke the former settlement: some time afterwards a new settlement in contemplation of marriage was made, including the same property as the former, but different from the former in the interest given to the issue, as well as in other provisions; the parties then intermarried, and there was issue of the marriage. Held that the first settlement being founded on mistake and misapprehension, was not binding on the parties, and that the rights of the issue, both as to the real estate and the personality, were regulated by the second settlement. Robinson v. Dickenson, 3 Russ. 399. SETTLEMENT, MARRIAGE.

MONEY APPOINTED TO BE LAID OUT IN LANDS.

A feme covert, tenant in tail in remainder of money to be laid out in lands, by arrangement with the tenant for life, and on a private examination under the 7 G. 4. c. 45. consented to the payment of a proportion of the money to her husband, and the order was made accordingly. In re Silcocks, 3 Russ. 369. HUSBAND AND WIFE, CONSENT TO BAR; STAT. C. OF. Semble, an order of reference to the master on a petition presented under Lord Eldon's act, ought not to be made, except on a hearing in court; and on the appearance of counsel. Hinde v. Metcalfe, 3 Russ. 416. PR. PETITION; STAT.; C. OF.

MORTGAGE.

The course of proceedings in foreclosure causes in Ireland and in England, is materially different. In England, it is merely a suit between mortgagor and mortgagee, to bar the equity of redemption of the former; but no sale is directed, and no provision made for creditors, as under similar decrees in this court. Steele v. Phillips, 1 Beat. 192.

The rules of court allow mortgagor in foreclosure suit so much time as may be occupied in procuring report of principal and interest, and costs, and three months from date of that report. Ellis v. Deane, 1 Beat. 16.

On a reference in a foreclosure suit to ascertain what is due to the plaintiff for principal, interest and costs, the plaintiff must ascertain his rights, and have his costs taxed, or the defendant may apply to have the proceedings in the cause staid. Creed v. Byrne, 1 Hog. 108.

The mortgagor or his heirs only can sue the mortgagees for an account and redemption, unless it is shewn that there is collusion between them and the mortgagees. White v. Vanther, 1 Knapp, 179.

The widow of a mortgagor who had joined with him in the mortgage for the purpose of barring her dower, and to whom he subsequently left an annuity in lieu of dower, not charged, however, on his real estate, has no equity as a bona fide purchaser of the annuity, to have it paid out of the mortgaged estate, and her representatives cannot file a bill for the purpose of redeeming it. Id. ib.

No larger sum can be recovered by way of interest on a mortgage in one of our colonies where the Dutch law is retained (Demerara) than a sum equal to the principal. Shand v. Brereton, 1 Knapp, 162.

Payments agreed to be made by the actual occupier of the soil, under a licence to dig earth and make bricks, are in the nature of rent, and as such, a mortgagor of the premises is entitled, after notice, to all rent in arrear at the time of such notice, as well as all that may afterwards become due. Exp. Hankey, 1 Mont. & M. 247. RENT.

Where an equitable mortgagee applies for leave to bid at the sale of the mortgaged premises, the price is for him to pay the costs of the application. Exp. Robinson, 1 Mont. & M. 261. EQUITABLE MORTGAGES; PR. COSTS; BANKCY. SALE.

A covenant in a mortgage of property in the West Indies, on the part of the mortgagor, to consign the produce of the estate to the mortgagee, to be sold on commission for the mortgagor; and to take all such plantation stores as may be wanted for the use of the estate from the mortgagee, is not usurious. A mortgagee is entitled to the benefit of such a covenant, and to charge a commission on the sale of the produce consigned to him. On the assignment by a mortgagee, the cost of support and contingencies furnished to the plantation previous to the assignment, but paid for subsequently, by the assignee, may be added to the mortgage debt, and charged against the estate. Sayers v. Whitfield, 1 Knapp, 133. USURY.

A, being entitled to certain lands as issue in tail, conveyed them in fee in 1794 to secure 800*l.*, and levied a fine. In 1762, he borrowed 450*l.*, and charged it upon the same lands by deed poll. He died in 1764, leaving the charge of the aggregate sum of 1250*l.* upon the lands, with an arrear of interest, and devised all his lands to his wife. Two years afterwards, the wife married B, and they, after reciting the mortgage, and that B had paid the interest, granted and confirmed the mortgaged lands to the mortgagee, reserving the equity of redemption to B and his heirs, &c. By deed in 1789, 300*l.* arrear of interest was added to the principal, and the aggregate sum of 1550*l.* charged on the lands, subject to redemption as before. The wife died in 1794, leaving C, her son by A, her heir at law. In 1797, B sold part of the mortgaged lands, and in consideration of 2000*l.* principal and interest paid to the mortgagee, and 600*l.* to B, he and the mortgagee conveyed such part to D. The rest of the lands were conveyed by the mortgagee to B, who died in 1799. On a bill by C to redeem, the court of exchequer decreed that he was entitled to redeem, on payment of the principal money due upon the mortgage, and interest from the death of B. On appeal to the lords, it was declared that C was entitled, notwithstanding the proviso of redemption reserved to B, to redeem the lands on payment of the principal and interest due at the death of the wife on the aggregate sum of 1250*l.*, such interest to be computed according to the proviso in the indenture of release and mortgage. Upon reference to the master to take the accounts, it appeared that B and his wife during her life paid to the mortgagee 1500*l.*; that the master in his report did not include this sum, but reported that there was due upon this account for principal 1250*l.*, and for interest at the death of the wife 286*l.* On this ground exceptions were taken to the report, which being in this respect confirmed, and a decree made upon further directions accordingly, a further appeal was presented to the lords, who affirmed the decree, they considering that the former order directing an account of interest due on the mortgage, meant interest actually due. Ruscombe v. Hare, 2 Bligh, N. S. 192.

A first application by a mortgagor to change the time for the payment of mortgage money refused, Nanny v. Edwards, 4 Russ. 124.

A mortgagee has no title to the rents of the mortgaged premises which have been paid into court by a receiver appointed in a suit for establishing the will of the mortgagor, notwithstanding that after the appointment of a receiver he gave notice to the tenants to pay the rents to him. He ought to have followed up that notice by moving to discharge the receiver. Thomas v. Brigstocke, 4 Russ. 65. LIEN ON FUND IN COURT; PR. RECEIVER; LANDL. & TENANT, ATTORNEMENT OF.

A mortgagee is entitled to be allowed in account against the mortgagor, all expences properly incurred for the recovery of the mortgage money. Ellison v. Wright, 3 Russ. 458. ACCOUNT, ALLOWANCES.

Where, upon a bill of redemption and foreclosure, the mortgagee assigns his mortgage after a decree for the usual accounts, the mortgagor is not to pay the costs of the supplemental bill which is necessary to bring the assignee of the mortgage before the court. Barrey v. Wrey, 3 Russ. 465. PR. COSTS.

The heir of the mortgagee to whom the legal estate in the mortgaged premises had descended, is a necessary party to a bill of foreclosure filed by the executor of the mortgagee. Scott v. Nicoll, 3 Russ. 476. HEIR AT LAW; PL. PARTY; MORTGAGOR. & MORTGEE.

NEXT OF KIN.

Where a pecuniary legacy is given by a testator to his heir, the word is to be understood in its legal and ordinary sense, unless controuled by the context of the will, and the heir at law will take the legacy, and not the next of kin. In such a case it makes no difference that there are three co-heirs. Mounsey v. Blamire, 4 Russ. 384. WILL, C. OF, WHO TAKE; HEIR AT LAW.

NOTICE.

Trustees not affected by notice to their agent, which he did not receive in that character. France v. Woods, 1 Taml. 172. PRINC. & AGENT.

A made a voluntary surrender of copyholds to a trustee, upon trust for F during her life; and if at her death she left children who attained twenty-one, upon trust to sell and divide the money among them; but if that event did not take place, upon trust for A in fee. Afterwards, by a deed reciting that the trustee was seised of the premises, upon trust for F and her husband and A the trustee, and F and her husband and A concurred in demising the premises for a valuable consideration to G for a long term of years: Held, that the lessee was to be considered as having notice of the trust for the benefit of the children of F, and that the lease was void as against them. Malpas v. Ackland, 3 Russ. 273. TRUST.

OFFICERS, PUBLIC.

The right of appointment to the office of clerk of the peace is, by law, in the custos rotulorum of the county, and not in the crown. Harding v. Pollock, 1 Dow, N. S. 454.

Plaintiff who resides as judge in one of the colonies will not be compelled to give security for costs. Stanley v. Hume; 1 Hog. 12. PR. SECURITY, FOR COSTS.

Security for costs will be required from an officer in the service of the East India Company. Powell v. Bernard, 1 Hog. 144. E. I. COMP.; PR. COSTS, SECURITY.

PARENT AND CHILD.

A son conveys an estate to his father nominally, as purchaser, but really as a trustee, and in order that the father, who was in better credit than the son, might raise money upon it by way of mortgage, for the use of the son; the father died shortly afterwards, and before any money was raised, having by a will subsequent to the conveyance, made a general devise of all his real estates; the case is within the statute of frauds, and parol evidence is not admissible to prove the trust, but the son has a lien on the estate as vendor, for the apparent consideration, no part of which was paid. Leman v. Whitley, 4 Russ. 422. TRUST; PR. EVID. PAROL; VENDOR & PURCH; LIEN.

PARTNERSHIP.

Where a lease of mines is taken by six persons, for the purpose of working them in partnership, and the managing partner becomes in the course of such management indebted to the concern; his interest in the partnership is in the first place applicable to satisfy his debt to the concern. Fereday v. Wightwick, 1 Russ. & M. 45.

Mines are, for many purposes, partnership property; they are liable to the debts of the partnership and debts to the co-partnership; and notwithstanding the bankruptcy of a partner indebted to the co-partnership, the accounts are to be taken beyond the time of the bankruptcy, and up to the time of the sale; the debts of the partnership are first to be satisfied, and out of the bankrupt's share repayment is to be made to the co-partnership of what is due to it from him. S. C. 1 Tam. 250. MINES.

Some members of a partnership cannot file a bill for a dissolution, without making all the partners, however numerous, parties. Long v. Yonge, 2 Sim. 369. PL. PARTIES.

The holders of shares in a joint stock company, purchased immediately from the company, are entitled to relief in equity, against the fraudulent conduct of the directors. Blain v. Agar, 2 Sim. 289. FRAUD; JOINT STOCK COMPANY.

Bills drawn by one partner for a separate debt in the partnership name, do not render the firm liable, unless the person suing on them can either prove a direct assent from the other partners to their formation or circumstances from which such an assent might be reasonably presumed. Frankland v. McGusty, 1 Knapp, 274.

The masters make it a rule not to take an account of a partnership, unless specially directed, although the order be to take all accounts. Woolly v. Gordon, 1 Tam. 11. ACCOUNT.

A general dissolution of partnership does not operate to discharge the members of it from the subsequent acts of one of them in respect of the engagements of the partnership, with third persons, entered into prior to the dissolution. Ault v. Goodrich, 4 Russ. 430. PARTNERSHIP, DISSOLUTION OF.

Subpartners are liable to the partners for the acts of each other. Thus, if a firm consisting of A and B engage in a speculation with C, A is answerable to C for the acts of B. S. C. Id.

A person employed on behalf of himself and his co-partners in negotiating the term of a lease, is not entitled to stipulate clandestinely with the lessors for any private advantage to himself. Where therefore, a sum of 12,000*l.* was paid in pursuance of such a stipulation, the party receiving it was declared to hold it in trust for the partnership. Before the transaction was discovered, one of the partners withdrew, and subsequently another partner assigned a share in the stock, and in his proportion of this claim to persons then admitted into the concern: Held, that the retired, the continuing, and the new partners were properly joined as co-plaintiffs in a suit to have the trust declared. Fawcett v. Whitehouse, 1 Russ. & M. 132. TRUST; PRIN. & AGENT; PL. PARTIES, PARTNERS.

A, by his will, (after declaring his intention to assign the lease of a hotel in which he carried on business, and the effects therein and the business thereof, in trust for his son and daughter, in consideration of an annuity to be paid to him for life), bequeathed the residue of his personal estate and effects to his son and daughter in equal shares. The testator died without having effected the purpose declared in his will. The daughter, being executrix, carried on the business until 1810, when she purchased a freehold house, (chiefly by means of the assets of the testator) where she carried on the business until she married in 1819. Previous to her marriage, the freehold house was conveyed to trustees for her and her husband and their children in the ordinary way. In the following year, the son filed a bill praying that the settlement might be set aside, the freehold house declared part of the assets, and an account taken of the profits of the business from the death of the testator until 1819, and that half the profits and half the assets might be paid to him as residuary legatee and partner. The V. Chancellor decided that a partnership existed from the death of the testator to the marriage of the daughter, and that the freehold house was part of the assets. Against this decree the defendants appealed to the Chancellor, who affirmed it with a slight variation. They then appealed to the house of lords, and insisted that an issue should be directed to try whether a partnership existed. The house affirmed the decree, on the ground that it was then too late to ask for such an issue. Burnard v. Norot, 2 Bligh, N. S. 215. S. C. 4 Russ. 247.

A, B, and C carrying on business in co-partnership for a term which would expire on the 19th Feb. 1807, under articles which empowered A, in case of his death during the term, to bequeath his share of the trade in favour of his wife or children. S, a customer of the bank and a surety, covenanted that they, or one of them, would pay to A, B, and C, the survivors or survivor of them, &c. all sums which, on, before or until the 19th Feb. 1807, should become due from the customer to A, B and C, the survivors or survivor of them, &c. A died, having bequeathed his share of the concern to his executors, in trust for his children. The business continued to be carried on under the same firm as before, and his executors interfered in the management and shared in the profits. At the time of A's death, the balance due from S to the bank was upwards of 14,000*l.*; after that time S continued his dealings with the bank in the same manner as previously, paying in more than 14,000*l.* within a few weeks after A's death, but drawing out during the same period a larger sum, and these subsequent dealings were continued in the same account current with the preceding dealings. Some years afterwards S became insolvent, being indebted to the bank in a balance of 19,000*l.* and upwards: Held, that the partnership which carried on the business after the death of A was a new partnership; that the surety's covenant did not extend to cover sums advanced to the customer by the bank after A's death; that the balance due at A's death from the customer was to be considered as discharged by the payments subsequently made by him to the bank. Femberton v. Oakes, 4 Russ. 154. PRINC. & SURETY.

PENALTIES.

Although it is a settled rule that a court of equity will not compel defendant to make a discovery which will subject him to pains and penalties; yet if between the filing and hearing of the plea, the time for suing for the penalties expires, the plea will be overruled. Corp. of Trinity House v. Burge, 2 Sim. 411. LENGTH OF TIME; PL. ANSWER TENDING TO CRIMINATE.

PLEADING.

I. ANSWER.

Defendant by answer cannot decline answering, further, though discovery would tend to criminate; he must plead or demur. Stanbury v. Gordon, V. C. 1830.

Statements in an answer are impertinent if they are neither called for by the bill nor material to the defence with reference to the order or decree which may be made on the bill. Statements in an answer to a bill of revivor which merely shew irregularity and misconduct in the former proceedings in the suit are impertinent. Wagstaff v. Bryun, 1 Russ. & M. 28.

By indenture a farm was demised at yearly rent, with a covenant by tenant, that if during the last three years of the term, he should sow more than seventy acres of clover in one year, he should pay an additional rent of 10*l.* a year for every acre above seventy, for the remainder of the term: Held, that the additional rent was in the nature of stipulated damages, entitling plaintiff to a discovery in aid of an action at law, and a plea that the discovery would subject defendant to penalties, was overruled. Jones v. Green, 3 Y. & J. 298. LANDLORD & TEN.; STIPULATED DAMAGES.

Where a bill for discovery and relief is demurrable for want of equity as to the relief, discovery cannot be granted. Mellish v. Richardson, 12 Price, 530. PL. DEMURRER.

Although it is a settled rule that a court of equity will not compel a defendant to make a discovery which will subject him to pains and penalties; yet, if between the filing and hearing of the plea, the time for suing for the penalties expires, the plea will be overruled. Corp. of Trinity House v. Burge, 2 Sim. 411. LENGTH OF TIME; PENALTIES.

II. BILL.

The court will make an order for appointing a guardian and allowing maintenance, upon petition without bill where the infant's income does not exceed 300*l.* a year. Exp. Lukin, 4 Russ. 307. INFANT; MAINTENANCE; PL. PLA.

Maintenance will not be allowed without a bill filed to an infant, entitled to real estate which is of a yearly value exceeding 100*l.* a year. In mre. Molesworth, 4 Russ. 308. Id.

The plaintiff is entitled, under a prayer for general relief, to such remedy as the statement of his case entitles him to. Popham v. Constantine, 1 Tam. 135.

The infant heir and only son of an intestate, was joined with his infant sisters, in a bill against the widow and administratrix of the intestate for an account of his real and personal estate, and for a guardian and maintenance: Held, that the interests in the real and personal estate were distinct from each other, and a demurrer for multifariousness was allowed. Dunn v. Dunn, 2 Sim. 329. S.P. MAUD V. AETKIN, 2 Sim. 331. HEIR AT LAW; LEGATEE; PL. PARTIES.

The stating part of bill must contain all necessary allegations to sustain plaintiff's right to relief. Macnamara v. Sweetman, 1 Hog. 29.

The amended bill is not prolix if it is a complete record, and contains all the charges in the original bill. Fitzpatrick v. Power, 1 Hog. 24.

A demurrer to a bill by the assignees of a bankrupt, because it did not state that it had been filed with consent of the creditors as required by the stat. 6 G. 4. c. 16, was overruled, the act merely intended to make assignees responsible, as between them and the creditors, if they instituted any suit without the consent directed by the act. Jones v. Yates, 3 Y. & J. 373. STAT. C. OF; PL. PARTIES; BANKCY. ASSIGNEES.

A joint petition by three creditors for an order to prove three distinct debts, was held to be multifarious. The claims of different persons cannot be united in one petition. Exp. Sayer, 1 Mont. & M. 280. PL. PARTIES; PL. PETITION; PL. MULTIFARIOUSNESS.

A plaintiff must establish at the hearing that he had a title to relief at the time of filing his bill, or if he relies on matter subsequent, he must file a supplemental bill. Barfield v. Kelly, 4 Russ. 355. PL. HEARING.

III. DEMURRER.

Where a bill for discovery and relief is demurrable for want of equity as to the relief, discovery cannot be granted. Mellish v. Richardson, 12 Price, 530. PL. DISCOVERY. So settled by Lords Thurlow, Alvanley, and Eldon, in a variety of decisions. See also the Treatises of Lord Redesdale, and Cooper.

Demurrer to a bill for a general account, and for an injunction to restrain the defendant from taking out execution on a judgment recovered by him in an action at law, was allowed; because the bill did not establish a case of account on its own statement, and it was too late for the plaintiff to ask the interference of the court, after having suffered the action to be tried at nisi prius. Moses v. Lewes, 12 Price, 502. ACCOUNT.

A general demurrer for want of equity allowed, where it appeared on the face of the bill, that of two co-plaintiffs, one had not any interest in the matter of the suit. Cuff v. Platell, 4 Russ. 242. PL. PARTIES.

If of several plaintiffs, some have an interest in the matter of the suit, and others have no interest in it, but are merely the agents of their co-plaintiffs, a general demurrer to the whole bill is a good defence. King of Spain v. Machado, 4 Russ. 225. PL. PARTIES; PRIN. & AGENT.

V. PARTIES.

Where on marriage, interest of a sum secured by mortgage is settled on husband for life, remainder to wife for life, and he is afterwards discharged as an insolvent, it is competent for him notwithstanding, to file bill with wife for foreclosure of mortgage, in order to have the trust fund secured. Horan v. Wooloughan, 1 Beat. 1. INSOLVENCY.

Where, after bill to foreclose, plaintiff became insolvent, the costs of assignee afterwards made defendant, must be paid by plaintiff; he cannot throw costs on mortgagor. Id. ib.

On a bill by a trustee, to raise the arrears of an annuity, the cestui que trusts are not necessary parties; it appearing on the face of the contract, that it was the intention of the parties to exclude the cestui que trusts from the necessity of taking any part in the transactions relating to the management of the trusts. Bijfield v. Taylor, 1 Beat. 91.

A prior incumbrancer may insist, that he will not be made a party to a suit by a puisne creditor, for any purpose but that of being redeemed; if he should do so, the estate must be sold, subject to his prior incumbrance. Fisher v. Barry, 1 Beat. 143.

To a bill by a vicar against occupiers for certain tithes, impropiators ought to be omitted as parties, although the defendants allege that it is uncertain, whether these lands are or are not within the parish; and that the impropriate rectors had always received or demanded the tithes; occupiers only are necessary parties. Cooke v. Blunt, 2 Sim. 417. IMPROPRIATOR OF TITHES.

Some members of a partnership cannot file a bill for a dissolution, without making all the partners, however numerous, parties. Long v. Yonge, 2 Sim. 369. PARTNERS.

The infant heir and only son of an intestate, was joined with his infant sisters, in a bill against the widow and administratrix of the intestate for an account of his real and personal estate, and for a guardian and maintenance: held, that the interests in the real and personal estate were distinct from each other, and a demurrer for multifariousness allowed. Dunn v. Dunn, 2 Sim. 329. S. P. Maud v. Acklom, 2 Sim. 331. PL. BILL, MULTIFARIOUSNESS; HEIR AT LAW; LEGATEE.

Some of the shareholders in a joint-stock company may file a bill to have their deposits repaid, without making all the other shareholders parties, if they are ignorant of their names. Blain v. Agor, 2 Sim. 289.

Prior incumbrancers are not necessary parties to a bill by an elegit creditor. Rundell v. Marq. Donegal, 1 Hog. 122.

Plea for want of parties must be to the entire bill. Parke v. Black, 1 Hog. 70. PL. PLEA.

A demurrer to a bill by the assignees of a bankrupt, because it did not state that it had been filed with consent of the creditors, as required by the statute 6 G. 4. c. 16. was overruled; the act merely intended to make assignees responsible as between them and the creditors, if they instituted any suit without the consent directed by the act. Jones v. Yates, 3 Y. & J. 373. STAT. C. OF; PL. BILL; BANKCY. ASSIGNEES.

Some shareholders in a joint stock company may institute proceedings on behalf of themselves and others who may come in and take the benefit of the suit, for the purpose of compelling directors to refund monies fraudulently withdrawn from the funds of the company and applied to their own use. To compel all the shareholders to be made parties to the suit would be to deny justice. Hitchens v. Congreve, 4 Russ. 576.

In a creditor's suit for the sale of the real estate; where there was no personality, and the executors refused to prove the will, it was decided that the heir at law must be a party, and administration with the will annexed obtained, in order to show a deficiency of assets. Fordham v. Ruff, 1 Tam. 1.

A joint petition by three creditors, for an order to prove three distinct debts, was held to be multifarious. The claims of different persons cannot be united in one petition. Eap. Sayer, 1 Mont. & M. 280. PL. PETITION; PL. MULTIFARIOUSNESS; PL. BILL.

T G, having instituted a suit, dies, leaving two wills, of which the second was eventually established; but not having been discovered immediately, the devisees and executors under the first, revive the suit; a private agreement is afterwards entered into between the plaintiffs in the revived suit and R G, entitled under the second will, that the benefit should belong to the parties beneficially interested, whichever of the wills should be established. A decree was made for the plaintiffs in the revived suit, and an order made under it, from which R G, and M R, (daughter of T G,) beneficially entitled under the first will, appeal. The lords declared that R G ought to have been a party to the suit below, and adjourned the hearing sine die, with liberty for the parties to take such steps below as they should be advised. A bill was then filed by R G, adding other parties, and praying to have the benefit of the revived suit, which was decreed; but the lords still refused to hear the appeal for want of proper parties, with liberty as before. R G then files another bill to have the benefit of the revived suit, adding other parties, and setting up a new case; the facts of which being denied by the defendants, and not established in evidence, the court below dismissed the bill; whereupon the plaintiffs appealed, but the lords dismissed the appeal, and confirmed the decree dismissing the bill. Gough v. Latouche, 1 Dow, N. S. 485.

A person employed on behalf of himself and his co-partners in negotiating the term of a lease, is not entitled to stipulate clandestinely with the lessors for any private advantage to himself; where, therefore, a sum of 12,000*l.* was paid in pursuance of such a stipulation, the party receiving it was declared to hold it in trust for the partnership. Before the transaction was discovered, one of the partners withdrew; and subsequently, another partner assigned a share in the stock, and in his proportion of this claim to persons then admitted into the concern: held, that the retired, the continuing, and the new partners, were properly joined as co-plaintiffs in a suit, to have the trust declared. Fawcett v. Whitehouse, 1 Russ. & M. 132. PARTNERSHIP; TRUST; PRIN. & AGENT.

A plea, showing that one of two plaintiffs had no interest in the matters of the suit, is a good defence to the whole bill. Makepeace v. Haythorne, 4 Russ. 244. PL. PLEA.

A general demurrer for want of equity allowed, where it appeared on the face of the bill, that of two co-plaintiffs, one had not any interest in the matters of the suit. Cuff v. Platell, 4 Russ. 242. PL. DEMURRER.

If, of several plaintiffs, some have an interest in the matter of the suit, and others have no interest in it, but are merely the agents of their co-plaintiffs, a general demurrer to the whole bill is a good defence. King of Spain v. Machado, 4 Russ. 225. PL. DEMURRER, WHERE; PRIN. & AGENT.

A defect of parties may be cured at the hearing, by the undertaking of the plaintiff, to give full effect to the utmost rights, which the absent party could have claimed; those rights being such as do not affect the rights of defendants. Harvey v. Cooke, 4 Russ. 34.

The heir of the mortgagee, to whom the legal estate in the mortgaged premises has descended, is a necessary party to a bill of foreclosure filed by the executor of the mortgagee. Scott v. Nicoll, 3 Russ. 476. MORTGAGE, FORECLOSURE OF; HEIR AT LAW; MORTGAGE; MORTGEE.

Seemle, where the cestui que trusts convey their beneficial interest in a portion of the property to a purchaser, the purchaser may file a bill against the trustee for a conveyance of the legal estate, without making the cestui que trust, who sold to him, parties to the suit. Goodson v. Ellison, 3 Russ. 583. TRUSTEE, AND CESTUI QUE TRUST.

Where a bill was filed against the devisee of the lease, praying that the lease might be declared void, and the defendant insisted, that if the lease was set aside, the plaintiffs ought to repay the monies expended by his deviser in the improvement of the premises; the executor of the deviser, who had assented to the devise of the lease, was not a necessary party to the suit. Melpas v. Ackland, 3 Russ. 273. EX-CUTOR.

A pauis creditor, who obtained possession under an ecclesiastical sequestration since the bill was filed, and before receiver was appointed, is a necessary party in the cause. Robinson v. Grady, 1 Hog. 147.

VI. PETITION.

A joint petition by three creditors for an order to prove three distinct debts, was held to be multifarious. The claims of different persons cannot be united in one petition. Exp. Sayer, 1 Mont. & M. 280. PL. PARTIES; PL. MULTIFARIOUSNESS.

Petition of re-hearing dismissed, because it suggested as the grounds of re-hearing facts not alleged in the pleadings. Newton v. Stables, 4 Russ. 210. PR. RE-HEARING.

In a suit instituted for the administration of the assets of a testator, who in his will described himself as "of Halifax, in Nova Scotia," certain lapsed shares of the residue, were at the hearing, on further directions ordered to be distributed, according to the statute of distribution, there being no suggestion on the record, that the administration ought not to be according to the law of England; afterwards a petition of re-hearing was presented, stating that the testator died domiciled in Nova Scotia, and praying that the distribution might be according to the law of that country; but the petition was dismissed. Id. ib.

VII. PLEA.

Plea for want of parties must be to the entire bill. Parke v. Black, 1 Hog. 70. PL. PARTIES.

To a bill stating a settlement, under which certain hereditaments were limited to A for life, with remainder to the plaintiff, and praying a delivery of the title deeds; the defendant put in a plea of purchase for valuable consideration without notice, averring that "A, before the execution of the conveyance, alleged that she was seised," and was in possession. The court held that such a plea must aver that the vendor was seised, or pretended to be seised, and was in possession at the time when the conveyance was executed. Jackson v. Rowe, 4 Russ. 514.

Quarre, whether such a plea not averring a title prior to, and independent of, the settlement, is a good defence to such a bill. S. C.

A plea showing that one of two plaintiffs had no interest in the matters of the suit, is a good defence to the whole bill. Makepeace v. Haythorne, 4 Russ. 244. PL. PARTIES.

To a bill by the assignee of a bankrupt, against a removed assignee, for an account, a plea that the suit was not instituted with the consent of the creditors at a meeting pursuant to the 11 & 12 Geo. 3. c. 8. s. 58. was allowed. Stokes v. Deery, 1 Beat. 152. BANKCY. ASSIGNEES.

There may be a distinction between an assignee commencing an original suit, and continuing one commenced by the bankrupt. Id. 156.

PORTIONS.

Limitations and devises of portions for children are not affected by 1 W. 4. c. 47. as to traders, 1 W. 4. c. 47. s. 5. FRAUDLT. CONVEYANCE.

POSSESSION.

Three defendants were ordered to deliver up to a ceiver certain premises, within a week, or in default to stand committed; but no writ of execution was taken out; they refused to deliver up, and a serjeant at arms was ordered to go against them. Upon being brought up, two of them expressed contrition, and were ordered to be discharged, upon payment of costs; the third still persisting in his contempt, was committed to the Fleet; the costs not being paid by the other two, they remained in custody of the serjeant; the orders were, upon motion, discharged with costs, and the persons liberated. Upon a motion, subsequently, that the defendants might be ordered to deliver up possession within a week after service of the writ of execution of the order to be made on that application; the court stated the course of proceeding to be, that there must be, first, an order to deliver possession, then a writ of execution of that order must be served on the defendants; and until that is done, no further order can be made, and refused the motion with costs. Green v. Green, 2 Sim. 394. & 430. PR. RECEIVER; PR. PROCESS.

POSTHUMOUS CHILDREN.

A testator devises his real and personal property to trustees, upon trust for four children of M D, whom he described by their respective names, "together with every other children of the body of M D, alive at my decease, or born within nine months afterwards, share and share alike." M D had two other children born after the date of the will, but before the date of a codicil to it, and these as well as the four previously born, were all illegitimate. The children born after the date of the will are not entitled to any share of the property. Mortimer v. West, 3 Russ. 370. WILL, C. OF, WHO ENTITLED; BASTARD.

POWER.

Illusory execution of power shall be valid at law and equity, 1 W. 4. c. 46. s. 1. provided that nothing in act shall affect any provision in deed, &c. creating such power, which shall declare amount of share from which no object of power shall be excluded. Id. s. 2.

A testator gave the interest of a fund to his widow for life, with a power of appointment amongst all his children, and in default of appointment, amongst all such children, with a gift over to the widow, in case all the children should die before their shares should become payable; the widow appointed the fund to her two children, one of whom died in her lifetime: Held, that the survivor took the whole fund. Rielesfield v. Record, 2 Sim. 354. WILL, C. OF, WHO TAKE.

Testator gave 3000*l.* to trustees, for C S for life; remainder to such persons as she should appoint. C S by her will disposed of all her personal estate, and then gave all sums, messuages, &c. and other interest to which she was entitled under the testator's will. Held, that the latter gift was a good execution of the power. Maples v. Brown, 2 Sim. 327.

A feme covert, described as such in the will of the testator, may, during the coverture execute by deed, a power of disposition given her by the will, over real and personal estate. Downes v. Timperon, 4 Russ. 334. HUSBAND & WIFE, HER POWER DURING COVERTURE.

Where a donor recommends or directs that the donee, at her death, shall give personal property to such of his family, or such of his relations as he shall think fit, the donee has a power to select the objects of her bounty amongst his relations or family, though not within the degree of next of kin. But if the donee does not exercise the power, the word "relations" or the word "family," will be construed "next of kin," unless the special expressions of the donee have a different import. Grant v. Lynam, 4 Russ. 209. WILL, C. OF, WHO TAKE.

A gift of personal estate to the wife for life, with a direction that, after her death, one moiety thereof shall be at her entire disposal, either by will, or otherwise, amounts only to an estate for life in the wife, with a power of appointment. The sale by the widow of a sum of three per cent. stock, which constituted nearly the whole of the residue, and the investment of the proceeds in the purchase of long annuities in her own name, does not amount to an exercise of her power. Reith v. Seymour, 4 Russ. 263. WILL, C. OF, WHAT ESTATE; POWER TO APPOINT ESTATE FOR LIFE.

Where a feme covert having separate property, joins in a security for money advanced to her husband, the court acts upon it not as an agreement to charge her separate property, but as an equitable appointment under the settlement, to be satisfied from the rents and profits of that property, and not by sale or mortgage. Field v. Soule, 4 Russ. 112. AGREEMENT, WHO MAY CONTRACT.

A will is deemed a good execution of a power if it dispose of the power, although it does not refer to the power. The subject of the power will pass by the words of "all other my property" if it be plain from other expressions in that will, that under these general words she considered the property under the power to be included. Walker v. Mackie, 4 Russ. 71.

A general devise of all lands of which the testatrix had power to dispose, is not a good execution of a power to appoint monies which were to arise from the sale of lands. Adams v. Austen, 3 Russ. 461.

A plaintiff ought never to come into a court of equity to have an alleged defect in the execution of a power supplied, without admitting on the record, that at law the power has not been well executed. Cockerell v. Cholmely, 3 Russ. 565.

Where under a settlement a testator had in a certain event the fee of an estate subject to a term, and had under the same settlement a power in the particular event to appoint the fee subject to the term by deed or will, and by his will he devised the estate in fee without reference to his power, the will takes effect as a devise of his interest, and not as an execution of his power. By the same agreement he had, in the events which happened, a power to appoint a sum of 1000*l.*, which was to be raised after his death, by the term to which the fee of the same estate was subject, but his will took no notice whatever of this power; the devise of the estate does not operate as an execution of the power to appoint the 1000*l.* Farmer v. Bredford, 3 Russ. 354.

PRACTICE.

I. ABATEMENT & REVIVOR.

A creditor who has proved his debt under a decree, is entitled to apply to the master for a summons on the receiver to account. Locke v. Ashe, 1 Hog. 143. PR. BILL, DISMISSAL OF.

No process prior to sequestration can be revived, after abatement by death of plaintiff. Collingham v. O'Reilly, 1 Hog. 49. PR. SEQUESTRATION.

Conditional decree will be revived against defendant, in case one plaintiff die; but not, if defendant dies. McGough v. Hunnington, 1 Hog. 23.

If suit has abated by death of co-plaintiff, defendant may enter a side-bar rule to dismiss bill with costs, unless plaintiff revives suit in eight days. Carey v. Davis, 1 Hog. 14.

Where a feme covert, having separate property, joins in a security for money advanced to her husband, the court acts upon it, not as agreement to charge her separate property, but as an equitable appointment under the settlement, to be satisfied from the rents and profits of that property, and not by sale or mortgage. The death of the husband after the filing of the bill, and before the hearing, makes no difference. Field v. Soule, 4 Russ. 112. HUSBAND & WIFE.

III. ANSWER.

Where answer is required by plaintiff, though bill is taken pro confesso, defendant shall remain in custody. 1 W. 4. c. 36. rule 12. PR. PRISONER; PR. BILL PRO CONFESSO.

As to defendant's in contempt putting in answer to avoid bill being taken pro confesso. 1 W. 4. c. 36. rule 10. PR. CONTEMPT; PR. BILL PRO CONFESSO.

Answer of prisoner to be taken by warden or gaoler. 1 W. 4. c. 36. rule 20. PR. PRISONER.

Defendant refusing to answer, as to the proceedings on taking bill pro confesso. 1 W. 4. c. 36. rule 13. PR. ANSWER.

An answer taken by commission will be taken off the file, if the jurat does not state where it was sworn. Kenny v. Costello, 1 Hog. 130.

Leave was given to the defendants to file a general demurrer, notwithstanding they had obtained an order for time to plead, answer, or demur, not demurring alone; the subpoena having been made returnable immediately, and no wilful delay being imputable to them. Att. Gen. v. Mayor, &c. of Carlisle, 2 Sim. 427. PR. DEMURRER.

A defendant who allows the exceptions taken to his answer, has six days to put in his further answer, and no process can be made available against him to enforce it in the mean time. Dee v. Scanlan, 1 Hog. 101.

A plaintiff who has joined in naming commissioners to take the defendant's answer, is not thereby prevented from issuing process for want of an answer, before the return day of the commission. Id. ib.

Defendant cannot before answer obtain reference to master, to inquire whether suit has been instituted for infant's benefit. St. John v. El. Beaborough, 1 Hog. 41. PR. REF. OF SUIT FOR INFANT'S BENEFIT.

A plaintiff may, at the same time, proceed to enforce an answer by the process of the court, and bring an action against the defendant and his sureties, on the bail-bond given to the sheriff under an attachment. Beddall v. Page, 2 Sim. 224. PR. BAIL; PR. ATTACHMENT.

Leave to file a supplemental answer, and set up a modus, after the cause has been set down for hearing, was refused, on the ground that it was impossible to put the plaintiff in the same situation as he would have been in, if this defence had been stated on the record in due time. Macdougall v. Purrier, 4 Russ. 486.

In the exchequer, a plaintiff is at liberty to refer an answer for impertinence, at any time before replication. Thomas v. Jones, 3 Y. & J. 184. PR. IN EXCHEQUER.

Form of exceptions for impertinence under the new orders. An exception fails, if any part of the passage included in it be not impertinent. Wagstaff v. Bryan, 1 Russ. & M. 30.

IV. APPEAL.

Where petition does not relate to an adjudication of property between subjects, but to the constitution of offices of the King's court, an appeal from the order made will not lie to the house of lords, but must be to the King in person. Exp. Frederick Shaw, 1 Beat. 33.

Where a case determined by the house of lords on an appeal, be sent back to this court to do what should be just, a part of the decree having been reversed; the question of costs is in the discretion of the court. Costs of the appeal in the particular case, ordered in favour of the party succeeding on the appeal, although only in part. Noel v. Ld. Henley, 12 Price, 100. PR. COSTS.

Order made to stay proceedings to enforce answer pending appeal to house of lords from an order, overruling demurrer. King of Spain v. Machado, 4 Russ. 560. PR. STAYING PROCEEDINGS.

A bill was filed by A against the executors of B, a tenant for life, unimpeachable of waste, in order to charge his personal estate for the value of ornamental timber, alleged to have been cut by him. The decree directed an account; but before the master had proceeded under it, all matters in difference were submitted to an arbitrator, appointed by the master, under an order by consent, and arbitration bonds were executed by the parties. The arbitrator having found a certain sum due to the plaintiff, an application was made to the court to enforce payment accordingly, when the defendant presented a petition of rehearing, which suspended the proceedings upon the award, and the bill on the rehearing was dismissed without any order being made respecting the award. Upon appeal against this decree, the house decided that the appeal must be withdrawn; that the parties must go before the chancellor, in order that the decree and award might be considered together: and a special order was made to that effect. Butler v. Kunnersley, 1 Bligh. N. S. 374. See Marg. Ormond v. Kunnersley, 5 Madd. 369., and 2 Simon & Stuart, 15. PR. REHEARING; PR. DECREE.

Decree varied on appeal in respect of costs only. Burkett v. Spray, 1 Russ. & M. 113.

A petition to appeal need not be presented to the King in council within a year after an appeal has been refused by the colonial court. President, &c. of Orphan Board v. Van Reepen, 1 Knapp. 83.

V. APPEARANCE.

Defendant refusing to appear, bill to be taken pro confesso. 1 W. 4. c. 36. rule 13. PR. BILL PRO CONFESSO.

The manner of proceeding if defendant do not enter appearance by a time certain to be named. 1 W. 4. c. 36. s. 3. If defendant refuse to appear, court may enter it for him. Id. ib.

Appearance may be put in for defendant, having privilege of parliament, on return of process of sequestration. Id. s. 12.

The entry of an appearance at the time the defendant serves notice of a motion to set aside process for want of an appearance on the ground of irregularity, is no waiver of the irregularity complained of, but the motion may be made before the appearance is entered. Halpin v. Hamilton, 1 Hog. 103. WAIVER.

No new fact can be introduced into a bill by amendment, without prejudice to process for want of an appearance or answer. Moffett v. Johnston, 1 Hog. 106. WAIVER; PR. BILL, AMENDMENT OF.

A plaintiff cannot move ex parte for an injunction, after he has served the defendant with subpoena, and the defendant has appeared. Perry v. Weller, 3 Russ. 519. PR. INJUNC. EX PARTE; PR. SUBPENA, SERVICE OF, EFFECT OF.

VI. ATTACHMENT.

Writ of attachment, when issued for contempt in not answering, and non est inventus returned, serjeant-at-arms to go. 1 W. 4. c. 36. rule 1.

It is a contempt of court to insult a suitor or his counsel while attending in the master's office. If such contempt is committed, the party will be attached at once, on the production of the master's certificate. French v. French, 1 Hog. 138. PR. CONTEMPT;

PR. MASTER, PROCEEDINGS BEFORE. Attachment is irregular, if sealed and delivered out by sealer before, though not parted with till after, requisite affidavit is filed. Gardner v. Rowe, 4 Russ. 578. PR. SEAL.

The order to renew an order for an attachment, must be conditional in the first instance. Creed v. Creed, 1 Hog. 91.

Party in cause will not be attached for not executing conveyance to purchaser, if his six clerk has not been previously served with a copy of it. Spunner v. Armstrong, 1 Hog. 33.

A plaintiff may, at the same time, proceed to enforce an answer by the process of the court, and bring an action against the defendant and his sureties on the bail-bond given to the sheriff under an attachment. Beddall v. Page, 2 Sim. 224. PR. BAIL; PR. ANSWER.

An attachment, sealed after an order for time had been obtained, but before it is served, is regular. Hewes v. Hewes, 4 Russ. 508. PR. SEAL.

VIII. BAIL.

A plaintiff may at the same time proceed to enforce an answer by the process of the court, and bring an action against the defendant and his sureties, on the bail bond given to the sheriff under an attachment. Beddall v. Page, 2 Sim. 224. PR. ANSWER; PR. ATTACHMENT.

X. BILL, AMENDMENT.

In what cases bill may be amended without discharging contempt. 1 W. 4. c. 36, rule 10. PR. CONTEMPT, DISCHARGE FROM.

A bill may be amended without prejudice to process, if it appear that the amendment would not affect the rights of the parties against whom there is process. Bennett v. Laurence, 1 Hog. 149.

The thirteenth order does not apply to the case of an answer filed before the first day of Easter term, 1828. Harris v. Harrison, 2 Sim. 431.

An order for liberty to amend the bill cannot be obtained without notice, if there has been a conditional order to dismiss the bill, or the defendant has filed a rejoinder. Molony v. Molony, 1 Hog. 117.

The original bill must be dismissed as against those defendants who are not retained before the court as parties to the amended bill. Sheppard v. Osbourne, 1 Hog. 126. PR. BILL, DISMISSAL OF.

No new fact can be introduced into a bill by amendment, without prejudice to process for want of an appearance or answer. Moffett v. Johnston, 1 Hog. 106. WAIVER.

Plaintiff may make formal amendment after issue joined and witnesses examined. Franklin v. Beamish, 1 Hog. 72.

Motion for liberty to amend injunction bill, must be on notice and founded on affidavit, stating what new matter is, and that it came to plaintiff's knowledge after bill was filed, or else on exceptions to defendant's answer either ruled or allowed by notice. Donagall v. Berry, 1 Hog. 46. PR. INJUNC.

Plaintiff will be allowed to amend his bill without prejudice to a conditional decree of sequestration, by adding new parties, provided no new case is made against them. Magenant v. Wilson, 1 Hog. 48.

An order to extend the injunction to stay trial cannot be obtained after an order to amend. Brown v. Reina, 3 E. & F. 389. PR. INJUNCTION TO STAY TRIAL.

In general, under the thirteenth order, a motion for leave to amend a bill which has been previously amended, must be made on motion. • Freem v. Best, 1 Russ. & M. 79. PR. MOTION, NOTICE OF.

Formal amendments will be permitted to be made without notice, though the bill has been amended previously. Smith v. Evans, 1 Russ. & M. 80. 1b.

A second order giving the plaintiff leave to amend made upon an ex parte application. Cottingham v. Potts, 1 Russ. & M. 81. 1b.

A second order to amend obtained by petition, of course is irregular, though obtained before answer. Turleton v. Dyer, 1 Russ. & M. 1. PR. PETITION.

It is irregular to obtain an order to amend, when more than six weeks have elapsed from the time when the answer of all the defendants who are stated to be within the jurisdiction, is to be deemed sufficient, though no answer has been filed by another person alleged to be out of the jurisdiction, against whom process is prayed, when he shall come within the jurisdiction. Id. 7.

The acceptance of the twenty-shillings cost by the clerk in court of the defendant, is a waiver of the irregularity of a second order obtained as of course. Id. 1. S. P. Hair v. Woodbridge, id. 5. (n). WAIVER; PR. COSTS, PAYMENT AND EFFECT OF.

When bill is filed, a second amendment cannot take place without a special motion under 13th Gen. Ord. 3d April, 1828. Turleton v. Dyer, and Barnes v. Wilson, 1 Russ. & M. 1. GEN. ORD., C. OF.

XI. BILL PRO CONFESSO.

Bill to be taken pro confesso against persons with privilege of parliament, in default of answer. 1 W. 4. c. 36. rule 13, MEMBERS OF PARLIAMENT.

Defendant refusing to appear, bill to be taken pro confesso. 1 W. 4. c. 36. rule 13. PR. APPEARANCE.

See 1 W. 4. c. 36. as to taking bills pro confesso.

As to taking bill pro confesso against prisoner for misdemeanour, see 1 W. 4. c. 36. PR. PRISONER.

Petition to rehear on cause taken pro confesso, to be made within six months after copy of decree served. 1 W. 4. c. 36. s. 6. PR. REHEARING; PR. PETITION.

Defendant refusing to answer, as to the proceedings, on taking bill pro confesso. 1 W. 4. c. 36. rule 13. PR. ANSWER.

Where plaintiff requires an answer, though bill is taken pro confesso, defendant shall remain in custody. 1 W. 4. c. 36. rule 12. PR. ANSWER; PR. PRISONER.

As to defendant in contempt putting in answer to avoid bill being taken pro confesso. 1 W. 4. c. 36. rule 10. PR. ANSWER; PR. CONTEMPT.

XIII. BILL, DISMISSAL OF.

A creditor who has proved his debt under a decree is entitled to apply to the master for a summons on the receiver to account. Locke v. Asha, 1 Hog. 143. PR. ABATEMENT & REVIVOR.

An application by the plaintiff at the hearing to dismiss the bill without costs, the defendant having become insolvent after the bill filed, refused, as the plaintiff, when he discovered the insolvency, instead of applying to dismiss the bill without costs, filed a supplemental bill, still seeking relief against the defendant personally, thereby adopting and continuing the original suit. Such an application at the hearing was quite irregular; it ought to have been the subject of special application on notice. Drought v. Robinson, 1 Beat. 87. INSOLVENCY.

Where a receiver had been appointed before decree in a foreclosure cause, and the master reported in what manner he should apply the rents, the court has not thereby acquired such a dominion over the suit, that it can prevent the plaintiff from dismissing the bill with costs; an order obtained by a defendant, who could derive no benefit from the suit, discharging the order of dismissal, reversed on appeal. But although the defendant had not answered, yet allowed the costs in the cause. White v. Lord Westmeath, 1 Beat. 174.

In that class of cases in which, to avoid multiplicity of suits, one person is allowed to sue on behalf of himself and all others in the same interest, the plaintiff cannot dismiss his bill after a decree, because such a decree not only provides for the rights of himself, but of all others who choose to come in and take the benefit of it, but the rule only applies to suits in which a decree has been pronounced. Id. 177.

The original bill must be dismissed as against those defendants who are not retained before the court as parties to the amended bill. Sheppard v. Osborne, 1 Hog. 126. PR. BILL, AMENDMENT OF.

Person named as defendant in prayer for process may appear and answer, without service of subpoena, and when the time has expired, enter rule to dismiss bill for want of prosecution. Hume v. Babington, 1 Hog. 8.

Where a defendant, after having given notice of a motion which was never made, dismissed the bill for want of prosecution, the court discharged an order obtained by the plaintiff to compel the defendant to pay costs of motion, of which notice had been given as being a motion abandoned. Farquharson v. Pitcher, 4 Russ. 510.

If a defendant who is in a situation to dismiss a bill by an order of course, for want of prosecution after replication filed, does not avail himself of his right, but permits the plaintiff to file interrogatories and examine witnesses, he cannot afterwards dismiss the bill for want of prosecution, and an order of dismissal subsequently obtained will be discharged for irregularity. Fernes v. Hutchinson, 1 Russ. & M. 22. WAIVER.

At the hearing of a cause the bill will be dismissed, if there be no evidence against a defendant, although upon a motion for an injunction, a case was made against him, on which an ex parte injunction was sustained. Barfield v. Kelly, 4 Russ. 355. PR. HEARING.

A defendant may dismiss a bill for want of prosecution, pending a notice given by him to a motion to dissolve an injunction, which the plaintiff had obtained. Farquharson v. Pitcher, 3 Russ. 383. PR. INJUNC., MOTION TO DISSOLVE.

XIV. BILL OF INTERPLEADER.

The plaintiff in an interpleading suit, who has not applied for an injunction, will not be ordered to bring in the property in dispute on the application of one of the defendants. Clindennin v. O'Keefe, 1 Hog. 118. PR. PAYMENT INTO COURT.

A testator having bequeathed a legacy to trustees in trust, to invest it on government or good security, and to pay the interest to a woman for life, and after her death, to distribute the principal among certain persons, the executors and the trustees agreed, that a bond debt of equal amount, which was due to the testator, should be appropriated to the payment of the legacy, and communicated this arrangement to the obligor of the bond, who for many years paid the interest to the tenant for life, with the privity of the trustees: afterwards the surviving trustee of the legacy gave notice to the debtor not to pay the money to the executors, who, on the other hand, commenced an action upon the bond; the debtor having filed a bill of interpleader the executors demurred, but the demurrer was overruled. Wright v. Ward, 4 Russ. 215.

Warehousemen being private agents, and not holding goods as the possessors of a public bonded warehouse, cannot maintain a bill of interpleader; but where goods are deposited in a public bonded warehouse, a bill of interpleader may be maintained against contending claimants. Cooper v. De Tustet, 1 TamL 177. BAILEE.

In an interpleading suit the court will order the money which has been brought in by the plaintiff to be paid to a person having authority from all the defendants to receive it, though some of the defendants have not appeared, and for that purpose a reference will be directed to the master, to inquire whether a sufficient authority to receive the money has been given. Pourell v. Sonnet, 3 Russ. 556. PR. PAYMENT OUT OF COURT; PRINC. & AGENT.

XXII. COMMISSION TO ASCERTAIN BOUNDARIES.

Where a plaintiff shews a title to some land, and a confusion of boundaries, he is entitled to a commission or an issue; in this case a commission was directed. Godfrey v. Littell, 1 TamL 221. and see cases in note, id. 234, 5, 6.

In order to sustain a bill for a commission to ascertain boundaries, the plaintiff must establish by the admission of the defendant, or by evidence, a clear legal title to some land in the possession of the defendant, and also a ground for equitable relief; and where the quantity of the land of the plaintiff in the possession of the defendant is doubtful upon the evidence, the court will direct a commission or an issue, as will best answer the justice of the case. S. C. 1 Russ. & M. 59.

* COMMISSION IN AID.

To obtain an order for commission in aid of an inquiry in relation to a receiver's securities, there must be an affidavit, that the witnesses intended to be examined, were expected to give material evidence: any party to an enquiry who unnecessarily sues out a commission, must pay the costs of it in any event. Donovan v. Thompson, 1 Hog. 150.

XXIV. COMMISSION OF REBELLION.

Demurrer may be filed by party in contempt, if commission of rebellion has not issued against him. Taaffe v. Redington, 1 Hog. 28. PR. DEMURRER; PR. CONTEMPT.

XXVIII. CONTEMPT.

In what cases bill may be amended without discharging contempt. 1 W. 4. c. 36. rule 10. PR. BILL; AMENDMENT, EFFECT OF.

As to defendant in contempt putting in answer to avoid bill being taken pro confesso. 1 W. 4. c. 36. rule 10. PR. ANSWER; PR. BILL; PRO CONFESSION.

When defendant who is very poor is in contempt, how to be dealt with. 1 W. 4. c. 36. rule 6.

In what cases court may compulsorily discharge defendants from contempt. Id. rule 18.

Register of names of persons committed for contempt by court of equity to be kept by warden of Fleet. Id. ib.

Costs of contempt are within provision of insolvent acts. 1 W. 4. c. 36. rule 1. PR. COSTS; INSOLVENTS.

The court will not entertain a motion for the discharge of a defendant from custody under an attachment for contempt in not producing deeds, papers, &c. before the master, on an affidavit, that the defendant has not, nor ever had, any such in his possession, or within his power; such an application refused with costs: the course is to leave an affidavit in the master's office, when, on obtaining his certificate, the defendant will be discharged as a matter of course. It was made part of the terms of a subsequent successful application for the defendant's discharge, that he should pay the costs of that application, and of the previous irregular motion. Hurd v. Partington, 12 Price, 689.

Party in contempt will not be heard to contradict statements in bill, or state any new facts in his defence; but he may show to court that plaintiff has not made sufficient case upon his own documents for the relief he seeks, or that his proceedings are irregular. — v. Gurt, 1 Hog. 77.

Defendant who has appeared, but is in contempt, is not entitled to notice of motion for receiver. Fitzpatrick v. Hawkshaw, 1 Hog. 82. PR. RECEIVER; PR. MOTION, NOTICE OF.

Demurrer may be filed by party in contempt, if commission of rebellion has not issued against him. Taaffe v. Redington, 1 Hog. 28. PR. DEMURRER; PR. COMMISSION OF REBELLION.

A party who is in contempt for disobedience to an order in a cause, is not thereby precluded from making a motion in another cause having reference to a distinct subject, though between precisely the same parties. Semble. Clark v. Dew, 1 Russ. & M. 103. PR. MOTION.

It is a contempt of court to insult a suitor or his counsel while attending in the master's office; if such contempt is committed, the party will be attached at once, on the production of the master's certificate. French v. French, 1 Hog. 138. PR. MASTER, PROCEEDINGS BEFORE; PR. ATTACHMENT.

XXIX. COPIES.

Office copies of bill not to be taken by a poor defendant. 1 W. 4. c. 36. rule 14.

XXX. COSTS.

Costs of contempt are within provisions of insolvent acts, 1 W. 4. c. 36. rule 1. INSOLVENTS; PR. CONTEMPT.

How costs under act 1 W. 4. c. 65. as to property of lunatics &c. infants and femes covert are to be paid. 1 W. 4. c. 65. s. 36.

The rule that a party in possession of a judgment of an inferior court, shall not, on appeal, pay the costs of the reversal of the judgment, does not apply to the reversal on an appeal by a purchaser of an order at the rolls, setting aside a sale of the goods. Fisher v. Barry, 1 Beat. 130.

After an action brought, the plaintiff receiving payment of his demands, may go on to a trial, if the costs then incurred are not tendered. But equity acts on a more discretionary rule than a court of law; if the sum received by the plaintiff had satisfied the whole purpose of the suit, he ought to apprise the defendant that he would proceed for his costs, unless they were also paid. Under decrees for specific performance, the vendee considered as entitled to his costs, up to the time when the vendor evidences a good title; when that is done, the vendee is bound to declare that he is satisfied, and will accept the title if the vendor will pay his costs up to that time: if he omit to do so, the court will fix all the subsequent costs on him. Lill v. Robinson, 1 Beat. 84.

Where a case determined by the house of lords on an appeal, be sent back to this court to do what should be just; a part of the decree having been reversed, the question of costs is in the discretion of the court. Costs of the appeal in the particular case ordered in favour of the party succeeding on the appeal, although only in part. Noel v. Ld. Henley, 12 Price, 700. PR. APPEAL.

The master of the rolls, in a suit by the assignees of a bankrupt against a trustee of a fund contingent on the event of the bankrupt surviving his father, which event happened after the bankruptcy, having made a decree in favour of the plaintiff, would not make the trustee pay costs, he having acted in ignorance. Knight v. Martin, 1 Tamil. 237. S. C. 1 Russ. & M. 70. TRUSTEE LIABILITY.

When costs are given against a party, he must pay the costs of his antagonist when taxed as between party and party. Kirkwood v. Lyons, 1 Hog. 116.

The plaintiff's costs of obtaining an order for the investment of money are costs in the cause. Brennan v. Nolan, 1 Hog. 130.

Next friend of infant plaintiff cannot be compelled to give security for costs. St. John v. El. Besborough, 1 Hog. 41. PR. PROCHAIN AMI.

Plaintiff in cross bill will not be compelled to give security for costs, though residing out of jurisdiction. Thornton v. Wilson, 1 Hog. 20.

Plaintiff who resides as judge in one of colonies, will not be compelled to give security for costs. Stanley v. Hume, 1 Hog. 12. OFFICERS PUBLIC.

An heir at law questioning the sanity of his ancestor, is entitled to an issue devisavit vel non, and if he fails, will not be compelled to pay costs, if the circumstances justified him in trying the issue; but costs will not be allowed him. Smith v. Dwyer, 3 Y. & J. 278. PR. ISSUE DEVISAVIT VEL NON; HEIR AT LAW.

Where there was a decree with costs against three persons, and during the progress of the taxation one of them died, it was held the master was regular in proceeding with the taxation and making his certificate, notwithstanding the two survivors objected that the suit was abated. Meredith v. Hughes, 3 Y. & J. 188. DEATH.

Where an equitable mortgagee applies for leave to bid at the sale of mortgaged premises, the practice is for him to pay the costs of the application. Exp. Robinson, 1 Mont. & M. 261. MORTGAGE. AND MORTGAGE; BANKCY. SALE; EQUITABLE MORTGAGES.

Where a defendant, after having given notice of a motion, which was never made, dismissed the bill for want of prosecution, the court discharged an order obtained by the plaintiff to compel the defendant to pay costs of motion, of which notice had been given, as being a motion abandoned. Farquharson v. Pitcher, 1 Russ. 410. PR. BILL, DISMISSAL OF.

The husband's costs of making a settlement on a female ward, who had been married without consent, were allowed, he having no property, and there being no circumstances of aggravated misconduct on his part. Anon. 4 Russ. 423. PR. FUND IN COURT; MARRIAGE OF WARD OF COURT; HUSB. & WIFE.

Where a cestui que trust, having a life interest only, is declared entitled to his costs out of the trust property; the court will not give him a mere lien on it to be enforced by subsequent proceedings; but will direct an immediate sale for the purpose of defraying them. Burkett v. Spray, 1 Russ. & M. 113.

A trustee refusing to pay a legacy without the direction of the court, in a case which admits of no doubt, was refused his costs, but was not made to pay the costs of the suit, because he might have acted from ignorance, and not from any improper motive. Knight v. Martin, 1 Russ. & M. 70. S. C. 1 Tamil. 237. TRUSTEE, LIABILITY.

Seemingly, if a bill be dismissed at the hearing, with costs, and the plaintiff be then out of the jurisdiction, and the plaintiff's suit be so frivolous and vexatious, that the bill could not have been filed bona fide in expectation of a favourable decree; or if the solicitor of the plaintiff guarantee his client against the costs of the suit, the court upon the petition of the defendant, will compel the solicitor of the plaintiff to pay the taxed costs. Cockle v. Whiting, 1 Russ. & M. 43. PR. COSTS, TAXATION.

The costs of copies of deeds or documents not actually read at the hearing, but furnished by the parties to the court, are not allowed where they are personal costs, and do not come out of a fund. Boson v. Williams, 3 Y. & J. 378.

The acceptance of the 20s. costs by the clerk in court of the defendant, is a waiver of the irregularity of a second order obtained as of course. Tarleton v. Dyer, 1 Russ. & M. 1. S. P. Hair v. Woodbridge, id. 5 note. WAIVER; PR. ORDER TO AMEND.

Where there is a fair and substantial question to be argued on appeal, the decree may be varied as to costs, though affirmed in every other point; but it will not be varied as to costs, where the point which is presented as the ground of appeal has no substance. Att. Gen. v. Butcher, 4 Russ. 180.

The payment of a solicitor's bill pending a suit, does not preclude taxation. Howell v. Edmunds, 4 Russ. 67.

Where, upon a bill of redemption and foreclosure, the mortgagee assigns his mortgage after a decree for the usual accounts, the mortgagor is not to pay the costs of the supplemental bill, which is necessary to bring the assignee of the mortgagee before the court. Barry v. Wrey, 3 Russ. 465. MORTGAGE, ASSIGNMENT OF.

An executor or trustee is not to be allowed, without question, the amount of bills of costs which he has paid bona fide to the solicitor to the trust; and the master, without regularly taxing the bills, will moderate their amount. Johnson v. Telford, 3 Russ. 477. ACCOUNT, ALLOWANCE; EXOR. LIAB. OF.

A bill of costs was delivered by the solicitor in 1809, and shortly afterwards paid by the client: between that time and March, 1817, four other bills were delivered, and various payments were made on account: in November, 1817, a sixth bill was delivered, when the client paid the general balance due on the bills of costs, at the same time stating that he would insist on having the bills taxed. An application for taxation to a judge at law in 1818, and an application to the court of K. B. in 1819, failed, from circumstances not involving the merits of the question. Some attempts at a compromise were made from time to time, and the client was obliged, on three or four occasions, to leave England, in order to attend to urgent business in foreign countries; but at length, in 1824, a motion was made to have the bills referred for taxation, supported by evidence that some of the items of charge were improper. The court ordered that the bill last delivered should be taxed generally, and that the five antecedent bills should be referred to the master, with a direction that the client should deliver to the solicitor a schedule of the items complained of, and that the master should exercise as large a discretion as he might think fit, with respect to the evidence on which he should proceed in forming his judgment concerning these items. Seagull v. Campbell, 3 Russ. 545.

If an heir at law, alleging insanity in a deviser, file his bill against the devisee, and he fail in the issue devisavit vel non, he shall pay the costs of the issue, but not the costs of the suit, unless he might have asserted his claim by ejectment, and then his suit will be deemed vexatious, and he will be ordered to pay the costs of it. Scaife v. Scaife, 4 Russ. 309. HEIR AT LAW; PR. ISSUE DEVISAVIT VEL NON.

In a suit for specific performance by a vendor, the costs will be thrown upon the purchaser, though the master reports that a good title was not shewn till after the filing of the bill, if that finding proceeded on the ground that certain evidence had not been previously furnished, which the vendor had offered to produce, but which had not been actually produced, before the institution of the suit, in consequence of the purchaser insisting upon other and unsubstantial objections. Long v. Collier, 4 Russ. 269.

Security for costs will be required from an officer in the service of the E. I. Comp. Powell v. Bernard, 1 Hog. 144. E. I. COMP.; PUBLIC OFFICERS.

A purchaser under a decree has no lien for his costs on the funds in court, arising out of the sales of other property, so as to prevent any distribution of the fund, until the report of the title being had has been confirmed. McCann v. O'Farrell, 1 Hog. 137. VEND. & PURCH. LIEN; PR. SALE'S JUDICIAL.

The costs of opposing a motion for further time to answer, will not be given where the motion is granted on special facts verified by affidavit, showing that the application is necessary, and that the defendant is in no default. Wynne v. Ld. Farnham, 1 Hog. 134.

Where, after bill of foreclosure filed, plaintiff becomes insolvent, costs of assignee, afterwards made defendant, must be paid by plaintiff; he cannot throw them on mortgagor. Horan v. Wooloughan, 1 Beat. 1.

Plaintiff prosecuting, to a decree, a suit for the arrears of an annuity under a will, after the arrears had been paid, entitled to the costs; the defendant not having tendered the costs up to the time of payment, and disputing by answer the will and making it necessary for the plaintiff to establish, by decree, the will. Plaintiff also entitled to the costs of defendant, the heir of a deceased trustee, who could not be co-plaintiff; but not to the costs of a necessary party, made a defendant by amendment, but omitted in the original bill. Lill v. Robinson, 1 Beat. 83.

XXXII. CREDITOR'S SUIT.

A judgment creditor, not a party, will not be allowed to proceed at law, if a receiver has been appointed in a creditor's suit, and a prior incumbrancer is a party. Thackaberry v. Christian, 1 Hog. 109. PR. INJUNCTION TO STAY PROCEEDINGS AT LAW; PR. RECEIVER.

Pendency of creditor's suit, in which a receiver has been appointed, is cause against allowing a puisne judgment creditor to proceed at law after death of co-mortor. Anon. 1 Hog. 69. LIS PENDENS; PR. INJUNCTION.

Where all creditors under a decree for sale, and for the master to advertise for all outstanding creditors to go in and prove their debts, had been paid their demands, the surplus produce of the sale ordered to be paid to the defendant, the debtor, upon making an affidavit that he had given no specific pledge or lien on the surplus fund, without further advertisement for creditors. St. Andrew v. Elderly, 1 Beat. 183.

XXXIII. CROSS BILL.

A cross bill will be taken off the file, if filed without a certificate by counsel. If the certificate of counsel has been subjoined, but the plaintiff has not filed the necessary affidavit, no subpoena to answer can issue. The same engrossment may be replaced on the file, when the certificate of counsel has been subjoined. Elliott v. Millet, 1 Hog. 125. BARRISTER; PR. SIGNATURE OF COUNSEL.

XXXIV. DECREE.

Decree pro confesso confirmed absolutely, if served, and no petition of rehearing within six months. 1 W. 4. c. 36. s. 6.

If decree is made on refusal of defendant to enter appearance, copy to be served on him if in custody, or forthcoming before process taken out. 1 W. 4. c. 36. s. 4.

Copy of decree pro confesso to be served upon persons returning, within seven years, within jurisdiction of court. 1 W. 4. c. 36. s. 5.

Creditors of mortgagor obtaining judgments between first and second mortgage, who did not come in to take the benefit of the decree of foreclosure, are bound by the decree, and cannot follow the estate in the hands of a purchaser, taking his title under the decree. Steele v. Philips, 1 Beat. 188.

Decree of foreclosure against an administrator, pendente lite, plaintiff knowing limited character in which administrator represented mortgagor, and that there were persons claiming the beneficial title to estate, not parties to suit, merely forecloses administrator pendente lite. Sale directed by decree of foreclosure to be made in a month, on the consent of administrator pendente lite; not binding on persons beneficially entitled to the estate, not parties in the suit. Ellis v. Deane, 1 Beat. 5. ADMINISTRATOR PENDENTE LITE.

Decree of foreclosure, the proceedings and sale under it set aside as fraudulent, the res geste of the parties concerned, affording conclusive evidence of a contrivance to use the process of the court to effect fraudulent sale, to obtain the estate under colour of pursuing the legitimate right to recover a debt. Id. ib.

A man, though no party to decree, may preclude himself from aid of a court of equity, if he knowingly allowed parties to proceed under it, and uses unreasonable delay in bringing forward his complaint; but every case of this kind depends on its own circumstances. Id. 21.

An application by creditors, whose debts, secured by a trust-deed, had been established by decree of the court of chancery in England, to appoint a receiver over the trust estates, in possession of defendant the debtor, refused: it being doubtful as the record was framed, whether at the hearing of the cause, the plaintiffs would be entitled to a decree; for the record to carry the English decree into execution, was so imperfectly framed, that the defendant, by joining issue on the original record, would be at liberty to impeach the securities so established; which he could not do on a bill filed solely and exclusively to aid the execution of the English decree. Houlditch v. Ld. Donegal, 1 Beat. 146. DEBTOR AND CREDITOR; PR. RECEIVER.

A conditional decree on sequestration cannot be amended if erroneous. M'Alister v. Savage, 1 Hog. 81. PR. SEQUESTRATION.

Purchaser under decree, with notice of judgments intervening between incumbrances ordered to be paid, is bound by them, unless persons to whom they are vested are parties to cause, or come in and prove under decree. Steele v. Phillips, 1 Hog. 49. VENDOR AND PURCH.

When a court of equity is called upon to carry into execution a former decree, it is not bound to do so, if upon inquiry into the merits, it appears to have been erroneous. White v. Parnter, 1 Knapp. 179.

A testator gave his property, after the death of his wife to trustees, in trust to pay the interest and profits to his two daughters J and E, to their separate use, with a direction to pay to and apply for the benefit of A, the son of E, 200*l.* annually, when he attained the age of twenty-one years, and before that period, such part of the 200*l.* bequeathed to him, as might be judged proper; he then gave his daughter power to dispose of the principal by will to their children or grandchildren respectively, "except that proportion of principal given to E, and from which the interest is to arise to my grandson, namely, 4000*l.* which sum shall be my grandson's property," and in case either of the daughters died without issue, he limited her share of the fund over to the other daughter, her children or grandchildren. The executrix having, in mistake, made payments to A, in respect of his annuity for two years before he attained twenty-one, was entitled to retain them out of the future payments of the annuity. An order, authorising her to retain them, and made upon petition after the decree had been passed, and entered as regular. Livesey, v. Livesey, 3 Russ. 287. S. C. in part reversed, id. 542. EXORS. RIGHT TO RETAIN; REIMBURSEMENT; PR. PETITION; PR. ORDER.

Where a suit has been decreed to be dismissed, the decree, in the exchequer, contains the pleadings at full length, contrary to the practice in chancery, where only a short order for dismissal is drawn up. The lord chief baron intimated his intention of considering the subject. Bacon v. Williams, 3 Y. & J. 378. PR. IN EXCHEQUER.

A bill was filed by A against the executors of B, a tenant for life unimpeachable of waste, in order to charge his personal estate for the value of ornamental timber, alleged to have been cut by him; the decree directed an account; but before the master had proceeded under it, all matters in difference were submitted to an arbitrator, appointed by the master, under an order by consent, and arbitration bonds were executed by the parties; the arbitrator having found a certain sum due to the plaintiff, an application was made to the court to enforce payment accordingly, when the defendant presented a petition of re-hearing, which suspended the proceedings upon the award, and the bill, on the re-hearing, was dismissed without any order being made respecting the award; upon appeal against this decree, the house decided that the appeal must be withdrawn; that the parties must go before the chancellor, in order that the decree and award might be considered together; and a special order was made to that effect. Butler v. Kynnersly, 1 Bligh, N. S. 374. PR. APPEAL; PR. RE-HEARING. See Mary. Ormond v. Kynnersly, 5 Mad. 369. 2 S. & S. 15.

XXXVI. DEMURRER.

Leave was given to the defendants to file a general demurrer, notwithstanding they had obtained an order for time to plead, answer, or demur; not demurring alone, the subpoena having been made returnable immediately, and no wilful delay being imputa-ble to them. Att. Gen. v. Mayor, &c. of Carlisle, 2 Sim. 427. PR. ANSWER.

The defendant may demur any time before he sues out a dedimus, or there is process against him to a commission of rebellion, or he obtains order for time to answer. Kenney v. Bodkin, 1 Hog. 68.

On argument of demurrer, plaintiff is bound by case stated in bill in relation to discovery sought; and will not be allowed to maintain his right to discovery, upon suggestion ore tenus at bar not consistent with case made. Little v. Archer, 1 Hog. 55.

Demurrer may be filed by party in contempt if commission of rebellion has not issued against him. Taaffe v. Robinson, 1 Hog. 28. PR. COMMISSION OF REBELLION; PR. CONTEMPT.

XXXVIII. EVIDENCE.

Bill taken pro confesso against defendant, having privilege of parliament, shall be read as an answer, admitting facts. 1 W. 4. c. 36. s. 14.

Affidavits of prisoners to be taken by warden or gaoler. 1 W. 4. c. 36. rule 20. PR. PRISONER.

An affidavit verifying a short-hand writer's notes of a trial at nisi prius, which involved the same question as is raised on a petition in bankruptcy, is wholly impertinent. Exp. Palmer, 4 Russ. 188.

The question being, whether the appointment of a curate belonged to the vicar of the parish or to a corporation; entries in old books of the corporation were not received as evidence against the vicar, to shew cause that the corporation had from time to time appointed the curate. Att. Gen. v. Warwick, 4 Russ. 222.

The statute of the 25 Geo. 2. c. 6. does not extend to wills of personal estate only, and a legacy to a person who is an attesting witness to such a will, is not void. Emanuel v. Constable, 3 Russ. 436. WILL, C. OF, WHO MAY TAKE; LEGACY; ESTATE, PERSONAL; STATUTE, C. OF.

Where a feme covert, having separate property, joins in a security for money advanced to her husband, the court acted upon it not as an agreement to charge her separate property, but as an equitable appointment under the settlement to be satisfied from the rents and profits of that property, and not by sale or mortgage. If the feme covert insists upon the exercise of undue influence by the husband, she must prove it, and it is for the plaintiff to prove a negative. Field v. Soule, 4 Russ. 112. HUSB. & WIFE; FRAUD, UNDUCE INFLUENCE.

The petition of a defendant prayed, that he might be at liberty to examine one of the plaintiffs as a witness. The plaintiffs were co-partners and had a common interest adverse to the petitioner. The petition was dismissed with costs. Fereday v. Wightwick, 4 Russ. 114. PR. PARTY, PLAINTIFF.

Where the obligor in a bond has obtained the common injunction to restrain the obligee from proceeding in an action, which has been commenced in his name by an assignee of the bond, the answer of the obligee cannot be read in opposition to a motion to dissolve the injunction made by the assignee. Montague v. Hill, 4 Russ. 128. PR. INJUNC.; DISSOLVING.

The rule that the purchaser of a reversion must prove that he gave a full price, has so long been considered as settled, that it can be altered only by the court of appeal. Hinckman v. Smith, 3 Russ. 493. HEIRS, EXPECTANT.

Where a cause cannot come on till after the following term, publication may be further enlarged until the first day of the term, on motion, without assigning any special reason. Vinter v. Bickley, 12 Price. 460.

Leave was given to exhibit an interrogatory, after publication passed, to prove the antiquity of the handwriting in an ancient book in the British Museum. Id. Kensington v. Pugh, 3 Y. & J. 378.

Where the answer of a defendant insists that a covenant was inserted without his knowledge or consent in a deed executed by him, and that the deed was not read over to him, and that the covenant is a fraud upon him, such deed cannot be proved vide note against him as an executor; but it may be so proved as against another defendant, whose answer does not impeach the validity of the covenant. Barfield v. Kelly, 4 Russ. 355. DREDS, IMPEACHMENT OF.

A son conveys an estate to his father nominally as purchaser, but really as a trustee, and in order that the father, who was in better credit than the son, might raise money upon it by way of mortgage for the use of the son. The father died shortly afterwards, and before any money was raised, having by a will subsequent to the conveyance made a general devise of all his real estate. The case is within the statute of frauds, and parole evidence is not admissible to prove the trust, but the son has a lien on the estate as vendor for the apparent consideration, no part of which was paid. Leman v. Whitley, 4 Russ. 423. PARENT & CHILD; TRUST; VENDOR & PURCH.; LIEN.

A person who is served with a subpoena ad testificandum in London, and is at the same time resident there, is not protected from arrest in the interval between the service of the subpoena and the day appointed for his examination. Semble, a witness who comes to London in order to be examined, is protected from arrest during the whole time that he remains in London bonâ fide, for the purpose of giving evidence. A witness is not protected in going three days before the day appointed by the examiner for his examination, to the solicitor's office to look at the interrogatories with a view to prepare himself to give his evidence accurately. Gibbs v. Phillipson, 1 Russ. & M. 19. PR. PRIVILEGE FROM ARREST.

If the plaintiff read a passage from the defendant's answer, as evidence of a particular fact, the defendant has no right to read subsequent matter connected with it by such words as "but" and "and," unless the subsequent matter be explanatory of the passage read by the plaintiff. Davis v. Spurling, 1 Russ. & M. 64.

Under the eighteenth of the new orders, publication may be enlarged on affidavit without notice. Brown v. Brown, 1 Russ. & M. 77. GEN. ORD., C. OF.

Parole evidence of collateral circumstances relating to the ages of the devisees, and the situation of the parties and to their being married or unmarried, is admissible in evidence for the purpose of construing a will. Lowe v. Id. Huntington, 4 Russ. 532.

An affidavit made by a defendant in a suit in the Exchequer, and sworn before a magistrate in Scotland was permitted to be read. Ellis v. Sinclair, 3 Y. & J. 273. SCOTLAND; PR. EVIDENCE; AFFIDAVIT.

In taking an account of the pecuniary transactions between an attorney and his client, the production of a bond entered into by the latter, is not sufficient evidence of a debt to that amount, and actual payment must be proved. Iqnes v. Morgan, 3 Y. & J. 230. SOL. & CLIENT; DEBT.

Party who makes out a proper case for it, will be allowed to examine witness after publication. Coates v. Coates, 1 Hog. 9.

Where personal interrogatories are filed, the party has four days to answer them, if he resides in town or within ten miles; or a month, if in country; further time can only be had on special application. Jordan v. McCreight, 1 Hog. 10.

Affidavit cannot be read pending a reference for profferty. St. John v. El. Beesborough, 1 Hog. 41. PR. MASTER, REF. AS TO PROFFERTY.

Practice in impeaching the credibility of a person who has made an affidavit in a cause. Creed v. Creed, 1 Hog. 105.

A demurrer to interrogatories must be verified by affidavit. Kirkwood v. Lyons, 1 Hog. 116.

Evidence taken in the court of Exchequer may be used between the same parties litigant in chancery. Magrath v. Veitch, 1 Hog. 127.

The court will not allow articles to impeach the credit of a person who has sworn an affidavit, unless the articles of impeachment are ready and produced in court. Roe v. Ashford, 1 Hog. 127.

The cross-examination of a witness should always commence as soon as the direct examination is finished. Beutage v. Beutage, 1 Hog. 98.

Plaintiff by cross-examining a defendant, as a witness by another defendant, waives any objection to his competency as interested, but not to his credit. Ellis v. Deane, 1 Beat. 5. WAIVER.

An answer to a bill for an injunction, which has been filed after the service of notice of a motion for an injunction, is no bar to the motion, and can only be used as an affidavit. Atkinson v. Collins, 1 Hog. 110. PR. INJUNC.

It is irregular to pass publication of depositions in aid of one day's notice. Noel v. Fitzgerald, 1 Hog. 135.

A party will not be allowed to re-examine a witness, whose memory has been refreshed since his examination closed, except as to documentary evidence. Id. ib.

XXXIX. EXCEPTIONS.

It is competent to the court on the hearing of exceptions, at the same time it allows an exception taken by the defendant, and directs the master to receive his report, generally to order the defendant to pay a sum of money into court, if it is satisfied that ultimately that sum will be found due from the defendant. Brown v. De Tastet, 4 Russ. 126. PR. PAYMENT INTO COURT.

XL. EXCHEQUER, PRACTICE IN.

Where a suit has been decreed to be dismissed, the decree in the exchequer contains the pleadings at full length, contrary to the practice in chancery, where only a short order for dismissal is drawn up. The lord chief baron intimated his intention of considering the subject. Brown v. Williams, 3 Y. & J. 378. PR. DECREE, FORM OF.

In the exchequer an answer filed at any time previous to the sitting of the court, may be shewn as a cause against a motion to extend the common injunction to stay trial. Snyde v. Crewdson, 3 Y. & J. 186. PR. INJUNC.

In the exchequer, a plaintiff is at liberty to refer an answer for impertinence at any time before replication. Thomas v. Jones, 3 Y. & J. 184. PR. ANSWER.

The court of exchequer does not direct a case for the opinion of a court of law, but only orders the matter to be heard before the whole court. Gaskell v. Gaskell, 3 Y. & J. 305. PR. ISSUES, &c. AT LAW

XLII. FUND IN COURT.

Persons who were found by the master to be the next of kin of the intestate, and were named by the court to be defendants, in a cause directed to try the rights of other persons who claimed to be the next of kin, were allowed a sum of 50*l.* out of the estate of the intestate, on giving security to account for it. Gregg v. Taylor, 4 Russ. 279.

In a suit for the administration of a testator's assets, which were more than sufficient to pay the legacies with interest, it was ordered that the master should ascertain one-fourth of what was due to each of the legatees for principal and interest in respect of their legacies, and that the same should be paid out of a fund in the cause: Held that the whole of the interest on the legacies was to be first paid, and then a part of the principal. Thomas v. Montgomery, 2 Sim. 348.

The husband's costs of making a settlement on a female ward, who had been married without consent, were allowed, he having no property, and there being no circumstances of aggravated misconduct on his part. Anon. 4 Russ. 473. PR. COSTS, WHAT FUND; HUSB. & WIFE; MARRIAGE OF WARD OF COURT.

The court, on the petition of the assignee of a reversion, will order the accountant-general not to transfer the stock, although the assignor has not been served with notice of the application. Salmon v. —, 1 Taml. 74. STOCK, TRANSFER OF.

XLV. HEARING.

At the hearing of a cause the bill will be dismissed, if there be no evidence against a defendant, although, upon a motion for an injunction, a case was made against him, on which an ex parte injunction was sustained. Barfield v. Kelly, 4 Russ. 355. PR. BILL, DISMISSAL OF.

A plaintiff must establish, at the hearing, that he had a title to relief at the time of filing his bill, or if he relies on matter subsequent, he must file a supplemental bill. Id. ib. PR. SUPPLEMENTAL BILL.

Where a person not a party to the suit, or interested in a question, and appears by counsel, and submits to be bound by the decision, the court would not hear him without the consent of the other parties to the suit. Bacon v. Bolland, 1 Russ. & M. 69. PR. PARTY, STRANGER.

XLVI. INJUNCTION.

An answer to a bill for an injunction which has been filed after the service of notice of a motion for an injunction, is no bar to the motion, and can only be used as an affidavit. Atkinson v. Collins, 110. 110. PR. EVID., ANSWER.

The court will not allow a person to bring an action at law, for damage for an improper arrest under an attachment, but will refer it to the master to enquire what compensation he ought to receive. Batchelor v. Blake, 1 Hog. 98. JURISDICTION.

A judgment creditor (not a party) will not be allowed to proceed at law, if a receiver has been appointed in a creditor's suit, and a prior incumbrancer is a party. Thackaberry v. Christian, 1 Hog. 109. PR. CRED.'S SUIT; PR. RECEIVER.

Course of practice for dissolving or continuing an injunction on the answer being filed. Cotigen v. Hinchley, 1 Hog. 45.

Motion for liberty to amend injunction, bill must be on notice, and founded on affidavit, stating what new matter is, and that it came to plaintiff's knowledge after bill was filed, or else on exceptions to defendant's answer, either ruled or allowed by notice. Donagall v. Berry, 1 Hog. 46. PR. BILL, AMENDMENT OF.

Pendency of creditor's suit, in which receiver has been appointed, is cause against allowing a puisne judgment creditor to proceed at law, after death of debtor. Anon. 1 Hog. 69. LIS PENDENS; PR. CRED.'S SUIT.

Leases for lives renewable for ever, will be enjoined from committing waste by cutting timber, if he allows a large arrear of rent to become due. White v. Nowlan, 1 Hog. 21. S. P. Pim v. Davies, 1 Hog. 11. TENANT FOR LIFE.

A motion to postpone the new trial of an issue, in a tithe suit, from the summer to ensuing assizes, on the ground that a report of the application for the new trial, and the decision of the judge granting it, in which he observed, that the verdict in the first trial was against the opinion of himself and the judge who tried it, had been recently published in the newspapers, and would influence the minds of the jury, especially as the issue would be tried before the same judge, was refused with costs. Willis v. Farren, 3 Y. & J. 381. See the application for the new trial. 3 Y. & J. 264. PR. ISSUE AT LAW.

An order to extend the injunction to stay trial cannot be obtained after an order to amend. Brown v. Reisen, 3 Y. & J. 389. PR. AMENDMENT, ORDER FOR.

In the exchequer, an answer filed at any time previous to the sitting of the court, may be shewn as a cause against a motion to extend the common injunction to stay trial. Snyde v. Crewdson, 3 Y. & J. 186. PR. IN EXCHEQUER.

A bankrupt, after the issuing of the commission and appointment of assignees, transferred French stock, his property, to his wife, who afterwards transferred it to her three sisters; under a settlement the wife had a power of appointment over a sum of money in the funds in England, which she exercised by will in favour of one of the sisters, and died in her husband's life time: the sister, who resided in France, took out administration with the will annexed: an injunction was granted to restrain the trustees, in whom this fund was vested, from transferring it, on the ground, that if the French stock should be proved to have been the property of the bankrupt, the assignees would have a claim upon the assets of the wife. Stead v. Clay, 4 Russ. 550. HUSB. & WIFE; BANKCY. ASSIGNMENT, WHAT PASSES.

The court will not grant an injunction, but will leave the plaintiff to seek his legal remedy, where the matter which is the subject of the alleged piracy forms but a very inconsiderable part of the plaintiff's work, and contains merely calculations, and when the work complained of has been published some years. Bailey v. Taylor, 1 Russ. & M. 73.

A plaintiff who complains of a piracy of his work, has no remedy in equity unless he establish a title to an injunction, and then the account will follow. Id. ib. COPYRIGHT; ACCOUNT.

Upon a bill against A and B partners, for an account, and an injunction to stay proceedings at law, the common injunction was obtained for want of an answer; an answer having been afterwards put in, exceptions were taken and some of them allowed. A, being in England, put in a further answer, admitting the facts on which the exceptions were founded; but B, being abroad, did not put in a further answer. A moved to dissolve the injunction, but the court refused the application because the other defendant had not answered. Prince v. Haylen, 3 Y. & J. 190. FINE AND RECOVERY.

B, the holder of certain bills accepted by F, attaches, by proceedings in the Ld. Mayor's court, in the hands of C, a large sum of money belonging to F: F filed a bill to restrain the action; a special injunction is granted; and the money is paid into court by the garnishee. B, by his answer, denies the whole of the equity suggested by the bill: held, that though the injunction must be dissolved, the money in court will not be paid out to B before he has obtained judgment in this action. Furnival v. Bogle, 4 Russ. 142.

PR. PAYMENT OUT OF COURT; PR. INJUNC. TO STAY PROC. AT LAW.

Whether the proceedings of an assignee in the name of the obligee are stayed by an injunction which restrains only the assignee, his counsellors and agents. Montague v. Hill, 4 Russ. 128.

Where the obligor in a bond has obtained the common injunction to restrain the obligee from proceeding in an action which has been commenced in his name by an assignee of the bond, the answer of the obligee cannot be read in opposition to a motion to dissolve the injunction made by the assignee. Id. ib. PR. EVID.; ANSWER.

Lands were devised to a trustee and his heirs to the use of A for life, without impeachment of waste, with divers remainders over; and a power was given to the trustee with the consent of the tenant for life in possession to sell the property or any part of it, and to lay out the money in the purchase of other lands, to be settled to the same uses, and in the meantime to invest it in the public funds, and for the purposes of such sale to revoke the original uses, and appoint new uses. A contract was entered into for the sale of the estate for 13,400*l.* exclusive of the timber, which was to be taken at a valuation; and it being conceived, that the tenant for life without impeachment of waste, was entitled to receive for his own benefit the amount of the valuation of the timber, a deed was executed by which he, in consideration of 2448*l.*, conveyed the timber to the purchaser; and the trustee, in consideration of 13,400*l.*, conveyed the land, exclusive of the timber. Many years afterwards, the tenant for life being advised that he was not entitled to the amount of the valuation of the timber, transferred to the trustee as much 3 per cent. stock as 2448*l.* would have produced at the time of the sale. After the death of A, the next remainder man, though he had concurred in proceedings in which the fund produced by the sale was treated as applicable to the purposes of the testator's will, brought a writ of formedon, and obtained judgment on the ground, that the power of sale was not well executed: held, that a court of equity ought not to interfere by injunction to deprive him of the benefit of that judgment. Cockerell v. Cholmeley, 3 Russ. 565.

A defendant may dismiss a bill for want of prosecution pending a notice given by him for a motion to dissolve an injunction which the plaintiff had obtained. Farquharson v. Pitcher, 3 Russ. 383. PR. BILL, DISMISSAL.

A plaintiff cannot move ex parte for an injunction after he has served defendant with subpoena and the defendant has appeared. Perry v. Weller, 3 Russ. 519. PR. APPEARANCE; PR. SUBPENA, SERVICE OF, EFFECT OF.

LIII. ISSUE AT LAW.

There being a question as to the local situation of the lands, and the extent of a grant to the defendant, and little or no evidence of speculation on either side, the court considered that they must be bound by the verdict of the jury. Ringrose v. Todd, 12 Price, 650.

Where, on an issue in a suit in equity for small tithes, instituted by a lay impropriator, claiming against persons who set up a title by grant in another, also claiming by lay title, to the tithe of the particular lands in their occupation; the jury found a verdict for the defendants; the court refused to disturb it, on motion for a new trial, made upon the ground that the evidence, chiefly documentary, was wholly with the plaintiffs, and that the learned judge had misdirected the jury in respect of the legal doctrine of presumption of right, as applied to tithe cases. Ringrose v. Todd, 12 Price, 650. PR. NEW TRIAL.

The court ordered a new trial of an issue directed in a tithe suit, where it appeared that the verdict had been obtained by surprise, and against the opinion of the judge. Willis v. Farrer, 3 Y. & J. 264. PR. NEW TRIAL.

An heir at law questioning the sanity of his ancestor, is entitled to an issue devisavit vel non, and, if he fails, will not be compelled to pay costs, if the circumstances justified him in trying the issue; but costs will not be allowed him. Smith v. Dearmer, 3 Y. & J. 278. HEIR AT LAW; PR. COSTS.

A motion to postpone the new trial of an issue in a tithe suit from the summer to the spring assizes, on the ground that a report of the application for the new trial, and the decision of the judge granting it, in which he observed, that the verdict in the first trial was against the opinion of himself and the judge who tried it, had been recently published in the newspapers, and would influence the minds of the jury, especially as the issue would be tried before the same judge: was refused with costs. Willis v. Farren, 3 Y. & J. 381. See the application for the new trial, 3 Y. & J. 264. PR. INJUNC. TO STAY TRIAL.

The court of exchequer does not direct a case for the opinion of a court of law, but only orders the matter to be heard before the whole court. Gaskell v. Gaskell, 3 Y. & J. 305. PR. DECREE OF FORCLOSURE, DAY TO SHEW CAUSE AGAINST; PRAC. IN EXCHEQ.

In a suit for tithes there was no proof of payment for a very long period; all the evidence which could tend to prove a legal exemption (claimed by the occupier) was adduced at the hearing; but as that would not, in the opinion of the court, justify a jury in finding for the exemption, an issue was refused. Ross v. Aglionby, 4 Russ. 489. TITHES.

Where two borrowed 10,000*l.* on the bond of themselves and A B, to whom they at the same time gave a bond in 12,000*l.*, the court would not decide the question whether the bond was a gift or not, but sent it to a jury. El. Winchelsea v. Garetty, 1 Taml. 63.

Circumstances under which a new trial of an issue devisavit vel non will be directed. A third trial of an issue devisavit vel non directed after two juries had found in favour of the will. Qu. Whether, in a question between a devisee and an heir at law, the court will bind the inheritance by the result of one trial? Winchelsea v. Wauchope, 3 Russ. 441. PR. NEW TRIAL.

Where a party wishes to obtain a new trial of an issue, he must first, on an ex parte application, satisfy the judge in equity that there is a reasonable ground for sending to the judge who tried the issue for his notes of the trial. Morris v. Davies, 3 Russ. 318. PR. NEW TRIAL.

If an heir at law, alleging insanity in a deviser, file his bill against the devisee, and he fail in the issue devisavit vel non, he shall pay the costs of the issue, but not the costs of the suit, unless he might have asserted his claim by ejectment, and then his suit will be deemed vexatious, and he will be ordered to pay the costs of it. Scaife v. Scaife, 4 Russ. 309. HEIR AT LAW; PR. COSTS.

LV. MASTER, PROCEEDINGS BEFORE.

It is a contempt of court to insult a suitor or his counsel while attending in the master's office. If such contempt is committed, the party will be attached at once, on the production of the master's certificate. French v. French, 1 Hog. 188. PR. ATTACHMENT; PR. CONTEMPT.

It is not the course of proceedings in the master's offices in England, in cases where tenant in tail of lands to be purchased with money applies to have the money paid out to him, to direct the master to advertise for outstanding creditors. The masters merely receive affidavits that the fund is not incumbered. St. Antonio v. Adderley, 1 Beat. 187.

There cannot be a re-letting of lands by the master, until the person declared tenant at the original letting is attached for not taking out lease, and the letting set aside. Cole v. Moncks, Moncks v. Moncks, 1 Hog. 128. LANDL. & TEN.

Quere, whether upon a petition objecting to a master's report of a receiver's accounts, the court will enter into a consideration of the particular items of the accounts, even where there is reason to doubt, whether as to some points, the conduct of a receiver has been strictly correct, further inquiry will not be ordered, where the attention of the parties has been previously directed to the subject, and ample opportunity of investigation afforded to them. Shewell v. Jones, 3 Russ. 522. PR. RECEIVER.

LVI. MASTER REFERENCE, &c.

Report stating, that it will be for infant's benefit, he being entitled to equity of redemption, that a suit to foreclose mortgage should be defended, it appearing by a receipt that the mortgage had been paid off is not correct. It should have stated, that bill should be filed to get rid of mortgage. Horan v. Wooloughan, 1 Beat. 1.

Motion for reference of title must be made on notice, if made by any of the parties to cause. M'Cann v. O'Farrell, 1 Hog. 121. PR. MOTION, NOTICE OF. Certificate of master is only conclusive when it certifies the performance of some judicial or ministerial act. Ld. Longford v. O'Reilly, 1 Hog. 83.

A motion for leave to except to the master's certificate of the taxation of costs was refused, and a petition directed. Boson v. Williams, 3 G. & J. 378. PR. PETITION; PR. MOTION.

Where the decree, among other things, refers it to the master, to appoint a new trustee, a certificate by the master of such appointment, is to be considered as a separate report. Harris v. Kemble, 4 Ru. 174.

Where the sole trustee in a will, to whom a term was devised, died in the testator's life-time, the court referred it to the master to appoint a new trustee, and to approve of a like demise. Devey v. Peace, 1 Tamil. 78. TRUSTEE.

The court will not usually make a reference, with respect to the maintenance of an infant retrospectively. Simon v. Barber, 1 Tamil 22. INFANT, MAINTENANCE.

The court will decide in the first instance, on alleged impertinence in affidavits sworn in bankruptcy, where the impertinence is of such a kind, that there would be nothing gained in point of convenience, by directing a reference to the master. Palmer v. Daniell, 4 Russ. 186.

Semble, a trustee under an old trust creating successive limitations of equitable interests, some of which had failed, is entitled before he can be required to convey, to have the equitable title of those who call for a conveyance, ascertained by inquiry, and to have the deed of conveyance settled in the master's office. Gooden v. Elliott, 3 Russ. 583.

The court will not, on the application of a tenant for life, direct an enquiry, whether it would be for the benefit of all parties interested in the property, that certain permanent and substantial improvements should be made in the mansion-house. Nairn v. Majoribanks, 3 Russ. 582.

LXII. ORDER.

Where transfers directed to be made, who to be named. 1 W. 4. c. 60. s. 32. BANK OF ENGLAND; STOCK, TRANSFER OF.

If court has once acquired jurisdiction over party in cause, he may be effectually served with any order in cause in any part of world. Anon. 1 Hog. 1. JURISDICTION.

A testator gave his property after the death of his wife to trustees, in trust to pay the interest and profits to his two daughters J and E to their separate use, with a direction to pay to and apply for the benefit of A, the son of E, 200*l.* annually when he attained the age of twenty-one years: and before that period such part of the 200*l.* bequeathed to him as might be judged proper; he then gave his daughter power to dispose of the principal by will to their children or grandchildren respectively, "except that proportion of principal given to E, and from which the interest is to arise, to my grandson, namely 4000*l.*, which sum shall be my grandson's property;" and in case either of the daughters died without issue, he limited her share of the fund over to the other daughter, her children or grandchildren. The executrix having, in mistake, made payments to A in respect of his annuity for two years before he attained twenty-one, was entitled to retain them out of the future payments of the annuity. An order authorising her to retain them, and made upon petition after the decree had been passed and entered as regular. Livesey v. Livesey, 3 Russ. 287. S.C. in part reversed, id. 542. EXORS. RIGHT TO RETAIN; REIMBURSEMENT; PR. DECREE; PR. PETITION.

LXIII. PARTY.

Where a person not a party to the suit is interested in a question and appears by counsel and submits to be bound by the decision, the court will not hear him without the consent of the other parties to the suit. Boxon v. Bolland, 1 Russ. & M. 69. PR. HEARING.

The petition of a defendant prayed that he might be at liberty to examine one of the plaintiffs as a witness; the plaintiffs were co-partners, and had a common interest adverse to the petitioner; the petition was dismissed with costs. Fereday v. Wightwick, 4 Russ. 114. PR. EVID. EXAMINATION OF PARTY TO CAUSE.

LXIV. PAUPER.

Relief granted to plaintiffs suing in forma pauperis in a cause occasioned by their own default, on the terms that as the recovery afforded the means of payment, they should pay direct costs out of the fruit of McDonough v. O'Flaherty, 1 Beat. 54.

In pauper suits the court will not compel a solicitor to act for the pauper; but the course is to assign to him counsel and a fix clerk, and it is the duty of the six clerk to appoint one of the sixty clerks of his office to act on the part of the pauper. Lewis v. Kennett, 3 Russ. 466.

LXV. PAYMENT, ORDER FOR.

The general order on tenant to pay the receiver need not be personally served. Donville v. Achmuty, 1 Hog. 129. PR. RECEIVER.

LXVI. PAYMENT INTO COURT.

By settlement, monies were directed to be laid out on government or real securities; the trustees having lent the money to the husband on bond, were ordered, on motion, to pay the money into court. Collis v. Collis, 2 Sim. 365. TRUSTEES, LIAB. OF.

The plaintiff in an interpleading suit who has not applied for an injunction, will not be ordered to bring in the property in dispute on the application of one of the defendants. Clindennin v. O'Keefe, 1 Hog. 118.

It is competent to the court on the hearing of exceptions, at the same time it allows an exception taken by the defendant, and directs the master to receive his report, generally to order the defendant to pay a sum of money into court, if it is satisfied that ultimately that sum will be found due from the defendant. Brown v. De Tastet, 4 Russ. 126.

LXVII. PAYMENT OUT OF COURT.

Vendor may acquire lien on fund in court under contract for sale, and if vendee refuses to complete contract, may prevent him by injunction from drawing out of court fund which was appropriated by contract to be applied in part payment of purchase-money. Doyne v. Hervey, 1 Hog. 3. VEND. & PURCH.; LIEN.

Money in court belonging to a married woman, if less than 200*l.*, will be paid to the husband, although she had been deserted by him, and she opposes the application. Foden v. Finney, 4 Russ. 428. HUSB. & WIFE, HER SEP. ESTATE.

B, the holder of certain bills accepted by F, attaches by proceedings in the lord mayor's court in the hands of C, a large sum of money belonging to F; having filed a bill to restrain the action, a special injunction is granted, and the money is paid into court by the garnishee. B, by his answer, denies the whole of the equity suggested by the bill: Held, that though the injunction must be dissolved, the money in court will not be paid out to B before he has obtained judgment in this action. Furnival v. Bogle, 4 Russ. 142. PR. INJUNC. TO STAY PRDC. AT LAW; PR. INJUNC. DISSOLUTION.

In an interpleading suit the court will order the money which has been brought in by the plaintiff to be paid to a person having authority from all the defendants to receive it, though some of the defendants have not appeared, and for that purpose a reference will be directed to the master to inquire whether a sufficient authority to receive the money has been given. Poucell v. Sonnet, 3 Russ. 556. PRINC. & AGENT; PR. INTERPLEADER.

LXVIII. PETITION.

Petition to rehear on cause taken pro confesso, to be made within six months after copy of decree served. 1 W. 4. c. 36. s. 6. PR. REHEARING; PR. DECREE, PRO CONFESSO.

A motion for leave to except to the master's certificate of the taxation of costs was refused, and a petition directed. Bozon v. Williams, 3 Y. & J. 378. PR. MASTER'S REP. EXCEPTIONS TO; PR. MOTION.

A second order to amend obtained by petition of course is irregular, though obtained before answer. Tarleton v. Dyer, 1 Russ. & M. 1. PR. ORDER TO AMEND.

A testator gave his property, after the death of his wife, to trustees in trust to pay the interest and profits to his two daughters J and E, to their separate use, with a direction to pay to, and apply for the benefit of A, the son of E, 200*l.* annually when he attained the age of twenty-one years; and before that period such part of the 200*l.* bequeathed to him as might be judged proper; he then gave his daughter power to dispose of the principal by will to their children or grandchildren respectively, "except that proportion of principal given to E, and from which the interest is to arise to my grandson, namely 4000*l.*, which sum shall be my grandson's property;" and in case either of the daughters died without issue, he limited her share of the fund over to the other daughters, her children or grandchildren. The executrix having in mistake made payments to A in respect of his annuity for two years before he attained twenty-one, was entitled to retain them out of the future payments of the annuity. An order authorizing her to retain them, and made upon petition after the decree had been passed and entered as regular. Livesey v. Livesey, 3 Russ. 287. S. C. in part reversed, id. 542. EXORS. RIGHT TO RETAIN; REIMBURSEMENT; PR. DECREE; PR. ORDER.

Semble. An order of reference to the master on a petition presented under Ld. E.'s act ought not to be made except on a hearing in court, and on the appearance of counsel upon the petition. Hinde v. Metcalfe, 3 Russ. 416. STAT. C. OF; MONEY TO BE LAID OUT IN LAND.

The court will make an order for appointing a guardian, and allowing maintenance upon petition without bill where the infant's income does not exceed 300*l.* a year. Exp. Lakin, 4 Russ. 307. INFANT MAINTENANCE; PR. BILL.

Maintenance will not be allowed without a bill filed to an infant entitled to real estate which is of a yearly value exceeding 100*l.* a year. In re. Molesworth, id. 308. n. Id.

LXIX. PLEA.

Leave to amend a plea will not be granted, unless the court is told precisely what the amendment is to be, and how the slip happened. Jackson v. Rowe, 4 Russ. 514.

LXXI. PRISONER.

Affidavits of prisoners to be taken by warden or gaoler. 1 W. 4. c. 36. rule 20. PR. EVIDENCE.

Where prisoner is lunatic, &c., though no commission has issued, court may appoint a guardian to answer, and discharge defendant from his contempt. 1 W. 4. c. 36. rule 9. GUARDIAN AD LITEM.

Where plaintiff requires an answer, though bill is taken pro confesso, defendant shall remain in custody. 1 W. 4. c. 36. rule 12. PR. BILL PRO CONFESSO; PR. ANSWER.

Answer of prisoner to be taken by warden or gaoler. 1 W. 4. c. 36. rule 20. PR. ANSWER.

Service of an order on the turnkey, for a prisoner in close custody is sufficient, if it is intended to enforce obedience to the order by attachment. Joyce v. Joyce, 1 Hog. 121.

LXXII. PRIVILEGE FROM ARREST.

Writ of protection will not be given to a suitor or witness to protect him from arrest in any case, when, if arrested, he would not be entitled to his discharge without it. Brien v. Brien, 1 Hog. 34. PR. WRIT OF PROTECTION.

A person who is served with a subpoena ad testificandum in London, and is at the time resident there, is not protected from arrest in the interval between the service of the subpoena and the day appointed for his examination. Semble: A witness who comes to London in order to be examined, is protected from arrest during the whole time that he remains in London, bona fide for the purpose of giving evidence. A witness is not protected in going three days before the day appointed by the examiner for his examination to the solicitor's office, to look at the interrogatories, with a view to prepare himself to give his evidence accurately. Gibbs v. Phillipson, 1 Russ. & M. 19. PR. EVID. WITNESS.

LXXIII. PROCESS.

Writ of attachment when issued for contempt, in not answering, and non est inventus returned, sergeant at arms to go. 1 W. 4. c. 36. rule 1.

Process to compel performance of decree. 1 W. 4. c. 36. s. 3. Not to be taken out if defendant is forthcoming, until copy of such decree is served on defendant. Id. s. 4.

Service of order on turnkey for a prisoner in close custody is sufficient, if it is intended to enforce obedience to the order by attachment. Joyce v. Joyce, 1 Hog. 121. PR. PRISONER.

Three defendants were ordered to deliver up to a receiver certain premises, within a week, or, in default, to stand committed; but no writ of execution was taken out. They refused to deliver up, and a sergeant at arms was ordered to go against them. Upon being brought up, two of them expressed contrition, and were ordered to be discharged, upon payment of costs. The third, still persisting in his contempt, was committed to the Fleet. The costs not being paid by the other two, they remained in custody of the sergeant. The orders were, upon motion, discharged with costs, and the persons liberated. Upon a motion, subsequently, that the defendants might be ordered to deliver up possession within a week after service of the writ of execution of the order to be made on that application; the court stated the course of proceeding to be, that there must be, first, an order to deliver possession, then a writ of execution of that order must be served on the defendant; and until that is done, no further order can be made; and refused the motion with costs. Green v. Grea, 2 Sim. 394. 430. POSSESSION; PR. RECEIVER.

A defendant who allows the exception taken to his answer, has six days to put in his further answer, and no process can be made available against him to enforce it in the mean time. Dee v. Scanlan, 1 Hog. 101.

LXXIV. PROCHAIN AMI.

Where motion is made on behalf of feme covert, and no person is named in notice as her next friend, her solicitor will be liable for costs, if awarded against her. Cox v. M'Namara, 1 Hog. 78. PR. COSTS; HUSB. & WIFE; SOL. & CLIENT.

Next friend of infant plaintiff cannot be compelled to give security for costs. St. John v. El. Beaborough, 1 Hog. 41. PR. COSTS, SECURITY FOR.

LXXV. PRODUCTION OF DEEDS.

A subpoena duces tecum to a party defendant, discouraged; the proper course is to move for an order on the defendant to bring in the documents, which he admits by his answer to be in his possession. Aldborough v. Stratford, 1 Hog. 123.

A solicitor will not be ordered to bring into court the deeds of his client. M'Cann v. Beeve, 1 Hog. 129. SOL. & CLIENT.

The 60th of the new orders extends to the production of books and papers under orders or decrees made before the date of the new orders. The master is to exercise the discretion given him, by the 60th Order, to determine what books or papers shall be produced; though the order or decree under which he is proceeding, requires the parties to produce on oath, all books and papers. In mre. of the Parish of Llantrisant, 1 Russ. & M. 25. GEN. ORD. C. OF.

A plaintiff is not entitled to the production of a letter admitted by the defendant to be in his possession, but which the defendant states was written by him to his solicitor, and directed the solicitor to take the opinion of counsel, upon the question in dispute between the parties. Vent v. Pacey, 4 Russ. 193. ADMISSIONS; PROFESSIONAL CONFIDENCE.

A defendant will not be ordered to produce papers containing confidential communications between him and his solicitor, or between his country solicitor and town solicitor, in the relation of solicitor and client, during the progress of the suit, or with reference to it previous to its commencement. Hughes v. Biddulph, 4 Russ. 190. PROFESSIONAL CONFIDENCE.

LXXVI. PRODUCTION OF PARTIES.

An order was made, ex parte, under the statute 6 Ann. c. 18. on the application of a person entitled in fee, subject to a lease for lives, that the lessee should produce the cestui que vie at a place and time, and before persons named in the order. Exp. Whalley, 4 Russ. 561.

LXXVIII. RECEIVER.

A receiver will not be ordered to pay money in his hands to any person who could compel him to account, if a year has elapsed since he last accounted. Putland v. Graydon, 1 Hog. 123.

The general order on tenants to pay the receiver, need not be personally served. Domville v. Achmuty, 1 Hog. 129. PR. PAYMT. ORDER FOR.

Receiver will be appointed over possession of grantor of rent charge, who resides out of jurisdiction, on an affidavit that he staid out of jurisdiction to avoid service of process. Quin v. Guan, 1 Hog. 75.

A judgment creditor, not a party, will not be allowed to proceed at law if a receiver has been appointed in a creditor's suit, and a prior incumbrancer is a party. Thackaberry v. Christian, 1 Hog. 109. PR. INJUNC. TO STAY PROC. AT LAW; PR. CREDITOR'S SUIT.

Receiver ought not to interfere in any litigation between parties; and if he do so, will not be allowed costs of motion for such purpose. Comyn v. Smith, 1 Hog. 81.

Defendant who has appeared, but is in contempt, is not entitled to notice of motion for receiver. Fitzpatrick v. Harkshaw, 1 Hog. 82. PR. MOTION, NOTICE OF; PR. CONTEMPT.

A receiver will not be appointed at the instance of a party claiming as devisee under a will, the validity of which is to be determined by an issue, unless the claimant satisfies the court that there is a reasonable probability of his succeeding on the issue, and that the property will be endangered by being left in the possession of the heir at law. Clark v. Dew, 1 Russ. & M. 103.

A mortgagee has no title to the rents of the mortgaged premises which have been paid into court by a receiver appointed in a suit for establishing the will of the mortgagor, notwithstanding that, after the appointment of a receiver, he gave notice to the tenants to pay the rents to him: he ought to have followed up that notice by moving to discharge the receiver. Thomas v. Brigstocke, 4 Russ. 65. LIEN ON FUND IN COURT; MORTGAG. & MORTGEE; LANDLD. & TENANT, ATTORNEYS.

A receiver appointed by the court, is not answerable for a loss of monies by the failure of a banker, if they are not mixed with his own monies, and are bona fide deposited for security, only under circumstances in which they could not have been properly paid into court. Salway v. Salway, 4 Russ. 60. INVESTMENT.

Quere whether, upon a petition objecting to a master's report of a receiver's accounts, the court will enter into a consideration of the particular items of the accounts; even where there is no reason to doubt whether, as to some points, the conduct of a receiver has been strictly correct; further enquiry will not be ordered, where the attention of the parties has been previously directed to the subject, and ample opportunity of investigation afforded to them? Shewell v. Jones, 3 Russ. 522. PR. ACCOUNT BEFORE MASTER.

A receiver appointed over lands in Ireland conveyed by a trust deed, the trustee not being before the court, and although the trustee had an interest in his own right, being one of the creditors to be paid off, and appeared upon the pleadings as in possession. Malcolm v. Montgomery, 1 Hog. 93.

A receiver will not be appointed over a defendant's property, to enforce his appearance in the cause, if he resides out of the jurisdiction, unless the plaintiff has a specific lien on the land, or there is danger of immediate loss of the property. Arthur v. Arthur, 1 Hog. 95.

A petition by a mortgagee for a receiver under the mortgage act (12 G. 3. c. 10. 1r.), will be dismissed, if it appears that the mortgage is impeached. Leahy v. Arthur, 1 Hog. 92.

Lands are liable to judgments, notwithstanding the court of chancery has appointed a receiver to receive the rents and keep down the incumbrances, and to pay the surplus to the owner. Lewis v. Id. Zouch, 2 Sim. 389. JUDGMENTS, WHAT LIABLE TO.

Three defendants were ordered to deliver up to a receiver certain premises within a week, or in default, to stand committed; but no writ of execution was taken out. They refused to deliver up, and a serjeant at arms was ordered to go against them. Upon being brought up, two of them expressed contrition, and were ordered to be discharged, upon payment of costs. The third still persisting in his contempt, was committed to the Fleet. The costs not being paid by the other two, they remained in custody of the serjeant. The orders were upon motion discharged with costs, and the persons liberated. Upon a motion subsequently, that the defendants might be ordered to deliver up possession within a week after service of the writs of execution of the order to be made on that application; the court stated the course of proceeding to be, that there must be, first, an order to deliver possession, then a writ of execution of that order must be served on the defendant, and until that is done, no further order can be made, and refused the motion with costs. Green v. Green, 2 Sim. 394 and 430. POSSESSION; PR. PROCESS.

An application by creditors, whose debts, secured by a trust deed, had been established by decree of the court of chancery in England; to appoint a receiver over the trust estates in possession of defendant, the debtor, refused, it being doubtful as the record was framed, whether at the hearing of the cause, the plaintiffs would be entitled to a decree. For the record to carry the English decree into execution, was so imperfectly framed, that the defendant, by joining issue on the original record, would be at liberty to impeach the securities so established; which he could not do on a bill filed solely and exclusively to aid the execution of the English decree. Houlditch v. Ld. Donegal, 1 Beat. 146. DEBTOR & CRED.; PR. DECREE.

If a receiver has been appointed over a larger estate than is necessary to satisfy the demands of the incumbrancers, the debtor may have him confined to such portion of the estate as will be sufficient for that purpose. Magrath v. Veitch, 1 Hog. 110.

A prior annuitant may obtain a receiver over the possession of a custodee. O'Neil v. Ward, 1 Hog. 111.*

How a receiver should proceed where the lands are held for lives, renewable for ever, and some of the lives have dropped. Palmer v. Newport, 1 Hog. 133.

A receiver is only entitled to one summons to account. The master's certificate that he did not account pursuant to summons, should not be granted on the day for which the summons issued. Lawlor v. Lowry, 1 Hog. 140. PR. MASTER'S REPORTS.

If waste has been committed and the case is pressing, the receiver may file a bill for an injunction without waiting for an order for the purpose, but if time will permit, he should first apply for a reference to enquire what proceeding he ought to take. Nangle v. Ld. Fingall, 1 Hog. 142. WASTE.

A creditor who has proved his debt under a decree, is entitled to apply to the master for a summons on the receiver to account. Locke v. Ashe, 1 Hog. 143.

A receiver will be allowed to distrain land under ejectment for non-payment of rent, provided he leaves a sufficient arrear to sustain the ejectment. Erp. Cornwallis, 1 Hog. 146.

LXXXIX. REMEARING.

Petition to rehear on cause taken pro confesso, to be made within six months after copy of decree served. 1 W. 4. c. 36. s. 6. PR. BILL PRO CONFESSO; PR. PETITION.

A bill was filed by A against the executors of B, a tenant for life, unimpeachable of waste, in order to charge his personal estate for the value of ornamental timber alleged to have been cut by him. The decree directed an account, but before the master had proceeded under it, all matters in difference were submitted to an arbitrator appointed by the master under an order by consent, and arbitration bonds were executed by the parties. The arbitrator having found a certain sum due to the plaintiff, an application was made to the court to enforce payment accordingly, when the defendant presented a petition of rehearing, which suspended the proceedings upon the award, and the bill on the rehearing was dismissed without any order being made respecting the award. Upon appeal against this decree, the house decided that the appeal must be withdrawn; that the parties must go before the chancellor in order that the decree and award might be considered together, and a special order was made to that effect. Butler v. Kynnersley, 1 Bligh. N.S. 374. PR. DECREE; PR. APPEAL. See Ormond v. Kynnersley, 5 Mad. 369. 2 Sim. & Stu. 15.

On an application to Ld. Ch. to rehear a petition of appeal from the Vice Ch., which petition had been previously heard by Ld. Eldon, and the order of the Vice Ch. reversed; the Ld. Ch. considered such applications to be objectionable, and the practice to require regulation; but held, that he could not, consistently with the course pursued by his predecessors, now refuse to re-hear the case. Erp. Baker, 1 Mont. & M. 279. JURISDICTION; VICE CHANCELLOR.

On a bill by the assignees of a bankrupt to set aside a settlement made in favour of his children, on the ground that he was insolvent at the time of the execution of it. The court held, at the hearing of the cause, that the settlor was not insolvent within the meaning of the Bankrupt act, 6 G. 4. c. 16. s. 75, when he executed the settlement. The plaintiff afterwards presented a petition for leave to present a petition for a rehearing, on the ground that he had since discovered further evidence, establishing the fact of insolvency, which he might have discovered before the hearing, if he had not considered the evidence already produced sufficient. The court dismissed the petition, on the ground that it was against the order of the court, which had for its object to compel persons to bring forward their whole case in the first instance; if this evidence was allowed, a general examination would be let in to explain it. The court expressed a doubt whether the infants had not gained an estate to which they were entitled. Cutten v. Sanger, 3 Y. & J. 374. See the report on the hearing of the cause, 2 Y. & J. 459.

Petition of rehearing dismissed because it suggested as the grounds of rehearing facts not alleged in the pleadings. Newinson v. Stables, 4 Russ. 210. PR. PETITION.

In a suit instituted for the administration of the assets of a testator, who in his will was described as "of Halifax in Nova Scotia," certain lapsed shares of the residue were, at the hearing on further directions, ordered to be distributed according to the statute of distributions, there being no suggestion on the record that the administration might not be according to the law of England; afterwards a petition of rehearing was presented, stating that the testator died domiciled in Nova Scotia, and praying that the distribution might be according to the law of that country, but the petition was dismissed. Id. ib.

Where a replication has been filed as an answer to a conditional rule to dismiss the bill, it cannot be withdrawn unless the plaintiff makes out a special case for it. Butler v. Mahon, 1 Hog. 90.

LXXXII. SALES JUDICIAL.

The bidding at a sale under the court binds the purchaser, but the court may receive an outbidding, until the conditional order to confirm the sale is made absolute. The conditional order to confirm the sale cannot be obtained, until the bidder has deposited one-fourth of the purchase money. The conditional order to confirm the sale cannot be made absolute, till the remaining three-fourths of the purchase money have been paid. Should the title turn out bad, the purchaser will be paid back his purchase money with interest at six per cent. But should the purchaser prefer it, he may have the purchase money invested at his own risk expressly. A purchaser who pays in his purchase money, is entitled to the rents from the gale day previous to the lodgment of the three-fourths, if the purchase be completed within the current sale from the bidding. The deposit of one-fourth of the purchase money does not bear interest for the purchaser, till the remaining three-fourths are lodged. Kirwan v. Blake, 1 Hog. 151.

A purchaser under a decree has no lien for his costs on the funds in court, arising out of the sales of other property, so as to prevent any distribution of the fund, until the report of the title being bad, has been confirmed. McCann v. O'Farrell, 1 Hog. 137. PR. COSTS; VENDOR & PURCH.; LIEN.

A sale under a decree in a creditor's suit, subject to certain specified defects, deteriorating the value of the estates, but which the creditor had no means of getting rid of by any suit, not set aside. Fisher v. Barry, 1 Beat. 139.

There is no settled rule in Ireland to regulate the sum which a person must lodge to obtain an order to open a sale. Ford v. Head, 1 Hog. 93.

The master will not be ordered to sell an estate until a statement of title is made out and lodged in his office. How to proceed when defendant refuses to give statement of his title. Roberts v. Roberts, 1 Hog. 124.

A direction for a reserved bidding ought not to be inserted in a decree for sale, but ought to be the subject of a separate order. Brooker v. Collier, 3 Russ. 369.

Premises held under distinct leases ordered to be sold in one lot upon the speculative probability arising from the nature of the property, that a higher price would be obtained by that mode of sale, than if they were put up in distinct lots. Cook v. Collingridge, 3 Russ. 520.

LXXXIII. SEAL.

Attachment is irregular if sealed and delivered out by sealer before, though not parted with till after requisite affidavit is filed. Gardner v. Rowe, 4 Russ. 578. PR. ATTACHMENT ISSUING.

LXXXIV. SEQUESTRATION.

As to sequestration of estate of party absconding, and on bill taken pro confesso. See 1 W. 4. c. 36. s. 3.

Where books may be seized under sequestration. 1 W. 4. c. 36. rule 16.

A writ of assistance will not be granted to sequestrators. How to proceed when sequestrators are resisted. Brown v. Cuffe, 1 Hog. 145. PR. WRIT OF ASSISTANCE.

A conditional decree on sequestration cannot be amended if erroneous. McMinn v. Savage, 1 Hog. 91. PR. DECREE.

Sequestrators appointed by the court of chancery have no right to seize on the tithes of an ecclesiastical benefice. Ward v. Hayes, 1 Hog. 107. TITHES.

No process prior to sequestration can be revived after abatement by death of plaintiff. Cottingham v. O'Reilly, 1 Hog. 49. PR. ABATEMENT & REVIVOR.

LXXXV. SERVICE SUBSTITUTED.

Service of subpoena to appear and answer will not be substituted on the solicitor and agent of a defendant who resides out of the jurisdiction, if the plaintiff has paid a charge on the defendant's estate. Ld. Alington v. Peaton, 1 Hog. 131.

LXXXVI. SIGNATURE OF COUNSEL.

A cross bill will be taken off the file, if filed without a certificate by counsel. If the certificate of counsel has been subjoined, but the plaintiff has not filed the necessary affidavit, no subpoena to answer can issue. The same engrossment may be replaced on the file, when the certificate of counsel has been subjoined. Elliott v. Millet, 1 Hog. 125. PR. CROSS BILL; BARRISTER.

LXXXVIII. STAYING PROCEEDINGS.

Order made to stay proceedings to enforce answer, pending appeal to house of lords from an order overruling demurrer. King of Spain v. Machado. 4 Russ. 560. PR. APPEAL.

LXXXIX. SUBPENA.

Service of subpoena to appear and answer, made out of a jurisdiction is a nullity, and proceedings founded thereon will be set aside. Creeds v. Byrne, 1 Hog. 79. JURISDICTION.

A plaintiff cannot move ex parte for an injunction after he has served the defendant with subpoena, and the defendant has appeared. Perry v. Weller, 3 Russ. 519. PR. INJUNCTION EXP.; PR. APPEARANCE.

A cause having been set down at the rolls, and a subpoena duly served, was heard; but before judgment, the master of the rolls became lord chancellor. The cause was then, upon a motion by the plaintiff, which was opposed by the defendant, set down in the lord chancellor's paper, next after a particular appeal which was specified. On being called on, the defendant made a default, and the plaintiff took a decree nisi. Held, that a subpoena to hear judgment, being general, and not confined to any particular branch of the court, the defendant was bound to attend whenever the cause should be called on for hearing; the decree nisi was therefore strictly regular. Jackson v. Bourne, 4 Russ. 484.

XC. TAKING PLEADINGS OFF FILE.

By the direction of A, a bill was filed for the administration of a testator's assets in which A, and his infant brother and sister by A as their next friend, were plaintiffs. D, their elder brother, who had an interest adverse of theirs, and was one of the defendants, acted as solicitor in the country for the plaintiffs, and the suit was conducted by his town agents. After the sister had attained her full age, D died, having appointed her his executrix. A gave notice to the persons who had been the town agents of D, not to take any proceedings in his name, and the sister appointed them to act as solicitors for her: Held that A was not entitled to have the papers connected with the case delivered over to him, though he offered to satisfy any lien which might be claimed against them. The sister filed a bill of revivor after the death of D, and made A and his infant brothers defendants. A, and the brother, after notice of that bill, filed another bill of revivor; the second bill was ordered to be taken off the file and the court held that an alleged defect of parties in the frame of the first bill of revivor offered no reason for allowing the second bill of revivor to remain on the file. Livesey v. Livesey, 1 Russ. & M. 18. SOLICITOR AND CLIENT; LIEN.

A defendant's answer will be taken off the file for the purposes of an indictment for perjury, when the preparatory steps have been taken, and the time of trial is near at hand. Curtis v. —, 1 Hog. 132. INDICTMENT.

An affidavit will be taken off the file for the purpose of an indictment for perjury, when the preparatory steps have been taken, and the time of trial is near at hand. The affidavit to support the motion should not enter into the merits of the indictment. Swift v. Quinlan, 1 Hog. 132. INDICTMENT.

* WRIT OF ASSISTANCE.

Writ of assistance where to issue in equity. 1 W. 4. c. 36. rule 19.

A writ of assistance will not be granted to sequestrators. How to proceed when sequestrators are resisted. Brown v. Cuffe, 1 Hog. 145. PR. SEQUESTRATORS.

XIII. WRIT NE EXEAT REGNO.

A writ of ne exeat regno discharged with costs where, upon the affidavit of the plaintiff, and the answer of the defendant taken together, there was a strong prima facie case that nothing was due from the defendant to the plaintiff. Lee v. Lambert, 3 Russ. 417.

A writ of ne exeat regno will be granted in respect of a person equitably entitled to the sum due on the bond, though the personal representative of the trustee to whom it had been assigned in trust for him was not a party to the suit. A writ of ne exeat regno will not be discharged, though it appears to have issued for a sum greatly exceeding that for which it can be sustained; but the amount for which it is marked will be reduced. A writ of ne exeat regno, will be granted in respect of a debt which was contracted in Jamaica between persons resident there, though in Jamaica the defendant could not have been arrested for the demand. A defendant in custody under a ne exeat regno is not bound to answer before he moves to discharge the writ. Grant v. Grant, 3 Russ. 599.

The writ of ne exeat regno, granted at the suit of a person equitably entitled to certain bonds, though the transactions out of which the demands arose took place in Jamaica, between parties resident there, and were the subject of suits in that island, and though in one of those suits an injunction issued, restraining the person whom the present plaintiff represented, from proceeding on the bonds at law; the court considering the injunction, though never dissolved, as substantially superseded by subsequent proceedings. Id. 598.

* WRIT OF PROTECTION.

Writ of protection will not be given to a suitor or witness, to protect him from arrest in any case when, if arrested, he would not be entitled to his discharge without it. Brien v. Brien, 1 Hog. 34.

PRESUMPTION.

In favour of a long continued enjoyment of tithes, in conformity with successive recitals in old leases, the court will presume performance of conditions to endow, &c. and adopt every other presumption necessary to give effect to such a title so supported. Woolley v. Birkenshaw, 12 Price, 702.

Presumption of grant, founded on non-perception, may be raised against a lay rector, if the pleadings are so framed as to admit it. Ringrose v. Todd, 12 Price, 660.

The mere non-payment of tithes, for however long a period, would not be evidence of a grant; yet a layman's adverse enjoyment or permanency for a long series of years, of the tithes of certain lands, or of a money payment in lieu of tithes occupied by a succession of deeds, by which the tithes or money payments in lieu of tithes have been conveyed from one person to another, corresponding with the enjoyment, affords evidence sufficient to justify a jury in presuming a legal grant of the tithes. Bacon v. Williams, 3 Russ. 525. TITHES, EVIDENCE.

PRINCIPAL AND AGENT.

Personal estate not disposed of by a will, drawn by the confidential counsel, (the sole executor,) without informing the testator of the legal effect of the will: Held, to be a trust for the next of kin. Segrave v. Kirwan, 1 Beat. 157. FRAUD, CONCEALMENT; EXOR. BENEF. INTERESTED; BARRISTER.

Trustees not affected by notice to their agent, which he did not receive in that character. France v. Wood, 1 Taml. 172. NOTICE.

A husband having been found guilty for an assault upon his wife, the court recommended an accommodation: the counsel of the parties thereon signed a memorandum of an agreement, that the husband would allow the wife 50*l.* a year, and the court referring to the agreement, imposed merely a nominal fine. Upon a bill for a specific performance it was decided, that the defendant must disprove that his counsel had authority to sign the agreement, and that in the absence of evidence to the contrary, the court will presume that he had such authority, and therefore, decreed a performance. Elworth v. Bird, 1 Tam. 40. BARRISTER; SPEC. PERF.

By the statute 59 Geo. 3. c. 111., navy agents are entitled to make the usual charge for passing accounts before that act, and to charge commission on the full amount of pay, without being limited to the money passing through their hands; the defendants having received a sum as returned premiums, without bringing it to account for many years, alleging that they awaited the final adjustment of average; it was referred to the master to inquire whether they were entitled to retain it, according to the custom of merchants. Drury v. Atkins, 1 Taml. 75. ACCOUNT.

A business, the property of A, was carried on with his capital, and for his profit by B, his agent, in the name of the latter, at a fixed salary. A, having become bankrupt, B filed his bill, stating, that by reason of the use of his name he had become liable to a heavy amount for the concern, which was insolvent; notwithstanding the bankruptcy of A, and praying for an injunction to restrain the assignees from in any way intermeddling with the concern; held, that B had a lien on the business, to the extent of his liabilities, and an injunction was granted. Foxcroft v. Wood, 4 Russ. 487. BANKCY. ASSIGNMENT, WHAT PASSES; LIEN.

A person employed on behalf of himself and co-partners in negotiating the term of a lease, is not entitled to stipulate clandestinely with the lessors for any private advantage to himself. Where, therefore, a sum of 12,000*l.* was paid in pursuance of such a stipulation, the party receiving it was declared to hold it in trust for the partnership. Before the transaction was discovered one of the partners withdrew, and subsequently another partner assigned a share in the stock and in his proportion of the claim, to persons then admitted into the concern. Held, that the retired, the continuing, and the new partners, were properly joined as co-plaintiffs in a suit to have the trust declared. Fawcett v. Whitehouse, 1 Russ. & M. 132. PARTNERSHIP; TRUST; PL. PARTIES, PLAINTIFFS.

If an agent employed to purchase an estate becomes the purchaser for himself, he is to be considered as a trustee for his principal. Jess v. Nutfall, 1 Russ. & M. 53. FRAUD; FID. SARC.

Where notice is given by a party to his agent in a particular adventure, that another person is jointly interested with him in the adventure, this prima facie imposes upon the agent the necessity of accounting with such other person for his share of the adventure; but this obligation ceases to exist, if the transaction shews that it was the intention of such other person, and of the party originally interested in the adventure, that the agents should account solely with the latter. Killock v. Greg, 4 Russ. 285.

If, of several plaintiffs, some have an interest in the matter of the suit, and others have no interest in it, but are merely the agents of their co-plaintiffs, a general demurrer to the whole bill is a good defence. King of Spain v. Machado, 4 Russ. 225. PL. PARTIES; PL. DEMURRER, WHERE.

An agent named executor, is not entitled to charge commission on business done subsequently to the testator's death. Sheriff v. Aze, 4 Russ. 33. EXOR., ALLOWANCE TO; ACCOUNT, ALLOWANCES.

In an interpleading suit, the court will order the money which has been brought in by the plaintiff to be paid to a person having authority from all the defendants to receive it, though some of the defendants have not appeared; and for that purpose a reference will be directed to the master to inquire, whether a sufficient authority to receive the money has been given. Possell v. Sonnet, 3 Russ. 556. PR. PAYMENT OUT OF COURT; INTERPLEADER.

A had long employed B as his steward, professional adviser and general confidential agent; disputes having arisen between them, an agreement was entered into between B, and a clergyman acting on behalf of A, by which a gross sum was to be paid to B, in lieu of all his claims; but no accounts or vouchers were rendered or produced by A, nor any bill of costs delivered; that agreement will not protect B from rendering an account to his principal. Jenkins v. Gould, 3 Russ. 385. ACCOUNT.

Disputes existing between A and his solicitor, receiver and confidential agent B, which involved long and intricate matters of account, an authority was given by A to a third person, to settle any account in which he, A, had an interest, and to compromise any claims which he might have; such an authority will not empower that third person to make an agreement, without the production or examination of any account, that a gross sum shall be paid to B, in lieu of all his demands on A: Id. ib.

PRINCIPAL AND SURETY.

B, being hired as clerk to A and Co., but not for any definite period, C and D joined with him in a bond to secure his duly accounting for his assets. C died, and his executrix gave written notice to A and Co., that she would no longer remain security. A Co. communicated this notice to B, and re-obtained from him the bond of another D died, and also the new surety, and four and a half after death of C, B died, when deficiencies were found in his accounts subsequent to the notice. Held, executrix of C had no equity to restrain A and Co. from proceeding at law on bond. Gordon v. Culbert, 4 Russ. 581.

The plaintiff joined the testator as surety in a bond, which he paid after the death of the testator, taking assignment of the bond; he is only a simple contract creditor of the testator. Jones v. Davis, 4 Russ. 277. DEBTOR & CRED. BY SIMPLE CONTRACT.

A, B, and C, carrying on business in copartnership for a term, which would expire on the 19th of Feb. 1807, under articles which empowered A, in case of his death during the term, to bequeath his share of the trade in favour of his wife or children. S, a customer of the bank and a surety, covenanted that any, or one of them, would pay to A, B, & C, the survivors or survivor of them, &c. all sums which on or before, or until the 19th of Feb. 1807, should become due from the customer to A, B, and C, the survivors or survivor of them, &c. A died, having bequeathed his share of the concern to his executors, in trust for his children; the business continued to be carried on under the same firm as before, and his executors interfered in the management, and shared in the profits. At the time of A's death, the balance due from S to the bank was upwards of 14,000*l.*; after that time, S continued his dealings with the bank in the same manner as previously, paying in more than 14,000*l.* within a few weeks after A's death, but drawing out during the same period a larger sum, and these subsequent dealings were contained in the same account current with the preceding dealings, and some years afterwards S became insolvent, being indebted to the bank in a balance of 19,000*l.* and upwards. Held, that the partnership, which carried on the business after the death of A, was a new partnership; that the surety's covenant did not extend to cover sums advanced to the customer by the bank after A's death; that the balance due at A's death from the customer, was to be considered as discharged by the payments subsequently made by him to the bank. Pemberton v. Oakes, 4 Russ. 154. PARTNERSHIP.

A surety under an annuity deed, redeeming the annuity subsequent to the bankruptcy of the grantor of the annuity, is entitled to the benefit of the grantee's proof under the grantor's commission, and to proceed by action against the grantor, who had obtained his certificate for the arrears of the annuity subsequent to the commission. Watkins v. Flannagan, 3 Russ. 421. BANKCY.; PROOF IN.

PRIORITY OF SECURITY.

An unregistered deed retains its priority over a subsequent judgment, where there is no memorial of registry of any other deed comprising the lands, the subject of the unregistered deed. Crymble v. Adair, 1 Beat. 122.

It is clear from the Registry Act, (6 Anne, c. 21. s. 4.) that the priority given to the registered deed, depends not only on the time of the registry of the memorial, but is confined to such lands only as are comprised in the memorial. Id. ib.

If there be no memorial of a deed registered, the registry act does not apply, and the unregistered deed will have the same validity and effect as before passing the act. Id. 123.

A deed, by the common law, has effect from the date of its execution, but the registry act provides, that it shall have priority only from the date of its registration. Id. ib.

Judgments not docketed having no preference against heirs, executors, or administrators. London v. Ferguson, 3 Russ. 349. JUDGMENT.

PRIVITY OF CONTRACT.

Where a debtor by a deed poll directs, inter alia, the receiver of the rents of his estate to keep down the interest of a certain debt, the direction does not create a trust in favour of a creditor, if it be without consideration, and without the privity of the creditor.

Page v. Broom, 4 Russ. 6. TRUST.

PROFESSIONAL CONFIDENCE.

A defendant will not be ordered to produce papers containing confidential communications between him and his solicitor, or between his country solicitor and town solicitor, in the relation of solicitor and client, during the progress of the suit, or with reference to it, previous to its commencement. Hughes v. Bid-dulph, 4 Russ. 190. PR. PRODUCTION OF DEEDS.

A plaintiff is not entitled to the production of a letter admitted by the defendant to be in his possession, but which the defendant states was written by him to his solicitor, and directed the solicitor to take the opinion of counsel upon the question in dispute between the parties. Vent v. Pacey, 4 Russ. 193. ADMISSIONS; PR. PRODUCTION OF DEEDS.

PUBLIC POLICY.

Deeds of separation in 1817, between husband and wife, who were to continue to live together, on condition that, if disputes arose again, a separation should take place. Disputes continuing, a deed in 1813 is executed, providing for an immediate separation. The husband continuing to live in the wife's house, dining, and visiting with her, but without cohabitation as man and wife.* The husband files a bill in the chancery of Ireland to set aside the deeds, chiefly on the ground that they were against public policy, and the deed of 1817 is declared null and void, but without prejudice to the claims of a child of the marriage thereunder. As to the deed of 1818, the bill was retained for twelve months, with liberty for the parties to proceed at law, of which no advantage was taken. The husband appeals against this decree to the house of lords. The judgment below was affirmed, and an order made for enlarging the time for retaining the bill, so as to enable the parties still to proceed at law, if they thought fit. Lord Eldon considered the question of public policy, and as such, resting on the same grounds both at law and in equity, but that the opinion of a court of law ought to be taken in the first instance, and the case be put into such a shape and form that it might be brought before the house by writ of error; that the deed of 1817 (against the decree declaring which void, there was no appeal) could not be for a moment sustained; that the circumstances under which the parties lived together, after the execution of the deed of 1818, put an end to it also; but still that the question ought to be tried at law. The Ld. Ch. was decidedly against both deeds. Marg. Westmeath v. Mar. Westmeath, 1 Dow, N. S. 519. HUSB. & WIFE, SEPARATION.

The court will not assist a party in recovering an estate conveyed by him for an illegal purpose, such as to enable the grantee to vote at an election, or sit in parliament. Groves v. Groves, 3 Y. & J. 163. FRAUDULENT CONVEYANCE.

REIMBURSEMENT, &c.

A testator gave his property, after the death of his wife, to trustees, on trust to pay the interest and profits to his two daughters, J & C, to their separate use, with a direction to pay to, and apply for the benefit of A, the son of E, 200*l.* annually, when he attained the age of twenty-one years, and before that period such part of the 200*l.* bequeathed to him as might be judged proper. He then gave his daughter power to dispose of the principal by will to their children or grandchildren respectively, "except that proportion of principal given to E, and from which the interest is to arise to my grandson, namely, 4000*l.* which sum shall be my grandson's property," and in case either of the daughters died without issue, he limited her share of the fund over to the other daughter, her children, or grandchildren. The executrix having, in mistake, made payments to A, in respect of his annuity, for two years before he attained twenty-one, was entitled to retain them out of the future payments of the annuity. An order, authorising her to retain them, and made upon petition after the decree had been passed and entered as regular. Livesey v. Livesey, 3 Russ. 287. S. C. in part reversed, id. 542. EXONS., RIGHT TO RETAIN; PR. PETITION; PR. DECREE; PR. ORDER.

RELEASE.

A nephew, who was the heir at law and sole next of kin of the testator, having taken the opinion of counsel as to the widow's rights under the husband's will, and being advised that he took the residue absolutely, contracted to sell to her a house which had descended to him as heir; and part of the agreement was, that he should release all demands against her as executrix, or against her deceased husband's personal estate; a general release executed in pursuance of this agreement, was held to be valid, and to vest the stock in the executrix absolutely, though it made no specific mention of the stock. Collier v. Squire, 3 Russ. 467.

REMAINDER.

Whether a remainder may be limited on a donatio mortis causa. Hambrooke v. Simmons, 4 Russ. 25.

Cross remainders cannot be implied in a deed, and are not created as to accruing shares by a limitation of entire estate to an only surviving child and his issue, or by a gift over, if the entire estate in remainder, after the failure of all issue, or by an express creation of cross-remainders, as to the original shares. Edwards v. Alliston, 4 Russ. 78. DEEDS, C. OF.

RENTS AND PROFITS.

Devise of freeholds of inheritance to trustees for five hundred years, and subject to that term, to the use of various persons successively for life, with remainder to the first and other sons of such several persons successively in tail male, with remainders to the daughters of such several persons successively in tail general, with remainders over. The trusts of this five hundred years term were declared to be, that the trustees of the term should, out of the rents, &c. of the hereditaments comprised therein, pay the several annuities mentioned in the will, and subject thereto; should out of the residue of the rents and profits of the premises comprised in the said term, raise such sums, not exceeding 8000*l.* in the whole, as should be necessary to pay such debts as might be owing by her late husband, or by herself, and all which she directed the trustees to pay out of the said rents and profits, as they should think fit, and as soon as convenient after her decease, and subject to the several trusts of the said term, upon trusts to pay the residue of the net rents, &c. of the premises comprised therein, unto the persons who, for the time being, should be next entitled to the reversion or remainder of the premises expectant therein, under the foregoing limitations: Held, that the testatrix did not intend the debts to be raised out of the corpus of the estate, but only that they should be discharged out of the annual rents and profits. Heneage v. Lde Andover, 3 Y. & J. 360. WILL, C. OF; TRUST TO PAY DEBTS.

RESIDUE.

Executor's rights not affected, where there is no person to take undisposed residue. 1 W. 4. c. 40. s. 2. EXOR.

Executors to be deemed trustees for persons entitled to residue of personal estate. 1 W. 4. c. 40. s. 1. EXOR.

A testator, by his will, gave certain annuities and directed that the sums set apart to secure them should, as the annuitants died, sink into the residue of his personal estate. By a codicil to his will he stated that in case his property would not provide an income equal to the annuities, they should be rateably reduced. His estate was deficient, and the annuities were rateably reduced. Upon the death of any annuitant, the sum set apart to secure the reduced annuity, will belong to the residuary legatee, and is not to be applied to increase the reduced annuities to the amount given by the will. Farmer v. Mills, 4 Russ. 86. WILL, C. OF.

SCOTLAND.

An affidavit made by a defendant in a suit in the exchequer, and sworn before a magistrate in Scotland, was permitted to be read. Ellis v. Sinclair, 3 Y. & J. 273. PR. EVID. AFFIDAVIT; PR. EVID. WHAT SUFFICIENT.

The agent of the Albion insurance company had an office in Glasgow, at which J P and others, the owners of a steam vessel, effected an insurance, receiving from the company's agent, a contract, importing generally that a policy, corresponding with the memorandum, would be prepared at the office in London, and delivered to the assured, or their order, "on the third Monday in the ensuing month, or on any subsequent day." The policy that was sent down, and which was never shown to, or demanded by the assured, contained a clause that "it should be suspended and remain out of force, during the time the steam-boat might be at sea." At the end of the year the policy was renewed through the agent at Glasgow, who delivered to the assured a memorandum, signed by the company's secretary in London, signifying that the above policy had been renewed, but no notice of the exception was ever communicated to the assured. The vessel was shortly afterwards destroyed by fire on her passage from Liverpool to Dublin. Held, that the memorandum was the contract of the parties, which had not been fulfilled by the company, who were therefore liable for damages; that the act 6 Geo. 1. c. 18. (repealed see 6 G. 4. c. 91.) so far as it declares all policies executed by six persons, other than the London Insurance and Royal Exchange Assurances, to be absolutely void, does not extend to Scotland: that a contract so entered into was a Scotch, and not an English contract. Pattison v. Mills, 2 Bligh, N. S. 519. INSURANCE; SPEC. PERT.

A Scotchman, by a will, in the English form, made in England, gave the residue of his personal estate to trustees, of whom some, but not all, were resident in Scotland, upon trust to lay out the same in the purchase of land, or rents of inheritance, in fee simple, for the intent expressed in an instrument of even date with his will, and by that instrument he directed the trustees of his will to pay the rents annually to certain other trustees, who, at all times, were to be persons residing within twenty miles of Montrose, to be by them applied to the relief of indigent ladies in Montrose, or within twenty miles of that town: Held that the bequest was void under the mortmain act. Att.

SETTLEMENT.

Where the husband incurs a forfeiture under the 4 Geo. 4. c. 76. s. 23, the court has no discretion to mitigate the penalty, but is bound to settle and secure all property present and future of the wife, for the benefit of herself or the issue of the marriage. Att. Gen. v. Mullay, 4 Russ. 329. STAT. C. OF; HUSBAND & WIFE.

By covenant in a marriage settlement, the husband was bound to give by his last will or otherwise, to his children in equal shares, all his real estates other than a settled estate and personal property: Held, that the covenant bound only such real estate as he should die seised of; that the covenant bound shares of the settled estate, which the husband became entitled to by devise from a child who died in his lifetime. The children living at the death of the husband, were alone entitled to the benefit of the covenant. Needham v. Smith, 4 Russ. 318.

Where a settlement requires that a retiring trustee should assign the trust property to the continuing trustee, and that a new trustee should be chosen in the place of the retiring trustee, and there is no power to appoint a sole trustee, then if a retiring trustee assign the trust property to the continuing trustee, and he in abuse of his trust dispose of it, the retiring trustee is answerable. Wilkinson v. Parry, 4 Russ. 272. TRUSTEE, LIABILITY OF.

P B, on his daughter's marriage, settled a sum of money on her and her husband, and their issue, and after reciting that he had agreed to make a further provision for his daughter equal to his younger children, covenanted to settle by his will or otherwise on the husband and wife, and their issue, as great a share of his property as he should by his will or otherwise, provide for any of his other younger children, to take effect on the death of the survivor of himself and wife; and if he died intestate, or omitted to make such provision, that his executors should pay to the trustees as great a share of his property, as any of his younger children should in that event become entitled to: Held, that the trustees had a claim upon the executors in respect of subsequent advancements by the settlor to his other younger children in his lifetime, and not merely for a provision equal to that which any of the other children became entitled to at his death. Willis v. Black, 4 Russ. 170.

A testator having devised freeholds and copyholds to the same persons, afterwards executed a settlement in contemplation of his marriage, by which he bargained and sold the freehold to trustees and their heirs, to the use of himself during his life, and after his death, to the intent that the wife might receive annually a rent charge, which was secured by powers of distress and entry, and by a term of years, and subjected the rent charge and the term to the use of the settlor, his heirs and assigns; and he covenanted to surrender the copyholds, to the uses of the settlement. The marriage was solemnized, and the testator died, leaving his wife surviving, without having surrendered the copyholds to the uses of the settlement; the covenant to surrender did not operate as an entire revocation of the devise of the copyholds, but was a revocation only so far as the particular purposes of the settlement required. Vauser v. Jefferrey, 3 Russ. 479. WILL, REVOCATION OF.

In contemplation of marriage between A and B, settlements were made of real estate belonging to B, the intended wife, and of personally belonging to A, the intended husband, upon uses and trusts which, after the solemnization of the marriage, were to be for the benefit of the husband and wife, and their issue; the marriage ceremony was performed, and the parties lived together as husband and wife, but after the lapse of more than a year, and before the parties had any children, the marriage was discovered to be void, and they executed deeds purporting to revoke the former settlement; some time afterwards a new settlement in contemplation of marriage was made, including the same property as the former, but different from the former in the interest given to the issue, as well as in other provisions; the parties then intermarried, and there was issue of the marriage: Held, that the first settlement being founded on mistake and misapprehension, was not binding on the parties, and that the rights of the issue, both as to the real estate, and the personally were regulated by the second settlement. Robinson v. Dickenson, 3 Russ. 399. MISTAKE.

Previous to marriage the fortune of the wife is so settled, as in the event of her surviving her husband, to belong to her absolutely, and by other deeds of the same date, the husband makes a settlement of his property, under which certain interests are given to the wife; he dies in her lifetime, having by his will bequeathed to her considerable benefits, which he directs shall be in satisfaction of all her claims or demands against his estate, or executors, under the settlement made by him, or on any other account whatsoever; the acceptance of the benefit given to her by the will, does not preclude the wife from claiming a leasehold, part of her own fortune, which the husband was bound, by deed settling her fortune, to renew in the name of trustees, and upon the trusts of that settlement, but which he had renewed in his own name. Coleman v. Jones, 3 Russ. 312.

SETTLEMENT OF FAMILY DISPUTES.

A transaction cannot be considered as a family arrangement, where the doubts existing as to the rights alleged to be compromised, are not presented to the mind of the party interested. Harvey v. Cooke, 4 Russ. 34. FRAUD; IGNORANCE OF RIGHTS.

SOLICITOR—SOLICITOR AND CLIENT.

Whenever a professional man is called on to give his services to a client, whether to prepare a deed or will, the law implies to him a knowledge of all the legal consequences to result, and requires that he should distinctly and clearly point out to his client, all those consequences from whence a benefit may arise to himself, from the instrument so prepared, and if he fail to do so, equity will deprive him of it. Segrave v. Kirwan, 1 Beat. 166.

An attorney who practices in the name of a solicitor without having previously obtained his permission to do so, cannot recover any costs from his clients. Lawrence v. Sharp, 1 Hog. 84.

A solicitor will not be ordered to bring into court the deeds of his clients. McCann v. Beers, 1 Hog. 129. PR. PRODUCTION OF DEEDS.

When in notice of motion on behalf of feme covert, no prochain ami is named, her solicitor will be liable for costs awarded against her. Coe v. McNamara, 10 J. 78. PR. COSTS; HUSB. & WIFE; RU. PROC. AMI.

In taking an account of the pecuniary transactions between an attorney and his client, the production of a bond entered into by the latter is not sufficient evidence of a debt to that amount, and actual payment must be proved. Lacey v. Morgan, 3 Y. & J. 230. PR. EVID., WHAT SUFFICIENT; DEBT.

A demurrer to a bill by the assignees of a bankrupt, because it did not state that it had been filed, with consent of the creditors, as required by the stat. 6 Geo. 4. c. 16, was over-ruled; the act merely intended to make assignees responsible, as between them and the creditors, if they instituted any suit without the consent directed by the act. Jones v. Yates, 3 Y. & J. 373. PL. PARTIES: PL. BILL; BANKCY. ASSIGNEES.

A having purchased lands, left the title to the investigation of C and D, solicitors in partnership, upon whose advice the purchase was completed; D was a trustee to uses to bar dower in the conveyance; A died, and his devisee sold the property to D. On a bill for specific performance by the vendor, it was held that a solicitor who has been employed to advise on a title, could not, on purchasing the property himself, set up an objection which he did not think important when advising his principal. Beavor v. Simpson, 1 Tam. 69. AGREEMENT, SPEC. PERF.; VEND. & PURCH.; TITLE.

If a solicitor institutes unnecessary proceedings, the court will take care that the client shall not suffer by the course adopted. Wood v. Wood, 4 Russ. 668.

If a solicitor in a cause, having assumed, improperly, the character of a receiver, neglects to collect the rent, while the parties consider him to be acting as a receiver, he makes himself responsible for any rents lost in consequence of his neglect. S. C.

By the direction of A, a bill was filed for the administration of a testator's assets, in which A and his infant brother and sister, by A as their next friend were plaintiffs; D, their elder brother, who had an interest adverse of theirs, and was one of the defendants, acted as solicitor in the country for the plaintiffs, and the suit was conducted by his town agents. After the sister had attained her full age, D died, having appointed her his executrix. A gave notice to the persons who had been the town agents of D, not to take any proceedings in his name, and the sister appointed them to act as solicitors for her: Held, that A was not entitled to have the papers connected with the cause, delivered over to him, though he offered to satisfy any lien which might be claimed against them. The sister filed a bill of revivor after the death of D, and made A and his infant brother defendants. A and the brother, after notice of that bill, filed another bill of revivor; this second bill was ordered to be taken off the file, and the court held that an alleged defect of parties in the frame of the first bill, of revivor, afforded no reason for allowing the second bill of revivor to remain on the file. Livesey v. Livesey, 1 Russ. & M. 10. PR. TAKING PLEADINGS OFF FILE.

A party is bound by the consent of his counsel given in court, though they had no instructions to consent, if they were at the time apprised of all those facts, of which the knowledge was essential to the proper exercise of their discretion, but he will be relieved from an order made by such consent, if they give that consent in ignorance of material circumstances. How far a party will be affected by the remissness of his solicitor in not immediately objecting to an order, made by consent of counsel in court, when neither the party nor his solicitor was present, and instructions to consent had not been given by either. Furnival v. Bogle, 4 Russ. 142. CONSENT; BARRISTER.

STAMP.

Letters of administration, under which a plaintiff makes title, must be stamped ad valorem. Harper v. Ravenhill, 1 Taml. 145.

STATUTES, CONSTRUCTION OF.

By the preamble of the registry act, the object of the legislature appears to be, to secure purchasers, and to prevent forgeries, fraudulent gifts, and conveyances; but a judgment creditor is not a purchaser, and does not fall within the provision of the preamble. Crymble v. Adair, 1 Beat. 124.

The preamble is a good mean to find out the meaning of the statute, and is a key to open the understanding thereof. Id. ib.

Husband and wife made a post-nuptial settlement of monies due to the wife, which, when paid, were invested in the names of trustees. The husband, having committed an act of bankruptcy prior to the settlement, was afterwards declared a bankrupt, and the bargain and sale was executed previously to the new bankrupt act, 6 G. 4. c. 16. coming into operation. Held that the 73d section of that act (which to enable the voluntary deed of a bankrupt to be set aside, requires that at the time of his conveying, he should have been insolvent,) had no retrospect to this case; but that the law in force at the time of the bargain and sale should regulate its operation; and, therefore that the assignees were entitled to the fund. Wombwell v. Laver, 2 Sim. 360. BANKCY. ASSIGNMENT WHAT PASSES.

A contracted to sell a freehold estate to B, and by will gave the purchase money to trustees for certain purposes; and if the contract should not be completed, he devised the estate to the trustees for the same purpose. A died, leaving a son, who died leaving an only daughter, an infant. Held that she was not a trustee within the statute 6 G. 4. c. 74. In re. of Moody, 1 Taml. 4. INFANT TRUSTEE.

A clause in act of parliament passed for regulation of joint stock company, provided, that all proceedings, whether at law or equity to be carried on, by or on behalf of the company against any person or persons, whether members or not, should be instituted, &c. in name of chairman, or of one of directors as nominal plaintiff; such clause does not apply where directors appropriate to their own use part of the joint stock, by charging the company with a much larger sum, as the price of property purchased by them, than was actually paid. Hitchens v. Congreve, 4 Russ. 562.

A and B, the residuary legatees of a deceased person, obtained administration of, and had part of the assets transferred to their names: the letters of administration were afterwards recalled, and administration granted to B, the sole next of kin of the deceased, who was declared to have died intestate. A was abroad, and B a prisoner for contempt, for not obeying an order of the court to transfer to the credit of the cause, certain stock which they had admitted by their answer to belong to the deceased. A petition was presented, under the 6 G. 4. c. 74. to have the stock transferred; but the court held that the act extended only to express trusts, and refused to make the order. Dew v. Clark, 4 Russ. 511. STOCK; TRUSTEE.

Where the husband incurs a forfeiture under s. 23. of 4 G. 4. c. 76., the court has no discretion to mitigate the penalty, but is bound to settle and secure all property present and future of the wife for the benefit of herself, or the issue of the marriage. Att. Gen. v. Mullan, 4 Russ. 329. HUSBAND AND WIFE; SETTLEMENT.

The statute of the 25 G. 2. c. 6. does not extend to wills of personal estate only, and a legacy to a person who is an attesting witness to such a will is not void. Emanuel v. Constable, 3 Russ. 436. WILL C. OF, WHO MAY TAKE; PR. EVIDENCE, WITNESS, COMPETENCY; LEGACY; ESTATE PERSONAL.

A feme covert, tenant in tail in remainder of money to be laid out in land, by arrangement with the tenant for life, and on a private examination under the 7 G. 4. c. 45. consented to the payment of a proportion of the money to her husband; and the order was made accordingly. In re Silcocks, 3 Russ. 369. HUSB. AND WIFE, CONSENT TO BAR; MONEY TO BE LAID OUT IN LAND.

The equity of redemption of a leasehold for years with a covenant for perpetual renewal, is not an interest in real estate within the meaning of the 53 G. 3. c. 102. s. 19. The assignee of an insolvent is not bound, under that section, to dispose of such an equity of redemption by public auction. In a suit by the assignee of an insolvent to impeach a sale, which a former assignee had made of an equity of redemption, the insolvent is not rendered a competent witness for the plaintiff, by releasing his interest in the residue of his estate. Waldren v. Howell, 3 Russ. 376. INSOLVENT.

Seemle, an order of reference to the master on a petition, presented under Lord Eldon's act, ought not to be made, except on a hearing in court, and on the appearance of counsel upon the petition. Hinde v. Metcalfe, 3 Russ. 416. PR. PETITION; MONEY TO BE LAID OUT IN LAND.

STIPULATED DAMAGES.

By an indenture, a farm was demised at a yearly rent, with a covenant by the tenant, that if during the last three years of the term, he should sow more than seventy acres of clover in one year, he should pay an additional rent of 10*l.* a year, for every acre above seventy for the remainder of the term: Held that the additional rent was in the nature of stipulated damages, entitling the plaintiff to a discovery in aid of an action at law; and a plea that the discovery would subject defendant to penalties, was overruled. Jones v. Green, 3 Y. & J. 298. LANDLORD AND TENANT; PL. DISCOVERY TENDING TO CRIMINATE.

STOCK.

See as to transfer of stock, 1 W. 4. c. 60. 1 W. 4. c. 65.

The court, on the petition of the assignee of a reversion, will order the accountant-general not to transfer the stock, although the assignor has not been served with notice of the application. Salmon v. —, 1 Taml. 74. PR. FUND IN COURT.

A and B, the residuary legatees of a deceased person, obtained administration of, and had part of the assets transferred to their names. The letters of administration were afterwards recalled, and administration granted to B, the sole next of kin of the deceased, who was declared to have died intestate. A was abroad, and B a prisoner for contempt, for not obeying an order of the court, to transfer to the credit of the cause certain stock, which they had admitted, by their answer, to belong to the deceased. A petition was presented, under the 6th G. 4. c. 74. to have the stock transferred; but the court held, that the act extended only to express trusts, and refused to make the order. Dew v. Clark, 4 Russ. 511. TRUSTEE; STAT. C. OF.

TITLE.

The language of endowment being ambiguous, and it being unexplained by any other documents, and there being no parol testimony on either side on which any reliance could be placed, the court declined making a decree, but directed an issue. Wyld v. Ward, 3 Y. & J. 192.

TITHES.

To a bill by a vicar against occupiers for certain tithes, impropiators ought to be admitted as parties, although the defendants allege that it is uncertain, whether these lands are or are not within the parish; and that the impropriate rectors had always received or demanded the tithes: occupiers only are necessary parties. Cooke v. Blunt, 2 Sim. 417. PR. PARTIES.

On a bill by a vicar for the tithe of mills, the defendant set forth that the mill was an ancient mill, and was built before living memory, and that tithes had never been paid, but that they had always been considered as exempt from tithes. The exemption was considered as sufficiently laid. Townley v. Colegate, 2 Sim. 297. Broune v. Woolsey, 2 Sim. 305.

Tithe is not payable in respect of corn, belonging to the parties, ground at their own mills, and afterwards sold to the public. S. C.

Terriers are evidence of tithes merely personal. S. C.

Sequestrators appointed by the court of chancery have no right to seize on the tithes of an ecclesiastical benefice. Ward v. Hayes, 1 Hog. 107. PR. SEQUESTRATION.

In a suit for tithes, there was no proof of payment for a very long period; all the evidence which would tend to prove a legal exemption (claimed by the occupier) was adduced at the hearing; but as that would not, in the opinion of the court, justify a jury in finding for the exemption, an issue was refused. Ross v. Aglionby, 4 Russ. 489. PR. ISSUE AT LAW.

A single terrier, unsupported by usage, is not sufficient to establish a modus. To support a parochial modus, it is not sufficient for the defendant to prove the non-render: he must go further, and shew the acceptance of the modus for some time, and to some extent. Lynes v. Lett, 3 Y. & J. 405.

The bishop's registry office is the proper custody for the sequestrator's accounts, with reference to their admissibility on questions of right to tithes. Palley v. Hilton, 12 Price, 625.

A general title to tithes throughout a parish in a vicar, gives him a prima facie case; and throws it on the defendants to prove their alleged exemption from liability, on the trial of an issue. Id. ib.

Though mere non-payment of tithes for however long a period would not be evidence of a grant, yet a layman's adverse enjoyment or porncancy for a long series of years of the tithes of certain lands, or of a new payment in lieu of tithes, coupled with a succession of deeds by which the tithes or money payments in lieu of tithes have been conveyed from one person to another, corresponding with the enjoyment, affords evidence sufficient to justify a jury in presuming a legal grant of the tithes. Bacon v. Williams, 3 Russ. 525. PRESUMPTION.

TOLL.

A grant of a fair or market, with an express grant of toll, passes reasonable toll, though no amount be specified. Corp. of Stamford v. Pawlett, 1 Cramp. & J. 57. DEEDS, C. OF.

TRADERS.

As to administration of estates of traders in equity, see 1 W. 4. c. 47.

Persons having only estate for life, enabled to convey the fee when estate ordered to be sold. 1 W. 4. c. 47. s. 12. ESTATE, TENANT FOR LIFE.

TRUST.

Limitations or devises to pay debts are not affected by 1 W. 4. c. 47. s. 5. relating to traders.

Devise of freeholds of inheritance to trustees for 500 years, and subject to that term, to the use of various persons successively for life, with remainder to the first and other sons of such several persons successively in tail male, with remainder to the daughters of such several persons successively in tail general, with remainders over. The trusts of the 500 years' term were declared to be, that the trustees of the term should out of the rents, &c. of the hereditaments comprised therein, pay the several annuities mentioned in the will, and subject thereto, should, out of the residue of the rents and profits of the premises comprised in the said term, raise such sums not exceeding 8,000*l.* in the whole, as should be necessary to pay such debts as might be owing by her late husband or by herself, and all which she directed the trustees to pay out of the said rents and profits as they should think fit, and as soon as convenient after her decease; and, subject to the several trusts of the said term, upon trust to pay the residue of the net rents, &c. of the premises comprised therein, unto the persons who for the time being should be next entitled to the reversion or remainder of the premises expectant thereon, under the foregoing limitations: held, that the testatrix did not intend the debts to be raised out of the corpus of the estate, but only that they should be discharged out of the annual rents and profits. Heneage v. Ld. Andover, 3 Y. & J. 360. RENTS AND PROFITS; WILL, C. OF.

D having an estate for life in lands, assigned them, together with certain furniture, to trustees for ninety-nine years, in trust to pay to the appellant 5000*l.* a year, and to his creditors, partners to the assignment, 5 per cent. upon their respective debts. The creditors generally executed the assignment, by which they covenanted not to sue the appellant; but P and B having obtained judgment, sued out a writ of fi. fa., under which the sheriff seized the goods of D, but refused to sell in consequence of a claim by the trustees. P and B then filed a creditor's bill in chancery in Ireland, stating these facts, and setting forth in part, the deed of trust and assignment as it appeared in the registry, but, alleging that they were ignorant of the trusts, prayed that the defendants might set forth the deed, and that the creditors might have power to elect to take the benefit of the deed, or otherwise that it might be declared fraudulent and void as to them and that a receiver might be appointed. After the bill was filed, two of the trustees died, and new ones were appointed. D, and the surviving trustee put in their answers. In 1824, P and B filed a supplemental bill setting forth the deed, and stating that, under it, D was entitled to a rent charge issuing out of the lands, and that they had sued out an elegit against D for 1000*l.*, directed to the sheriff of R, who returned, that D and his trustee were seized of a freehold rent, issuing out of lands in the county of R: one moiety of which he had delivered to P and B, to hold till they had levied the damages marked upon the writ. They claimed by this bill to be entitled either to a moiety of the lands, or the rent charge, or to have satisfaction of their judgment out of the amount payable to D under the trusts of the deed. The lords held, (confirming the judgment of the master of the rolls, the lords commissioners, and the lord chancellor,) that certain orders appointing a receiver and restraining the surviving trustee from paying the annuity to D, were properly made. Also, that the defects in the sheriff's return to the elegit were immaterial, as no return was necessary, and that the suing out an elegit was sufficient to ground the equity. And further, that one elegit is sufficient, although the rent be payable out of lands in three counties. Ld. Dillon v. Plissett, 2 Bligh, N. S. 211. ELECT.

A person employed on behalf of himself and his copartners, in negotiating the term of a lease, is not entitled to stipulate clandestinely with the lessors for any private advantage to himself; where, therefore, a sum of 12,000*l.* was paid in pursuance of such a stipulation, the party receiving it was declared to hold it in trust for the partnership. Before the transaction was discovered, one of the partners withdrew, and subsequently another partner assigned a share in the stock, and in his proportion of this claim to persons then admitted into the concern: held, that the retired, the continuing, and the new partners, were properly joined as complainants in a suit to have the trust declared. Fawcett v. Whitehouse, 1 Russ. & M. 132. PARTNERSHIP; PARTN. AND AGENT; PL. PARTIES; PARTNERS.

A son conveys an estate to his father nominally as purchaser, but really as a trustee, and in order that the father, who was in better credit than the son, might raise money upon it by way of mortgage for the use of the son. The father died shortly afterwards, and before any money was raised, having by a will subsequent to the conveyance, made a general devise of all his real estate. The case is within the statute of frauds, and parol evidence is not admissible to prove the trust, but the son has a lien on the estate as vendor for the apparent consideration, no part of which was paid. Laman v. Whiteley, 4 Russ. 423. PARENT & CHILD; PR. EVID.; PROR. VINDIC. & PERCU.; LIT.

A mother entitled to a considerable property under the will of a relation, in a conversation with the executor of that relation, expressed an intention to make a settlement of part of that property which was standing in his name, upon her daughter; and requested the executor to instruct her solicitor to prepare such a settlement. On the prepared settlement being brought to her for execution, she had changed her mind and refused to sign it. Held, that her intention expressed in the conversation with the executor of her relation, did not amount to a declaration of trust, although the property was personal estate. Bayley v. Boulcott, 4 Russ. 345.

Where a debtor by a deed poll, directs inter alia, the receiver of the rents of his estate to keep down the interest of a certain debt, the direction does not create a trust in favour of the creditor, if it be without consideration and without the privity of the creditor. Page v. Brown, 4 Russ. 6. PURITY OF CONTRACT.

If a tenant for life of an under-lease for eighteen years, granted by a person who himself holds the premises so under-let along with other property under a lease for twenty-one years, purchases the interest of his immediate lessor, and obtains from the superior lessor a renewal of the lease thus purchased. The renewed lease is subject so far as regards the premises which were comprised in the under-lease, to the same trusts as would have affected the under-lease, if it had not been merged or had not expired by the effluxion of time. The same rule holds, though the lease at the time of the purchase was vested in a trustee upon trusts, under which he could not have granted a renewal of the under-lease, and though the tenant for life outlived by twenty-five years the time at which the under-lease would have expired by effluxion of time. Giddings v. Giddings, 3 Russ. 241. LEASE, RENEWAL OF; MERGER.

A, being tenant for life of a leasehold for years, with remainder to B. After devising one estate to B in tail, bequeathed to him the leasehold during his life with remainder over, and gave him all the residue of his real and personal property. B took possession of the residuary estate; suffered a recovery of the lands devised for him in tail; acted as the absolute owner of the leasehold estate; and outlived the term for which the lease was granted, having previously acquired a new interest in the demised premises. Held, that B elected to take under the will, and was bound to give effect to the devise of the leasehold in favour of the remainder man. Giddings v. Giddings, 3 Russ. 241. ELECTION.

A made a voluntary surrender of copyholds to a trustee upon trust for F during her life; and if at her death she left children who attained twenty-one, upon trust to sell and divide the money among them; but if that event did not take place, upon trust for A in fee. Afterwards by a deed reciting that the trustee was seized of the premises upon trust for F and her husband and A. The trustee and F and her husband and A concurred in demising the premises for a valuable consideration to G for a long term of years. Held, that the lessee was to be considered as having notice of the trust for the benefit of the children of F, and that the lease was void as against them. Malpas v. Ackland, 3 Russ. 273. NOTICE.

TRUSTEES.

New trustees when to be appointed in cases of charities. 1 W. 4. c. 60. s. 22. CHARITY.

As to trustees being lunatic, or refusing to convey, or out of kingdom, &c. &c. 1 W. 4. c. 60.

It is a salutary rule that the trustee cannot institute a suit, without his cestui que trusts being parties; but it is a subject to be modified according to circumstances. Bisfield v. Taylor, 1 Beat. 93.

The master of the rolls, in a suit by the assignees of a bankrupt, against a trustee of a fund contingent on the event of the bankrupt surviving his mother, which event happened after the bankruptcy, having made a decree in favour of the plaintiffs, would not make the trustee pay costs, he having acted in ignorance. Knight v. Martin, 1 Taml. 237. S. C. 1 R. & M. 70. PR. COSTS; TRUSTEE.

Trustees having contracted to purchase land, sell out stock, and deposit the produce at a banker's, when the purchase seems to be near completion, they are not liable to make good the money if the bankers fail. Freme v. Woods, 1 Taml. 172. INVESTMENT.

By settlement, monies were directed to be laid out on government or real securities, the trustees having lent the money to the husband on bond, were ordered, on motion, to pay the money into court. Collis v. Collis, 2 Sim. 365. PR. PAYMENT INTO COURT.

Where the sole trustee in a will, to whom a term was demise, died in the testator's lifetime, the court referred it to the master to appoint a new trustee, and to approve of a like demise. Decey v. Peace, 1 Taml. 78. PR. MASTER, REFERENCE.

A & B, the residuary legatees of a deceased person, obtained administration of, and had part of the assets transferred to their names. The letters of administration were afterwards recalled, and administration granted to B the sole next of kin of the deceased, who was declared to have died intestate. A was abroad, and B a prisoner for contempt for not obeying an order of the court, to transfer to the credit of the cause certain stock which they had admitted by their answer to have belonged to the deceased. A petition was presented, under the 6 Geo. 4. c. 74. to have the stock transferred, but the court held that the act extended only to express trusts, and refused to make the order. Dew v. Clark, 4 Russ. 511. STOCK; STAT. C. OF.

A trustee refusing to pay a legacy without the direction of the court, in a case which admitted of no doubt, was refused his costs, but was not made to pay the costs of the suit, because he might have acted from ignorance, and not from any improper motive. Knight v. Martin, 1 Russ. & M. 70. PR. COSTS; TRUSTEES.

Where a settlement requires that a retiring trustee should assign the trust property to the continuing trustee, and that a new trustee should be chosen in the place of the retiring trustee; and there is no power to appoint a sole trustee, then if the retiring trustee assign the trust property to the continuing trustee, and he in abuse of his trust dispose of it, the retiring trustee is answerable. Wilkinson v. Parry, 4 Russ. 272. SETTLEMENT, C. OF.

A testator gave the residue of his personal estate to trustees, directing them to convert it into money and invest the proceeds in government or real security, of which they were to stand possessed upon trust for A during her life; and afterwards for B. The trustees permitted a share which the testator had in an Indian loan, bearing interest at ten per cent. to remain for several years out of that security, during which time they paid to A the interest at ten per cent. which it yielded annually; and the loan being afterwards paid off, they invested the money in the three per cent. at a time when the funds were so low that the amount of stock purchased was considerably greater than if the conversion had taken place at the end of a year, from the testator's death. Held, that the tenant for life was not entitled to the actual interest which the money yielded while it remained on the Indian security, but only to the dividends of so much three per cent. stock, as would have been purchased with it at the end of a year from the testator's death; that the trustees ought to be charged with the whole of the stock actually purchased, and all sums allowed in their discharge as payments to the tenant for life; not the sums which they had in fact paid her, but only a sum equal to what she would have received for dividends, if the money had been transferred from the Indian security, and invested in the three per cent. stock at the end of a year from the testator's death. Davis v. Scott, 4 Russ. 195. WILL, C. OF; INTEREST, RATE OF; INVESTMENT.

Scamble, where the cestui que trusts convey their beneficial interest in a portion of the property to a purchaser, the purchaser may file a bill against the trustee for a conveyance of the legal estate, without making the cestui que trusts, who sold to him parties to the suit. Goodson v. Ellison, 3 Russ. 583. PR. PARTIES.

USURY.

Where an annuity is granted for a term of years to be paid half-yearly, and at the same time promissory notes are given by the grantee for the payment of each half-year's annuity when it becomes due, and it appears that the several half-yearly payments will repay the purchase money with interest exceeding the rate of 5l. per cent. the transaction is usurious. Fereday v. Wightwick, 1 Russ. & M. 45. S. C. 1 Taml. 250. ANNUITY, VALIDITY.

A covenant in a mortgage of property in the West Indies on the part of the mortgagor, to consign the produce of the estate to the mortgagee to be sold on commission for the mortgagor; and to take all such plantation stores as may be wanted for the use of the estate from the mortgagee, is not usurious. A mortgagee is entitled to the benefit of such a covenant, and to charge a commission on the sale of the produce consigned to him. On the assignment by a mortgagee, the cost of supplies and contingencies furnished to the plantation previous to the assignment, but paid for subsequently by the assignee, may be added to the mortgage debt and charged against the estate. Sayers v. Whitfield, 1 Knapp, 133. MORTGAGE.

VENDOR AND PURCHASER.

A person who had entered into an agreement for the purchase of land which was formerly part of the glebe of a rectory, and had been before sold for the redemption of the land tax, is not bound to complete his purchase, when it appears that upon the prior sale for the redemption of the land tax, the rector was himself the actual purchaser in the name of his curate. Grover v. Hugell, 3 Russ. 428. LAND TAX, REDEMPT. OF; AGREEMENT, SPEC. PERF.

By an agreement for the sale of an estate, the purchase money, with interest, was to be secured by the bond of the purchaser, and was to remain so secured during the life of the vendor. The conveyance which was afterwards executed, expressed that the purchase money had been paid, and the vendor's receipt was indorsed upon it; but in fact, only a part of the price had been paid, and the residue was secured by the purchaser's bond, conditioned for payment of the principal with interest within twelve months after the death of the vendor; and of interest in the meantime. The vendor was held to have a lien on the estate for the amount of the bond. Winter v. Anson, 3 Russ. 488.

There is no distinction between copyholds and freeholds as to the doctrine of the vendor's lien for his purchase money. Id. 492.

In an agreement for the purchase of an estate, the purchaser stipulated to pay the residue of the purchase money on a day specified, "upon the vendor's making a good title or otherwise, if such title should not then be completed, upon his executing a bond to complete such title, and to convey the estate as soon as the same could be completed:" the vendor is bound to shew a good title; and till a good title is shewn, the purchaser, though he has entered into possession is not bound to pay the purchase money. (Clarke v. Faur, 3 Russ. 320. PAYMT. OF PURCH. MONEY.

If after a contract for sale of an estate before the title is accepted, the title deeds be destroyed by fire, this court will not compel the specific performance of the contract, unless the vendor can furnish the purchaser with the means of showing what were the contents of the destroyed deeds, and of proving that such deeds were duly executed and delivered. Bryant v. Bush, 4 Russ. 1. ACCIDENT.

A purchaser who has not been in possession, is bound to pay interest on the purchase money and take the rents and profits only from the time when a good title was first shewn, and not from the time fixed by the agreement for the completion of the purchase. Jones v. Mudd, 4 Russ. 118. INTEREST.

A contract of purchase contained a stipulation that if by reason of any unforeseen or unavoidable obstacles, the conveyance could not be perfected for execution before the day fixed for the completion of the purchase, the purchaser should from that day pay interest at five per cent. on his purchase money, and be entitled to the rents and profits of the premises, the vendor did not show a good title till long after the specified day: Held that he was not entitled to interest, except from the time when a good title was first shown. Monck v. Huskisson, 4 Russ. 121. (n). INTEREST.

The generality and vagueness of descriptions of copyhold property on the court rolls, are so well known, that a vendor is not bound to show how the description on the court roll is to be applied to the present state of the property; if he prove that the property has actually been enjoyed, and passed under that description for upwards of sixty years. Long v. Collier, 4 Russ. 267.

In a suit for specific performance by a vendor, the costs will be thrown upon the purchaser, though the master reports that a good title was not shewn till after the filing of the bill, if that finding proceeded on the ground that certain evidence had not been previously furnished, which the vendor had offered to produce, but which had not been actually produced before the institution of the suit, in consequence of the purchaser insisting upon other and unsubstantial objections. Long v. Collier, 4 Russ. 269.

As a general rule where land is agreed to be sold tithe free, the right to the tithes is to be considered so material to the enjoyment of the lands, that a purchaser is not compelled to complete his contract, with a compensation, if a good title cannot be made to the title; but this rule admits of exception where the circumstances manifest that the right to the title did not form any inducement to the purchaser to enter into the contract. Smith v. Tolcher, 4 Russ. 302.

The lien of a vendor upon the land and title deeds until payment of the purchase money, does not apply to a conveyance to the purchaser executed by some, but not all of the parties, where the contract has gone off by the vendor's default; and if there be any lien on such a conveyance, it is vested in the purchaser as security for his deposit. Orenham v. Esdaile, 3 Y. & J. 263.

A vendor who has taken, as security for part of the purchase money, the bond of the vendee and a mortgage of part of the property sold, has not, on the bankruptcy of the vendee, a lien on the whole estate. Capper v. Spottiswoode, 1 Tam. 21.

Devise to trustees and their heirs during the life of A B, in trust to lay out the rents and issues thereof in government securities, until A B should attain twenty-one, and after that, to suffer her to receive and take the profits during her life, not subject to the debts or controul of her husband, her receipt to be a sufficient discharge; and, after her decease, to her heirs. Upon a suit for a specific performance of an agreement for the purchase of part of the estates, the question was whether A B took the legal, or only an equitable interest for life in the property, so as to bring the title within the rule in Shelley's case. The Ld. C. B. would not compel the defendant to accept the title. Playford v. Houre, 3 Y. & J. 175. WILL, C. OF, WHAT ESTATE.

Devise to executors and trustees of a freehold of inheritance for a term of ten years, in trust to pay debts and legacies, and after testator's decease, to his wife for life; then "to my grandson Thomas Chorlton, son of the late R. Chorlton, all that my estate where I now live, and all that other estate and promises thereto belonging, situate, &c., called or known by the name of Weaste estate, now in the holding of T, for his own use during his natural life, with remainder to the first son of the body of the said Thomas Chorlton lawfully begotten, severally and successively in tail male of the name of Chorlton. And for want of such lawful issue of that name, either by my said grandson Thomas Chorlton, or my son John Chorlton, then I give and devise the said estate where I now live, and the Weaste estate, amongst my daughters and their children share and share alike, to hold unto them, his, her, or their heirs for ever as tenants in common and not as joint tenants." Thomas Chorlton suffered a recovery. He had no child. Held, on an exception to the title taken by a purchaser under a sale by order of the court, that the devisee could make a good title in fee to the vendee. The question of title or no title being matter of opinion for the court, the purchaser is bound thereby, and cannot object to complete the purchase on the ground of the difficulty of the question on which the title depends. Rushon v. Craven, 12 Price, 599. WILL, C. OF, WHAT ESTATE.

If the vendor of an estate, the contract for which was not complete in the lifetime of the testator, who was the purchaser, is afterwards paid the purchase money out of the personal assets, the simple contract creditors of the testator shall stand in the place of the vendor with respect to his lien on the estate. Qu. if a pecuniary legatee would be entitled to the same benefit against the devisee? Selby v. Selby, 4 Russ. 336. EXORS.; ASSETS, MARSHALLING; LEGATEES; DEVISERS.

A purchaser not compelled to take a title depending upon the words of a will which were too doubtful ever to be settled without litigation. Sharp v. Adcock, 4 Russ. 374.

A son conveys an estate to his father nominally as purchaser, but really as a trustee, and in order that the father, who was in better credit than the son, might raise money upon it by way of mortgage, for the use of the son; the father died shortly afterwards, and before any money was raised, having, by a will, subsequent to the conveyance, made a general devise of all his real estate: the case is within the statute of frauds, and parol evidence is not admissible to prove the trust; but the son has a lien on the estate as vendor for the apparent consideration, no part of which was paid. Leman v. Whitley, 4 Russ. 423. PARENT AND CHILD; TRUST; PR. EVID. PAROL.

Where the possession is vacant, a purchaser is not bound to inquire of the late occupier what was the nature of his title. Under an agreement between A, who held lands under a college lease, and B, the owner of an adjoining estate; B occupied part of the college lands, and A had occupied, along with the residue of the leasehold, part of B's estate. A having become bankrupt, the college leasehold was sold, and was described in the particulars of sale as "late the residue of A." Held, that the purchaser was not to be considered as having implied notice of the agreement of exchange, and that he had a right to recover by ejectment that portion of the leasehold which was in B's occupation. Miles v. Langley, 1 Russ. & M. 39.

If land, generally reputed to be water-meadow, is sold by the assignees of a bankrupt by the description of uncommonly rich water-meadow, whereas, in fact, it is very imperfectly watered; this is not such a misrepresentation as will avoid the sale. Scott v. Hanson, 1 Russ. & M. 126. FRAUD; MISREPRESENTATION.

A purchaser of a reversion must pay interest on his purchase money, from the time of the purchase. Trejusis v. Ld. Clinton, 2 Sim. 359. INTEREST, FROM WHEN.

If an estate be conveyed away in the lifetime of the party to whom it belonged, and he dies within forty days from the execution of the conveyance, his heir may recover it from the purchaser. Under such circumstances, if the heir has received the purchase-money, he cannot have the estate restored without refunding the price paid for it. But where the price has been paid to other persons, the purchaser cannot call upon the heir to repay it, but must recover it as he can from those to whom it has been given by the deceased. Marett v. Jeunes, 1 Knapp, 103. HEIR AT LAW.

A, having purchased lands, left the title to the investigation of C and D solicitors in partnership; upon whose advice the purchase was completed. D was a trustee to uses to bar dower in the conveyance. A died, and his devisee sold the property to D. On a bill for specific performance by the vendor, it was held, that a solicitor who has been employed to advise on a title, could not, on purchasing the property himself, set up an objection which he did not think important when advising his principal. Beever v. Simpson,

1 Tam. 69. SOL. & CLERK: AGREEMENT, SPEC. PERF.

Purchase money invested under order of court, obtained by purchaser without notice to all parties, is at risk of purchaser; but investment is at risk of estate, if order for investment is made on motion, of which all parties had notice. McCann v. Forbes, 1 Hog. 13.

If solicitor of inheritor is employed by creditor to make out title to purchaser, he will be paid his costs out of fund in court. Thompson v. Cooke, 1 Hog. 28.

Purchaser under decree, with notice of judgments intervening between incumbrances ordered to be paid, is bound by them, unless persons to whom they are vested are parties to the cause, or come in and prove under decree. Steels v. Philips, 1 Hog. 49. PR. DECREE, WHO BOUND BY.

When plaintiff neglects to make out title to purchaser, the latter will be allowed to make it out himself, and deduct expence from purchase-money. Harding v. Middleton, 1 Hog. 80.

Vendor may acquire lien on fund in court, under contract for sale, and if vendee refuses to complete contract, may prevent him by injunction from drawing out of court, fund which was appropriated by the contract to be applied in part discharge of purchase-money. Doyle v. Harvey, 1 Hog. 3. PR. PAYMENT OUT OF COURT.

Where an estate has been sold to a person who has since died, the court will direct an account to be taken of the personal estate, and decree that the vendor shall have a lien on the land for so much as the personal estate will not extend to pay. Topham v. Constantine, 1 Tam. 135. ACCOUNT.

An injunction to restrain a widow from proceeding at law to enforce her dower out of lands of inheritance, purchased from her husband during marriage, refused; the purchaser having "through negligence, neither insisted on having a fine, nor used common diligence to ascertain and preserve evidence that a jointure had been settled on her; but the widow having in her answer to the original bill, admitted that her husband, previous to marriage, had executed an instrument settling an annuity of 150l. on her, in case she survived him, together with a bond collateral, but of which she knew not the contents, restrained from proceeding to execute her writ of dower, till after she had answered the amended bill." She is not, as a condition connected with the order, entitled to a receiver, which would be an equitable execution; neither is she entitled to her costs at law. Power v. Sheil, 1 Beat. 48. DOWER.

Heir of vendor or nominal purchaser, when to be deemed trustee, after decree for specific performance. 1 W. 4. c. 60. s. 16. HEIR AT LAW; TRUSTEE.

A purchaser under a decree has no lien for his costs on the funds in court, arising out of the sales of other property, so as to prevent any distribution of the fund until the report of the title being bad has been confirmed. McCann v. O'Farrell, 1 Hog. 137. PR. SALES JUDICIAL; PR. COSTS.

VICE CHANCELLOR.

On an application to the Ld. Ch. to rehear a petition of appeal from the V. Ch., which petition had been previously heard by Ld. Eldon, and the order of the V. Ch. reversed; the Ld. Ch. considering such application to be objectionable, and the practice to require regulation, but held, that he could not consistently with the course pursued by his predecessors, now refuse to rehear the case. Exp. Baker, 1 Mont. & M. 279. REHEARING; JURISDICTION.

WAIVER.

If a defendant is in a situation to dismiss a bill by an order of course, for want of prosecution after replication filed, and does not avail himself of his rights, but permits the plaintiff to file interrogatories and examine witnesses, he cannot afterwards dismiss the bill for want of prosecution; and an order of dismissal, subsequently obtained, will be discharged for irregularity. Fernes v. Hutchinson, 1 Russ. & M. 22. PR. BILL, DISMISSAL FOR WANT OF PROSECUTION.

The acceptance of the 20s. costs, by the clerk in court of the defendant, is a waiver of the irregularity of a second order obtained as of course. Tarleton v. Dyer, 1 Russ. & M. 1. S. P. Hair v. Woodbridge, id. 5. (n). PR. ORDER TO AMEND; PR. COSTS, PAYMENT AND EFFECT.

The entry of an appearance at the time the defendant serves notice of a motion to set aside process for want of an appearance on the ground of irregularity, is no waiver of the irregularity complained of; but the motion may be made before the appearance is entered. Halpin v. Hamilton, 1 Hog. 103. PR. APPEARANCE.

No new fact can be introduced into a bill by amendment without prejudice to process for want of an appearance or answer. Moffett v. Johnston, 1 Hog. 106. PR. BILL, AMENDMENT; PR. APPEARANCE.

The plaintiff having parted with title deeds, on which she had a lien, to enable her debtor to raise a sum of money on annuity; the defendant, by memorandum in writing, undertook to pay that annuity to the plaintiff, in case it should not be paid by the grantor; the annuity fell into arrear, and the plaintiff paid it. On a bill for specific performance and adequate security: held, that the plaintiff having taken this personal security, a court of equity would not interfere. Bill dismissed. Brough v. Oddy, 1 Taml. 215.

Plaintiff, by cross-examining a defendant, examined as a witness by another defendant, waives any objection to his competency as interested, but not to his credit. Ellis v. Deane, 1 Beat. 5. PR. EVIDENCE.

WASTE.

Qu. Whether planting grass potatoes is waste. Deane v. Caffray, 1 Hog. 23.

A tenant will not be allowed to break up ancient meadow or pasture though the land is mossy and requires tillage. Murphy v. Coggan, 1 Hog. 120. LANDLORD & TENANT.

If waste has been committed, and the case is pressing, the receiver may file a bill for an injunction without waiting for an order for the purpose; but if time will permit, he should first apply for a reference to enquire what proceeding he ought to take. Nangle v. La. Fingall, 1 Hog. 142. PR. RECEIVER.

Where a bog has been demised as bog, or all the land demised is bog, and only valuable as such, the tenant may use it as he pleases. In all other cases it is waste for a tenant to cut turf, unless he has a special commission. Anon. 1 Hog. 147.

WILLS.

VII. REPUBLICATION OF.

A testator devised to his wife, who died in his lifetime, certain estates, subject to certain bequests; and also all other his freehold, copyhold, and leasehold estates whatsoever, not before otherwise disposed of.

By a codicil, after reciting the devise to his wife, he, in case she should die before him, gave and devised all his said estates to trustees upon certain trusts. Held, that the codicil was not a republication of the will, so as to pass estates purchased between the date of the will and the codicil. Smith v. Dearmer, 3 Y. & J. 280. WILL, C. OF, WHAT PASSES, AFTER-FURCHASES.

VIII. REVOCATION OF.

A testator having devised freeholds and copyholds to the same persons, afterwards executed a settlement in contemplation of his marriage, by which he bargained and sold the freeholds to trustees and their heirs, to the use of himself during his life; and after his death to the intent that the wife might receive annually a rent charge, which was secured by powers of distress and entry, and by a term of years; and subject to the rent charge and the term, to the use of the settlor, his heirs and assigns; and he covenanted to surrender the copyholds to the uses of the settlement. The marriage was solemnized, and the testator died, leaving his wife surviving, without having surrendered the copyholds to the uses of the settlement; the covenant to surrender did not operate as an entire revocation of the devise of the copyholds, but was a revocation only so far as the particular purposes of the settlement required. Vausser v. Jeffery, 3 Russ. 479. SETTLM. C. OF.

A conveyance of an estate to trustees upon trust to sell for payment of debts, is not a revocation of a prior will, because it declares that the surplus monies arising from the sale shall be personal estate of the testator; but if it have the further purpose, to provide an annuity for the separate use of the wife until the sale, it will be a revocation, because the wife will be entitled to the annuity after the death of the husband, if the sale do not take place in his lifetime. Hodges v. Green, 3 Russ. 28.

A testator, in the case of an event which happened after his death, directed a freehold estate to be sold, and the produce applied upon the trusts, intents, and purposes afterwards expressed in his will, as to his residuary personal estate; by a codicil he revoked the gift in his will of his residuary personal estate, and made a new disposition of it. The produce of the freehold estate is not thereby affected, but passes upon the trusts, intents, and purposes which were expressed in the will as to the residuary personal estate. Franzis v. Collier, 4 Russ. 331.

A testator devised his moiety of an estate, and then made partition with his co-tenant; on this the estate was conveyed to a trustee, as to one part to the use of the testator in fee; and a mortgage term created by the co-tenant in his moiety was assigned to attend the inheritance: held, that this is not a revocation of the will. Barton v. Croxall, 1 Taml. 164.

XV. 2. CONSTRUCTION, GENERALLY.

R N, by his will, gave all his personal estate to R N, and J N, that is to say, (he then enumerated several particulars,) in trust for the following purposes: that the same be not liable or resorted to for the payment of mortgages or bond debts, and charges thereafter mentioned should be satisfied; and as soon as that could be effected, the same was to be resorted to in relief of his real estate. The testator then gave several legacies to his wife and children; and bequeathed the residue; after the respective charges thereby made thereon, to his eldest son and child.

that the residue, as well as the enumerated articles, were subject to the charges in the will mentioned. Nicholas v. Nicholas, 1 Taml. 269.

Devise of lands, subject to 1000*l.* to be raised for the testator's daughters, to an annuity of 37*l.* 10*s.* to his widow, and to all such incumbrances as might happen to be thereon, does not exempt the personal estate from the payment of a mortgage thereon. Philips v. Parker, 1 Taml. 136. ESTATE, PERSONAL, EXEMPTION OF.

Where a Hindoo testator made two of his sons his executors, and after directing the performance of various religious acts by them, and that when they should do them they should give notice to their brothers, and that they should all of them perform the acts, otherwise, whatever the executors might think proper they might do, and should any one raise objections, they should be inadmissible: held, that the executors had not an unlimited discretion in expending the testator's fortune in religious ceremonies. Mullik v. Mullik, 1 Knapp, 245. EXORS. DISCRETIONARY POWERS.

Devise of freeholds of inheritance to trustees for 500 years, and subject to that term, to the use of various persons successively for life, with remainder to the first and other sons of such several persons successively in tail male, with remainder to the daughters of such several persons successively in tail general, with remainders over. The trusts of the 500 years' term were declared to be, that the trustees of the term should out of the rents, &c. of the hereditaments comprised therein, pay the several annuities mentioned in the will, and subject thereto, should out of the residue of the rents and profits of the premises comprised in the said term, raise such sums not exceeding 8000*l.* in the whole, as should be necessary to pay such debts as might be owing by her late husband or by herself, and all which she directed the trustees to pay out of the said rents and profits as they should think fit, and as soon as convenient after her decease; and, subject to the several trusts of the said term, upon trust to pay the residue of the net rents, &c. of the premises comprised therein, unto the persons who for the time being should be next entitled to the reversion or remainder of the premises expectant thereon, under the foregoing limitations: held, that the testatrix did not intend the debts to be raised out of the corpus of the estate, but only that they should be discharged out of the annual rents and profits. Per Lord Chief Baron. This is a question of intention only. The cases show that where the remainder-man takes an estate of inheritance, unless there be something demonstrating a contrary intention, the court, in favour of the person entitled to the charge, if it be a gross sum, will raise it by sale or mortgage. The controversy becomes more important and critical where the remainder-man is tenant for life only. It is a question materially affecting the interest of the devisee, whether the corpus of the estate is to bear the charge, or the devisee is to lose all benefit of his estate until the charge is satisfied. Heneage v. Ld. Andover, 3 Y. & J. 360. TRUST TO PAY DEBTS; RENTS AND PROFITS.

A testatrix, by her will, gave to A 50*s.* a month, for life, "in lieu of him giving up all the other notes and claims;" and by a codicil, she gave him "3*l.* a month," for life; and directed all other things to be paid and done as the will ordered: held, that A was entitled to both the monthly payments for his life. Lord v. Sutcliffe, 2 Sim. 273. LEGACIES, ACCUMULATIVE.

Testator gives to his son a public-house and stock in trade, on condition that he pay debts and a legacy. This is a condition, and not a trust. If, therefore, the son accept the bequest, he is bound to pay the debts, although they amount to more than the value of the property. Messenger v. Andrews, 4 Russ. 479.

Effect of evidence of collateral circumstances, relating to the ages of the devisees, and the situation of the parties, and to their being married or unmarried, is admissible in evidence, for the purpose of construing the will. Lowe v. Huntingtower, 4 Russ. 532. PR. EVID. TO EXPLAIN WILL.

A codicil does not revoke or alter a will to a greater extent than was intended. A testator, by his will, gave certain legacies exclusively charged on real estate: by a codicil, after reciting so much of the will as related to those legacies, he revoked that part of his will, and in lieu of the legacies therein given, gave smaller ones. The object of the codicil being only to alter the amount of the legacies, held, that it could not extend to charge the personal estate, and not being attested by three witnesses, could not alter the legacies charged on the real estate. Thicke v. Thicke, 4 Russ. 435. LEGACIES, PAYMT. FROM WHAT FUND.

A testator gives an annuity and pecuniary legacies, and then devises all the rest, residue, and remainder of his freehold, copyhold, and leasehold estates to trustees, for the uses and benefit of his children. The annuity and pecuniary legacies given prior to the devise are well charged upon the freehold, copyhold, and leasehold estates. Cole v. Turner, 4 Russ. 376. ESTATE, CHARGE ON REAL.

Where a testator gives annuities, and directs them to be paid without any deduction whatsoever, and where, from the nature of the property out of which the annuities are to be paid, there could be no deduction, except in respect of the legacy duty, there the annuities shall be paid clear of legacy duty. Smith v. Anderson, 4 Russ. 352. LEGACY DUTY.

A testator gave to his daughter a legacy of 10,000*l.*, payable and to be paid unto her in manner following, viz.: a sum of 5000*l.* upon her marriage under twenty-one with the consent of his trustees, and the sum of 5000*l.* within two years afterwards. The daughter married under twenty-one without the consent of the trustees, and her first husband dying, she married a second husband, at the distance of thirty years from her first marriage. Qn. if, on such second marriage, she became entitled to the 10,000*l.*? Clifford v. Beaumont, 4 Russ. 325. CONDITION, PERF. OF.

A testator gave the residue of his personal estate to trustees, directing them to convert it into money, and invest the proceeds in government or real security, of which they were to stand possessed, upon trust for A during her life, and, after her death, for B. The trustees permitted a share which the testator had in an Indian loan, bearing interest at 10*l.* per cent., to remain for several years on that security, during which time they paid to A the interest at 10*l.* per cent. which it yielded annually, and the loan being afterwards paid off, they invested the money in the three per cents. at a time when the funds were so low that the amount of stock purchased was greater than if the conversion had taken place at the end of a year from the testator's death. Held, that the tenant for life was not entitled to the actual interest which the money yielded while it remained on the Indian security, but only to the dividends of so much three per cent. stock as would have been purchased with it at the end of a year from the testator's death; that the trustees ought to be charged with the whole of the stock actually purchased, and all the sums actually received in respect of the Indian rate of interest, and that they ought to be allowed, in their discharge as payments to the tenants for life, not the sums which they had in fact paid her, but only a sum equal to what she would have received for dividends, if the money had been transferred from the Indian security, and invested in the three per cent. stock at the end of a year from the testator's death. Dimes v. Scott, 4 Russ. 195. INTEREST, RATE OF; TRUSTEES, LIABILITY OF; INVESTMENT.

Construction of a will, as to the question whether the proceeds of real estate were made the pecuniary fund for the payment of certain legacies. Rickets v. Ladley, 3 Russ. 418. LEGACIES, FROM WHAT FUND.

When a testator directs a sum to be laid out in building a church, the bequest is void; the rule of construction being that a direction to build, includes a direction to purchase land for the purpose of building, unless the testator distinctly refers to land already in mortmain. Pritchard v. Arbourin, 3 Russ. 456. CHARITY, MORTMAIN.

A son died before his father, leaving a widow, to whom he gave all his property. The son's estate being insufficient for the payment of his debts, the father, by a codicil to his will, directed his trustees and executors to pay his son's debts, and named the son of his son residuary devisee and legatee. The true construction of the father's codicil is, that he intended only the payment of such portion of the debts of the son as his son's estate would be insufficient to pay. Walker v. Lodge, 3 Russ. 459.

By a marriage settlement, stock, the property of the husband, was settled on trust for the separate use of the wife during her life, and after her death, for the husband, if he survived her; but if he died in her lifetime, then for such persons as he should, by deed or will appoint; and in default of appointment, for his executors and administrators. The husband died in the wife's lifetime, having appointed an executrix, but without exercising his power. Held, that the executrix was not entitled to the stock beneficially, but that it was to be administered by her as part of his general personal estate. Collier v. Squire, 3 Russ. 467. EXORS. BENEFICIALLY INTERESTED.

A testator devises the residue of his personal estate to such of his children as shall attain twenty-one, or marry under that age with consent. All the children are entitled, although their interests are contingent, to have allowance out of the residue for their maintenance during their minorities. Brown v. Temperley, 3 Russ. 263. INFANT.

An allowance out of a residue which was directed to be accumulated, made for the support of a legatee in the interval between the time when the legatee attained his full age, and the time fixed for the distribution of the accumulated fund. McDermott v. Kealy, 3 Russ. 264. INFANT.

The husband, by his will, bequeathed as follows: "And unto my wife, (whom I make full and wholly executrix), I give my house, with all my household furniture, as also all my plate, china, books, linen, and every other article belonging to me, both in and out of my house, and which may not be herein mentioned, she being subject to the payment of all my just debts, funeral and testamentary expenses." Held, that the beneficial interest in the settled stock did not pass to the wife. Collier v. Squire, 3 Russ. 467. EXORS. BENEFICIALLY INTERESTED.

A testator gave his property after the death of his wife to trustees on trust to pay the interest and profits to his two daughters J and E to their separate use, with a direction to pay to and apply for the benefit of A, the son of E, 2000l. annually, when he attained the age of twenty-one years, and before that period, such part of the 2000l. bequeathed to him as might be judged proper; he then gave his daughters power to dispose of the principal by will, to their children or grandchildren respectively, "except that proportion of principal given to E, and from which the interest is to arise to my grandson, namely, 4000l. which sum shall be my grandson's property;" and in case either of the daughters died without issue, he limited her share of the fund over to the other daughter, her children, or grandchildren. The executrix having in mistake made payments to A, in respect of his annuity, for two years before he attained twenty-one, was entitled to retain them out of the future payments of the annuity. An order authorizing her to retain them, and made upon petition after the decree had been passed and entered, is regular. Livesey v. Livesey, 3 Russ. 287. S.C. in part reversed, id. 542. LEGACY, WHEN IT VESTS.

A legacy was given to the separate use of a married woman during the joint lives of her and her husband, and in case she survived him, to her absolutely; but if she did not survive him, to such persons as she should by will appoint; and in default of appointment, to her next of kin exclusive of her husband and the testator. Held, that the legacy lapsed. Baker v. Hunbury, 3 Russ. 340. LEGACY, LAPSED.

Where a testator directs his just debts and funeral expenses to be fully paid and satisfied, by his executor thereinafter named, it is a condition imposed upon the executor to satisfy the testator's debts and funeral expenses, as far as all the property which he derives under the testamentary disposition will extend, whether real or personal. Hennell v. Whitaker, 3 Russ. 343. S. P. Finch v. Hattersby, id. 345. note. Brigden v. Loader, id. 346. note.

The words "if A B shall happen to die, leaving a child or children," construed to mean, upon the effect of the whole will, the death of A B before the testator's widow. Du Costa v. Keir, 3 Russ. 360.

A testator, by his will, gave certain annuities, and directed that the sums set apart to secure them should, as the annuitants died, sink into the residue of his personal estate. By a codicil to his will, he stated that in case his property would not provide an income equal to the annuities, they should be rateably reduced. His estate was deficient, and the annuities were rateably reduced. Upon the death of any annuitant, the sum set apart to secure the reduced annuity will belong to the residuary legatee, and is not to be applied to increase the reduced annuities to the amount given by the will. Farmer v. Mills, 4 Russ. 86. RESIDUE, WHAT.

In order to advance the apparent intention of the testator, the words "if he should die," were construed "when he should die." Smart v. Clark, 3 Russ. 365.

XV. 3. WHAT ESTATE IS GIVEN.

Devise of the residue of realty and personality to testator's two sons as joint tenants. They, for twenty years after the father's death, carried on the business of farmers with such estates, and kept the monies arising therefrom in one common stock, and with part of such monies purchased other estates in the name of one of them, but never in any manner entered into any agreement respecting such farming business, or ever accounted with each other: Held that as to the leasehold and personal estate, which passed by the will of the father, the two sons remained joint-tenants, but that as to all the after purchased estates, they were tenants in common. Morris v. Barnett, 3 Y. & J. 384. ESTATE, JOINT TENANCY; ESTATE TENANCY IN COMMON.

A gift to A and B, "whom I appoint my executors, of all that I possess in any way belonging to me, by them freely to be possessed of, or enjoyed of whatever nature or manner it may be," will pass the fee-simple of real estate. Thomas v. Phelps, 4 Russ. 348. ESTATE, FEE-SIMPLE.

Devise to executors and trustees of a freehold of inheritance for a term of ten years, in trust to pay debts and legacies, and after testator's decease, to his wife for life; then "to my grandson T C, son of the late R C, all that my estate where I now live, and all that other estate and premises thereto belonging, situate, &c, called or known by the name of W. estate, now in the holding of T for his own use during his natural life, with remainder to the first son of the body of the said T C lawfully begotten, severally and successively in tail male of the name of C. And for want of such lawful issue of that name, either by my said grandson T C, or my son J C, then I give and devise the said estate where I now live, and the W. estate, amongst my daughters and their children share and share alike, to hold unto them, his, her, or their heirs for ever as tenants in common, and not as joint tenants." T C suffered a recovery. He had no child. Held, on an exception to the title taken by a purchaser under a sale by order of the court, that the devise could make a good title in fee to the vendee. The question of title or no title being matter of opinion for the court, the purchaser is bound thereby, and cannot object to complete the purchase on the ground of the difficulty of the question on which the title depends. Rushton v. Craven, 12 Price, 599. VEND. AND PURCH., TITLE.

A gift of real estate to A for life, with remainder to her children as tenants in common, and in case A should die without leaving lawful issue, then with remainder over, is a gift to A for life, with remainder to her children for life, with remainder to A in tail. Parr v. Swindells, 4 Russ. 283. ESTATE FOR LIFE.

A gift of personal estate to the wife for life, with a direction that after her death one moiety thereof shall be at her entire disposal, either by will or otherwise, amounts only to an estate for life in the wife, with a power of appointment. The sale by the widow of a sum of three per cent. stock which constituted nearly the whole of the residue, and the investment of the proceeds in the purchase of long annuities in her own name, does not amount to an exercise of her power. Reith v. Seymour, 4 Russ. 263. POWER TO APPOINT; POWER, EXECUTION OF; ESTATE FOR LIFE.

J L by his will, devised his manors to trustees upon trust, to convey the same to his son J H L, for life, with remainder to trustees to preserve contingent remainders; with remainder to the second and other younger sons of J H L, in tail male. There was no limitation to the first son of J H L; but the declaration of the trust of the term contained a provision to raise money for the daughters, on failure of issue male of the body of J H L. The will also provided, that in case J H L. should have any children, other than besides an eldest or only son, then J H L, might raise money for the portion of younger sons or daughters: Held that the true construction of the will was, that the first son should have an estate tail male in reversion, after the death of his father. Langston v. Pole, 1 Taml. 119.

A devise of lands to A, "for paying his son 50l., when of the age of twenty-one years," gives A the fee beneficially charged with the payment of 50l. Abrams v. Windhup, 3 Russ. 350. ESTATE, FEE.

XV. 4. WHAT PASSES.

Testator devised his estate in Leicestershire to trustees upon trust to sell the same, and also his books and stock, either together or in parcels. He afterwards disposes of the monies to arise from the sale of his Leicestershire estate. As the estate, books, and stock, might have been sold in one lot, and the produce was to form one common fund: Held, that the disposition of the monies to arise from the Leicestershire estate, extended to the books and stock. El. Newburgh v. Eyre, 4 Russ. 454.

A testatrix gave such of her jewels as should at her death be deposited in her jewel-box at Rundell and Bridge's, to persons whose names would be found written on a paper contained in the box, and bequeathed the rest of her jewels to A B; two years before her death she became the subject of a commission of lunacy, and no jewel-box was then, or at the date of her will, or at her death deposited at Rundell and Bridge's, nor was there any written paper designating who were to take the jewels: the intended gift of the jewels wholly fails. A Scotch heritable bond, although it contain a personal obligation to pay the debt, does not lose its heritable quality, and will not pass by an English will, but descends to the heir at law. Jerningham v. Herbert, 4 Russ. 388. S. C. 1 Taml. 103.

Whether stock will, or will not pass under the word "monies," or under the word "goods," or under the word "chattels," depends upon the whole context of the will. The word "goods," and equally the word "chattels," used simply and without qualification, will pass the whole personal estate including stock. A bequest of all monies, goods, chattels, clothing, &c., the testator's property, which may remain after paying his funeral charges and debts, will pass the testator's interest in stock and money. Kendall v. Kendall, 4 Russ. 360.

A testator devised to his wife, who died in his lifetime, certain estates, subject to certain bequests; and also all other his freehold, copyhold and leasehold estates whatsoever, not before otherwise disposed of. By a codicil, after reciting the devise to his wife, he, in case she should die before him, gave and devised all his said estates to trustees upon certain trusts. Held, that the codicil was not a republication of the will, so as to pass estates purchased between the date of the will and the codicil. Smith v. Deamer, 3 Y. & J. 280. WILL, REPUBLICATION OF.

A bequest of a cabinet, with whatever it contains "except money," will not pass a promissory note payable to the testatrix, of a date anterior to the will, and which at her death was found in the cabinet. Read v. Stewart, 4 Russ. 69. BILL OF EXCHANGE.

Where legacies are given upon trust to accumulate, the interest and dividends will not pass by a gift over of the principal sums, unless the court is satisfied by a reference to other clauses of the will, that the interest and dividends were omitted in the gift over by clerical mistake. Harvey v. Cooke, 4 Russ. 34.

A Scotch heritable bond, though containing a personal obligation, carries with it the personal right as being jus nobilius, and descends to the heir, and will not pass by an English will. Jerningham v. Herbert, 1 Taml. 103. S. C. 4 Russ. 388. HEIR AT LAW.

A testator, being absolute owner of some copyholds of which he had been admitted tenant, and having the legal fee of other copyholds holden of the same manor to which he had not been admitted, but subject to trusts under which he was in equity only tenant for life, with remainder to his son in tail, remainder to himself in fee, surrendered to the use of his will, all his copyholds holden of that manor, or which he was seised of, or entitled to, in possession, reversion, remainder, or expectancy: he was subsequently admitted tenant of all the copyholds which were subject to the trust, except the moiety of one tenement, and afterwards made a will, devising all his hereditaments, freehold and copyhold, in possession, reversion, remainder, or expectancy, to trustees and their heirs, upon trust for his son for life, with remainder over. Held, that the surrender and the will passed both the legal and beneficial interest in all the copyholds upon which the surrender operated, including those of which the deviser was in equity only tenant for life, and that the son was bound to elect whether he would give effect to this general devise, or would insist upon the benefit of the equitable estate tail, which he took under the old trusts to which some of the copyholds were subject. Abdy v. Gordon, 3 Russ. 278. WILL, C. OF, WHAT PASSES; COPYHOLD; HEIR AT LAW; ELECTION.

A bequest of household furniture and other household effects, in a dwelling house and premises, comprises all the property placed there, either for ornament or for use, or consumption in it. Cole v. Fitzgerald, 3 Russ. 301. HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE.

XV. 5. WHAT INTEREST.

A testator gave to his wife an annuity and 100*l.* a year for each of his three children during their minority, and from and after the decease or marriage of his wife, then the 300*l.*, to be divided amongst his said children; and subject thereto he bequeathed his leasehold and personalty unto three children, and the survivors and survivor of them. One died under twenty-one: Held, that he took a vested interest, at the death of the testator. Russ v. Russell, 1 Tam. 48. INTEREST, VESTED.

Devise to trustees and their heirs during the life of A B, in trust to lay out the rents and issues thereof in government securities, until A B should attain twenty-one, and, after that, to suffer her to receive and take the profits during her life, not subject to the debts or controul of her husband, her receipt to be a sufficient discharge; and, after her decease, to her heirs. Upon a suit for a specific performance of an agreement for the purchase of part of the estates, the question was, whether A B took the legal, or only an equitable interest for life in the property, so as to bring the title within the rule in Shelley's case. The Ld. C. B. would not compel the defendant to accept the title. Playford v. Hoare, 3 Y. & J. 175. VENDOR & PURCH., TITLE.

Devise to A and B and their heirs, to sell and dispose at their discretion of all the testator's right in S, belonging to the manor of M, and all his right in M, if an act should pass for inclosing the same within twenty years, to pay the proceeds to the several persons therein mentioned. An inclosure act passed within the twenty years, and various allotments were made in respect of the testator's estates: Held, that the devise was in the nature of an executory devise to take effect on the passing of the act. And the decree declared the parties claiming under the devise, to be entitled to one-fourth part of the monies produced from the sale of the allotments in S, in respect of the testator's messuage and lands in S, and to the whole of the monies produced by the sale of the allotments in respect of the land in M. Gardner v. Lyddon, 3 Y. & J. 389. EXECUTORY DEVISE.

Testator gave legacies of 4000*l.* charged exclusively on real estate. He struck out the 4000 with his pen, and inserted 3000 in pencil; and by an unattested codicil, which was a nullity, as the legacies were exclusively charged on real estate, expressly altered the amount of the legacies from four to three thousand pounds. Held, that the legatees were entitled to the legacies of 4000*l.* Kirke v. Kirke, 4 Russ. 435.

Obiterations and interlineations by the testator in his will, coupled with an ineffectual codicil, does not amount to a revocation, but is a substitution, which failing, the original disposition stands good. S. C.

Devise of property to be sold, and the proceeds invested in the Bank of England, and the interest to be paid to testator's daughter for her life, and the principal wholly at her disposal at her death: Held, not to give the daughter an absolute interest, so that she could dispose of it during her life. Simpson v. Forrester, 1 Knapp, 241.

XV. 6. WHO TAKE.

A testator devised certain property to his wife for life, and after her death to A I who then lived with him, for life, provided she so long continued single and unmarried. Then, he devised part of his estate (except what he had given to his wife and A I) to trustees for thirty-one years, upon certain trusts, and after the expiration of such term, to the children which he might have by A I and living at his death, or born six months after, and in default of such children, to his nephew. The wife died, and the testator published his will after her death: Held, by the judges and house of lords, that the children of A I who had previously acquired the character of reputed children of the testator by A I, took an estate in the lands devised. Wilkinson v. Adams, 12 Price, 478. BASTARD.

The statute of the 25 G. 2. s. 6. does not extend to wills of personal estate only, and a legacy to a person who is an attesting witness to such a will is not void. Emanuel v. Constable, 3 Russ. 436. PR. EVID. WITNESS, ATTESTING; LEGACY; ESTATE, PERSONAL; STAT. C. OF.

A testator gave the interest of a fund to his widow for life, with a power of appointment amongst all his children, and in default of appointment, amongst all such children, with a gift over to the widow, in case all the children should die before their shares should become payable. The widow appointed the fund to her two children, one of whom died in her lifetime: Held, that the survivor took the whole fund. Bielefield v. Record, 2 Sim. 354. POWER, EXECUTION OF.

A testator gave one-fifth of the interest of a fund in the following proportions; namely, one-fifth to M, and two-fifths each to C and J; if M should die without issue, which event did happen, her fifth was to go between C and J for their lives, if living at M's decease, or if only one, to him; if C should leave issue, they should be entitled to the principal monies, the interest whereof was given to C for life; but if he should die without issue in the lifetime of J, all benefit of the bequest to C should go to J; and if J should die without having succeeded to and been in actual possession of the family estate for a certain time, leaving issue other than an only son, such issue should be entitled to all the principal monies, the interest whereof J might be entitled to as aforesaid. Then followed a gift over of all benefit intended for J, in case he should die in the lifetime of C, either without issue, or without issue other than an only son, or having been in possession of the estate for a certain time. If both C and J should die without issue, to be entitled as aforesaid to the bequest, the whole property should go as the survivor should think fit. J, having survived M, died in the lifetime of C, leaving a daughter, and without having been in possession of the estate; and then C died without issue: Held, that the daughter of J was entitled to the whole fund. El. Neuburgh v. Eyre, 4 Russ. 454.

Testatrix devised lands "to the next of kin of her father and mother both deceased, his or her heirs and assigns, and if more than one, in equal shares." The testatrix being unmarried, and the only child of her parents, and the parents being strangers in blood to each other, there could be no person who was next of kin to both. Held, however, that the testatrix meant the next of kin of both parents. Pycroft v. Gregory, 4 Russ. 626.

A testator bequeathed "to the two sons and the daughter of A B, 50*l.* each." At the date of the will, and the death of the testator, A B had one son and four daughters; each of these five children is entitled to a legacy of 50*l.* Harrison v. Harrison, 1 Russ. & M. 72.

In a will the words "failing the male issue" were, upon the whole context, construed to mean "if there shall be no son then living." Murray v. Addenbrook, 4 Russ. 407. WORDS, C. OF.

The word "survivors" in a bequest to children, held, upon the context of the will, to mean surviving so as to attain their respective ages of twenty-one. Crozier v. Fisher, 4 Russ. 398. 16.

Where a pecuniary legacy is given by a testator to his heir, the word is to be understood in its legal and ordinary sense, unless controuled by the context of the will, and the heir at law will take the legacy, and not the next of kin. In such a case it makes no difference that there are three co-heirs. Mounsey v. Blamire, 4 Russ. 334. HEIR AT LAW; NEXT OF KIN.

A testatrix gives a legacy to the sole and separate use of her daughter for life, with a power of appointment, and in default of appointment, to her next of kin, "as if she had died sole and intestate, to the utter exclusion of her husband." This expression will not exclude a child of the daughter, but is to be considered as used for the sole purpose of excluding the husband. Hardwicke v. Thurston, 4 Russ. 380.

Where a donor recommends or directs that the donee, at her death, shall give personal property to such of his family, or such of his relations, as he shall think fit; the donee has a power to select the objects of her bounty amongst his relations or family, though not within the degree of next of kin; but if the donee does not exercise the power, the word "relations," or the word "family," will be construed "next of kin," unless the special expressions of the donee have a different import. Grant v. Lynam, 4 Russ. 292. POWER, C. OF.

A bequest to all the children of A, and their issue, share and share alike, and to be paid twelve months after the testator's death, is an absolute gift to such children of A as are living at the testator's death. Butler v. Ommamney, 4 Russ. 70.

A testator bequeathed the residue of his estate after the death of two persons, to such children of B, as should be then dead, leaving children; he directed that the children should stand in the place of their parents: held that the children of such children of B as died in the testator's lifetime, took no share of the residue. Id. 73.

"Child or children," may mean "issue." A testator bequeathed property to trustees upon trust to pay the income thereof to his daughter during her life, and directed that in case she should leave any issue living at her death, that the property should be disposed of, and the produce thereof paid to and amongst such child or children as she should appoint, and in default of appointment, to and amongst such issue as tenants in common, or if there should be but one child, the whole to be paid to such one; and if there should be no issue of his daughter living at her decease, or they should die infants, then over: Held, that the words "child or children," must be construed "issue," and, therefore, that an appointment to the exclusion of the grandchildren was void. Doe v. Welch, 2 Sim. 319.

A testatrix bequeathed one moiety of the residue of her personal estate to her daughter H, for her separate use during the joint lives of her and her husband, and if she survived him, to her absolutely; if not, to such of her children living at her decease as should attain twenty-one, with a bequest over if there were no such children to another daughter, M, for her separate use and her children; and she bequeathed the other money to M for her separate use during the joint lives of her and her husband, and after her decease to such of her children living at her decease as should attain twenty-one; and if there were no such children of M; to H and her children in like manner as the first moiety; with a proviso that if H died in her husband's lifetime, and should not have a child living at her decease, who should attain twenty-one, the second moiety was to go over to H's executors and administrators, and that in like manner the first mentioned moiety in the event in which it was limited over, should, if M had not a child living at her death, who should attain twenty-one, go over to M's executors and administrators: by a codicil the executrix gave 1500*l.* if M died without leaving any child who attained twenty-one, to H and her children, in the same manner as was in the will directed touching the first mentioned moiety of the residue; and in case both daughters died without leaving any child living who should attain twenty-one, she bequeathed the 1500*l.* together with all the residue of her personal estate to A; both the daughters died without issue, but H survived her husband: Held nevertheless, that A was entitled to the residue. Hopkins v. Towle, 3 Russ. 304.

A testator gave the residue of his estate upon trust to pay the interest to his widow during her life for her separate use, and after her decease, to pay the principal to C for her own use, and to be at her own disposal, but if C should happen to die leaving any child living at her decease, then to such child or children; and if she should happen to die without any child living at her decease, then to D and E; but if either of them should die before they should become entitled to receive the fund, then he gave the whole to the survivor, and if they should both die in the lifetime of his widow, then he gave the whole to his wife absolutely. C having survived the widow, was entitled to the residue absolutely. Da Costa v. Keir, 3 Russ. 360.

A testator devises his real and personal property to trustees, upon trust for four children of M D, whom he described by their respective names, together with every other child of the body of M D alive at my decease, or born within nine months afterwards, share and share alike. M D had two other children born after the date of the will, but before the date of a codicil to it, and these as well as the four previously born, were all illegitimate. The children born after the date of the will are not entitled to any share of the property. Mortimer v. West, 3 Russ. 370. POSTHUMOUS CHILDREN; BASTARD.

WORDS, CONSTRUCTION OF.

In a will, the words "failing the male issue," were upon the whole context construed to mean "if there shall be no son then living." Murray v. Addenbrook, 4 Russ. 407. WILL, C. OF, WHAT ESTATE.

The word "survivors" in a bequest to children: Held upon the context of the will to mean, surviving so as to attain their respective ages of twenty-one. Crosier v. Fisher, 4 Russ. 398. WILL, C. OF, WHO TAKE.
